Question: I've heard time after time that wedding guests going through the receiving line should congratulate the groom, but wish the bride happiness. Why is it considered bad manners to congratulate the bride? I've heard many guests say it anyway and wonder why it's still considered to be such bad taste. Could you enlighten me? — A.B., Syracuse, N.Y.

Answer: Congratulations usually are offered when something something — like a contest, a gold medal or, in the case of a groom, a lovely wife. Congratulating a bride seems to indicate "my, how lucky she is to have snagged a husband." That's why it's considered inappropriate.

Question: My daughter is planning to have a double-ring ceremony at her forthcoming wedding. Her fiance has chosen for her a lovely diamond circlet which matches her engagement ring. She thinks she should give him a wedding band with a diamond set in it. Is this proper? I always thought a man's wedding ring should be a plain gold band. — Mrs. D.B., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Answer: It usually is, and he may have more conventional ideas on the subject. It would be better to find out his preference, and she may correctly invite him to accompany her when she goes to choose his ring. If he should prefer a ring with a stone, a good jeweler will be able to advise on an appropriate masculine setting.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Who Is the Famous Family?

DEAR DORIS:—On Monday, May 7, 1962, you quoted a mother who had five sons—"three entered one ambassador—a writer—a medical specialist, one engineer; and the president of a large company."

Please Miss Clark, do let me know whom you are referring to. She is indeed a fortunate mother!—MOTHER OF-TWO.

DEAR MOTHER-O F-T W O:—Fantastic, isn't it? But that's why it was worth reporting.

And there are other Canadian families who have done outstanding things. Most can trace back to inspired upbringing. Actually this family is not famous, but its members were trained to make the world their backyard.

They are scattered to the four winds; one is in the Far East, one in the United States, one in Northern Ontario, one in Alberta. They are friends of a friend, and I am not at liberty to identify them.

DEAR DORIS:—I will be 46 in June and I would love to have another baby. I have been trying for a long time without success. I'm in good health. I have two boys 17 and 19.

I was wondering if any of the new drugs I have been reading about would help. I cannot bring myself to ask my doctor. I think he would laugh at a woman of my age wanting a baby. My husband is even more anxious than one.

Also, do you think it selfish of me to want a baby, or would it be fair to the baby to have an old mother? It would certainly be nice to have a baby around instead of about older woman who have had babies—MOTHER LOVE.

DEAR MOTHER—There is no general answer to such a question, as people differ in health, outlook on life, degree of aging, response to physical care.

Rick being laughed at; no doctor worth his salt would do it. He can tell you what your chances are and answer the question about drugs.

As for whether it is fair to the baby, the adoption agencies draw the line at around forty for adopting a baby. People of forty-six might get a child six years old; forty-eight, eight years old, and so on. Just so you won't be too much older than your child.

But you want to give love and there are children who need it. Would you take on a child whose own mother cannot take care of him for a while? Most child care agencies are looking for foster homes. There is no more rewarding gift than the love of a child who has been shortchanged by home or circumstance.

(Talking it over with Doris may be your answer. This Canadian social worker has been helping people with predicaments for years. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Taming of the Shrew Enchants at Stratford

BY ROBERT TANNER

If the success of opening night's Macbeth was less than certain, Tuesday's audience left no doubt at all that The Taming of the Shrew was a smash hit. Time and again their tumultuous applause, punctuated by enthusiastic "bravos," brought the cast back onto the stage, a demonstration of delight and affection which culminated in a standing ovation for the two principals, Kate Reid and John Colicos. It would seem almost impossible to top the rollicking production by Tyrone Guthrie which the Festival presented in the Tent in 1954, but it is clear that this is just what many who saw both shows feel has happened.

In such a splendid piece of teamwork, it is difficult to decide where the greatest credit should go. Michael Langham's direction is very fast paced and imaginative, if at times artificial with the restlessness which is becoming almost a Stratford tradition. He succeeds in interpreting the byplay with Tinker Christopher Sly, for whose bemused benefit the play proper is presented, much more credibly than usual, with the result that it no longer seems a rather unnecessary artifice, but adds considerably to the general fun. So do the astounding costumes designed by Tanya Moiseiwitsch which no male pen could adequately describe. Colors and shapes in gorgeous and startling combinations flood the stage in what must surely be Stratford's brightest production to date.

But neither director nor designer can work without a cast and here again all doubts were dispelled. Obviously enjoying every minute of the play, they threw themselves into their parts with such abandon that if space would permit, almost all would deserve a mention. Strict selectivity is therefore essential and the obvious starting point is with Petruchio and Katharina. John Colicos plays sensitively but with a fire that Kate Reid matches flame for flame. Looking magnificent in a red wig, she is a shrew worthy of the taming and her final speech, probably the finest piece of writing in the play, is beautifully given.

There is a moment in the production, within a minute or two from its start, when the show is almost stolen by a couple of Golden Retrievers, who even on their first performance acted like seasoned veterans. But they are no match for Leo Ciceri playing the Lord who owns them, though he is forced to pause for the audience's delighted gasp to do down. Hugh Webster, as Sly, on whom the rather cruel joke is played, takes such pleasure in his strange surroundings as to remove all the sting, and brings the play to a close with a sense of keen anticipation as he goes home to his wife determined to put his new-found knowledge to good use.

William Needles (1964's Petruchio) turns in a performance as fantastic at his costume as Bianca's elderly suitor Gremio, while the equally unsuccessful Hortensio gives Peter Donat ample scope for his comic talents. The audience obviously shared Sly's fondness for Grumio, Petruchio's servant, as portrayed by Eric Christmas in yet another of his gems of characterization. Bernard Behrens as Tranio and Lewis Gordon as Biondello, both comparatively new to the company, are comedians of a high order and worked very well together.

But the list could go on and on: only the two young lovers Bianca and Lucentio, played by Toby Robbins and Garrick Hagon were somewhat disappointing, the former because of an unnatural "cute" voice, and the latter as a result of lack of experience for a role of this importance.

With one more play, The Tempest, opening tomorrow night, Stratford's Shakespearean offering for this season will be fully launched. The Gondoliers, third successive Gilbert and Sullivan production, opens on July 6th, and Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac joins the Shakespeare plays on July 26th. The program of concerts begins on Sunday July 28th, with a Bach recital featuring Glenn Gould. Once again, for the tenth year in succession, Stratford will become the Summer Mecca for all lovers of drama, music and good clean fun.

Pretty Print

By VERA WINSTON

Silk crepe in a pretty floral print has inspired a delightful daytime dress-up dress, a fine choice for June wedding, and other social functions. Nice, too, for cruise or vacation wear as an informal evening dress.

The multi-color print is used on a white or black background and is pretty either way. The frock is utterly simple allowing the fabric to score.

An attached taffeta petticoat helps retain the shape of the three-tier skirt.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There are volumes and volumes, books without end, written specifically for managers, salesmen, and a whole host of others seeking to win friends and influence people. Since America worships at the shrine of "Success," it is often imagined that all we need do is learn, in a very few lessons, the magical mumbo-jumbo that help to harness this "god" to our willful needs.

Some less - than - objective sociologists and psychologists have even made a "science" of this. They study the mass-mind, research the motivations of the human herd-behaviour and feed the success - seekers their "magical information." Hidden persuaders, they are called.

But real success in life — that which spells out the development of our personality, and the achievement of its fulfilments — depends upon a support and a basis much different. At the core of this kind of success is a little understood quality. It is called empathy.

What is empathy?

The simplest, most direct way to explain empathy is to describe what happens to us when we engage in or observe an athletic event — where the body is involved. Actually, much more than the body is involved whether we bowl or watch someone else bowl, play football, or see a game from the stands.

The bowler sways in the direction he hopes the ball will roll, as if to influence its course with his bodily motion. People in the grandstands watching a game of football, heave with the forward motion of the line, swing their own hips with the runner — as if they were themselves helping the teams to win.

In virtually all true artistic experience, empathy is also found. If the individual is to experience an aesthetic feeling, he must in some way, identify as well as communicate with the object. This is why people are "carried away" by music, or "moved to tears" by the beauty of a violin, an actor's performance, or a colorful and dramatic sunset.

Aristotle taught: a dramatic tragedy purges the soul of the viewer because the tragedy is "enacted on the stage of his soul" as he watches it on the real stage.

The way in which we converse is a good example of how empathy works. For in every good conversation empathy is at work. It must take something out of us, if we are to enter the very heart of the other person. If we are successful in truly meeting another human being we must be able to "walk with him into the deepest chambers of his soul."

Alfred Adler, the eminent psychologist, got to the very core of the meaning of empathy. He said: "Empathy occurs in the moment one human being speaks with another. It is impossible to understand another individual if it is impossible at the same time to identify one's self with him. This is a cosmic feeling and a knowledge of the connectedness of the whole cosmos which live in us; it is an inescapable characteristic of being a human being.

Here, then, is the heart of it: being a human being! Many of us never develop our latent potential to sympathize because we do not take the trouble to become more than statistically successful. We look upon others as numbers in a game, pawns on a chess-board, cogs in a big whirling machine. Results: We try to win friends and influence people in sub-human, sometimes, inhuman ways: by maneuvering, manipulation and mass-communication.

This is why we really never move anybody, in the deepest sense — for we, ourselves, are only going through motions. We speak words — but they flow mechanically out of reservoirs which have been emptied of deep feelings. Indeed, ours has rightly been called a "cut-flower" civilization, the roots have been pulled out!

All of us have been taught to "love thy neighbor as thyself." But what is the Biblical doctrine of love, if not the modern psychological equivalent of empathy? To love something or somebody we must participate in them. We cannot know or love another person by analyzing him, or reducing him to a formula.

We must move something of our own life deeply into his; and to let him do the same with us. Love, or empathy, carries with it the only force for true influence because its motives are not ulterior. They are interior!

I DON'T MISS ANYTHING!

Confidentially, the reason I'm always "in the know" on who is doing what when, where, how and why is that I read my newspaper regularly and very thoroughly!

Your quickest, easiest way to get the most complete and accurate knowledge of what is going on in the world (and out of it) is to follow the example of this little lady and read your newspaper thoroughly, thoughtfully. The latest happening across town . . . the momentous event across the world . . . the newest satellite circling high above it . . . you can "read all about it" at your own convenience, at any hour of the day or night, at your home, office, or on the bus . . . in your newspaper!

SAGE Site Workers Back On Their Jobs

The electrical workers, all employees of a sub-contractor on the project, left their jobs following a protest by their union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) that certain "power installation" work at the site was not being shared equally.

Lou Popovich, Sudbury, business agent for the Brotherhood said the union has no intention of "holding up a defence project."

Mr. Popovich said that were it another type of project not essential to the defence of Canada, the union might well take an "altogether different" attitude.

Premier Manning Happy Over Socred Win

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta says the outcome of Monday's election was particularly valuable to the province.

"We need someone in Ottawa who will stand up on his hind legs and speak out when the interests of Alberta are jeopardized," Mr. Manning said in a press conference Wednesday.

Mr. Manning said Social Credit representatives in Ottawa would not use their strong position for political advantage. They would "meet their responsibilities and . . . give the stability that is essential."

Menzies-JFK Agree on Some Problems on U.K. Joining

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies and president Kennedy agreed Wednesday that many of the specific problems that may result from Britain's joining the Common Market could best be resolved through development of suitable world commodity agreements.

The Australian leader, ending his talks with metals, in order to provide Australia and other Commonwealth suppliers with comparable outlets in the event of loss of markets in Britain.

Menzies, concerned about Britain's negotiations to join the European Community, departed from Washington encouraged that he was able to obtain a measure of sympathy from Kennedy on the future of Australia and the Commonwealth although Kennedy would not go as far as Menzies would have liked on this point.

In a joint communique, following three days of Australian-U.S. discussions, Kennedy agreed that the Commonwealth was a source of strength and stability for the free world but he declined to agree with Menzies that damage of Commonwealth markets in the event Britain joins the Common Market would be a "grave mistake."

At a press conference later, Menzies suggested Kennedy would not "buy into" such a view because the U.S. has been fighting Commonwealth tariff preferences for 30 years. The United States, for example, competed against Australia for the British market in certain products and these items were "by no means of small importance," the communique said.

The two leaders agreed that in respect to these items—which include canned and dried fruit—their governments should hold technical discussions "to reconcile the trading interests of both nations."

This seemed to hint at some kind of deal on how to share the British market in the event that Commonwealth preferences eventually disappear.

PC Candidates in Winning 118 Seats Topped Liberals By Less Than 50,000 Votes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Progressive Conservative candidates, winners of 116 seats, topped the Liberals, who won 97, by less than 50,000 votes in a record poll of more than 7,600,000 in Monday's general election.

A Canadian Press compilation from all but 1,369 of an estimated 48,975 polls showed these figures: Progressive Conservative 2,781,405, Liberal 2,734,951, New Democratic Party 1,052,144, Social Credit 861,828, others 30,068. The total, with three per cent of the polls still to come, was 7,460,396, compared with 1958's previous record of 7,281,297.

The PC percentage of the total vote was 37.5 compared with the Liberals' 36.9. It was the first time since 1945 that votes

Separatists In Quebec May Join Socreds

QUEBEC (CP)—Guy Pinsonneault, chief organizer for Quebec's St. Jean Baptiste Societies, said Wednesday the Social Credit party's strong showing in Quebec province in the June 18 federal election "was the first manifestation of the collective independence of French-Canadians."

Mr. Pinsonneault said the Quebec election result was "a more important phenomenon than most people think, because it showed for the first time the strength of a large group of electors who broke away from the traditional federal parties."

Social Credit took 26 of Quebec's 75 federal seats in the election.

Dr. Marcel Frenette, provincial president of the 271,000-member society, said it "might be that the separatists will jump on the Social Credit bandwagon in order to get a better French - Canadian representation at Ottawa."

Both representatives of the society, which describes itself as a French-Canadian patriotic group, said it was possible that many of the voters who had supported the Socreds June 18 would vote for a "French-Canadian nationalist party" if such a party figured in a subsequent election.

Marcel Chaput, the leader of one of Quebec's largest separatist groups, told a recent press conference here his organization is preparing to found a federal political party. Mr. Chaput is president of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale.

André d'Allemagne, vice-president of the group, said Wednesday Le Rassemblement would not take part in politics unless it was clear that this was the desire of the people of Quebec.

Saskatoon Hospital Board Wants Meeting With Govt. Before Medicare Started

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's second largest hospital asked the Saskatchewan government Wednesday not to implement its Medical Care Insurance Act until agreement on its legislation is reached with the province's doctors.

The request was contained in a telegram received by Premier Woodrow Lloyd and Health Minister W. G. Davies from the board of governors of Saskatoon City Hospital.

At Winnipeg Wednesday, Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, announced that the college will meet the government Friday to discuss terms of reference of the act.

"There appears to be a difference of opinion as to what these terms mean, he said. "At this meeting we will be more explicit in stating the views of the (medical) profession.

ANSWERS GOVERNMENT

Premier Lloyd and Health Minister Davies have said that the doctors failed to make their objections to the act explicit in their opposition to the legislation since it was passed in April, Government spokesmen have frequently said they are willing to make changes in the act if the doctors would pinpoint the clauses to which they object.

Saskatoon City Hospitals request for a delay in inquiring into the plan was the suggestion of the hospitals chief of staff, Dr. G. B. Hazen.

He told the board of governors the hospital can be sure of being able to provide emergency treatment facilities for only two weeks after the medical care plan goes into operation.

The emergency service, provided for by the college as an alternative to practising under the provincial plan, was to be given without charge.

WARY OF ACT

"Doctors don't dare charge under this act, Dr. Hazen said. They would serve without pay and serve the community as a whole. They would receive no personal calls and didn't want to be thought of as individuals.

The doctors could not be providing treatment without charge indefinitely, Dr. Hazen said. Provisions for emergency treatment had been made for the first two weeks of July. After that the hospital would "have to play it by ear."

Many of the younger doctors would leave the province unless a settlement was reached with the government by July 15. He said there would be 14 general practitioners serving Saskatoon 92,000 people starting July 1.

Dr. Hazen said it is difficult to obtain doctors for emergency services because many will be out of the city in July. Some would be on holiday, some would be looking for a new place to practise and "many are sick and tired of the atmosphere now in Saskatchewan."

Timmie Graham, 5, of R.R. 2, Consecon, and his sister, Karen, 3, try out the Bank of Montreal's new school children's wicket. The wicket, open Friday afternoons from 4.30, has steps to a small platform in front of it, so the children can meet on a level with teller Elaine Powell.

This is the first children's wicket in a bank in Belleville. The idea of a special wicket originated in Regina, and there are several spread through Western Canada. Children using this wicket are issued special pass books, but their account is handled as they were adults. There is no minimum to the deposits accepted, so accounts can be opened by children who just want to save a few pennies out of their allowance. The new wicket is expected to give more children an opportunity to learn about banking.

Opposition Leaders Differ On How Long Minority Govt. Can Continue in Office

OTTAWA (CP) — The prospects for Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority Conservative government remained in doubt today.

He was to meet again with his ministers amid demands by the three opposition leaders for an early session of Parliament to cope with what they have described, in varying terms, as a crisis surrounding the dollar and unemployment.

It was not made clear what action would be acceptable to the opposition as a whole, which would have to vote as one in order to defeat the government on the floor of the Commons and thus force a new election.

And, significantly, there was a difference of opinion on how long the minority government could last with 116 of the 265 seats in the House.

Liberal Leader Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker should call Parliament into session as soon as possible—July 16 is the earliest possible date—and seek a vote of confidence. T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, agreed.

BOLDS 'BIG BROOM'

But Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, representing 30 seats, said his party would not touch off another election this year. "We should not consider until next year," he said. Nevertheless he warned that his party holds a big broom.

Starting date of the next session undoubtedly is a key topic at the cabinet sessions, which began Wednesday with a 45-hour meeting. The prime minister so far has said only that the possibility of a September session "always remains."

Twenty-two to 23 ministers went into Wednesday's session. They included three of the four who were broken in Monday's general election—Works Minister Fulton, Postmaster - General William Hamilton, and Mines Minister Flynn. The fifth, State Secretary Dorion, did not attend.

Liberal Leader Pearson conferred with key party men Wednesday at Stornoway, the official residence of the opposition leader. Mr. Douglas arrived here Wednesday night for talks with his party officials and Mr. Thompson was to fly today to Rouyn, Que., to confer with the deputy Social Credit leader, Real Caouette.

GIVES NO NAMES

Mr. Douglas, defeated Monday in the CCF-Labor constituency, revealed Wednesday that three of the party's 19 elected members have already indicated their willingness" to give up their seats so he could contest a byelection. He did not name them.

"This is essentially I want to give some thought to," he said Mr. Pearson, in calling for the early session, told a press conference Wednesday that a there is a developing emergency in connection with the flight of capital from Canada and the pressure on the Canadian dollar." He said the government should reveal all the facts of the situation.

Mr. Pearson, leading a party with 97 seats in the Commons said—as he did late in the election campaign—that he understands "hundreds of millions of dollars" have been used recently from the exchange fund to maintain the dollar at the pegged rate of 92.5 American cents internationally.

Later, he appeared on a CBC television program with Mr. Thompson. Mr. Douglas and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

NO CRISIS?

Mr. Hamilton said "never have conditions looked so good." Attacks on the government by the opposition during the election campaign "did more to undermine confidence than anything the government did."

He added there is "no crisis that anyone can point a finger at."

Speaking on the TV program, Mr. Thompson referred to an "economic crisis" and Mr. Douglas said the country faces "a series of crises."

The NDP leader said that the government should get opposition support if it grapples with these problems but if it didn't the opposition would have no choice "but to join hands to defeat it."

Mr. Pearson said the Liberals expect the government will not be in office very long." His party was under no obligation to support it, except for action in the national interest to strengthen Canada's currency.

All three opposition leaders said they would co-operate with the government on any measures they feel would be in the national interest.

"We must put aside politics and together as Canadians give Canada a little bit of stability for an interim period," Mr. Thompson said. "If we're in a serious condition and it is our responsibility to put Canada first instead of having more political manoeuvring as we have had in the last few months."

He said Mr. Pearson was "playing politics" with his call for vote of confidence.

Magazine Fined $4,000 by Chief Justice

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario High Court has fined the publisher of a magazine $4,000 for contempt of court arising out of articles in which county court judges were criticized.

Phil Glanzer, editor and publisher of the magazine, Police Court Reporter, was given a week to pay the fine or serve three months in jail.

Chief Justice McRuer Wednesday termed the contempt charge the most serious in the history of Ontario.

E. R. Pepper, counsel to the attorney - general's department, said articles appearing in the magazine between September, 1961, and April, 1962, were calculated to bring the county court and its judges into contempt.

He said he agreed with the public's right of criticism but judges and courts are not open to vulgar abuse and Glanzer had written that judges had breached their oaths of office and accused one another of malice in office.

W. B. Willition, Glanzer's lawyer, appealed for his client for the articles from the magazine. The complaints arose and said Glanzer would stop publishing the magazine.

Walter Winchell Wants to Quit As Columnist

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walter Winchell wants to quit as a columnist for the Hearst organization because, he says, some of his criticisms of communism and the Kennedy administration have been deleted by syndicate editors.

"I'll be kicking away $150,000 a year but I'll do it," he told a reporter Wednesday "even though I am 65 years old."

Winchell said that while his columns have been appearing in full in The Mirror, portions of some dealing with his anti-Communist campaign and containing jibes at the White House have been cut before syndication by King Features. Both The Mirror and King Features are part of the Hearst organization.

Les Eggleton, a temporary employee in the CNR's freight department, operates a hand truck on the day shift. Gerry Lawrence, another temporary employee, helps him load it, in the effort to catch up on the backed-up freight shipments.

Truck Strike Is Windfall For Railways, CNR Hires 27

When the Teamsters Union in Quebec went on strike late in April of this year, it was not one of the best things ever to happen to the railroads. For the first time since the rise of the big highway trucking firms, they had no competition, and more freight than they could handle. When the strike spread through Ontario, the increased freight swamped terminals, and their delivery schedules days behind.

Oddly enough, this boon to the railroads is the result of the teamsters' objections to the piggyback system, with which the railroads have been taking truckers and their freight on trains. Now the railroad is leaving the hassles behind, and just taking the freight.

VOLUME QUADRUPLES

The increased freight traffic through the Belleville terminal of the CNR, in the LCL (Less than Carload Lots) freight shed is about 300 per cent in goods directed to Belleville. In goods being transshipped here, and loaded for local points, the increase is about 400 per cent. Bill McCrindle, freight sales manager of the Rideau area, predicts that part of this increase will remain when the strike is settled. Especially if the truck lines increase their rates after the strike, many shippers will continue shipping by rail.

This increase has meant some extra employment in Belleville, too. The CNR's LCL department has hired 27 men over its normal payroll of 11, and five local non-union trucks, in addition to the three of its own it normally operates to cope with the rush. The department is running three shifts a day, seven days a week, and it was still dropping behind until recently. In the effort to catch up with deliveries, it has inaugurated Saturday deliveries of freight to merchants.

"The merchants have been very co-operative, in accepting these Saturday deliveries," said W. C. Belcher, chief clerk in the LCL department.

ARE CATCHING UP

And the railroad is beginning to catch up with the rush. During the past two weeks it has handled about 668 tons of freight in the LCL department for the Belleville area alone. And it has transshipped more than 1,800 tons.

"We're beginning to see daylight," said Art McConnell, local agent for the LCL department. With the diesel engines now in use, the freight cars themselves can be handled faster and more freight can be carried per car. And with the extra men in the LCL shed, the freight can be loaded, unloaded and reloaded faster, Mr. McConnell predicts the Belleville department will be up to date by Tuesday — to offer next-day delivery by tonight.

"But that's just Belleville," he warns. The other areas, Toronto and Montreal particularly, are still behind in their work. Freight coming from outside the immediate area will still probably be delayed.

But not if those three shifts a day can help it. The railroads are trying to keep their new business.

Economic Chief Macaulay Convinced Canadians Can Compete in Europe Market

TORONTO (CP)—Economics Minister Macaulay, back from a six - week trip to Europe, sketched an industrial program Wednesday to make Ontario aware of its opportunities in foreign markets.

He told a press conference the program will be launched this fall. Its main objectives would be to encourage Ontario industry to step up exports and to begin manufacturing here many of the goods now imported.

"We earnestly desire to make Ontario export conscious," Mr. Macaulay said. "While it isn't enough to say we must export more and import less, that in fact is what we have to do."

The minister said he is firmly convinced him that Canadian manufacturers can compete on the European market. There are some who say that Canada has priced itself out of the world market, he said, "but I believe we have no such thing."

HAVE BETTER QUALITY

Where Canadian prices were higher than those prevalent in Europe, Canadian manufacturers could compete with better quality.

One of the first moves being taken by the government, he said, is the sending of a group of sales managers and "order-takers" to industrial industry to go to Europe, "not to visit and holiday, but to get some business."

"I think it's time we should be finished with junkets," he said, speaking of some trade missions which have gone abroad from Canada.

The government has opened its first commercial trade office in Dusseldorf, West Germany, staffed by an Ontario government official and a German familiar with his country's trade, Mr. Macaulay hoped to open "several more offices" in Europe within the next few months.

Ontario would probably subsidize the cost of the first sales mission to Europe and hopes industry would help carry the cost of many future missions.

The minister said the government is hoping to organize, as well, a mission of manufacturers' agents or representatives, seeking to sell the products of co-operative groups of small manufacturers who could not afford to send trade missions to Europe individually.

In addition, the government is "looking into" the possibility of a large advertising program to make people and industry in Ontario export conscious." It might include televised films.

Campaign Being Carried On To Make Highways Safer And Reduce Accident Toll

By BEEL NIXON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An all-out race is being run on Canadian roads.

It's a contest to keep the number of deaths from rising in proportion to the annual increase in motor vehicles.

Two years ago there were 3,341,008 cars and trucks on the roads. Accidents killed 3,306 persons.

Last year the number of vehicle registrations rose to about 3,509,000. The death toll more than kept pace, rising to 3,428.

This year the number of vehicles is expected to jump by one to five per cent.

Will the death rate again rise?

Safety experts are ever hopeful of turning the tide.

During the first three months their hopes were buoyed by the fact that while there were 320 fatalities, the figure was smaller than the 359 in the same period of 1961.

What are they doing to help curb the slaughter on the highways?

NEW LAWS PASSED

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows the campaign is being carried out with a variety of new laws, efforts to make highways safer and a large number of public and private educational campaigns.

On the main road leading south from Calgary Easter weekend, members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce halted automobiles and poured coffee for drivers. It was the start of a campaign to impress them with the importance of driving safely.

In Saskatchewan, starting July 1, new cars will be required to have anchors for seat belts.

In Nova Scotia and Newfoundland some highways for the first time have 60-mile-an-hour minimum speed limits—recognition that driving too slowly can be dangerous.

In Ontario the government has trailers scouting the province offering safety checks of motor vehicles.

Quebec employs a dozen persons whose sole task is to visit schools to impress students with the need for highway safety.

In Fredericton in August a two-week course in driver education for teachers, first of its kind in the Maritimes, will be offered by the Canadian Highway Safety Council with money provided by the All-Canadian Insurance Federation.

COURTS ARE TOUGH

British Columbia, like Manitoba and Prince Edward Island, has no new legislation on the books since government officials feel the only answer is to continue to deal with poor drivers by keeping their cases under constant review.

B.C. gives its magistrates considerable scope, and motor vehicle department officials say firm treatment in courts is the most successful approach.

Manitoba's motor vehicle branch, responsible for licensing and driver testing, continues to rely chiefly on the demerit points system for violations of the Highway Traffic Act which gives it power to suspend driver's licences.

Prince Edward Island in April pulled an eight-week television course in safe driving.

The educational program in Newfoundland is carried out by the RCMP which talks to teenagers on safe driving. The Mounties and highway patrol officers have been given a special course in highway safety. And the province has boosted fines for going through stop signs.

While setting a minimum speed limit, Nova Scotia has also changed the penalty for speeding from a straight fine to loss of points and of driving privileges for one week. More patrol cars will be on the highways this summer.

IMPROVE TRAINING

Quebec is amending the Highway Code to authorize temporary driving permits to students of driving schools at 16 and will issue licences when they have taken an approved course of at least 25 hours of theory and six hours on the road. However, parental consent is still required for all under 21 who want to drive. Jaywalking and speeding fines are being boosted.

New Brunswick is continuing its program to eliminate road hazards, including adherence to the Canadian manual of uniform road signs. Extensive revisions were made this year to clarify and strengthen the Motor Vehicle Act but there has been no increase in penalties.

Ontario is continuing a series of regional conferences on accident prevention and is also boosting two programs, one on bicycle safety and another on pedestrian safety among elderly people.

The demerit point system has been changed, with some increases in loss of points for certain violations. At the same time it now takes 15 points for loss of licence instead of 12.

LIMITS INCREASED

Saskatchewan's Highway Safety Council produced four 15-minute weekly broadcasts heard by 43,000 students in the first three grades. It has completed a safety check of cars through 11 mobile garages in the province.

Explaining the requirement that new cars have seat belt anchors, council director Len Bowman says police reports show that 101 of the 171 fatalities in 1961 could have been prevented with belts.

The Alberta Safety Council, relying on news media and local organizations for promotion, is carrying on a summer safe-driving campaign. The province has new legislation boosting insurance requirements for drivers and providing for 65 m.p.h. speed limits on designated stretches of highway.

FATALITIES HIGHER

Last year the fatality toll rose in six provinces, the exceptions being Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Alberta.

However, in the first three months this year Alberta and Nova Scotia were up, along with Manitoba and P.E.I.

British Columbia 320 (294); Alberta 179 (210); Saskatchewan 171 (164); Manitoba 134 (122); Ontario 1,268 (1,166); Quebec 899 (816); New Brunswick 154 (166); Prince Edward Island 15 (13); Nova Scotia 137 (174); Newfoundland 42 (46).

Deaths in the first three months of this year compared with the same period a year ago:

British Columbia 55 (72); Alberta 26 (25). Saskatchewan 12 (18); Manitoba 17 (14); Ontario 214 (215); Quebec 132 (142); New Brunswick 22 (27); Prince Edward Island 1 (1); Nova Scotia 35 (30); Newfoundland 3 (14).

Shakespeare's Tempest Gets Mixed Reception

STRATFORD (CP) — "But was the critics' key word in describing the premiere of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival's production of The Tempest Wednesday night.

The hesitant reviews bore little resemblance to either the stern criticism of Macbeth which opened the festival's 10th season Monday, or the lavish praise given Tuesday's The Taming of the Shrew.

Three curtain calls were taken after the 2½ hour performance of Tempest as directed by Canadian George McCowan, but the critics missed praise with objections to the handling of the Shakespearean comedy.

"Unless intrigued by William Hutt's beautifully-planned and rigidly-controlled passage along the brink of madness as Ferdinand, or entranced by designer Desmond Heeley's vivid, planned and plushy setting, you may well find yourself rocked to sleep . . ."

FINDS ENCHANTING

Herbert Whittaker of the Toronto Globe and Mail found the play "enchanting" in its mecanets of song and dance, but there are long stretches of ravishingly action between them."

Sydney Johnson of the Montreal Star said it can be hailed as a successful production, but one was always conscious of the enormous difficulties that had to be surmounted by the director."

"It did not run smoothly."

Some other comments:

Bill Ross, Ottawa Journal: "Gets 'average' marks. . . . Had the standard of the opening shipwreck scene been maintained longer this could have been a production to rap them all."

Edgard Delbrees, Ottawa Le Droit: "Boresome during the first act as seldom happens in Stratford. . . . Mr. Hutt is very good—but for 10 years we've been seeing him dignified and authoritative; we'd like to see him in another kind of role."

Mr. DeMers found the play "the least successful of this year's three productions."

CALLS IT 'MAGICAL'

But J. Burke Martin of the London Free Press termed it "magical—truly 'such stuff as dreams are made on.'"

"Director George McCowan and designer Desmond Heeley made it an evening of theatrical loveliness. No one else in sand, her suitor, Stratford could have created so credible a Prospero as William Hutt."

And Simone Auger of Montreal La Presse described it "an astonishingly beautiful spectacle," although the production seemed to justify the contention of Shakespeare scholars that The Tempest is one of the most difficult plays to present.

'World Series Of Golf'

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A "world series of golf," a tournament matching the winners of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the Professional Golfers Association championships, will be played her Sept. 6-9 with $50,000 first prize at stake.

Only the four players—and maybe fewer if there are double or triple champions—will be eligible for the 36-hole stroke play tournament, it was announced Wednesday.

Second place will be worth $15,000 and third and fourth place a minimum of $5,000 each. There's a possibility the third-place award may be hiked to $10,000.

Arnie Palmer, winner of the Masters, and Jack Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open, already have qualified for the jackpot tourney.

The British Open, which will include both Palmer and Nicklaus in the field, will be played July 9-13 at the famous Troon course in Scotland. The PGA will be held July 19-22 in Newtown Square, Pa.

The world series of golf is being produced by Walter Schwimmer Productions, Inc., of Chicago.

Miles Won't Play for Calgary

EDMONTON (CP) — Rollie Miles, 33-year-old veteran backfield star with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, says he will not join Calgary Stampeders.

The decision means Miles, who made the statement in an interview Wednesday, likely will retire from professional football as he is the property of the Stampeders and can play for no one but them.

RESCIND INCREASES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two oil companies Wednesday rescinded one-cent-a-gallon price increases for gasoline. Shell and British American Oil companies were the last of four companies to return retail prices to former levels.

Pepsi's Bow 12-0 to Trudeaus

Trudeau Motors' broke open a 1-0 game with nine runs in the middle innings as they whipped the Pepsi's 13-0 at the CNRA Park last night.

Trudeaus scored once in the first and wrapped up the win with four in the fourth and five in the fifth.

Meanwhile Jerry Genereaux tamed the Pepsi's batters on two hits to gain the win on the Trudeau mound. He blew third strikes past nine batters and walked but one.

R. Young hurled in defeat, giving up nine hits while striking out one and walking ten.

John "Shaker" Baker hit a home run and two singles to spearheading the Trudeau attack. Paul Merav also homered and added one single while other base knocks went to "Deacon" Whiting, Lyle Wannamaker, Donaldson and Larry Potter.

Mick Back In Lineup On Friday

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mickey Mantle, sidelined more than a month with leg injuries, will return to New York Yankees' starting lineup Friday night against the Tigers at Detroit.

Manager Ralph Houk said Wednesday night that Mantle will play in right field, rather than his usual centre spot "because in Detroit, it's the smallest area an outfielder has to cover."

LATTA 8; BELLEVILLE 2

Latta scored twice in the fourth frame to snap a 1-1 tie and added four runs in the sixth inning to wrap up an 8-2 victory over the Belleville Printers last night. It was Belleville's home game, played on the Latta diamond.

The clubs traded single runs in the opening frame of the six-inning contest and after four innings it was still a tight 2-2 contest, in Latta's favor.

Bill Bunnage starred on the Latta hitting, setting the city boys down with just one hit over the distance. He struck out four and did not walk a man. The only hit he allowed was a single by Ebner.

Ferrill was the loser, getting relief help from Hallam in the fifth inning. They gave up half a dozen hits, struck out three and passed six.

Catcher Howard Skelly paced the Latta hitters with a pair of singles. Howard Meeks belied a double while other base hits went to Gerry Belanger, Wayne Gow and Harry Reid.

Hits Three Homers for Syracuse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Yankee uniform is supposed to do something for a fellow. Maybe the Mets' uniform does it too, in reverse.

Don Zimmer, traded by the Mets to Cincinnati, turned from a .100 hitter by a near .300 hitter with the Reds. Gus Bell's average shot from .190 to over .300 when the Mets sold him to Milwaukee.

Now Ed Bouchee, erstwhile Mets' first baseman, has turned slugger pronto with his demotion to Syracuse of the International League. Bouchee rapped three consecutive home runs Wednesday night and helped bonus baby Larry Bearnarth become a winner in his first professional game. With Bearnarth pitching six scoreless innings and Bouchee slugging, Syracuse whipped Atlanta 8-2.

Bouchee drove in six runs in becoming the first Syracuse batter ever to hit three home runs in one game at Syracuse's MacArthur Stadium. Bearnarth, farmed to Syracuse after signing a $25,000 bonus contract with the Mets on Monday, picked up his first victory although he needed relief in the seventh inning.

WALKS TWO

After giving up his fourth hit, hitting a batsman and walking two to allow one run, Bearnarth, an outstanding pitcher for St. John's (N.Y.), struck out six and walked three in his debut.

In other IL games, league-leading Jacksonville outslugged Rochester 13-8 at Rochester, and Columbus edged Buffalo 6-5 on Bob Bailey's two-run homer with two out in the last of the ninth. The Toronto at Richmond game was rained out.

BOMBERS SIGN TRIO

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference Wednesday announced signings of three returnees. They are interior linebacker Dave Burkholder, 26, halfback Frank Fraser, formerly with Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough-Riders, and tackle Roger Hamelin.

Filly Seeks Triple Crown

Seven Challenge 'Cicada'

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven rivals are shaping up for Meadow Stable's Cicada in Saturday's $100,000 - added Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park, but Better Up and Broadway will remain in their barn.

Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons said Wednesday the two stakes winners will not oppose Cicada in the Nerville Oaks, final event in the New York triple crown for three-year-old fillies.

Cicada can become the first to win the triple, having won the Acorn Stakes at Aqueduct May 19 and the Mother Goose at Belmont June 2.

Those expected to meet Cicada include E. P. Taylor's Flaming Page, winner of the Queen's Plate and the Canadian Oaks; Fern Polley, second in the Mother Goose; Ramarosa, second in the Acorn; Upswept, third in the Acorn; Royal Patrice, third in the Mother Goose; Elma's Ethel and Jazz Queen.

World Wrestling At Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—More than 200 amateur wrestlers from 27 countries, including Canada, weigh in today and draw for positions in the 14th world championship tournament.

Freestylers weighing less than 114.5 pounds will see the first scheduled action this afternoon following opening ceremonies led by Governor Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio.

The battle for the freestyle team championship looms as a three-cornered fray between Iran, Turkey and Russia with the United States, Japan and Bulgaria ranked right behind them.

Iran returns all five gold medal winners who led its freestyle team tournament last year. Japan, Since then the Iranian have scored team victories over Russia, Turkey, Bulgaria, Japan in dual meetings.

Pinson Hits Single Off Writer's Jaw

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Earl Lawson's opinion of Cincinnati Reds fielding got him a punch in the chin Wednesday night from centre fielder Vada Pinson.

Lawson, baseball writer for the Cincinnati Post and Times - Star, wrote in a recent article that some Reds players have been lackadaisical in their fielding. Among those he named Pinson.

The fleet - footed centre fielder and the writer exchanged words about the article while riding to Forbes Field by bus before Wednesday night's game between the Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The argument ended in the dressing room when Pinson asked:

"Were you serious about that article?"

"Sure I'm serious," replied Lawson.

At that, Pinson socked the sportswriter on the chin. Other players quickly separated the two and manager Fred Hutchinson asked Lawson to leave the dressing room until tempers cooled.

Lawson, who also writes for The Sporting News, was neither marked or hurt.

"I'm getting sick and tired of being punched by ball players, he said. Later, he told Hutchinson that "if you plan any disciplinary action, please don't."

A few years ago, Lawson was on the receiving end of a punch thrown by Johnny Temple, a Cincinnati second baseman who was angry over a call Lawson had made as official scorer. The two later became friends.

Schooner Wins Sea Race

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Nina, a beautiful 58 - foot schooner built in 1928 and skippered by her 74-year-old owner, GeCourney Fales of New York, won Class A honors in the 635-mile Newport-to-Bermuda yacht race.

Although Nina, one of two schooners in the 131-boat fleet, was third to back across the finish line Tuesday night at St. David's Head, she was declared the class winner Wednesday on the basis of a handicap that reduced her elapsed time of three days, 10 hours, 41 minutes and 34 seconds to a corrected time of 3:02:45:31.7.

The first to cross the line was the big yawl Northern Light, which covered the distance in three days, eight hours, 46 minutes and 32 seconds. Her corrected time, however, placed her about 1½ minutes behind Nina in the class.

Attersley To Coach Whitby Club

TORONTO (CP) — Two new coaches will handle teams in the Ontario Hockey Association's Metro Junior A League next season, a metro group meeting was told Wednesday night.

Bob Attersley, who played last season with Kingston with Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League, will coach Whitby Mohawks. Johnny McCormack, formerly with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, will handle the Brampton club.

McCormack will replace Bob Savage, who may step up to the managerial post at Brampton.

The Trots

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Royal Rick, winner of the $50,000 International Pace a week ago, will have a difficult time tonight when he starts from the difficult second tier No. 12 post position against 11 others in the $65,000 Good Time Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

This is the middle event in the $180,000 Yonkers triple series and is over the 1¼-mile route. The $75,000 National Championship Pace will be held next Thursday at two miles.

Henry T. Adios, winner of the Harness Tracks of America mile pace last Friday at Buffalo Raceway in 1:59 4-5, is the 5-to-1 favorite for the Good Time. Royal Rick is 4 to 1.

Other entries include Faire Step, 8 to 1, driven by Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont.

'The First Day' Powerful Drama and Well Acted

By CYNTHIA LOWEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The First Day, presented by CBS Wednesday night, more than made up for many long hours of tedious mediocrity and trivia presented during this television season.

The original play by Roger Hirson was a quietly powerful and shrewdly observant story about the reaction of family and friends to a not-so-young school teacher returning to home and —hopefully — job after three months in a mental institution.

Margaret Leighton, an actress of vast skill, played the teacher with understanding and insight, carrying the viewer with her through a triumphant struggle with the doubts, fears and nervousness of her family and associates. Ralph Bellamy, playing the well-intentioned but uncomprehending father, also was just right—but then so were all the players.

The teachers fumbling but determined efforts to find her own life made not only a gripping hour of television but shed some interesting light on shattering, cooly-cruel attitudes toward convalescent and recovered mental patients.

ABC now plans to put its new Mr. Smith goes to Washington, with Fess Parker in the old Jimmy Stewart role, into its Saturday night schedule — a tough break for any show because it is a night with powerful competition on the other networks.

Recommended tonight:

Dr. Kildare, NBC, 8:30-9:30 EDT—Probably the best show on an evening comprised totally of network repeats.

CANADIAN OUSTED

ROEHAMPTON, England (CP) — Michael Carpenter of Montreal was eliminated Wednesday in his bid to gain a berth in the Wimbledon tennis tournament. He was beaten 6-1, 6-4, 6-1 by Fred McMillan of South Africa in a competition to decide the last eight Wimbledon qualifiers.

'Larkspur' Irish Derby Favorite

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Twenty-six likely runners have been named for the 1962 Irish Derby, which carries the Irish sweepstakes for the first time.

The race, to be run at the Curragh June 30, has about $6,000 pounds ($16,800) in prize money.

As the final list of acceptors was issued Wednesday, Irish trainer Vincent O'Brien announced Scobie Breasley, British champion jockey, will ride Larkspur, the favorite.

Larkspur, winner of the Epsom Derby earlier this month, is owned by New Yorker Raymond Guest and is bidding for one of the richest doubles in racing history this side of the Atlantic.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Twenty years later, Private Hargrove is still battling the brass.

The difference is that his adversaries are not the top sergeants and lieutenants from Camp Crowder who made his wartime best seller, See Here, Private Hargrove.

Hargrove appears to have prospered despite his refusal to knuckle under the Hollywood system.

"Most of the time I am writing satire," he explained, "but the trick is never to tell the producers that it is satire. That would scare them."

Hargrove came here in 1953 to research and write a comedy about the peacetime army. The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing for Warner Brothers. He persuaded the studio to let him write the yarn as a book while a script writer followed a few paces behind. The result was Hargrove's hilarious passages that appeared serious in the script; Hollywood was on a drama kick.

FOUND COMEDIES SELL

Hollywood finally found out that comedies sell, and he was in demand for features. He converted Music Man to film and had his sport with boasman J. J. Met Marked. Hargrove proposed during opening scenes to have one store marked the J. J. Mesi Market.

"Very funny," said Warner. "But how will anybody know it's mine?"

"Easy," said the writer. "We will have a cheesy sound effect, thumb on the scale."

Hargrove did see adaptation for the Kim Novak comedy, Boy's Night Out, but battled with the director. "He was apologize for calling him a frustrated writer," Hargrove recalled. "I told him it was his writer who was the frustrated writer."

He next tried producing and writing the television series Follow the Sun for 20th Century-Fox. "I'm not really cowardly," he said, "but I admit I was one of the first rats to leave that sinking ship." He clashed with Peter G. Leavathes, who told him comedy could not be sustained in an hour show. The series went serious, and to its doom.

Horse Kicks Fan Hurt, Owners Pay

PARIS (Reuters) — A court has ordered the Aga Khan, his brother Prince Amin and the French Horse Racing Society to pay 9,000 new francs ($1,700) damages jointly to a spectator injured by a horse kick at Longchamp Race Track in October, 1959.

The court said Wednesday it is a provisional payment pending a final report to establish the full extent of damages suffered by Leon Arquetoux, who was kicked in the face by Sheroon. The horse is owned jointly by the Aga Khan, spiritual head of the 30,000,000-member Moslem Ismaili sect, and Prince Amin.

JUSTICE RESIGNS

NEW YORK (AP) — Supreme Court Justice J. Vincent Keogh, convicted of conspiracy to fix a federal court case, Wednesday resigned his judicial post, effective July 10. Keogh, 56, has been drawing his $34,500 annual salary since his indictment last Dec. 7, but at his own request has been without court assignments.

IRKED BY STOCK CARS

MONTREAL (CP) — About 300 "for sale" signs were erected outside homes in Fabreville, a town 10 miles northwest of Montreal, by irate property owners Wednesday. The owners say the signs represent a silent protest against town council's failure to stop the operation of a stock-car speedway.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Promising newcomer Barbara Loden, portraying a headstrong young rich girl whose escapades have scandalized her town, drunkenly teases the stag line at a country club party in this scene from Elia Kazan's provocative production of "Splendor in the Grass", opening tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. The Warner Bros. Technicolor presentation of Pulitzer Prize winner William Inge's first original screenplay stars Natalie Wood, Pat Hingle, Audrey Christie and Zohra Lampert and introduces Warren Beatty. 2nd feature attraction also in color is "A Thunder of Drums" with Richard Boone and Arthur O'Connell.

NAME TEAM MANAGER

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank McCormick of suburban Beaconsfield repairs has been named manager of the Canadian team which will compete at the world shooting championships in Cairo, Egypt, in October. The announcement was made Wednesday by A. A. Gordon, president of the Canadian Rifle Association of marksmen. McCormick has managed the Canadian Association of marksmen. McCormick has managed three Canadian international shooting teams.

Americans Name Golf Team

TORONTO (CP)—The United States has named four amateur golfers to complete its team for the annual international pro-amateur matches against Canada here July 2.

Amateurs Bob Gardner of New York, Richard Chapman of Oyster Bay, Mass., Ed Meister of Willoughby, Ohio, and Charles Kocsis will be paired with U.S. professionals Julius Boros, Dow Finsterwald, Gay Brewer, Jr., and Errie Vossler.

The Canadian professionals will be Stan Leonard of Vancouver and three from Toronto, Al Balding, Gord Brydson and George Knudson. Amateurs on the team are Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Gord MacKenzie of Vancouver and Nick Weslock and Phil Brownlee, both of Toronto.

The pro-am is played in four matches of a professional partnering an amateur against a like pairing from the other country. The United States has won the tournament three times, Canada twice.

TO NUMBER HELMETS

MONTREAL (CP) — Players in the Eastern Football Conference will wear numbers on their helmets during the coming season, the body's general managers decided at a meeting Wednesday. That was about the only concrete matter decided at the meeting, attended by representatives of Toronto Argonauts, Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes.

Oshawa Enters Junior A

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto Junior A Hockey League has expanded to six teams with the entry of Oshawa into the Ontario Hockey Association circuit.

Oshawa has not had a team in OHA Junior Hockey since a fire 10 years ago destroyed the home of the former Oshawa Generals.

A name for the new team has not been decided but it will carry the red, white and blue colors of the Generals. The team will be sponsored by Boston Bruins of the National League.

Wren Blair, personnel director of the Boston farm system, said the Bruins were in Oshawa when the rink was destroyed and "we said then we'd be back when the town had a rink."

"We're just keeping that promise," he told Wednesday night's Metro League meeting.

Lloyd Pollock, OHA president, said there is some concern "as to just where the Metro group is going."

He said the whole junior setup will be up for discussion at the OHA's next executive meeting.

"Oshawa's entry will likely be approved but I think certain regulations will have to be set down on future entries," he said. "After all, the OHA has the right to group teams in divisions."

The Metro loop will have a 56-game schedule for next season which opens the last week in October.

Mast Snaps, Briton Loses To American

POOLE, England (AP)—The United States 5.5-metre yacht Complex III sailed to victory in the world championships, leaving its toughest English rival far behind, dismasted and wallowing in the blustery English Channel.

Complex III, piloted by Dr. Britton Chance of Philadelphia, made a poor start and had trouble getting under way. The favored British entry, Yeoman X, went ahead with Complex close behind.

Then, just as Complex was in a position to overtake the English yacht, Yeoman's tall mast snapped and crashed into the sea. Complex sailed on ahead to victory in the race Wednesday.

Second place went to the Bahamas yacht John B sailed by R. H. Symonette.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo H. Carver, Sports Editor

There's a touch of a television western epic to the bout, inasmuch as two of the "bestest good guys" will figuratively shoot it out with a pair of wrestling's toughest baddies.

Holding up and backing everything that is clean and honorable will be the famous Whipper Billy Watson, many times British Empire champion, and "Mr. Kleen," the conqueror of Dick "Bulldog" Brower in that ring-shattering bout last Friday.

And packing the bad guys' wrestling six-guns will be those Greek Apollos of Pantyfermin's badlands, the Tolos Brothers, to their intimate friends Chris and John.

The foursome will "shoot it out," so to speak in the main bout of a highly attractive wrestling card at Memorial Arena tomorrow night. There is no truth in the rumor that Marshal Matt Dillon will be the third ref fifth man in the ring. It could be "Two-Gun" Bunny Dunlop. "Top Trigger" Tiger Tasker, some other white-shirted buckaroo.

The bout will mark the third appearance of the agile Tolos Twosome in Memorial Arena. They might have been wonderful babies but with the wrestling faithful here they are as popular as a suit of ancient long johns in a nudist colony.

They're cute, clever, agile, rough, tough and cocky. They can wrestle, too. But they care little for the book of words as it is written. In fact they are not backward in making a few regulations of their own as the bout goes. It's legal with them.

But they haven't picked any sinecure in the Whipper and his white-clad buddy "Mr. Kleen." The shiny bald-pated "Kleen" came lopy with the gallery here after his two initial performances particularly last Friday when he made the tenacious "Bulldog" growl "uncle." There is nothing to be said about the Whip. He is already installed heretofore.

But that's not all. There's an Irish twist to the evening entertainment. Take Tommy O'Toole and "Haystack" Muldoon, toss lightly and serve and you've got an Erin salad that will bear watching. The hillbilly from County Cork-Arkansas, is popular here and if both get their Irish up it should be quite a Donegal.

And topping off the best card of the season thus far is Billy "Red" Lyons, who meets Stan Stasiak, the "Arvida Assassin" (remember?)

GOLF

There may be a brand new men's club champion at the Bay of Quinte Country Club this year.

Aspirants to the top honor in the men's division have been playing excellent golf—and already two former champions have bitten the dust of defeat.

The men's club tournament has simmered down to the quarter-finals and more upsets could be in the making when the eighteome takes to the links in the next process of elimination.

Last year's champion, T. A. Carruthers, went down to defeat before Davy Jones in the last round, while Peter Jones, another ex-titleholder, was eliminated by youthful Brian MacKenzie, one of the most promising golf youngsters in the club.

Garry Bowerman, former junior champion, is again showing good form and making his clubs felt in the men's tourney. He defeated Terry McCabe to qualify for the quarter-finals.

In other bids for the quarter-finals, veteran Val Smith stood off the challenge of George Durno with Mac White turning back Fred Hebden.

Hits Back For Twin Wins

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Either American League pitchers are suffering a collective streak of poor marksmanship or they're feeling uncommonly vindictive toward the hitters.

Wednesday night, for example, Boston's Mike Forniel matched a modern major league single-game record by plunking four—count 'em four—Cleveland batters in the course of the Indians' doubleheader sweep over the Red Sox. And at Kansas City, Jerry Walker of the Athletics nicked Leon Wagner of Los Angeles Angels. Wagner threw his bat at Walker, Walker threw the ball at Wagner again, and both were ejected after a medium sized free-for-all.

By beating Boston twice, 6-3 and 3-0, the Indians boosted their league lead to two full games over Minnesota Twins, 5-1 losers to Chicago White Sox. Los Angeles whipped the Athletics for the seventh straight time, 5-1, with Wagner hitting his 20th homer before in fighting match with Walker, Washington Senators nipped Detroit Tigers 5-4, New York Yankees and the Orioles were rained out in Baltimore.

Barry Latman fired a five-hit shutout in the second game and Bubba Phillips clinched the opener with a three-run homer in the Indians' double victory over the Red Sox. Phillips homer off Gene Conley came in the sixth inning and brought Cleveland from behind, and Woodie Held added insurance in the eighth with a bases-empty homer against Hal Kolstad. Jim Perry was the winning pitcher with help from Gary Bell.

Forniseles uncorked a wild pitch and walked a man in addition to hitting four batters before he was yanked in the fourth, but the Indians were unable to cash in on these breaks. They did capitalize on an error by Ed Bressoud and Ty Cline's double for a run in the second, homer and Willie Kirkland socked a homer in the third off Forniseles, making his first start this year. Jerry Kindall rounded out the scoring by homering in the eighth against Arnold Earley.

The Angels, who've beaten the Athletics 10 of 13 this year, were startled off by Bob Rodgers' two-run homer in the second and Wagner whacked No. 20—high in the league—in the fourth. When Wagner came up next time, in the sixth, Walker ball battle ensued—much milling and swinging, little hitting and hurting.

After peace was restored,

Says 278 Should Win Open Title

By MARK BLOOM

WINDSOR (CP) — Gary Cowan, 1961 Canadian amateur champion from Kitchener, says a score of 278 should win the Ontario open golf championship, but 22-year-old golfer, who was relaxing in the locker room of the Beach Grove Golf Club Wednesday after completing his final practice rounds, said the short, narrow course isn't as easy as it might look to the casual observer.

"There are quite a few places where a mistake could mean trouble," he said of the tight fairways on the par-71, 6,768-yard layout.

Cowan was one of 119 golfers —61 professionals and 58 amateurs who begin competition today in the $2,500 Ontario Open and he was expected to be one of the top contenders in the 72-hole tournament.

WANTS U.S. TOUR

Cowan said that although he has no plans to turn professional, he would like to have the time to play more on the U.S. tour.

"You have to go south to become good," he said. "You can't play five or six months of the year and expect to be sharp—you' have to play 12 months."

He pointed out the progress of George Knudsen, the 24-year-old Winnipeg native who plays out of Toronto and recently joined the U.S. tour. "George, Al (Balding of Toronto) and Stan (Leonard of Vancouver) all play well because they are on tour. They play every day and get the competition."

Knudson, the absent Ontario open champion, has done well on the pro grind. He is not defending his championship, officials said Wednesday, because his wife is leaving for England soon and he wants to spend the time at home.

Five Americans are entered in the three-day competition which goes 18 holes today and Friday and finishes Saturday with a 36-hole wrapup. After Friday's round the field will be cut to the top 80 players and ties.

The only foreign player who figures to be a threat is Ralph Boomquist, a professional from Glendale, Calif.

Aaron Shows Way To Top Sluggers

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hank Aaron doesn't look like a slugger until he starts hitting. There's nothing about his physical appearance to suggest the long-ball hitter. He's a willowy young man whose makeup suggests speed instead of power. He gives away 30 pounds to Mickey Mantle, 25 to Roger Maris, 20 to Willie Mays and Rocky Colavito.

But in the last five years the Milwaukee outfielder has had more hits and more runs batted in than any of those pre-eminent sluggers. And over that same period he's had more home runs than any one else in the National League.

His secret is near-perfect timing, a smooth, swift swing and perhaps the best wrist action in baseball. When all are operating at peak efficiency, he's one of the most feared hitters in the game.

In the last three days, Hank Aaron played four games against New York Mets, had nine hits in 16 times at bat, including a double and three home runs, and drove in 11 runs.

TIED FOR LEAD

The performance boosted his season totals to a .333 average —which is tied for the league— 16 home runs and 58 runs batted in and helped the Braves take first place from the slumping Red Mets.

His big day was Wednesday when five hits, including two home runs, and six runs batted in as the Braves swept a pair, 9-4 and 3-2. The nightcap was called at the end of six innings because of rain.

The National League leaders had their troubles. The first-place Los Angeles Dodgers dropped a 5-4, 15-inning affair to St. Louis Cardinals, but retained their 2½ game lead when Don Drysdale clipped the second-place San Francisco Giants 9-5. Pittsburgh Pirates plunked him and a typical base-

Flyers Whip Bobcats 11-5

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

RCAF Flyers moved into a tie for the B. and D. softball league lead in Trenton last night when they used the home run weapon to whip the Bobcats 11-5.

The Flyers hammered four round-trippers, accounting for eight of their runs, in the loop's best display of power this season.

Rookie Wayne Boomer and Donnie Cole led the winners' hit parade, Cole drove in five runs with a three-run homer in the fifth and added another with one aboard in the seventh. He is the first player this season to hit two homers in one game. He also had a single.

Boomer, playing his first game, cracked a two-run circuit blast in the second inning to snap a 1-1 tie. He made it 4-1 with a two-on triple in the fourth after singles by Kennedy and Cole. The winners' fourth homer was a solo blast by Roger Drake in the eighth inning.

A walk and Mitts' double plated the Flyers' initial run in the game 1-1 in the first. Bobcats had taken the lead on a walk and base knocks by Brown and Clapp.

The losers scored two in the ninth with hits by Clapp and D. Murray and two errors. A final pair in the eighth crossed the plate on doubles by Clapp and Cole and singles by D. Murray and Garvin.

Bobcats kept pace with the Flyers in hits, each club getting 11, and played better ball afield, committing one error compared to six by the Flyers, blasts made the difference.

Bill McCauley made his pitching debut on the RCAF hilltop and stayed the distance for the win.

The shorthanded Bobcats sent Roger Cole back to the mound and he went the route for the second night in a row. He fanned one and walked three and appeared to fire badly midway through the game.

Besides the Boomer and Cole, Jim Roger Drake homered and singled, Billy Mitts doubled and singled while Willy Kennedy and Bill McCauley had singles.

Earl Clapp, with a double and two singles, and "Wimpy" Brown, with three singles, paced the Bobcat hitters. Doug Murray contributed two singles while Roger Cole doubled, Rusty Garvin and Ray Lucas had a single apiece.

Cannifton Clips Kenmors 3-1

The Belleville Kenmors were rolled back into some sort of baseball reality last night when the Cannifton Clippers "clipped" them for a defeat.

They apparently left their batting eyes at home for the best they could do off the Clippers' Pat O'Connor was five hits good for their lone run.

Larry Soden and Letty Reid did the mound chores for the city crew, Soden working four of the five innings.

The Clippers scored a single run in the first innings off a base on balls and Harvey's clout.

They sent the other two runners across the plate in the fifth off back-to-back hits by Urch and Clapp and a Kenmor bobble.

After that they could do nothing at the plate. Locke had two of the Kenmors five clouts with Kingston, Hunter and Carr getting the others.

Claude Carr, Charlie Kingston and Forrester turned out with the Kenmors again. Otherwise the club had the regular line-up.

They face a stiff weekend meeting Peterborough Saturday in Peterborough and trekking to Kingston on Sunday.

The teams:—

Kenmors — Locke, Carr, Goyer, Hunter, Mewty, Kingston, Moxon, Forrester, Duguid, Soden, Reid.

Cannifton	100	000	02x	—	3	4	2

PUT UP FIRT

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Peterborough international stock car racing classic at Mosport Park Saturday will carry a special prize for the winner—the Ojibwa Gloves.

Officials are hoping the Ojibwa Gloves will become as symbolic to stock car racing in Canada as the Golden Gloves are to amateur boxing in the United States.

The gloves are the brainchild of Indian handicraft broker Mrs. Eleanor Wheting of Curve Lake Indian Reserve, 25 miles northwest of here, and have been fashioned from doe skin — the Ojibwa Indians' symbol of fleetness.

HITS BACK

Danny McDevitt became the Kansas City pitcher and was touched for Los Angeles' last two runs in the seventh—on Felix Torres' triple, a couple of singles and—of course—a pair of wild pitches. Carl Boswell of Pembroke, B.C., won it, getting a big assist from Bob Sotz, who pitched one-hit relief over the final three innings.

TWIN TWIRLING WILD

Mischievous pitches also helped the White Sox over the Twins. Chicago got a run in the second against Joe Bonikowski on a walk to Al Smith, his steal of second, an error and a wild pitch, then wrapped it up with three in the third off reliever Ted Sadowski. He hit Sherm Lollar, Luis Aparicio singled and Nellie Fox and Floyd Robinson followed with doubles. Ray Herbert gave up 10 Minnesota hits, but spaced them judiciously.

The last-place Senators rallied for three runs in the seventh inning but still got some help relief pitching from Pete Burnside in dealing the Tigers their ninth setback in 12 starts.

Chuck Hinton homered with one on in the Washington seventh, climaxing a three-run burst against left-hander Don Mossi that put the Senators ahead 5-2. The Tigers clawed back in their half with two runs and had two on with one out when Burnside applied the clamps, retiring Jake Wood for the rest of the way.

Vic Power Collier had a two-run homer for Washington, while Norm Cash's 18th and Al Kaline's 19th accounted for Detroit's two-run double were Detroit's big hits.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Earl Marvin had a 23 to lead the field in a rainy low-scoring shoot at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club, Wednesday.

Cobourg Edges Bantams 5-4

Although they outhit the opposition four to two and smacked two home runs, the Belleville Baseball Bantam Allstars were defeated 5-4 by the Cobourg Allstars in a close game at Cobourg last night.

Moon and Spring connected for round trippers for Belleville. Parks and Gilchrist pitched for the visitors while Sayers chalked up the win in going the route for the homsters.

Cobourg scored three in the 4th and two in the 5th, while Belleville scored one in the 1st, two in the 3rd and one in the 6th.

Must Get Chin Clipped Before Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Jose Gonzalez' manager objected when he was told that his fighter would have to shave off his goatee before he could fight in New York state.

"Why, it's an American c u s t o m," protested manager Manny Gonzalez (no relation) Wednesday. "It's as American as chewing gum."

"If he doesn't have off that goatee he won't be allowed to fight," warned Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"It's a good luck charm and I like it," the fighter from Puerto Rico said with the help of an interpreter.

Good luck or not it will have to go before he meets middleweight Joey Archer Saturday night in the Garden.

Astrological Forecast

For June 22

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Take a conservative view. Going to extremes not advised. Temptation will be to throw caution to winds. But planetary pattern indicates this would be sheer folly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Challenge, opportunity highlighted. Be willing to move about, mentally as well as physically. Outline ambitions. If working in wrong direction, take corrective measures.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Today you could be going against your own best interests if you don't "watch your step". Trying to rush or skip details proves costly. Be especially careful about promises.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) If you have to spend to obtain the best... do so! Second-rate products will prove more costly in long run. Emphasis today is on investing, but not speculating.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) If you take care to be right, you make the most of day. Impulsive statement or action could cause regret. Emphasize diplomacy. Stay close to home spotlight.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Time now to make views known. If you confide in those close to you, emotional reward could be great. Holding back creates unnecessary tension. Be generous, honest. Build for future.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Forget timidity. Go after what you want. Do not permit others to take advantage of you. Request what is due you. Refuse to listen to "rich" story.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attention to details necessary. Later, relaxation called for, but not "wild" celebrations. Present solid front.... no loose ends. Complaints could be misinterpreted.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) What may seem like tremendous "deal" early today... could fade as you check facts, figures. Do so! Avoid scattering your forces. See situation as it really exists.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Like Aries, today move in familiar areas rather than step out in strange territory merely for the "thrill." Conserve strength tonight. But lend helping hand.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good time for trying new ideas, meeting new people. Take advantage of favorable cycle by stepping forward and speaking up. Call on courage.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Ask why if you are puzzled. The secret of success for you today is healthy curiosity. Don't be ashamed if you don't know all the answers. Asking results in knowledge.

If today is your birthday the month of July should find you in good position to enjoy "better things" in life. Year in general points up new prospects. You are individual who never is afraid to tear down the old in order to build for the future.

TRADE BOOSTERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian trade can be improved with such areas as Singapore, Thailand, Malaya, Burma and the Caribbean, say two of Canada's trade representatives abroad. R. F. Renwick, trade envoy in Trinidad, and E. H. Maguire, stationed in Singapore, are spending the summer on a "selling mission" to fellow-Canadians.

Doodles to Become Stamps Must Be Small and Refined

"You first start with little doodles. If you work larger the design gets too complex."

Mr. Weiss, 38-year-old assistant director of the national design branch of the trade department, has had four designs accepted by the post office department. Two have won international recognition.

Stamp designing is a hobby with the husky former army sergeant. He does his designing at home. He's also a sculptor and likes to paint.

"It's an interesting challenge to synthesize a design into such a small area." The commemorative stamps he has designed are usually about an inch square or an inch by 1¼ inches.

Another thing that adds to the excitement is that they are "one of the few things that are capable of reaching the four corners of the earth."

JEAN TALON STAMP

Two of his designs, Plains of Abraham and Dollard des Ormeaux commemorating stamps, were picked by a British organization as among the best in the world.

His latest work is the new five-cent stamp commemorating Jean Talon, intendant of New France from 1665 to 1668. It went on sale June 13.

He and other artists were asked seven months ago to try designing the stamp. Mr. Weiss in doing historical research, came upon the writings of a young officer of Talon's time who said "the governor-general (Talon) bestowed on the married couple a bull, a cow, a hog, a sow, a cock, a hen, two barrels of salt meat and 11 crowns."

The stamp includes representations of Talon, the couple and their gifts in shades of blue on a background of lighter blue. There is a church steeple in the distance and the scene is set in farmland.

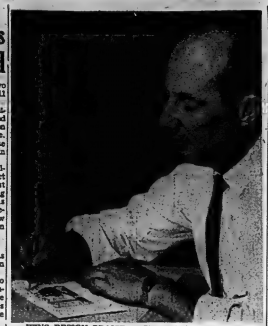
Part of the stamp's significance arises from the fact Talon carried out Canada's first census and, after concluding that the population was needed, had 1,000 carefully selected girls sent to the New World to become wives of men already in the colony.

STRESS SIMPLICITY

Mr. Weiss's other stamp was a NATO anniversary issue in 1959.

A native of Montreal who grew up in Toronto and graduated from the Ontario College of Art, Mr. Weiss says he tries to make the stamps as "simple and graphic as possible."

In his doodling and studies of subject, he searches for an idea that can be illustrated within the limitations of size."



His completed design is about four times the size of the actual stamp and is reduced in the engraving.

Mr. Weiss, who started stamp designing only a few years ago, says he gets letters from many countries asking for his autograph.

He's not a stamp collector himself but two of his four sons, Stephen, 12, and Karl, 9, are.

GAMES EXPERT

Edmond Hoyle, the English expert on card games, was 36 years old at his death in 1769.

WINS DESIGN PRAISE — Stamp designer Phillip Weiss, assistant director of the national design branch of the federal trade department, has had four of his works accepted by the post office. Two designs—Plains of Abraham and Dollard des Ormeaux—have won international recognition. His latest work, a five-cent stamp commemorating Jean Talon, went on sale June 13. (CP Photo).

5,000 Vienna Doctors Strike For More Pay

VIENNA (AP) — Vienna's 5,000 physicians went on a 24-hour strike Tuesday to press demands for substantial increases of fees from public health insurance funds.

Only 50 doctors and small teams of hospital personnel remained at their posts to provide emergency services to the capital's population of 1,800,000.

The strike climaxed a long-standing dispute between the doctors and the state-run insurance company in Vienna over demands for a 65-per-cent raise of fees. The company is willing to agree only to a 16-per-cent raise.

The company had some 1,600 doctors under contract to give free medical services to its 1,300,000 members. The doctors declared their contracts void and charged reduced fees which were refunded to the patients by the insurance company.

Public health insurance is compulsory for all Austrian wage earners and employees.

The non - insurance doctors joined the strike to support their colleagues.

West Indies Plane Crash Kills 108

French-Owned Jet Is Wrecked On Guadeloupe

Fourth Boeing Jet To Crash This Year

CP from Reuters

PARIS — A Boeing 707 Air France jet airliner with 108 or more persons board crashed today on a forested hillside of the island of Guadeloupe in the French West Indies.

Circling search planes reported no sign of life in the wreckage. Debris was reported to have burned.

The 85,500,000 plane met disaster as it headed in for a landing before dawn at the airport of Pointe-a-Pitre on a regular flight from Paris to Santiago, Chile.

The United States Coast Guard said the air traffic control centre at Pointe-a-Pitre airport reported the big jet had been cleared for a final approach when its radio went dead.

A small local plane spotted the wreckage 2½ miles inland from the north coast of the Basse Terre section of Guadeloupe, the Coast Guard said.

Weather was reported clear at the time, and the pilot had radioed he was making a visual approach to the field.

CLEARED 1127

Reuters news agency said the plane carried 104 passengers and 10 crew members when it left Lisbon.

The coast guard search and rescue service in Boston said its information was that the plane was carrying 102 passengers and 11 crew members. The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington said it was told there were 103 passengers and three crew members aboard.

However, a list announced by Air France in New York showed 10 crew members, including the hostesses and stewards.

Captain Jean Lesieur was the pilot.

The crash occurred at about 3:25 a.m. EDT, the hour the plane was due to land at Guadeloupe on a flight from Santa Maria, the Azores.

At first word the liner was in trouble, came at 6:19 a.m. EDT when the U.S. Coast Guard at Boston received:

"Distress, Air France flight 1501, proceed."

An all-ships distress signal was flashed to U.S. naval vessels, ordering them to proceed to the area. Two coast guard amphibious aircraft and a patrol boat were dispatched from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

SIGHT WRECKAGE

At 7 a.m. came word that wreckage had been spotted. The Coast Guard reported: "Bodies recelled, but coast guard planes positively identified wreckage to be sure there was no wreckage at sea.

Guadeloupe is composed of two islands, Basse Terre and Grande Terre. The airfield is on Basse Terre.

The plane had 10 crew and

Berlin Banker Given Life As Jew-Killer

BERLIN (AP) — A Berlin bank manager was sentenced today to life imprisonment for the mass murder of Jews in eastern Europe.

He was Dr. Alfred Filbert, 57, an associate of Adolf Eichmann, executed last month in Israel. He held the same rank as Eichmann, colonel in the SS.

Gerhard Schneider, a top ranking civil servant in the state government of Lower Saxony, received 10 years.

Six men, all of whom held respectable and responsible jobs, were accused of the mass killing of about 15,000 persons during the Nazi invasion of Poland, the Ukraine and White Russia. They were officers or officials of police officers attached to extermination squads.

In the five-week trial more than 100 witnesses told the West Berlin senate court how Jews, including women and children, were lined up before open graves and shot by execution squads under Filbert's command.

Drug to Combat Heart Disease Is Announced

LONDON (Reuters) — Discovery of a new drug to combat killer heart diseases was announced here today.

Worldwide trials of the drug—strondin—now are going ahead after successful use on animals. It is taken by mouth in capsule form.

The discovery was announced by scientists in a team at the Imperial Chemical Industries' Pharmaceuticals Research Organization.

They said: "Experience with this and drug already gives sufficient to indicate a major research achievement."

An ICI spokesman said: "The drug gives promise of being a significant contribution to the control of various heart conditions which have become a scourge of civilized man, selecting among their victims large numbers of the most active and energetic members of the community."

Heart disease claimed nearly 92,000 victims in England and Wales in 1960 and was second only to cancer as a killer. The new drug will not be generally available for prescription until trials are complete, it controls concentration in the blood of certain fatty substances, the best known of which is cholesterol.

Hardening of the arteries—atherosclerosis—is a condition often associated with high concentrations of the fatty substances.

NEW MINORITY GOVT. DIFFERS FROM 1957-58

Shoe on Other Foot for PCs

OTTAWA (CP) — In the brief 23rd Parliament of 1957-58—it was in session from Oct. 14 to Feb. 1—Prime Minister Diefenbaker lorded the Liberals and CCF with the charge that they dare not upset his minority government.

In the coming 25th Parliament, the shoe may be on the other foot, with the Liberals, New Democratic Party and Social Credit daring Mr. Diefenbaker's new minority government to call an election.

The Liberals, no doubt, already have been through the 1957-58 Commons record to find statements by Mr. Diefenbaker which he may find embarrassing now.

As early as Nov. 19, 1957 with the 23rd Parliament barely a month old, Mr. Diefenbaker said it was "hopeless" for the Commons to carry out its functions with the then "unhealthy" lack of a working majority on the part of the government."

On Feb. 1, 1958, the day that Mr. Diefenbaker obtained dissolution of Parliament for a new election, he said the government's position as a minority administration had become "intolerable."

The erstwhile member will suggest," he said, "that a silent majority in the government can depend upon the support of only a minority of the members of this House is a satisfactory situation or one that

Gambler Feeley Ordered To Answer All Questions

OTTAWA (CP) — Gambler Vincent Feeley was ordered by the Supreme Court of Canada today to answer questions put to him by Ontario's royal commission on crime — if the answers should be self-incriminating.

Three judges of the court rejected an application by Walton C. Rose, counsel for Feeley, for leave to appeal against a similar ruling made by the Ontario Appeal Court June 11.

The three-member bench, including Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin and Justices Robert Taschereau and Roland Ritchie, rejected Mr. Rose's application without calling Roland F. Wilson, counsel for the same

Compromise Being Sought In Medicare Controversy

REGINA (CP) — The 925,000 residents of Saskatchewan are rolling a king-size pill on their tongues, wondering over the effects of the government prescription labelled medical care insurance.

The province's doctors say it's too bitter to swallow. The government says it's what the province wants and needs.

Today the council of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the provincial cabinet were to meet for the first time in nine weeks, brought together by the Saskatchewan Hospital Association which has acted as a mediator in the dispute.

If no agreement is reached the Medical Care Insurance Act, passed by the Saskatchewan legislature last November and amended this spring, will go into effect July 1.

And on that date, the colleges said doctors will start providing hospital - based emergency service only. They have said they will not render the act and their offices will close.

The college, which has objected to administration by the medical care insurance commission, has not singled out specifications of the act to which it objects.

The government, through the premier and cabinet members, has said if doctors will point to specific sections, it is prepared to make amendments — provided its over-all aim is not cut down.

The debate began two years ago, when then premier T. C. Douglas said if the CCF government was re-elected it would introduce a comprehensive medical care insurance program.

Since the CCF won the election, capturing 38 of the 55 seats in the legislature to the Liberals' 37, the Liberals have won two by-elections and Public Works Minister Walter Erb, former health minister, left the government to sit as an independent.

Mr. Erb criticized the government's determination to pro-

Hitch in Laos Coalition Inauguration Is Removed

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Prince Souvanna Phouma announced tonight agreement has been reached among the three Laotian factions on all points of difference which have been delaying the inauguration of a coalition government. Souvanna who will head the coalition, said the cabinet will be installed Saturday.

Then the off-again, on-again plans for establishing joint rightist - neutralist - leftist rule over this troubled land to make it neutral in the cold war appeared once more to be on.

The latest previous compromise agreement among the factions collapsed after less than 24 hours.

Phoumi Vongvichit of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao group told reporters that Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, leader of the right-wing faction, had reversed himself and once more insisted that the royal decree installing the new government include members of the Conservative dominated National Assembly.

Vongvichit said in addition

USERS URGE STUDY OF PLASTIC FOOD HOLDERS

Said Responsible For Some Deaths

KINGSTON (CP) — A study to determine whether vacuum-sealed plastic packages are safe when used on certain kinds of meat and fish was recommended today by Dr. C. A. Morrell at the final session of a consumers' conference sponsored by the Consumers' Association of Canada.

In an interview, Dr. Morrell revealed that some of the same smoked fish sold in vacuum-sealed plastic containers which was responsible for several deaths in Minnesota was seized recently in Winnipeg. Some of the fish had reached grocery shelves.

He said in experiments staphylococcus toxin has been produced in bacon in similar packages.

"The point to note is that under this kind of packaging the usual spoilage organism did not develop and so the warning signs of bad odor and appearance were not there."

LOOK, SMELL GOOD

His food and drug director-ate laboratory staff said they would have had no objection to eating either the fish or bacon because they looked and smelled good. Dr. Morrell said the packaging would be dis-

Will Announce Positive Moves Sunday---PM

Interest Rate Jumps On Treasury Bills

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he will announce positive measures Sunday to improve Canada's international balance of payments situation.

"The government will not be imposing any exchange controls and will firmly maintain the present exchange rate of the Canadian dollar," he said in a statement.

The statement was issued while the cabinet met for the fifth time in three days. It said:

"The government will announce on Sunday afternoon positive decisions and actions which will substantially improve Canada's international balance of payments and reduce the budgetary deficit."

TO EASE PRESSURE

The brief two-sentence statement, on which Mr. Diefenbaker did not elaborate, was apparently designed to increase confidence among foreign investors and ease pressures on the dollar exchange rate and on the foreign exchange reserves here.

There have been reports of heavy drains on the exchange reserves following the government move May 3 devaluing the dollar's exchange rate to 92½ U.S. cents and pegging it there. There has been no official confirmation on size of this drain but Liberal Leader Pearson has said it is in the "hundreds of millions" of dollars and has spoken of a flight of capital out of Canada.

Thursday the average interest rate on this week's sale of three-month government treasury bills jumped virtually one percentage point to 4.32. With falling prices on the bond market, interest yields on bonds have risen, too.

Higher interest rates could tend to encourage an influx of foreign capital for investment in Canada, thus easing pressures on the dollar exchange reserves.

HEAVY SPECULATION

There have been reports that some of the recent pressure on the dollar's exchange rate was due to speculation from exporters, importers and financial dealers anticipating a further drop in the dollar exchange rate before May's election. The rate was apparently aimed at lessening this kind of pressure.

However, his forecast of actions to improve Canada's international balance of payments and reduce the budgetary deficit indicated the government also aims at correcting two of the underlying causes of present exchange rate difficulties.

Finance Minister Fleming's April 10 budget forecast a budgetary deficit of $745,000,000 in the fiscal year which began April 1. This followed five

As if Guinness Loot Not Enough, Young Lord Has Eye for Horses

LONDON (AP) — Young Viscount Elveden was acclaimed as the horse lover today as a man with a tip as well as a title.

A horse hall is one of British's newly legalized betting shops where horse players gather to wager on the nags and talk about them.

This morning there was more talk about Lord Elveden's three new horses and about his owner.

Look what happened:

Marking the princess' card, Fry Daybreak and Tierra Del Gnosis.

"Thank you," replied the princess, "I will."

She did.

Forty minutes later, Daybreak finished first and Tierra Del Gnosis third.

In the paddock—just before the Gold Cup race — the princess fancied a horse called Your Highness.

Lord Elveden frowned at the royal choice. Then he touted her off saying:

"Take Ballo, Sagacity and Prolific."

The princess followed the noble advice.

Your Highness finished seventh.

A wise young man, Lord Elveden refrained from saying, I told you so.

"You have a pretty frock," he said, with weighty discretion.

"My hope is in God."

Medical Body's Keynote Address Hits Compulsory Medical Care

WINNIPEG (CP)—An attack on compulsory medical care was delivered today by Dr. L. D. Rabson of Winnipeg in the keynote address of the Canadian Medical Association annual meeting.

"Under socialism philosophy the responsibility belongs to, and can only be exercised by, the individual, then no one else can displace or dissipate that responsibility even by legislation," he said.

"In preventive health and clinical health, policy or responsibility rests with the patient. Decisions which affect the quantity and cost and often quality of care cannot be controlled by organized compulsion — these decisions come not from above but from the grass roots.

"Cost of the speech was released in advance of delivery, earned.

27 U.S. Editors Entertained By Industrial Commission

Twenty-seven editors from the United States, on a goodwill tour of Ontario under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity, spent last night in Belleville.

Leaving Windsor on June 11, they have already visited much of Ontario, going from Windsor to the Georgian Bay region, thence into Northern Ontario, and coming here from Ottawa. This morning they left here by bus for Toronto and their tour will end at Niagara Falls late today.

Yesterday evening the editors were the guests of a reception and dinner at the Hotel Quinte, sponsored by the Belleville Industrial Commission. Ald. Jack Ireland, chairman of the Commission, acted as chairman for a brief program of speeches. The visiting editors were welcomed by Frank Murray, manager of Radio Station CJBQ and by Deputy Mayor Ben Corke. Ald. Ireland introduced Elmer Lindquist, M.L.A. for West Hastings and Clarke T. Rollins, M.L.A. for East Hastings. Aldermen Ross Bailey, Stewart Robb, Walter Elliott, William Lower and Les Digby and Earl Dickcosther, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, were also introduced. Ald. Elliott spoke briefly, as did Colin McDonald of the Department of Travel and Publicity, who is in charge of the tour.

The visitors had come to Belleville from Ottawa and en route had visited Upper Canada Village and Old Fort Henry.

"I have come to the conclusion," said J. E. Cantlin of the Greenwood South Carolina, Index-Journal, "that if you Canadians had been as interested 150 years ago in the War of 1812 as you are today, folks down our way, instead of drinking buttermilk and giving the President hell, would be drinking Scotch and hoisting them to Queen." He expressed the appreciation of the visitors for the warm welcome extended to them here.

The editors came from 37 of the 50 states of the union, Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Pea Harvest Has Commenced In Quinte Area

With the coming of summer the annual pea harvest has again commenced with some canneries already in full swing and the area already having started its canning operation.

The pea harvest operation at Foxboro is confined to that portion of the crop which goes into canning. Peas destined to be quick frozen are processed at Frankford and placed into storage at Trenton.

"Pea prospects this year are excellent," stated Mr. Eric Hiltz, manager of the Canadian Canners plant at Foxboro. "We anticipate a good night's rest, a satisfaction of weather required for a good crop."

This happy combination of the right weather and the proper moisture has not been prevalent across the province, however, with the Belleville area apparently spared the worst of the parts of the province.

The big rotary pea-viners and the huge stacks of pea straw are no longer seen at the Foxboro plant.

The pea viners have been moved to the more outgoing areas and the peas are already separated from the vines before they arrive at the factory.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS LEGGAT

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE

Scoutmaster Stan Kerr was guest of honor at at Parents' Night, held in Cannifton United Church. The meeting was called so that Scoutmaster Kerr could hand over the leadership to the newly appointed Scoutmaster, Fred Furlonge. After a number of delaying actions the group committee had reluctantly accepted Mr. Kerr's resignation.

He succeeded SM Ken Richards eight years ago with a troop of 17 Boy Scouts. Since that time a great many boys have benefited through the leadership and today the troop numbers 23 Scouts, and is one of the best trained troops in the district. The outstanding in the background himself he was very ambitious for his boys and many worthwhile projects were brought to a successful completion. Two years ago a Cub pack was formed and is almost at full strength. An auxiliary was organized with Mrs. Fred Furlonge, senior, as president. One of the most important events was the award of the St. John Ambulance badge to 24 Cannifton-Corbyville Boy Scouts. For this and many other wonderful efforts the group will forever grateful to Scouter Stan Kerr.

To stress the importance of the St. John Ambulance special course may we quote two instances which happened recently.

AN UNUSUAL MISHAP

Barry Mouland, 14, of Picton, Nova Scotia, skidded on a broken bottle while playing hockey and gashed his right calf and thigh. Scout Boy Scouts took prompt action. David Peacock ran for a mile to his home, he called a doctor and alerted a neighbor who had a car. In the meantime John MacKenzie and Mike Baldwin stopped the bleeding, tested their boots by their hockey boots and made tourniquets to stop the bleeding. They used their hockey sticks to produce a makeshift stretcher and carried the injured boy over a field to the waiting car. He was taken to Sutherland Memorial Hospital where his injuries received 36 stitches in the calf and eight in the thigh.

FIVE TOOK ACTION

When a customer in a Windsor, Ontario, supermarket suffered a seizure and was choking on his tongue he became cyanosed before other customers went to his aid. His tongue was forcibly depressed, he was restrained from harming himself and others; a doctor was called and general first aid was applied. Out of a store full of people there were five took action: a Boy Scout, a Scout troop leader, a former Scout, a Scout leader and a district Cubmaster.

These happy ending stories are the result of training and encouragement patterned on the conduct of adult Scout leaders such as our own Stan Kerr.

The good wishes of the Cannifton group, indeed of the whole Scout movement, go with Stan, and the sincere hope that he will find some other Scouting, where his valuable services can be used to promote Scouting.

Charles Fisher Starting off on Another Tour

Collecting old coins and world travelling are two hobbies of Charles Fisher, of the 4th concession of Sidney.

Retired for the past five years 75-year-old Mr. Fisher has been to Europe several times and next week is leaving on a conducted tour of the Canadian West and British Columbia.

While on the west coast, he will take a side trip to the Seattle World's Fair.

On his several trips overseas, Mr. Fisher has travelled both by air and by boat, but prefers the big liners to the more rapid air transport, and he prefers conducted tours to travelling on his own.

"You can have almost week's holiday on the boat, but by aeroplane you've no sooner started than you're there," he says.

On his trips overseas he has visited the British Isles, the Scandinavian countries, as well as France and Belgium.

A veteran of World War 1, he served with Canadian forces overseas and was wounded at the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

During his trips overseas he has visited the war graves in France and Belgium on several occasions.

Mr. Fisher's coin collection includes a Denalin shilling bearing the date of 1771 and penny and half penny bank tokens dated 1837.

Seven hundred grade 7 and 8 students will leave by special train for "Upper Canada Village" next Monday.

The Ontario Government created Upper Canada Village in Crysler Farm Battle Park, to preserve the history of the Upper Canada Crysler Farm Battle Park itself commemorates the famous battle of 1813 between the British and American forces at Crysler's Farm in 1813. The Village covers the area where Sir Winston Churchill, Harry S. Clarke, Avondale and Douglas Macdonald fought.

The party will be escorted by Sister Wilbur, passenger sales representative for the Canadian National Railways.

WILL ANNOUNCE

Mr. Fleming predicted that the deficit would entail cuts in government expenditures.

One of the most likely areas for this is the $1,675,000,000 defence budget for 1962-63 which is $ 360,000,000 more than last year's. There probably will be reductions in the $282,000,000 weapons procurement program as well as in expenditures for operations and maintenance of the armed forces.

EXCHANGE

Canada's balance of international payments, on which there has been a steady drain for the deficit, has an even more direct effect on the Canadian dollar exchange rate.

The deficit arises both from merchandise trade and from current payments for such items as interest and dividend payments to foreign investors, tourist expenditures in the United States and overseas, and freight costs.

Normally the recurring balance of payments deficits are covered by net inflows of long term capital which offset downward pressures on the Canadian exchange rate, and provide the necessary U.S. dollars on the exchange market to meet the deficit on current international payments.

But in the first quarter of this year there was no net inflow of foreign capital, and the balance of payments deficit was financed by a shrinkage of Canada's foreign exchange reserves.

NO CLUE GIVEN

Thus any new government program which would reduce the deficit on international payments deficit and attract more foreign capital would ease the pressure on the dollar exchange rate and on the exchange reserves.

There was no indication in the policy minister's statement of what actions may be taken, except for the implication of some belt-tightening by the government to reduce its budgetary deficits.

There has been speculation over two possible further changes in the short-term money market. Previously, when the bank rate was pegged at a certain level, it was changed only seldom, with exchange usually meant as a signal to the chartered banks and money market of the central bank's views of the monetary situation.

Panel Discusses Religious Teaching in Public Schools

TRENTON — Should religion be taught in public schools?

If the Christian concept of religion is taught, should other religions be taught?

How about evolution? Should the child be told that man descended from the ape or God?

These, and other controversial subjects were discussed at Bethel Temple in Trenton last night.

Taking part in a panel discussion, "Should Religious Instruction be Given in Public Schools?" were Rev. J. A. Payton of Trenton, Rev. Ralph Smith, Rev. Sackville Palmer and Rev. Jack Masterson of Belleville. Moderator was the Rev. Ronald Reid of the host church.

The format discussion itself was, for the most part, free of controversy. All panelists agreed that as long as the influence of secularism, or humanism, it certainly didn't hurt to add some religion, possibly would do some good —to learn the basic concepts of the Christian religion in fact all panel members agreed that the Bible was the most important book for religious instruction, laid down by the Ontario Department of Education, should be extended to a longer period.

Following the panel discussion, Rev. Reid called for questions from the audience.

Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths, a teacher, said that the Department of Education, challenged the statement of one panel member that "the best Christians could live a successful life." She pointed out that many people who are not Christians live "better" lives than many Christians. She also questioned said that this was a "shrinking line" concept and that, in her opinion, children should be taught respect for other peoples' religions and that, in fact, that teaching the child Christian concepts, tended to set up boundaries.

PERSONAL MATTER

Dr. W. L. Griffiths reiterated in brief statements and added that religion was a personal matter and should be taught in the home, the Christian church and not in the taxsupported public schools. He said that one of the strongest points in the growth of democracy had been the separation of church and state. He said that if the Christian concept of religion were to be taught in schools, all religions should be taught.

An unidentified member of the audience took issue with Griffith's argument one step further. The gentleman commented that as an atheist, he said that he would like to have the right to receive and receive instruction from a Roman Catholic priest, a rabbi and a Christian minister in their outlooks. He said that although the Christian religion only was "a long form of trying to sell insurance," and sign policies that then 50 per cent of the people in the world would be forgotten.

Rev. J. A. Payton agreed that he would like to have his own children hear something about all other religions in the world as well as the Christian faith, but he said as Canada was basically a Christian country, only Christian ministers were qualified to instruct school children.

Lou Black, another school board member, questioned the ability of a member of the Trenton Ministerial Association, who is also a teacher in the high school, to be present instruction in an unbiased manner.

TAUGHT FOUR R's

Mr. Reid told the assembly that Canada's present system of education was founded on religious principles of the past. The first Canadian schools were founded by Roman Catholic priests and today's public school system was started in 1749 by the Rev. Richard Knight who taught the four R's . . . . reading, writing, 'rithmetic and religion.

One question from the moderator was: "should teachers be trained to give unbiased, unsectarian religious instruction in their public schools?" . . . brought interesting question from the audience, "Who's going to train the teachers?"

General conclusion to come out of the panel was that religious instruction in public schools couldn't do the pupils any harm and might do them some good. If one takes religion out of the schools, a large segment of the population will never receive any religious instruction. As for religious instruction being "hoisted" on the child, many other subjects are "hoisted" on him, panelists were agreed. What child willingly takes instruction in history . . . or arithmetic?

Rochester Vessels Call At Trenton

TRENTON — In town yesterday, and on their way to Belleville where they will start off on a four-day search and rescue exercise in the Bay of Quinte, were 20 members of the U.S. Coast Guard auxiliary corps from Rochester, N.Y.

The auxiliary corps members arrived at the government dock around 10 a.m. Six pleasure cruisers, "Zdra-E", "Riptide IV", "Sally IV" and "Utopia", The flotilla was commanded by Captain Ken Nelson, and four other ships were captained by George Gassett, Lawrence Hamilton and Ed Lewis.

Commander Nelson said that the search and rescue exercise will last for four days. His ship will be approached by a fifth boat from Kingston, the Ship Bay, and he will be handed search orders from the training officer Bruce Brainerd, from that point on, the four ships will be on their own, each searching for the designated object in the waters of the Bay of Quinte. Ald. Albert St. Amy of Commerce, Kenneth, of Trenton, and Mayor Reynolds, of Picton, will greet the auxiliary members when they arrive in Belleville, as official representative for the town.

With pelasure boating in the water by mid-June at an all-time high, Trenton is out to attract as many boating fans as possible to these waters. Town authorities have contacted the government departments with a view to getting the information on the depth of water in some manner.

The lockmaster at No. 1 Lock reports that from the opening of navigation on the Trent Canal system, 45 pleasure boats had been locked through. By June 21 of last year, 18 boats only had passed through the locks. Last year, a total of 765 boats went through Lock No. 1. This year's target for town officials, is 1,000.

arising from the foreign financed and current payments for such things as interest and dividends on capital that is financed by selling U.S. dollars from the foreign exchange pool, to foreign exchange pool, to foreign exchange reserves.

Another possibility—of which the government has given no hint—is a loan from the International Monetary Fund to tide Canada over a difficult period when its exchange reserves are sinking.

Usually, as a condition of such a loan, the IMF gets an understanding that the borrowing country will adopt anti-inflation policies to correct the situation.

Western Sources Do Not Rule Out Possible Attack

HONG KONG (AP) — Most western Intelligence sources in Hong Kong believe Communist China's current military buildup opposite the Nationalist-held offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu is defensive. However, they do not discount the possibility of a Communist attack.

These sources believe that any Communist attack most likely would be triggered by fears that President Chiang Kai-shek's regime was going to launch attacks like now to retake the Chinese mainland.

"I'd be very surprised if the Chinese Communists launched an offensive," one intelligence source said today. "I think the chances are about 3 to 1 against it. But if they felt the Chinese Nationalists were about to attack, they would probably want to beat them to the punch."

(Reuters news agency quoted one Hong Kong newspaper, the Kung Sheng daily, as saying the Nationalist forces on Quemoy now have several small MiG-and-run raids on the Fukien coast since 1954.

(In London, the British air ministry announced that Air Minister of La Anderson had been recalled to Britain on "urgent business" it had refused to say what it was having to do with the situation in Quemoy or China.)

Nationalist officials have been predicting an offensive against Communist China for some time. But the invasion seems remote.

The Nationalists have said they would launch an attack only after an uprising on the mainland. But recent escapees, refugees from China to Hong Kong promptly after the Communist newspapers here and in Formosa to declare the time for an assault had passed. Western official believe the Red regime still is firmly in power despite critical food shortages in China.

A Nationalist attack also would need U.S. logistic support at least to have a chance of success. The United States has given no indication that such aid would be forthcoming.

Worker Suffers Severe Burns In Hospital

Claude Davidson, of Millbridge, an employee of Dischert Ferrand Construction Company, receiving paving work on the Madoc county road, is in Belleville General Hospital as the result of burns suffered yesterday while working on the job.

It is understood Mr. Davidson suffered burns when gasoline caught fire as he was attempting to start a machine.

Philippines Claims British North Borneo

MANILA (AP) — President Diosdado Macapagal today claimed the Philippine sovereignty over British North Borneo and proposed that Britain and the Philippines begin negotiations to settle the issue.

Macapagal said the conference he had received a note from the British government recognizing Philippine claims and sovereignty over the disputed territory.

"I have today instructed the acting secretary of foreign affairs to inform the British charge d'affaires ad interim of the Philippines' position that the Philippines believes any dispute between the two countries can be settled amicably."

CLAIMS NO SALE

The Philippine claim is based on the contention that the Sultan of Sulu leased and did not sell the North Borneo, to founders of the British North Borneo Company in 1878. The British contend the territory was sold.

British North Borneo covers an area of 29,387 square miles at the northern tip of the island southwest of the Philippines. The other 9-10ths of Borneo—the world's third largest island—includes the British protectorate of Brunei and territory of Sarawak along the northern coast, and Indonesian Borneo.

British North Borneo is about more than two-thirds of the island.

LONDON (CP)—The British government today repudiated the Philippine claim to sovereignty over British North Borneo.

A foreign office statement pointed out that proposals now are being considered to incorporate North Borneo, into a Malaysian federation, which would be known as the Independent Federation of Malaysia.

In the light of that, the statement continued, the British government has no intention of "even resist"—any such claims as those advanced by Manila.

Announcement By Oran ΦAS Group Awaited

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Algeria awaited another "important announcement" by the militant section of the Secret Army Organization in Oran today following more negotiations to reach a peaceful settlement accord.

Despite agreement reached in Algiers Sunday between Moslem nationalists and secret army moderates, the Oran group has been bolding out for an autonomous European area in western Algeria—emphasizing its stand with occasional acts of violence.

An Oran pirate broadcast Thursday night said that "in no case will the OAS (Secret army) in Oran approve the Algiers agreement."

The announcer reaffirmed the demand for a European enclave around Oran and concluded: "In one way or another, the OAS will conquer."

The peace deal negotiations were believed to be at their critical stage these. Earlier it was reported that the leaders of the Oran group included an extremist European participation in the Oran security force and demanded that European quarters of Oran would be run by European-majority government.

The Algiers secret army moderates also promised "new instructions" today and threatened to begin new attacks on French security forces on the grounds they were continuing action against European and Moslems.

commission. The hearing lasted only 46 minutes.

After Mr. Rose had completed his argument, the chief justice said it will be "unnecessary to call the other side."

"We are all of the opinion that leave should not be given. We see no reason to dissent from the view of the Court of Appeal. The application is therefore refused."

There were no other reasons for its decision.

Mr. Wilson and the reporters left the court adjourned that he intended to call Feeley to the witness stand on the crime commission hearing in Toronto by late Monday or Tuesday.

CALL PARTNER

It is understood Mr. Davidson suffered burns when gasoline caught fire as he was attempting to start a machine.

Earlier, Mr. Rose argued that the common law protects Feeley from giving evidence to himself - incriminating evidence to the crime commission.

Mr. Rose asked the Ontario appeal court erred in ruling in favor of Joseph Feeley that he must answer questions put to him by the commission and may be called to produce his income tax records.

Mr. Rose said the Canada Evidence Act and the Ontario Evidence Act allow Feeley no protection from facing criminal or civil actions that might arise from evidence he might give to the commission. As a result, he said, Feeley was entitled to invoke the common-law principle that no one may be compelled to give evidence which might incriminate him.

THE PROTECTION

"It is the submission of Feeley that he ought not to be compelled to give evidence which may tend to incriminate him on the charges that he is afforded no protection against future prosecution under a Dominion statute," Mr. Rose said.

"In the absence of any protection, Dominion legislature, a person giving evidence before a provincially-appointed tribunal could not answer any question the answer to which could be used against him in a subsequent criminal proceeding," he said.

Dreary Clowning Dims Delights of 'The Tempest'

By ROBERT TANSTER

Last of the three Shakespeare plays to be presented at this year's festival, "The Tempest" neither reaches the heights of the Taming of the Shrew nor the depths of Macbeth, and somewhat uneven production does have many humorous and delightful moments, but it is marred by probably the longest, dreariest clowning that the Stratford stage has yet seen.

George McCowan, who directed the play, has a very fertile imagination as he shows by starting the action a minute or so before the curtain rises on the ship, thus emphasizing the contrast between the peaceful shipboard activities and the horror and chaos of the storm. Later in the play, however, he drags out several of the scenes between Caliban, Trinculo and Stephano to such lengths that one can almost feel the sigh of relief when they end.

Shakespeare's clowns are notoriously difficult for a modern audience to swallow, however hilarious they may have been to their contemporaries.

Mr. Rose asked the Ontario appeal court erred in ruling in favor of Joseph Feeley that he must answer questions put to him by the commission and may be called to produce his income tax records.

Mr. Rose said the Canada Evidence Act and the Ontario Evidence Act allow Feeley no protection from facing criminal or civil actions that might arise from evidence he might give to the commission. THE PROTECTION

"It is the submission of Feeley that he ought not to be compelled to give evidence which may tend to incriminate him on the charges that he is afforded no protection against future prosecution under a Dominion statute," Mr. Rose said.

"In the absence of any protection, Dominion legislature, a person giving evidence before a provincially-appointed tribunal could not answer any question the answer to which could be used against him in a subsequent criminal proceeding," he said.

Adenauer, Rusk In Full Accord On Berlin Issue

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer and U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk had reached full agreement on Berlin and all other issues in mutual talks in West German interest at a private meeting today.

Rusk, continuing his tour of west European capitals, met for 70 minutes with the West German government head with only interpreters present. Adenauer said they had "reached full agreement on all big questions."

"Our thoughts and aims coincide," the chancellor told reporters, "I am very happy that we could have this very frank, confidential talk."

Adenauer said specifically that the area of full agreement included Berlin, one of the chief previous issues in a disagreement between the chancellor and President Kennedy's administration.

Neither Adenauer nor Rusk gave further details of their talk.

Adenauer, along with French President Charles de Gaulle, has said that nothing would be gained from negotiations talks on West Berlin between the United States and the Soviet Union. He has also bitterly opposed American proposals for a compromise with the Russians on Berlin.

Adenauer said he was grateful for Rusk's visit.

"I believe that the spoken word is more valuable and more impressive then all the long written notes."

Rusk told reporters it was a great privilege to "discuss a frank exchange of views" with the free world in the present crisis.

Both men were smiling broadly for photographers. The 85-year-old German statesman appeared to an exceptionally good humor.

Rusk, on a 10-day European tour aimed at consolidating the NATO alliance, twice referred to the "great chancellor" in an airport arrival speech Thursday.

Reports said the "great chancellor" reference seemed to set the tone for one of Rusk's primary tasks — patching up German - U.S. relations, which have been strained in the last few months.

Rusk landed at Bonn after making a 2½-hour visit to West Berlin, where he viewed the city wall.

Rusk told reporters that he would be ready to go more further with the Soviet Union on whether a basis for negotiations exists."

Many theories on Paris said the pilot from the local air club who flew over the area of the disaster and could see no survivors. He reported finding debris following from the wreckage with debris scattered over a wide area.

Altogether this year four Boeing 707's have crashed.

May 23, an American Boeing 707 bound for Kansas City crashed, killing 45 persons. The crash was believed to have been caused by a dynamite explosion in the cargo hold.

June 12, the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency reported that airlines using the 707 had been advised about the possibility that a fault slipping out of place from a control mechanism might have caused the March 3 crash.

A Boeing Aircraft Company spokesman said they had doubts about the theory.

Boat Owner Catching Fish Inside Vessel

Some people have houses near a lake or river. They don't have to go to the store to get fish. Others live in boats, and they just have to drop a line over the side for fish. T. C. Tilton, of Trenton, goes them all one better. He catches fish inside his boat.

Starlit is a famous boat in Trenton. She's been moored at the government dock, summer and winter, for years. But during April of last year, she sank, holed by ice floes. The boat, a cruiser nearly forty feet long, was raised May 15, and Mr. Tilton moved her May 16. He's been working on her since, still at the government dock, but those fish keep getting in the way.

During the first week after she was raised, Mr. Tilton pulled out more than a few bullheads out of the bilges, which had held more than a foot of water.

The rock bass didn't cause any trouble, but the bullheads seemed to like the place. They stayed.

Now, with the water level in the bilges about an inch, any fish there have to swim to get over the ribs; but the fish still seem to be there. Mr. Tilton's latest catch, a six inch bullhead, was last Monday, more than a week after the boat was raised. He released the fish, which means it was the last one in the boat.

It might be that the fish just aren't biting for the time being.

Worker Buried Under Heavy Slab of Concrete

The condition of Clifford Cook, 41, of Plainfield, was yesterday was buried under a heavy slab of concrete which toppled onto him while working at Stirling, was today said to be satisfactory.

Attending physician, Dr. Donald Scott, said Mr. Cook suffered a crushed leg in the accident, which occurred about 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

An employee of the Lightfoot Construction Company of Belleville, which is replacing the No. 14 Highway bridge over the Rawdon Creek in Stirling, Mr. Cook was helping a fellow workmen on the concrete abutment of the old bridge.

The vibration of the jack hammer was believed to have caused a crumbling of the abutment and the slab of concrete weighing several tons toppled over onto Mr. Cook, pinning him underneath.

TWO SCRAMBLE AWAY

Two other employees working in the creek bed with Mr. Cook were able to scramble to safety.

Only the fact that Mr. Cook was buried in a depression in the creek bed saved Mr. Cook from more serious injury.

The worker was pinned for more than an hour before heavy jacks could be brought to play to release him. Mr. Cook was taken to Belleville General Hospital in Dr. Mills's Ambulance of Stirling. He is under the care of Dr. Scott and Dr. William Hipwell of Stirling.

Former Officer Of Company Pleads Guilty

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP) — Alfred Harris, 67, former bookkeeper for O'Brien Construction Company of Kirkland Lake, has pleaded guilty to fraud charges in connection with incidents involving O'Brien and the Ontario highways department between 1955 and 1959.

Harris was remanded Thursday on $5,000 bail until July 3 to allow Judge John R. Robinson to study a probation report and a pre-sentence report being made by Harris to police.

Charles Scott, special Crown prosecutor, asked that the contents of the Harris statement not be made public because he did not want to prejudice the trial of others charged who have not yet appeared.

However, the Ontario auditor of the highways department, cited amounts involved for only some of the items now covered by the indictment. He estimated the amount of the alleged fraud at $33,000 in 1958, $22,900 in 1960 and $22,300 in 1961.

Mr. Adamson testified that Harris received $18,600 of the amount "as salary and bonus" from the O'Hare company. He said amounts over and above the money paid to Harris "went to other parties."

Mr. Dubin said Harris submitted fraud in three main areas: Pay work done but not solely valued, for work not performed at all and for work where bills were sent to both the province and the individual municipality concerned.

Tracy C. Swartman, suspended district municipal engineer of the Ontario highways department, and Mrs. R. B. (Dot) O'Hare of Kirkland Lake, owner of the company, have also been charged with fraud in connection with the incidents. They are free on bail and are to appear Aug. 2.

PCs Have Three Chances

The political deadlock arising out of Monday's election is certainly akin to an ill wind, but even it has blown one good. Those who enjoy speculating on matters political never had such a wealth of windfalls from which to pick and choose when they set out to bake their fancy pie.

Among the most interesting speculations are those dealing with the probable duration of the Progressive Conservative minority government, the factors which will tend to prolong its life, those which will exert pressure in the opposite direction and the probable and possible results of the next election.

It is being generally assumed that the Progressive Conservatives will have to depend on the support of the Social Credit group to retain power. The Socreds appear at best an unreliable ally and a dangerous prop for any government to lean upon. This was made doubly plain Wednesday by statements from the party's national leader, Robert Thompson of Red Deer, Alberta, and from his Quebec lieutenant, Real Caouette. Both have indicated that they will support the Progressive Conservatives until they consider the time right for an election. But both have made this support conditional. Thompson has said that the Socreds will support "any legislative program which is in Canada's interests in view of our current national position" but it would not be surprising if the Conservative view of what is in our national interests did not coincide with Socred view and in that case, Thompson says, the Socreds would use their balance of power like "a big broom." Caouette was even more specific. Though he expected the union for 18 months, he says Social Credit is ready now for the next vote and will vote to defeat the government at any time legislation is presented which the Socreds believe "does not conform to the aspiration of all Canadians." Unless legislation is just routine, or unless the Socreds have a very flexible idea of "the aspiration of all Canadians," that would mean an early election.

There are two flies in the Socreds' honey-pot of power to rule by intimidation of the government. There are two other parties in the House, both of which possess enough votes to keep the Conservatives in power. Even the New Democrats' 19 votes would be enough to turn the trick, if they desired to do so. And, despite the antipathy between the Conservatives and NDP, they just might. They have no wish to precipitate a new election under conditions favorable to the Socreds. They have set up to seek representation from coast to coast, in order to structure a total curriculum in depth, designed to unfraction-ate the mentality of all Gospel-motivated and theologically oriented persons, of all sociological strata, may experience the emerging wholeness of the Gospel.

This emerging wholeness is the result of World War; it has been the follow-through from the total program of the total mission of the total person of the total church so popular last year at board meetings and international conferences. You may recall also requests for the catechetical program that so unnerved the theologians by the equivalent of running-up-a-tree-reveals — God, era in Christian education. This has progressed, under the way of group dynamics, which is rare for Canadian authorities for interpersonal relations, not to be confused with a group-ist or a lady's sewing circle.

One thing to be alerted to in all this ground-swell is that we should be supersensitive to an awareness of an emergent danger of getting polarized psychically. That's very bad. If the minister and Sunday School Superintendent — pardon us, that was last, year — Sunday School Superintendent — get polarized psychically on different syntax, they eventuate in schizophranic teachers.

This could have its point, dichotomously speaking. They could have dialogued themselves ill they are crisis-oriented. Not oriented. That would be better but crisis is biggest.

It should always be remembered that at the ecclesiastical talk-fest level it's not clergy-talk for a moment, it is to put our shoulder to the wheel, but for the rest, nose to the grindstone, feet to the ground, ear to the ground too, and prayer, looking to the future, eye peeled, chest bared, neck bent, head out, fanny tight, fists clenched, teeth gritted.

For seventeen years I've been unimpeachable American source, once we have unfractionated ourselves in this world-race we should go out to gospelize the nations. That is, gospelize the emerging, not undeveloped or less developed, but emerging nations.

Unfractionating the Gospel

...United Church Observer...

In the past the church has emphasized that the Gospel is a simple thing. It may be communicated by ordinary persons to unlettered men and understood by children. The Gospel language, it is beautiful and effective vehicle to carry the good news.

At least that is what we used to think, before the invention of mass media and produced public relations officers and experts in communication. Necessity it has been our privilege to listen to such experts for many, many hours. After that experience we turned, startled and confused, to the familiar, cus expositions of the theory that the church's prime concern now is for person-centred communication.

We became more and more amazed as we floundered through. Was this the language of the King James version? Could this be the English tongue that Earl Haig and Lyn Harris speaks "the sacred language of the ecumenical movement; in the modern world what Latin was to the Roman Catholic Church"?

We found it ruddy-duddy language coined by enthusiastic religionists and adopted thoughtlessly by pulpit and platform. They are tempted to substitute slogans for thought and change the slogans every time their listeners suspect their confusion, or their earnest prayers grow weary of poor results.

After blankshipping with the togetherness boys for a while, we learned that apparently originality in man has left the lonely crowd of the affluent society to the post-Christian era, and this means we must all renew our involvement in the Word incarnated (restructuring of the current program. To be specific:

It reminded us of H. L. Mencken's comment on Warren Harding's speech. It made him think of "a row of wet sponges." Somewhere in the poor old mid-twentieth century ecclesiastical jargon!

It helped us understand why ministers and workers in the inner-city churches of Protestant North America are so poor in people out there in the field at the grass-roots of the congregation, and why they waste baskets with the unread letters and pamphlets that are discarded from the dictaphone-filled rooms of denominational headquarters.

The good word for 1962 is this:

Church HQ personnel are not going to fragment their confrontation with reality. Their co-ordinated effort has been dynamized into a single thrust to seek representation from coast to coast, in order to structure a total curriculum in depth, designed to unfraction-ate the mentality of all Gospel-motivated and theologically oriented persons, of all sociological strata, may experience the emerging wholeness of the Gospel.

This emerging wholeness is the result of World War; it has been the follow-through from the total program of the total mission of the total person of the total church so popular last year at board meetings and international conferences. More babies were born in the United States last year than the total population of the nation in 1791, the year the last of the 13 Colonies ratified the Constitution.

This is a subject politicians love to touch, considering there is a number of illusions. Principal among these is the belief that the Catholic Church opposes birth control as such. In fact, the problem is not at all concern to this church whose doctrinal positions, and the theological of the popes, emphasizes the moral responsibility of the family to limit births in fertility with spiritual needs and material resources.

It opposes only mechanical means of limiting births, a difficult but not insurmountable obstacle to a universal program.

The fundamentals of human fertility are little understood because there has been little research. Little serious research in this field cost about $6 million last year. We spent more than five times as much to eradicate malaria in the underdeveloped countries, although this saved from infection will live in misery and die of malnutrition.

This is a shameful situation, dangerous to the world, because it threatens a desperate contest for food and living room. Next to solving it, much done to finance adequate research on the mistaken notion that conflict in religious belief bars action.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At a motel in the tourist country where I was staying overnight, I overheard another guest, a crisp, business like man, ask the girl at the motel office desk if she knew where the words were that contained the sentiment for which the neighborhood was famous.

"Orchids?" said the young woman, astonished.

"Well, is there somebody around who might know?" demanded the man.

The girl went into an inner room and brought out the proprietor of the motel.

No, he hadn't heard of any orchids. Maybe the service station boys might know. I joined the man, and we went to the service station, then took his car and toured the nearby village. Nobody knew anything about any orchids.

Maybe the school teacher would know. We drove out to the school teacher's. No, she didn't know.

It was the next morning that another guest in the motel, a stranger passing through, was able to direct us to the woods, two miles distant, and famous among botanists for its orchids.

"It is remarkable," said my new-found companion, "the narrowness of the interests of the vast majority of people."

Maybe he meant us, too.

Strictly Personal

The Factors That Create A Snob

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We all know that words change their meanings with the passing of time; but what is more fascinating is the degree to which language and human behavior is the way in which certain words reverse their meaning entirely.

The word "snob" is a striking example. We use it today to mean someone too acutely conscious of his social position, who looks down upon those he considers his inferiors.

But when the word was first put into currency, in England more than a century ago, it meant precisely the opposite. A "snob" was someone who was distinctly not a gentleman, someone of low social standing who imitated his betters and sneered at the rabble.

The word itself means "without nobility," and was put after the name of commoners at Oxford and Cambridge when they had no titles and did not come from noble families.

I thought of this while reading a news story out of Southampton, England, last month, which told of nine headwaiters on the liner Queen Elizabeth quitting their jobs "because they couldn't stand the lower classes."

The nine were all classified as headwaiters by the liner's first-class restaurant. When ordered to work the cabin and tourist (3rd class) restaurants in rotation, they walked out in protest. "Waiters Are Class Conscious" said the punning headline — which comes as no surprise to those familiar with the British status system.

The highest snobs in the Empire have always been the upper servant class. The aristocracy, in fact, has no conception of the peerage; and history records that some of the old Families have been the object of derision from the gentry.

But the servants, supposedly trained from generation to generation, are the most precisely sensitive to subtle social differences, the most conscious of the most intransigently snobbish of all. To have worked for a duke, and then go into service with a mere baronet, is a shameful comedown in one's professional and personal status.

The dukes and the earls wear their titles lightly and, for the most part, are democratic dilettantes. They are not snobs for the simple reason that their position is unquestioned. The common denominator among all snobs — whether social or intellectual — is their personal insecurity, and by the very way in which this insecurity reveals itself, they demonstrate (without knowing it) how much and how long in the niche they so desperately aspire to.

Healthy Heart Tolerates Strenuous Exercise

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 15-year-old boy and weigh 194 pounds. I am five feet, eight inches tall. I have been on a weight and height gaining program for 2½ years. I have gained 50 pounds in weight and nine inches in height but my waist has stayed the same.

I'm still underweight so I've been eating four meals a day. I think I get enough exercise from being on the school swimming team and the 13 strenuous barbell routines I do at home to compensate for my overeating. But my parents are scared that it will affect my heart. Who is right — I or they?

I like your letter, young man. It's worth noting that we have some interest in physical fitness among the newer generation. Keep at it and it will pay you. Others please copy!

According to my charts and normal growth pattern, you age 12 to 15 is 7 or 8 inches and 40 pounds. So you're a bit heavier than that in 2½ years, but your spurt could to a large degree be natural for you. Keep up your effort to eat properly and to exercise and you'll probably certainly didn't hurt, though.

As to being "underweight," not much. Your height at age 20 for 137 pounds, making you only three pounds. You wouldn't try too hard to get too chunky. It's healthier to be at or slightly below your normal weight.

If wish your parents wouldn't worry about your heart, however. All that exercise will keep you from being flabby, and you must be in excellent physical condition.

Exercise never hurt a healthy heart. The heart adjusts to exertion and the old concept of "athletic heart" hasn't a scrap of fact to support it. It's a myth.

I wonder if your folks happened to read about Clarence Day Mar, the famous marathon runner who died of a heart attack at a ripe old age.

Fifty years ago, or so, he was told that he had a bad heart and should avoid exercise. He lived to be his continued exercise for years winning 20 or 25-mile races.

But his death, doctors found that, indeed, he had had some trouble in his heart but his constant exercise had built collateral capability into the heart to make up.

I don't mean that I would recommend that you run the risk of heart patients, naturally. Doubtless he was fortunate in being of the type who benefitted by exertion he could withstand in this process of building up his heart.

The point is that the heart, if healthy and sometimes even if faulty, adjusts to the amount of work its owner is doing.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a friend who is in the young mother habit of cutting up her child from her plate, using the same spoon, etc. Relatives do the same and the precious child, in a room full of relatives, will go from one to another for ice cream from each spoon. What's at work? Yes, he's caught this way? — Mrs. J.S.

About age eight mention to polio society, from colds to trench mouth. It's an excellent habit to prevent spread from one to another. I thought most people knew better. I hope the child doesn't catch anything. I even hope that the child, just coming down with some sickness, doesn't distribute the disease to the whole party of spoon-feeding relatives and friends.

L.D.S. Church Women Report On Retreat

The Women's department of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. S. C. Elsie, 31 Northwood Crescent.

The worship period was led by Mrs. A. B. Mogg using the theme, "Stewardship." She asked each woman to ask herself, "Am I a worthy steward?" and I remember" a study on stewardship for the year. Prayer was offered by Mrs. S. C. Elsie. Mrs. W. L. Cannliff was at the piano for the hymns.

Following the worship period, the three local ladies who attended the 5th annual Ontario Regional Women's Regional Women's Retreat at Port Elgin last week, gave summaries of the program. Those who attended were Mrs. W. L. Cannliff, Mrs. A. B. Mogg and Mrs. S. C. Elsie.

Mrs. A. B. Mogg told of the "chalk" talks illustrated and given by Mrs. Maude Koury, and also of the devotional period led by Mrs. Della Smith.

Mrs. S. C. Elsie gave a summary of some of the program for Saturday which included many inspirational talks and illustrations and Mrs. W. L. Cannliff told of some of the program for Saturday and for Sunday.

The theme talk, "Growing in Grace and Favor" was given by Dr. Margaret Booth of Guelph. Dr. Booth gave many thought provoking statements, among them "There is no amount of good you can do if you don't care who gets the credit for it," and "real poverty is the state of being helpless when you see a people in need."

Pre-school children and their needs was discussed by Mrs. M. Stoner who reminded that Jesus said not only "Feed My sheep," but also "Feed My lambs." Mrs. Stoner explained the needs of little children and how best to meet them, explaining that their attention span is short and that they need to sing, play and move about frequently during lessons. She said a teacher can be a great influence in a child's life and help to mold his future.

Mrs. Mildred Hodgson explained the church sponsored programs for girls "Skylarks" and "Orioles". A demonstration of the meeting was presented for the ladies.

Those who took part in a symposium on, "Maturing at the Older Youth Level" were Miss Sheila MacGregor, Miss Judy Threlfall, Mrs. Karen Davis and Mrs. James Shute. All had attended the church college, "Graceland", at Lamoni, Iowa. They felt that youth with church background are better prepared so that they are less apt to be adversely influenced by wrong doctrines and teaching in higher education.

Mrs. Delores McCormick and her assistants gave a demonstration commission meeting.

A talk on the mature older women was given by Mrs. Floyd Wilson, explaining the needs and some of service of the older woman. She said it is wrong to dedicate another but that each must dedicate herself to God.

The "Dedication Service" led by regional administrator, John Booth, and Bishop H. P. Grundy, was summarized by Mrs. A. B. Mogg.

REDIONAL W.I.

Following these reports, the business meeting was conducted with Mrs. S. C. Elsie in the chair. Mrs. W. Harrison read a letter from Mrs. J. T. Westwood of the General Council of Women at church headquarters in Independence, Missouri, regarding the Regional Women's Institute to be held in Toronto in 1963.

The ladies turned in their talent money toward the Mission Budget and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. A. B. Mogg conducted a social period and a prize for the best score in an anagram game was won by Mrs. O. A. Soale.

Visitors from other cities were: Mrs. Stanley Brodie, Mrs. Robert Robinson and Mrs. Leah Hartman of Kingston.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Graduation Dance Held at King George

Last Friday evening, a dinner and dance was held at King George School to honor the 1962 graduating class. Seventy graduates attended and enjoyed the dinner, served by the Home and School Association. Grace was said by Major John Carter of the Salvation Army.

Mr. G. Coulter, inspector of public schools, was the guest speaker for the evening and the highlight of his talk was that it was important for the pupils to become educated in three ways — academic; vocational and social.

Mr. Ronald Lee, president of the Home and School Association, acted as master of ceremonies for the occasion and presented awards to the four pupils showing the most progress throughout the term. These pupils were Miss Cheryl Williams, Joyce Green, Mr. Paul Fudge and Mr. Kenneth Way.

Miss Irene Bankey was the class valedictorian and also had the honor of cutting the large graduation cake.

Dancing was enjoyed after the dinner, with Mr. J. Ketcheson in charge of the program and it was an evening the pupils will remember in future years.

O.S.D. Graduation Excercises Attended by Many Parents

Yesterday was Graduation Day at the Ontario School for the Deaf when 12 young people, whose outlook for the future was as bright as the sunshine which flooded the campus grass, and as fragrant in anticipation as the perfume from the numerous old peonies, lilies and Canterbury bells, which adorned the auditorium for this special occasion.

It was both a sad and a happy time, sad, because long years of friendship would be severed but, happy because they had successfully completed their scholastic training.

As one, the capacity audience of parents, relatives and friends rose at the first notes of the Coronation March, played by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, as the long line, two by two, led by the superintendents of the school, Mr. J. G. Demeza and Mr. R. E. Kennedy, followed by the department heads, the teaching staff, and last, by the graduates, 11 girls, lovely in their white dresses made by their hands in the sewing class especially for this red letter day, with bo-ribbon-ed red rose shoulder corsages the night young men in dark suits, shirts, and white carnation boutonnieres.

Dividing the two lines at the front, the superintendents and department heads to the platform, the teaching staff to specified seats at the front, and the graduates to their reserved seats along the front of the auditorium.

Those on the platform included Mr. Demeza and Mr. Kennedy, Mrs. H. G. Fetterly, Mrs. Weinmaster, Miss C. Makeev and Miss Hegle, and the guidance instructor, Mr. Arthur Clare, who were seated behind the cloth-of-gold draped table containing the certificates, the awards, and the trophies won.

SPECIAL WELCOME

Among the clergy present were the Reverend John E. Mott, of Toronto, deeply interested in the Catholic deaf; the Reverend Archdeacon J. B. Others from Toronto included, officers of the Hearing Society, Mr. Parker, Mr. Montgomery, and Mr. Gardner.

SUPERINTENDENT'S ADDRESS TO GRADUATES

In Mr. Demeza's closing remarks to the graduates he said that he had been happy to know they had enjoyed their life at the school and hoped they would remember what they had learned; not just the academic curriculum work, but the good advice of their teachers, their parents. That they had not yet learned every thing as there still remained much to be learned in every way in life. That they would follow at home the advice of the teachers; that they would be good sports; good citizens; do what is right, be honest, good friends to others, and make friends of those who think as you do, and help others to do what is right, and remember to come back to the school where you will always be welcome.

Among other guests present were Sergeant R. Blatchford and Mr. Lee McKee of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. The Kiwanis Club had been instrumental in providing the driving awards, and the car used had been loaned for the year by the J. J. Trudeau Co. here, to whom many thanks were extended.

Picture taking followed the recessional, wedding memories of happy days at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Valedictory Talk Given By Jean Shaw

"Mr. Demeza, Mr. Kennedy, Supervising Teachers, Parents, Teachers, Supervisors, Housemothers, Fellow Pupils and Friends:

For many months we have looked forward to our graduation, although we are happy today, our happiness is somewhat marred by a feeling of sadness because we must bid farewell to our school, the staff and our friends here whom we have known for so long.

The Province of Ontario is continually providing a beautiful school with more and better equipment. We are all aware of what we owe to our Government and we are grateful. We are proud of our school and of the excellent training we have received.

We also express our appreciation to our parents for sending us here for an education that will help us to lead useful lives after we leave.

To the Superintendent, the teachers, instructors, supervisors, and housemothers, we wish to say that we are grateful for their patience with us. Throughout our school lives, everyone has devoted a great deal of time and energy, always with our welfare in mind.

For their good care, we express gratitude to the nurses, the dentist and the doctors who have given us the best possible attention. We realize that their thoughtful care has kept us strong and healthy and we thank them sincerely.

We know too, that the matron and her staff have provided the best for the necessary for our good health. Our thanks go to them for the daily provision of a well-balanced diet.

My classmates and I hope that the Graduating Class of nineteen hundred and sixty-three will enjoy their graduation year as much as we have enjoyed our final year.

It is our plan to return to visit you sometime. Now, with sincere regret, we say, "Adieu."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Brian V. — I'd get higher marks if I cheated like the others.

Mrs. D.V. — His honesty is more important than his marks.

Brian V. — I'm in the sixth grade and we're in the middle of final exams right now. Last week I got only 65 in a test on South America and my best friend, Steve, got 90. But he cheated. He used a "pro sheet" that was being passed around and added to it himself. Some of the kids who got high marks had even written things on their hands and fingers ahead of time, things like the initials of capital cities.

Our teacher believes in the honor system. She doesn't watch very closely. In fact she goes in and out of the room during a test. I really studied last week and I'll bet I know more about South America than Steve does. But it won't show on my report card. I've told my parents that I can get 90's if I act like Steve. I can show them when I take the arithmetic final.

Mrs. D.V. — We have always taught Brian to be honest. Now that he's faced with temptation, now that he sees dishonesty go unpunished, he's very upset. And because of the teacher's laziness, I'm having a very hard time explaining to Brian why he should stay on the side of rectitude no matter what. It's not only unfair, it's criminal that a liar like Steve will graduate with all kinds of honors when he's the most "dishonorable" boy I know!

While I reiterate to Brian that we won't worry about his marks, so long as he does up to his notes and knows his stuff, I'm tempted to go to school and report this examination farce to the principal. But my husband says not to. He says Brian may be exaggerating and I'll only make unnecessary trouble. But I want Brian to get a fair deal.

The Council: Thanks to a lateness-abhorrent teacher, Brian is getting an early introduction to disillusionment. He is ready to conclude that there's no percentage, literally, in going straight. The percentage seems to have gone to Soesky Steve.

But not really, Brian. Not when knowledge, rather than trickiness, is required. And not when you're face to face with the high-type leaders you'll meet throughout life, men who can smell integrity a mile off and will know you're genuine after the first hello. These early dishonesties leave their mark on kids like Steve. Whoever can trip him up short now will be doing him a lifelong favor. Mrs. V, may be the person, but we advise her to discuss this "no-general" with the teacher or principal, not to name names. Brian may have his facts wrong, Mrs. V, must be careful not to "snitch" but merely to alert.

To bolster Brian, may we remind him that man is created with some sort of built-in "thermostat" which makes him feel wonderful when he's done the right thing, the kind thing, and makes him itch and squirm when he's been cowardly, petty and mean. Some call it Conscience. Those who habitually disregard the little "jigger," who try to silence it, come to no good. Brian is lucky that he, as well as his parents, listens to it with complete respect.

Mrs. V is correct in finding the teacher remiss. But we venture to hope that the final term marks will be based upon more than this carelessly administered test. Class work, day-by-day reports and especially unaccompanied oral tests are usually averaged in to arrive at a rating.

The honor system does not always work very well with the marks system, at least not in the average school. Mrs. V. would do well to get that arithmetic test monitored and proctored. Brian may still get a 65, but he won't have to watch Steve "copping" a 90 under the table.

Question: My son's teacher is leaving at the end of the term to have a baby. The class mother is organizing a going-away tea, and we intend to give her a gift. The tea will be held in a private home and not in a school. Several mothers have asked me if they should wear hats. We usually do when a tea is held at school. Since the tea is for a teacher, is it still necessary to wear a hat, considering the circumstances are less formal? — Mrs. A.B.A., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: If it's customary to wear hats to school teas, most mothers probably will do so, even if the party is in a private home. Usually, the hostess and guest of honor may be hatless, and guests frequently remove their hats shortly after arrival. I think it would be better to advise wearing hats, when asked, and let guests decide whether to take them off or leave them on during the tea.

Question: Recently, at a Women's Club convention, I was seated at a table with eight women. When the waitress started to serve coffee, some of the girls turned their cups over in the saucer to indicate they did not wish any coffee. I said it was not correct to do this. I also stated you should just tell the waitress you do not wish any beverage. Please let me know who is right. — Mrs. D.C. B., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: When service of food or drink is refused, it should be signified by a polite "No, thank you," or by a shake of the head or even a slight wave of the hand. This applies just as much when service is offered by a waitress as when it is offered by a hostess at her own dinner table. Basic rules of etiquette don't change with a switch of scenery. Turning a cup over to indicate refusal is just as bad form in a restaurant as it is in a private home.

Has Problem With Old Flame

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I love my husband very much, but have in my problem. Before I met my husband I went with another boy. I still like this boy very much and he likes me.

I have tried very hard to forget him, but I have to pass his place to go to my mother-in-law's and I feel I am cheating on my husband by the feeling I have for this boy. He follows me down the street in his Dad's car and I am afraid my husband would be very angry if he were to see him.

My girl friend is getting married this summer and we are invited to the wedding. I would like very much to go, but if my husband knows this boy will be there, he will not go. My girl friend is counting on our attending.—HORNS OF DILEMMA.

DEAR HORNS—The way to keep from falling over a cliff is to keep as far away from it as possible.

Both you and your old pal are playing with fire. You hold it in your hands to make your marriage grow—or wither. In a kind climate, with proper nourishment, it can become even better than you ever imagined.

If your husband insists on staying away from the wedding or any other affair, when he learns Old Flame will be there, stay home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JOYCE—Your mother still sees you as a little girl. You think of yourself as a young woman. At sixteen, you are both partly right.

In the same mail with your letter, I got one from a girl of your age who got into such terrible trouble with a boy that her whole future may be darkened. She left home too soon.

You have to be able to run for cover. Being wholly independent can come later. Start talking to your mother. Let her see you can take responsibility right where you are. I am sending you the name of a paperback which can help you see what's happening.

COMPROMISE

The government set up a 13-man commission headed by Dr. W. P. Thomson, former president of the University of Saskatchewan, to study prepaid medical care and the province's health needs.

The college has presented a solid front against the government's medical care proposal, although a few individual doctors have said they will continue to provide service to their patients after the July 1 deadline.

The college favored an extension of existing prepaid private insurance plans, with the government making contributions to these for residents whose economic status did not permit them to obtain medical insurance coverage otherwise.

INCLUDES PRE-NATAL

The college has not described in detail the extent of what will be covered as "emergency service" after July 1. It has announced that the service will include pre-natal care, maternity service and service for children with any type of sickness.

The service is to be provided at "strategically located" hospitals, staffed by teams of doctors prepared to give service free.

The college said it could not guarantee how long this would continue.

The government has said it will use, if necessary, the services of some of 350 doctors in the public health service.

But Health Minister W. G. Davies has not specified in what circumstances the government-employed doctors would be used and what treatment they would provide.

The emergency service is expected to be provided at about 20 of the province's 147 hospitals; these 20 could involve about two-thirds of the province's more than 6,000 hospital beds.

The doctors, in line with their plans, have urged those hospitals which will not be served to reduce patient admissions during the last week in June. Individual hospitals have not indicated they plan to do so, but the 25-bed hospital at Radville has said it will close. Two Saskatoon hospitals have asked the plan be delayed.

MAY GIVE HOLIDAYS

The effect on staffs at hospitals which will not be served by doctors — nurses, nursing aides, laboratory and clerical staffs—is uncertain, but some hospitals plan to give holidays right after the July 1 deadline.

D. A. McMillan, president of the Saskatchewan Hospital Association, said all hospitals will be asked to remain open after July 1, those not staffed by doctors serving as first aid centres.

The controversy has split the province's population and has had widespread repercussions. Among developments:

Some doctors—a college estimate runs as high as 20 per cent—have said they will leave the province if the plan goes into effect. There have been reports of job offers for them from as far away as Los Angeles.

The Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons says inquiries from Saskatchewan doctors about practising in Alberta are arriving in four times normal volume.

U.K. DOCTORS APPLY

On the other hand, the Saskatchewan medical care commission which advertised in the United Kingdom for doctors, said last week it had 55 applicants. Doctors were guaranteed salaries ranging from $13,000 to $18,000 depending on classification.

A union executive in Saskatoon is a vice-president of a provincial "keep - our - doctors" committee, which has urged the government to delay implementation of the plan until agreement with the doctors can be reached.

Citizen - organized petitions bearing 46,000 signatures have been presented to the government asking delay. A Regina petition with 11,000 signatures took the opposite view, urging a go-ahead.

Saskatoon pharmacists, through their association, have said that after July 1 patients needing prescriptions refilled will not be able to get them without having a doctor's signature.

God's Kingdom Triumphant

By ROY L. SMITH

There is a story to the effect that Napoleon was standing at the base of the sphinx looking up into the inscrutable features of that ancient figure, when one of his generals said to him, "If you could ask the Sphinx one question, and be sure of a right answer, what would you ask?"

There was a legend which said that the Sphinx was the only creature in all the world that knew the right answers to all questions, and the general's question was a natural one.

According to the story teller, the great Napoleon stood quietly for a moment, and then replied, "I would like to ask the Sphinx if the universe is friendly."

In other words, the world conqueror wanted to know the same thing the rest of us would like to know. Can we depend upon it that the forces which have created this universe are sympathetic to the people who are trying to be right themselves, and who are also trying to make the world right?

THE QUESTION JOHN ASKED

From one end of the world to the other the reports were pouring into the Christian centres to the effect that Christians everywhere were suffering every known persecution. In spite of their efforts to be law-abiding and loyal citizens, they were under constant suspicion. In spite of their efforts to show good will to their neighbors, they were esteemed to be enemies of the public order. In spite of their strict morality they were esteemed to be criminals before the law.

All this had the effect of raising the most serious doubts in the minds of the Christians. They had been promised by their leaders that if they lived righteously, they would be protected if they lived honestly, they would be safe from persecution if they lived the life of law-abiding citizens, they would be defended by the Empire's government. But none of these things had come to pass. What did it mean?

FAITH THAT SUSTAINED JOHN

The author of the Revelation has never been positively identified. The very fact that he used the name of John, and that the name was as common then as it is now, resulted in confusion. For that matter, it is not necessary to identify him as an individual. It is sufficient to say that a great Christian seer by the name of John held to the belief that is expressed in the Book of Revelation, and that faith sums up in a single sentence: "Behold I make all things new."

A VERY MODERN QUESTION

An aged woman who has been a devout Christian all her life, who has been faithful in all matters related to her faith and her church, whose personal life was above reproach, laid down her morning paper and said, "Why doesn't God do something? I do not want to die an infidel, but I confess that the things that have been happening in Tibet, the Congo, Angola, Cuba and a hundred other places around the world, have me puzzled. I do not know what to believe."

And in the spirit of her dismay many of us can share. Also, we may be sure, tens of thousands of Christians, were puzzled by the fact of the suffering of the Christian martyrs of the second century.

The ancient question has become a very modern question, and the ancient answer has become a very modern answer.

REVELATION'S ANSWER

As we have watched the rape of Tibet, for example, and have read the stories of the devotion and piety of the people, the question has become intense and demanding. In John's day, the answer involved the lives, the honor, the virtue, and the preservation of everything holy and righteous.

But John declared that God's triumph cannot be doubted. No mention is made of the resurrection of Jesus, but the faith the great Christian exhibited rested down on the fact of the resurrection. He had nothing more, he needed nothing more. It was the absolute confidence of every Christian that the Resurrection of Jesus was the assurance that God would not let Jesus down, and that Jesus would not let His followers down.

This means that the Resurrection of Jesus stands at the very centre of our confidence. The dependability of the fact is the security of the faith. It is as modern today as it was in John's day.

Focus on Health

By The Associated Press

Topics This Week: Medical scientists report on hangovers, sleep and cancer.

HANGOVER EFFECTS

Hangovers after drinking may be hard on the heart. Finnish researchers say they found a speedier-than-normal heart rate in 28 healthy firemen, either at rest or at work, after a night of drinking.

In part of the studies, they put the firemen through standard physical tests the morning after, when they had hangovers. Fourteen men performed as well as they usually did, two did better, and 12 were under par in physical performance.

SLEEPY BRAIN

During sleep, the human brain shows complex patterns of electrical activity and responses to stimuli. The electrical readings are quite different from those during wakefulness.

In one test, University of Michigan researchers analyzed reactions to a flash of light, and found the brain responded differently at the outset than later on during sleep.

By then, the person perhaps had become accustomed to the flash, said Drs. Kenneth A. Kooi and Banu K. Bagchi.

They hope the research can prove useful in detecting distortions in brain wave readings due to disease, and help in estimating the location and extent of brain damage.

VIRUSES AND CANCER

Viruses have long been suspected of causing human cancer, perhaps by changing the genetic stucture of cells so they become wild or malignant. While viruses are known to cause some animal cancers, no human malignancies have ever been proved to be caused this way.

Now, for the first time, scientists have found a genetic change from normal to abnormal type occurring in adult human tissue infected with a virus. They took fragments of tissue from the inside of the cheek or the skin of human adults, kept the tissue alive in test-tubes, and infected it with a virus from monkey kidneys.

It is not yet known whether the abnormal change produced in th human cells is malignancy, but this is being studied.

FLEET AIR ARM—Checking over the area which he will be searching for a "lost" boat is U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary pilot Al Bowers (centre), together with ohnrts Glenn Coleman (left) and Charles Minor (right), as their Flotilla rendesvoused in Belleville harbor this morning. Six yachts were involved in the exercise as well as Mr. Bowers' aircraft "Alfa Bravo."

Rochester Coast Guards On Bay of Quinte Exercise

Yoicks, the Yanks have landed. Well, not exactly landed since they are really still on the water — and in the air, around and on the waters of the Bay of Quinte. The occasion is the annual sea-air search and rescue exercise of Flotilla 2-4 (Rochester) of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Six ships, one aircraft and 21 men are involved in the operation which is taking place today between Belleville and Picton. Full details of the exercise were not available this morning from Flotilla Commander Ed Nelson of Rochester, as his fleet is sailing under sealed orders which are to be opened only after they are on the "high seas."

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is a voluntary civilian arm of the United States Coast Guard whose members and their boats are subject to call by the Coast Guard in the event of an emergency. Principally, in the Great Lakes area, they are involved in search and rescue operations, special patrol duties, occasional stand-by duty at the local Coast Guard base of quarters, and public education and instruction in basic boating and boating safety courses.

They are also active in a courtesy motorboat inspection program where, at the owner's request, they will fully inspect a craft with special emphasis on auxiliary equipment as well as on the normal legal requirements. Any boat which passes muster is awarded a special decal which normally exempts the owner from regular safety inspections unless an obvious violation of the law has occurred.

The Auxiliary members maintain their own boats and special equipment, such as two-way ra-dios which can be tuned to the Coast Guard service frequency, at their own expense. These craft have to meet certain minimal requirements in order to fly the special blue ensign of their service. All together there are about 60 to 65 such groups on the Great Lakes.

The Rochester Flotilla 2-4 also maintains its own base on the Genessee River, although this is not a stipulated requirement for the service. Each flotilla has its own commander, vice-commander, training officer and inspection officer in its organizational set-up.

In addition to its own base headquarters the Rochester group also has its own "Fleet Air Arm," a Cessna 170 aircraft equipped with pontoons or floats, piloted by Al Bowers.

All in all it appears that members of this group do their community and their country good service and have fun at the same time. This is the second time in three years that the Rochester Auxiliary has held exercises on the Bay of Quinte. It appears that this is because Belleville harbor is a favorite anchorage for Rochester yachtsmen.

Trade With Poland Banned by Thailand

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Thailand today banned trade with Poland. No official reason was given but it was believed to be because a Polish judge presided at the International Court last week when it ruled that the ruined frontier temple of Preah Vihear belongs to Cambodia.

Truckers Strike Shows No Sign Of Settlement

Trucking firms at Brantford were said to have asked for extra police protection in the form of special duty officers—regular policemen hired during their off-duty hours by the company.

Brantford Chief George Kerr said Thursday regular police patrols were being beefed-up to maintain a closer watch on Brantford truck depots, following incidents in the last three nights in which truck tires were slashed and tarpaulin ropes cut.

Meanwhile, top Teamster officials were attending a policy conference at Sault Ste. Marie.

At London, Ont., James Beaver, vice president of striking Local 141, said Thursday: "I've personally visited all our picket sites in London and instructed the men to keep this strike legal."

"We're all aware of incidents like a flaming gasoline bomb throwing," Mr. Beaver said, "and while I don't feel Teamster members are responsible for all of them, there is the odd crackpot responsible for some of them."

INJUNCTION OBTAINED

McManus Motors of London obtained an injunction limiting the number of pickets at the company's terminal to six following picketing Thursday by 100 placard-bearing drivers.

S. A. McEachern, business agent of Teamster Local 141 said the local had been approved as bargaining agent for the firm's employees but has been unable to secure a contract.

H. L. McManus said the firm has already carried out terms of a conciliation board recommendation in the dispute between the Teamsters and the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, agents for 60-odd trucking firms whose employees are on strike.

Sixty per cent of the McManus drivers crossed the picket line to start work Thursday.

The earlier legal action was instituted by Hutton Transport of Uxbridge. The firm obtained an injunction Wednesday prohibiting picketing at its terminal and several Stratford locations.

VIOLENCE? CONTINUES

Toronto was the scene of the only incidents of violence Thursday. Carloads of men prevented drivers for Commercial Cartage from making deliveries.

James Muirhead, president of the trucking company, said bricks were thrown at trucks in four separate incidents. The windshield of one truck was smashed.

Jack F. Kennedy, vice-president of Local 938, said intimidation was not one-sided. He had received a phone call threatening his wife and three children unless he put the men back to work.

He said the incidents of violence could have been done by someone trying to discredit the union or possibly some irresponsible person in the local. But they are doing it without our sanction."

Discourage Doctors Moving to Prairies

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan Keep - Our - Doctors Committee has arranged for an advertisement in Saturday's Times of London directed at British doctors.

The advertisement reads:

"Attention British physicians: Before planning to move to Saskatchewan, consult with your colleagues in this province; also refer to the Medicare Act. Section 69 of the act will reveal that control of your profession is what is actually expected in a totalitarian state."

SEIZE DORIES

GODTHAAB, Greenland (Reuters) — Four Portuguese fishing dories were seized Thursday for fishing within Greenland's six-mile limit, police reported today.

State-Owned Farms Being Handed Back to Private Owners in New Policy

HAVANA? (Reuters) — Some state-owned farms are being handed back to private owners as part of a major shift in Cuba's agricultural policy.

Government officials deny, however, that the move represents a setback in the general policy of "socializing" the land.

"We are not in a state of aggressive communism . . ." says Dr. Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, president of the National Agrarian Reform Institute.

"What we have to do is to eliminate harmful practices in our policy, which hinder the full development of the revolution as regards the poor and medium-poor peasants."

The policy of respecting these classes, he said, had been "imperilled by many extremists and would-be experts, resulting in cases of persecution of the peasant in his right to produce, distribute and consume agricultural products."

The National Agrarian Reform Institute failed to fulfil most of its targets in 1961, a fact admitted by Premier Fidel Castro when making it clear that he must be allowed, within limits, to slaughter his own livestock and dispose of it locally. Local revolutionary officials, it said, had been interpreting too narrowly laws applying penal terms for unauthorized slaughter and sale.

In a speech April 23, Premier Fidel Castro referred to "discontent" among the peasants.

He said: "If we have to give back farms which have been badly interested (taken over by the state), we shall give them back. We are not going to be afraid that this might look like a step backward. On the contrary, if handing back farms which were unjustifiably intervened brings happiness to thousands of people who will march with the revolution, it is better to hand them back."

SOME RETURNED

Some farms were returned to their owners in April in a clear attempt to win back some degree of lost support for the revolution.

The burning of sugar cane fields by disgruntled peasants undoubtedly contributed to the total yield from the 1962 sugar harvest being nearer 4,500,000 tons than the 5,500,000 tons originally forecast. And lack of co-operation by the farmers, amounting to "sabotage," has been officially blamed for contributing to serious food shortages.

Co - operative farmworkers, representing 40 per cent of Cuba's agriculture are regarded as owners of their land and equipment. They share profits made by the farm, and have been described as "new land-owner-minded" than were the big landowners.

Big disparities began to be noticed between the money earned by co-operative workers on the more prosperous former estates and the fixed wages paid to workers on the people's farms.

"The co-operatives never succeeded in being true co-operatives," Rafael Rodriguez explained. "The co - operative worker never felt himself master of communal property and he was not sufficiently consulted.

"Hence a failing in collective spirit and enthusiasm, and a resulting failure of material incentive."

House Kills Kennedy's Far-Reaching Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy's far - reaching farm bill and its compulsory features limiting the growing of wheat and feed grains is dead.

The surprise defeat of the measure in the House of Representatives Thursday night by a vote of 215 to 205 was all the more galling to Kennedy administration leaders because up to the last minute they thought they would win.

The Republicans, who voted virtually en masse against the bill, combined with the Democratic wheat and feed grains opponents to defeat the legislation would open the door to full government control of the farm economy and it would make Agriculture Secretary Freeman a czar.

The administration had anticipated its new farm program would have saved $4,000,000,000 in farm costs to U.S. taxpayers during the next four years by reducing surpluses.

IMPOSES REDUCTIONS

This would be done basically by imposing mandatory acreage reductions on wheat and feed grains. Farmers would get payments for the amounts that could be marketed, and stiff penalties for overplanting.

Farmers would have a choice of limiting production on crops in 1963 and 1964 and receiving high federal price supports or of increasing their acreage planting as much as they wish and having their price supports slashed. Most farmers made this choice in a national referendum on May 21.

Producers of wheat, cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts have established quotas and price controls. But feed grain producers and wheat growers face such a choice before. These grains are corn, grain sorghums and barley.

If farmers voted against controls, their government guarantee on wheat prices, for example, would drop to about $1.80 a bushel from the current price support of $2. On corn the price support, or prop, would drop to about 81 cents a bushel from the present $1.20.

TOO MUCH CONTROL?

Several Republicans claimed during the bitter debate that control of feed grains would put livestock production and livestock feeding at a disadvantage to grow grain to feed his livestock.

The UN food and agriculture administration reported last week that North America had per cent of all grain consumed went to feed animals as feed.

Wheat and feed grains are the crops that have contributed most to the massive surplus stocks now held by the government.

Backers of the Kennedy farm bill claimed that mandatory acreage reductions and national marketing quotas were the only hope of reducing basic of government price supports.

In the absence of any new 20 farm legislation, the present emergency wheat and feed program will expire and the law reverts to the 1958 act passed under the administration of Republican Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, which the Democrats claim is largely responsible for the present mountainous pile of surpluses.

Children Said Practising Form Of Begging

TORONTO (CP)—School children are practising a form of begging outside Toronto Conservation Board of Ontario and brewers' retail stores, a Toronto school board trustee charged Thursday night.

William C. Dymond told the school board six children—some of whom he found to be of Grade 4 age approaching cars on a recent Saturday night. The children, he said, he passes at car windshields with dirty rags and waited to be paid.

Mr. Dymond said he believes there may be as many as 1,000 children so occupied each Saturday night.

The school board declined to take action, after the practice was taking place neither in front of nor on school property.

Chairman Oscar T. Sigsworth suggested Mr. Dymond write as a trustee and a private citizen, to the liquor board.

Teen-Age Canada

Don't Downgrade Bike

By JACK HUTTON

I have just bought a machine dreamed up more than 100 years ago by a Scottish blacksmith—and I think I now know why teenagers find the twist so easy.

The machine, which cost all of $8, is a bicycle.

For more than a week I've been spending at least 30 minutes a day on my creaking, smaller-then-ordinary-size "mechanic's delight," waving at teen-age friends who pass me.

I'd like to report that I've discovered muscles in my calves and the small of my back that I haven't used since I was 13. A blister formed on the inside of my right thumb and sitting down hasn't been easy.

But by gosh I feel good.

As a 29-year-old reporter who decided at 17 that bicycle riding was part of a childhood past, I wonder what took me so long to get back to it? Why in the world are more teenagers driving to school when they could get this exercise?

Bicycle manufacturers in Canada report a rather strange trend: more teen-agers—particularly in the cities—use Dad's car to go even one block while more adults find cycling a good way to stay healthy..

This doesn't apply, of course, to all teen-agers. Thousands of young Canadians have already planned bicycle tours this summer through Europe or Canada under the auspices of the Canadian Youth Hotels Association.

They are the ones who have learned that it is possible to explore fascinating parts of this country—the Rockies, the Maritimes, Quebec—with a group of friends, spending less than school-third of what a trip usually costs.

We might assume that the perennial bicycle, part of everyone's youth, has been with us always. But the truth is that this teen status symbol dates back no earlier than 1790 when a Frenchman, Chevalier de Sivrac, developed a wooden beam with a wheel under each end.

The driver sat on a cushion and propelled the machine by alternately paddling his feet on the ground to right and left. The machine, by the way, had the head and horns of a ferocious beast on the front.

A Scottish blacksmith, Kirkpatrick Macmillan, is credited with building the first real bicycle in 1839. His pedal bicycle was made of wood, the driving mechanism of which consisted of short cranks fixed to the rear hub and connected by rods to long levers fixed to the frame close to the head.

We are celebrating this year the 100th anniversary of the first bicycle which had cranks and pedals attached to the front wheel. The front wheel was larger than the rear one, and because both were made of iron it was known around Paris as the "bone-shaker."

Everyone apparently wanted to get into the act after that because 7,000 patents to improve the bicycle were applied for in England alone in 1896. The most important developments, however, were the "safety" bicycle and the pneumatic tire.

It was after the invention of pneumatic tire in 1888, by the way, that women consented to ride the strange new contraption. And that, of course, led to the bicycle built for two.

The bicycle that we ride today (and I'm not counting mine) is a thing of beauty and comfort compared to those days, all decked out with horns, reflectors, carriers, rear vision mirror, handlebars, padded seat and light.

I've watched both teen-agers and adults using their well-maintained bicycles in London, Paris and Moscow. It isn't even unusual to see a cyclist pass by with top hat in London.

Why, I wonder, don't more Canadian teen-agers make more use of the cheapest form of transportation that exists in Canada today?

BAD TASTE?

You'll soon hear a hit parade record which, in my opinion, should merit a medal for bad taste.

Jimmy Dean, who made his reputation with "Big Bad John," lost a lot of his following when he recorded "Dear Ivan," a record which seemed to rather thinly-veiled mushy propaganda. Then he capitalized on the story of President Kennedy with "P. T. 109 . . ."

He has just released a song based on the 1958 bridge tragedy in Vancouver that took the lives of 18 men, an accident which invoked almost as much national sympathy as the Springhill mine disaster.

The song, entitled "Steel Men," has been described by an American publicity release as a "stomping, quick tempo description of a '58 bridge collapse" and "a captivating up beat coupler."

Will Try Once More For Record

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Mickey Thompson says he will make one more attempt on the world's land speed record this summer on the Bonneville Salt Flats in western Utah — then quit his record attempts.

Thompson, of Long Beach, Calif., travelled 406.4 miles an hour over the salt in the summer of 1960. But his car broke down on a return trip and his name didn't go into the record books.

The American Automobile Club takes the average of a two-way mile run on the salt to determine a record.

The 34 - year - old Thompson, who has been racing on the salt for 12 years, said Thursday that racing against records becomes monotonous.

The late Sir John Cobb of England set the record of 394.1 m.p.h. on the Salt Flats in 1947.

Leafs Nip Vees 3-2, Suns Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The field is closing in steadily on Jacksonville Suns in the International League pennant race.

The Suns, erstwhile runaway leaders were bombed early and often by Rochester Red Wings Thursday night and lost 8-1 as their ninth - inning rally fell short. The defeat left them 3½ games ahead of Atlanta Crackers, who took 4-2 and 8-6 decisions from Columbus Jets.

Toronto Maple Leafs nipped the erratic Richmond Virginians, 3-2 to stay close to the pace, a half-game behind the Blazers, and Atlanta Crackers shaded Syracuse Chiefs 8-6.

Catcher Danny Kravitz crashed his second and third homers in three days to help the Blazers beat the Suns. Buffalo's Bobby Saverine and Jacksonville's Vic Davalillo also hit for the circuit.

The Leafs survived an early two-run homer by Tom Upshaw thanks to the wildness of Richmond starter Al Downing who supplemented their five hits with seven walks. The free passes set up all three Toronto runs and nailed down Carl Green's 9th victory in six decisions.

Bob Boozer jarred the Jets with eight victorious against a single walk in Buffalo's first victory. In the second game, the Bisons were five runs down in the second inning but eventually pulled it out with the help of three innings of scoreless relief pitching by Dick Ricketts.

WOULD ALLOW PROS

LONDON (AP)—The International Lawn Tennis Federation's committee of management has recommended that professionals be allowed to participate for the first time in Wimbledon tennis tournaments on an experimental two-year period beginning next year, an authoritative source said Thursday. The decision now rests with the ILTF which meets in Paris July 11.

McNAB RELEASED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Max McNab, coach of San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League, has been released from his contract to become general manager and coach of Vancouver Canucks. "It's a wonderful opportunity for McNab and we can't stand in his way, although we're sorry to see him go," said Seals president Coley Hall.

Doug Ford Leads East. Golf

BALTIMORE (AP) — Doug Ford's 66, three below par, earned him the first-round lead in the $35,000 Eastern open golf tournament despite a putting lapse on the last green.

Ford, disgusted because he took him three strokes to hole out from 30 feet on the 18th, nevertheless saw his score stand up against an assault by a flock of other competitors Thursday.

The New Yorker held a one-stroke margin over half a dozen other starters, including Bobby Nichols, Terry Dill and veteran Julius Boros.

AGREE ON BOUT

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Eddie Machen, No. 3 heavyweight contender, and Cleveland Williams, No. 6 challenger, are to meet July 10 in a 10-round fight here.

Earl Gilliam, president of Texas Boxing Enterprises Incorporated, said Sid Flaherty, Machen's manager, agreed to the date Thursday.

Machen and Williams had been scheduled to meet Feb. 10 and May 26 in New York City. A back-injury caused Machen to cancel the February match and an eye injury forced cancellation of the May fight.

American In Net Semi-Finals

LONDON (AP)—Chuck McKinley and Carole Caldwell are keeping the United States in the picture in the London tennis championships, the last big event before Wimbledon.

McKinley, 21, of Bryan, Mo., defeated Australia's Neale, Fraser, 1962 Wimbledon champion, 6-2, 7-5 Thursday.

That gave him a place in the semi-finals along with Australians Rod Laver and Roy Emerson and Pierre Darmon of France.

Miss Caldwell, of Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Miss Sturman of Chulva Vista, Calif. She passed into the women's semi-finals along with three British girls — Christine Truman, Rita Bentley and Mrs. Lorna Cawthorn.

Jockey Gomez Suspended

CHICAGO (AP) — Avelino Gomez, leading jockey at the recent Belmont meeting in Washington Park has been suspended by the Arlington Park stewards for rough riding in a race Wednesday.

The suspension, running through July 4, will deprive him of mounts in the $50,000-added Warren Wright Memorial today and the $40,000 - added Sirs and Stripes Handicap July 4.

Gomez rode in Ontario last season.

Hull-Ottawa In A.H.L.?

Application Will Be Accepted

Lion Is On The Loose, Not Dangerous

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Jim Balcour of the American Hockey League says Hull-Ottawa probably will become the 10th team in an expanded AHL next season.

Balmer said Thursday night Hull-Ottawa's application for a franchise will be considered at a meeting in New York Monday and Tuesday.

"I would say now that the application will be accepted," Balmer told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

The AHSL was comprised of eight teams last season. A ninth, Baltimore, was added to the league at a recent meeting in Cleveland.

Hull-Ottawa was in the Eastern Professional League last season.

Red Yacht Wins

POOLE, England (AP)—The Russian yacht Drunkba won the second race in the 2.5-metre world championships in 15 hours, one minute and 27 seconds.

Dr. Britton Chance's Complex III, American entry first in Wednesday's opening race, could do no better than sixth Thursday. Second was the British boat Bizarre.

The series continues until Tuesday.

Elorde To Defend World Title

MANILA (AP) — Flash Elorde, the 27-year-old world junior lightweight champion, will defend his title for the fourth time Saturday against Auburn Copaland of Los Angeles and the 20-year-old contender is being given an even chance of 12Sing the crown.

Copaland, in and out of "retirement" several times, has been doing all of his fighting in Australia and the Philippines during the last three years. Because Elorde's eyebrows are vulnerable to cuts against a slashing punches like Copaland, who has cut all of the five opponents he fought here last year, the challenger has many backers.

Elorde, the Philippine 130-pounder who won the crown by beating Harold Gomes in Manila, March 16, 1960, lost the Oriental lightweight title to Japan's Teruo Kosaka in April, his last fight.

PROMISING ACTRESS — Felix Fitzgerald (real name: Jo Hutchings) could speak only high school French when she came to Montreal from her native Toronto three years ago. Today the five-foot-eight brunette is one of the most pro-mising actresses on Montreal French-language TV.

Most Promising Actress In French Language TV Is Native of Toronto

MONTREAL (CP) — A lot of eyes, I kept thinking of that despairing educationists would nice, fat weekly pay cheque find this hard to believe, but going down the drain.

Tall attractive Felix Fitz-gerald (real name: Jo Hutch-ings) came here speaking high school French in 1959. She liked what she saw and, picking her scheduled six-week visit indef-initely.

A stint in a department store during the Christmas rush—"I really learned to talk French selling lingerie"— led to a job as assistant fashion co-ordina-tor. She held the job for about a year, meanwhile acting at night in the English - language Shoestring Theatre.

As her French improved— a six-week course at the Univer-sity of Montreal helped — she found herself in demand for parts on the French - language network. She played first in the weekly TV serial "La Pension Velder," and later in "Les Filles d'Eve."

'REAL TEARS'

The latter part was that of a girl from Toronto who fell in love with a handsome but wicked man whose many indis-cretions were finally punished by incurable paralysis. The final scene of the series had him sitting in a wheel chair bidding Felix, slumped on the floor at his knees, a fond adieu.

"It was very sad," she re-called. "I had real tears in my eyes. I kept thinking of that nice, fat weekly pay cheque going down the drain."

Felix has since fulfilled sev-eral other contracts for the net-work, among them the part of a glamorous international dia-mond thief in a detective series, and that of Lady LaFontaine in a historical film.

"There is so much activity in French TV or all English Cana-dians, unless they watch it, are not aware of it," she said.

"If you get accepted in the milieu, you play opposite the best leading actors in French Canada, and they're fantasti-cally good! It's really an ex-perience working with them."

PLAYED A SQUIRREL

Parts on the English-language network she has enjoyed most include that of a squirrel—"no kidding, a squirrel"—on Nurs-ery School Time. She has also supplied the little boy's voice in commercials on that program.

As versatile as she is ener-getic, Felix has also done some writing, notably the scripts for several half-hour Sunday School programs.

Once torn between journalism and acting, Felix, a graduate of North Toronto Collegiate who completed one year at the Uni-versity of Toronto, chose act-ing. She studied for two years at London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, then returned to Canada to play for two seasons in the Stratford Festival.

She also has acted in Toronto, where a producer once told her she was too tall for her leading man (she is five foot eight).

Asked recently if she had that problem here, she replied, "Well, no — now they look for tall actors to play with me."

Four years ago the Hawaiian-born singer walked out on the $2,000,000 Kingston combo. The trio was still cofining money in all directions, but Guard and the other two—Bob Shane and Nick Reynolds and Bob Shane—weren't getting along.

After making a financial set-tlement, Guard pondered his future. Finally he would be concerned with folk music. And then he had come up with a new combination called the Whiskeyhill Singers.

The name? It comes from a hilly road in Palo Alto, Calif., where Guard spends his brief hours between tours.

"You've got to admit the name sounds strong," he ex-plains. "Most singing groups have names that don't mean anything. But with a name like the Whiskeyhill Singers, you know you aren't going to get a group that comes out in tuxes and hums Back Home in In-diana.

The new group appears to be getting off the ground. It has drawn enthusiastic response in its first six months of dates. The first Whiskeyhill album has sold 40,000 copies in three weeks.

Dave Guard was the acknowl-edged leader of the Kingston Trio, yet he quit because the dissensions within the group were causing unhappiness.

For the new group, he inher-ited David (Buck) Wheat, the six-little bass player off the Kings-tons, who was given a chance to do his own singing. The sec-ond member was Cyrus Far-yar, an Iranian-born folk singer with whom Dave attended high school in Honolulu.

"I had the idea of add-ing a girl to the group," Dave said. "Nearly all folk singing combinations are male, which provides a certain sameness.

He finally found Judy Henske singing at a spot in Oklahoma City. For $ 25, a bright sprite from Chippewa Falls, Wis.

TORONTO (CP) — Puss n Boots, a three - year - old colt, proved he has mended his wan-dering ways by winning the Clarkson Purse at Woodbine Thursday.

Puss n Boots, owned by Roxie and Walter Gian of Buffalo, de-feated Marlene Mahaddy by 1¾ lengths and was nearly three lengths in front of Absent Son to pay $3 to win.

Last summer at Fort Erie, Puss n Boots stalled recalci-trant when he jumped a hedge, dumped his jockey and slid into the infield lake for a swim.

In Florida last winter Puss n Boots was the scourge of the jockey colony as he dumped rider after rider, but he fin-ished fourth in the Florida Derby behind such horses as Sunrise County and Ridan.

Thursday he won his second straight on the Ontario scene and he did it easily without giv-ing his rider, George Gubbins, a struggle. His time for the 1 1-16 mile run was 1.43 3-5.

Road Guard was favorite in the first, combined with longshot Lamar in the second for a $187.40 daily double.

The stewards announced that jockey Sam Cocciolone has been suspended for 10 days effective June 23 for allowing his mount to interfere with other horses on Wednesday's second race. Cocciolone finished second on Mr. Yo Te, but was disqualified and placed last.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is nice to note that when the hold-overs and the newly-elected take their seats in Parliament that sports will be well represented in the ranks of the "old line parties."

Resuming his seat in the government ranks will be the well-known sportsman and war veteran "Mike" Weichel, who was re-elected in a Waterloo riding.

Facing him and probably the only fiery-thatched occupant of a Liberal seat will be Leonard "Red" Kelly, tobacco farmer, hockey player and one of the nicest guys to score a goal, bodycheck an opponent and walk into a political hotbed and wrench the seat from a "sure-fire" incumbent.

As a matter of fact as far as personalities go there is little to choose between "Mike" and "Red." The pair would be among the first to congratulate each other, whether it be in the sports or the political arena.

The only difference is that Mike has won his spurs in the battle of politics—his record at Ottawa shows that—while "Red", a rookie on the "Pearson team," and I'll be that he will, has yet to make his mark in the strange game of "government."

I got to know "Red" and his lovely wife Andra, and more recently "Casey," the Kelly's charming first-born daughter, when they visited Larry Eggert at his well-appointed cottage in Rossmore. I had met "Red" there several times before he and the beautiful figure skating star were married.

"Red" Kelly, in my book, is one of the topflight hockey players in the National League. He is not the spectacular, swashbuckling type who thinks as much of a headline as a salary cheque. His versatility, proven in his ability to play both in front and behind the blueline, has been a tremendous asset for the teams he has played with.

Hockey-wise he has as much respect for the foeman as for the friend. I have found him to be the kind of player who gives credit wherever it is due while modestly assuming his share of it.

He is a great team man. I talked with him shortly after he transferred his hockey ability from the Detroit Red Wings to the Toronto Maple Leafs. He bore no ill feelings towards those responsible for the transaction. He had given perhaps the majority of his best years to the Red Wings, but as was subsequently proven, he also gave his best to the Leafs.

"Red" is not a bombast when talking with people. He speaks quietly and in a straightforward mennner. He is as sincere as a bridegroom. He has, I firmly believe, the qualities that should make him a valuable member of his political party.

"Mike" left a leg in France during World War I. A tremendous sports enthusiast he has been associated with hockey, baseball and other forms of athletics. He is a past president of the OMHA and has been a member of the OHA.

And if any local club or organization needs an after-dinner speaker just ask "Mike." They will hear a colorful, and humorous address, that has more than its share of serious moments.

Mike is a raconteur, musician and entertainer. His family can stage an evening "show" that ranks with some of the pros.

As a politician, "Mike" has proven himself. He is one of the members of parliament who originated and helped get government approval of the annual $5,000,000 Physical Fitness grant. In fact he introduced it in the House of Commons.

So now if I can get Gowanus O'Connor to run on the Social Credit ticket for Zwick's Island South—and get himself elected—I will be all set on the political front.

Angels Up In Second

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the American League has the shakes today, there are two good reasons for it.

One is Sidney Ford. The other is Mickey Mantle.

The New York Yankee roommates may hold the key to the league's pennant race. They've been on the injured list—Ford with an ailing arm, Mantle with an injured leg—and the perennial champion Yankees went into a tailspin to fourth place.

But Ford, a lefty who compiled a spectacular 22-4 record last season, threw a three-hit, 3-0 shutout of Baltimore Orioles Thursday.

And now, the rest of the league is watching Mantle, the switch-hitting slugger who had 54 home runs, 128 runs batted in and a .317 average and helped lead Mantle to a record 61 homers last season.

Mickey's going to make the big test of his ailing legs in Detroit tonight.

If he's sound, the Ford-Mantle combo would launch another Yank rush to the top.

ENDS LOSING STREAK

Ford's effort over Baltimore marked his first victory since May 9, ended a five-game Yankee losing string and pulled the Yanks within three games of the top when the leading Cleveland Indians lost to Boston Red Sox 3-1.

Los Angeles Angels scrambled into second place, four percentage points ahead of Minnesota Twins, on the strength of a 3-1 triumph over Kansas City Athletics while Chicago White Sox beat Detroit 6-2. Detroit Tigers came from behind and stopped Washington Senators 6-3.

Mantle has made only three pinch-hit appearances since he was injured May 18. The Yankees have won only 15 of 30 with him. There's still doubt he has recovered.

Ford allowed only three hits and one walk before he developed a blister on his pitching hand and walked two in the ninth. He retired after 8 2-3 innings and Marshall Bridges finished up.

Clete Boyer and Hector Lopez drove in the first two New York runs and Bill Skowron's 10th homer completed the scoring.

Earl Wilson and Dick Radatz combined for a three - hitter against Cleveland. Wilson (5-3), the Red Sox starter, got credit for the victory, but left after walking three men and allowing the Indians' only run in the sixth. Carroll Hardy's two-run homer was all the scoring Boston needed.

Chicago jammed in four runs at the first inning, then hung on behind the relief pitching of Eddie Fisher (3-3), to beat the Twins. Fisher allowed only two hits in 7 2-3 innings of relief. A two run double by Al Smith was the key hit in the White Sox big first inning.

Bo Belinsky, a lefty of no-hit fame, pitched Los Angeles into percentage control of second with a seven-hitter. He had to survive early inning wildness, standing 10 runners in the first five innings, to record his first victory since a month and the Angels' fifth straight. He got help from Billy Moran's run-scoring triple and Felix Torres' homer.

Furnal Goldy's single in the seventh drove in the run that broke a 3-3 tie and put the Tigers ahead to stay against Washington. The Senators got homers from Chuck Hilston and Harry Bright, with Mike Roarke and Norm Cash hitting homers for the winners.

Mahaffey's shutout snapped a five-game Cub winning streak and evened his record at 5-5. Rookie Ted Savage had three of the Phillies' hits, drove in one run and scored another.

LIGHTFOOT 1

Although outhit by a 6-2 count and charged with the only two errors of the game, Woods-Horlock came up with a tight 2-1 victory over Lightfoot Construction at CNRA Park last night. The Woodsmen scored both their runs in the fourth inning. Batting for Good Smith and a fielders' choice play that failed to get anyone set up the decided markers, a triple by Mike Chapland for a 2-0 score.

Lightfoots got one back in the fifth on back hits by Rowbotham and Dolan and a fly ball by Doug Moreau.

The victory hoisted the Woods-Horlock crew into a second-place tie with Lightfoots. The winners rest only 22 batters to the plate in all, one more than the minimum in their six turns at the plate.

Bobby Boyle pitched the victory, allowing six hits, striking out three and walking three.

Percy Long gave up only the two fourth-inning hits in going the distance for Lightfoots, truck out seven and passed ten.

Jack Canning had a brace of singles in a batting carnival while the other base hits went to Rusty Garvin, Chuck Rowbotham, Don Dolan and Percy Long.

Three-Year-Olds Star Saturday

Cicada, Greek Money Top Fields

NEW YORK (AP) — Three-year-old stars, both male and female, will be out in force Saturday.

The fillies will race for the richest purse in the $100,000-added Coaching Club American Oaks over 1⅛ miles at Belmont Park. Colts get their chance for big payoffs in the $25,000-added Leonard Richard Stakes at Delaware Park, the $50,000 - added Warren Wright Handicap at Arlington Park, the $50,000-added Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park, and the $30,000 - added Michigan Handicap at Detroit.

Cicada, the hard-hitting filly star of C. T. Chenery's Meadow Stable, goes for completion of New York's triple crown series for three-year-old fillies in the Coaching Club Oaks. She previously won the Acorn and Mother Goose and a victory in the Oaks will be worth an extra $25,000.

The greatest money winning gal racer in history may be opposed by seven or eight rivals. But she has beaten most of them at one time or the other.

Mrs. Moody Jolley's Ridan, idle since dropping a nose decision to Greek Money in the Preakness after running third in the Kentucky Derby, returns to action in the Warren Wright. He'll be the heaviest favorite.

The Cinema handicap lists the top three-year-olds campaigning on the West Coast, including L. C. Siemberger's Doe Jocoy, Neil S. McCarthy's Royal Attack and Lou Doherty's Sir Robot.

Joyces Take Over Lead

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Joyce Real Estate moved again into undisputed possession of the B. and D. softball league's top spot by downing the Rollins Construction Jumbos 7-3 at the Fairgrounds last night.

The victory was Joyces' sixth in seven tries, giving them a two-point lead over the RCAF Flyers.

Rollins jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first inning on two walks and two wild pitches but Joyces came back for a 3-2 lead in the third. Faulkner's single, a base-on-balls and Claude Carr's homer moved the Real Estaters ahead.

The Juniors tied it in the fifth when Robitaille singled, Zakos was safe on an error and Dungan singled a runner home. That was all for the losers however as they left 13 runners on base in the three extra frames.

Batchelor walked, stole second and rode home on Kingston's double in the sixth. It turned out to be the winning run in the ninth. An error made it 5-4 before the inning was over.

Carr's bunt single, an error and Elliott's base knock accounted for the insurance markers in the seventh.

Doug Ellis pitched the win, nagged for ten hits before giving way to Pat Maracle with two on and none out in the ninth. Ellis experienced a scare in the final inning. He had control trouble earlier in the game, giving up four of his six walks in the first two frames. He struck out two. Maracle got three men in a row, two on strikes, to wind it up.

Don Holoway stayed the route in a losing effort. He gave up eight hits, did not strike out a batter and walked four. Three of his mates' four errors proved costly.

Claude Carr led the winners with his three-run circuit clout and two bunt singles. Chuck Kingston and Ted Batchelor hit doubles while Jackie Elliott, Stu Mothersell and Bert Faulkner added singles.

Harry Dungan, "Pug" Kavanagh and Hickey Locke each collected two singles for Rollins, Pete Warton, Joe Robitaille, Paul Zakos and Billy McGuire had the others. Every half of the losers hits were of the infield variety.

Each club came up with a double play but both were guilty of sloppy ball on occasion.

Weslock Leads Open By 3 Strokes

By MARK BLOOM

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Nick Weslock was the strong favorite today as the field moved into the second round of the Ontario open golf championship and tried to catch the Toronto amateur who grabbed a three-strokes lead in spectacular fashion.

Weslock, one off the last players to come off the course in Thursday's first round of the Ville-bois tournament, amazed observers with his flawless 31 on the difficult back nine of the 6,706-yard Beach Grove course. That went along with a par 35 on the first nine for a 66 to break the competitive course record of 68 set in 1960 by Bob Panasiuk in a junior tournament.

Weslock, 43, won the tournament in 1946, 1949 and 1959 and is after the record of winning four Ontario Opens held by professional Gerry Kesslering.

Tied for second place were Jack Bissegger of Val Morin, Que., and Alvie Thompson, who both shot 68. Following at 70 were Panasiuk, a Windsor product who now plays out of Toronto, and Toronto's Moe Norman.

FIVE BREAK PAR

Only five players were able to break the elusive par 71 but seven more were bunched at 71 and were still well in contention.

At 71 were former winner Rudy Horvath of Windsor, young Brian Wilcox of Toronto, Jean Guy Feriard of Boucherville, Que., Bob Klingbell of Burlington, Ont., George Hercsor Jr., and Fred Kerr, both of Toronto, and Bill Morland of North Bay.

The home crowd was disappointed when it was learned that home pro Bill Dennis had carried 15 clubs in his bag, incurring a 10-stroke penalty — two strokes for each hole he played with the extra club. The rules say a player may use only 14 clubs. Dennis wound up with an 85 and appears to be out of contention.

The field will be cut to the top 60 players and ties after 36 days round and two 18 hole rounds Saturday will wrap up the tournament.

Bo Belinsky Finally Wins A Ball Game

KANSAS CITY (AP)—"I'm definitely a changed person," said Bo Belinsky, the young no-hit pitcher for Los Angeles Angels just before he took the mound Thursday night to win his first game in a month 3-1 against Kansas City Athletics to put the Angels into second place in the American League.

The Athletics had him in hot water early but he wriggled out of it and capped the victory by pitching nine men in order over the last three innings.

It was his seventh try for his seventh victory of the season and his first since some-

Meets Halberg, Truex

Bruce Kidd In Spotlight

WALNUT, Calif. (AP)—World record holder Murray Halberg of New Zealand predicts "a most interesting race" when he races 19-year-old Bruce Kidd of Toronto and controversial Dyrol Burleson of Oregon.

The trio, plus Max Truex of Los Angeles, clash in the three-mile match race at Walnut's Mt. San Antonio College tonight and concludes Saturday night in Mount San Antonio College's Memorial Stadium.

The New Zealander, who took a bad pasting from Kidd and Truex in a meet at Compton, Calif., June 1, made it clear Thursday he will be out to win. He indicated he is not aiming at his world mark of 13 minutes flat-a mark, which he set a year ago in Sweden.

Halberg admitted he ran for Athletic Boys track and field it must confess I underestimated Kidd. This won't happen Saturday night."

Holiday

BREW

In summer you change to light summer clothes. Why not change to a light summer beer? Holiday is a very light drink, brewed especially for summer enjoyment. Nothing filling or bitter about Holiday. Try it. You'll find Holiday a welcome vacation from ordinary beer.

*Even though Holiday is extra light in flavour and body the pleasure content is as high as other beers.

NOTICE

TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY

IN THE MATTER OF: Section 52 of the ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD ACT, CHAPTER 262, R.S.O. 1960, Section 64 of THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD ACT, 1961-62, 1960, c. 284, and IN THE MATTER OF an application by Ontario Water Resources Commission on behalf of the Corporation of the Township of Sidney for approval of the Council of the Township of Sidney to enter into an agreement with the said Commission for the construction by the Commission of a sewage system and for the sewage system at an estimated cost of $120,000.00 to be paid out of the rateable property in Public School Section No. 1 in the Township of Sidney.

APPOINTMENT FOR HEARING

THE ONTARIO MUNICIPAL BOARD hereby appoints Thursday, the 12th day of July, 1962, at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon (local time) at the Batawa Public School, in the Township of Sidney (in Batawa) for the hearing of the said application for the approval of the Council to the construction of the sewage system set forth in the said application hereto.

DATED at Toronto this 13th day of June, 1962.

SEAL (Signed) B. Vickers
SECRETARY

SCHEDULE "A" TO THE FOREGOING

APPOINTMENT FOR HEARING

Extension of the existing sewage collection system in Batawa to the Batawa Public School in Section 52 of the municipality of the corporation of the Township of Sidney, consisting of a sanitary sewer along the east side of the C.N.R. right-of-way, and a force main for the proposed sewage treatment plant site, a diversion manhole to be constructed on the existing sewer on the east side of the C.N.R. right-of-way, which sewage treatment plant is to be located approximately 3/3 of a mile south of the Batawa Public School having a design capacity of 120,000 G.P.D., consisting of a primary settling tank, primary sedimentation, aeration, secondary sedimentation, chlorination, effluent discharge to the Bay of Quinte River and Hamilton Creek.

The estimated cost of $130,000 of the said sewage system is to be raised by borrowing $26,667 from the Province of Ontario, which amount is to be repaid over a period of twenty years and the balance of $43,333 will be paid by the Ontario Water Resources Commission from its funds.

After considering an estimated weekly yield of 40,000 gallons from Central Statistics & Housing Corporation data on seasonal flow, cost is $17,134 for interest, debt charges, operation and maintenance, depreciation, replacement, and contingencies. The rate is to be established to pay for the cost and all the rateable property in Public School Section No. 1 is to be assessed. On the basis of this levy a rate is estimated as $3.200 should pay $30.40 annually.

J. B. HARDER,
Clerk, Township of Sidney

NDP Member Offers Seat To Douglas

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Thursday night he is willing to consider running in a by-election in neighboring Burnaby if a seat can be found in an attempt to win a parliamentary seat.

But he said in a telephone interview from his home in Regina he would only be willing if he received a wide, unanimous invitation from the 900-member constituency association of the riding.

Earlier veteran socialist Erhart Regier said he is willing to step aside if 75 per cent of the constituency association members agree to the proposal.

"If I can step down without a major split in party constituency association, I will willingly do so," Mr. Regier said Thursday night in an interview.

Mr. Regier has represented neighboring Burnaby-Coquitlam for the CCF, now NDP, in Parliament since 1945. He won the seat in Monday's federal election with a margin of more than 9,000 votes.

Mr. Douglas was defeated by Progressive Conservative Hugh Mc...More in Regina.

An NDP constituency association meeting will be held Tuesday to discuss the question of Mr. Regier's resignation. It is reported that some of the 900 members of the association oppose the idea.

Mr. Regier said he would not cause a battle in his association over the move and would not resign his seat unless at least 75 per cent of the members of the association agreed to the move.

He said he had talked to Mr. Douglas and "that Douglas didn't want my resignation, but one's own wants have to take second place."

"I'm in the hands of the people who have been loyal to me over the years. I'm an MP because of them and I don't think my personal feelings should be a factor."

Saturday said he would not end his political career. He would expect to contest the first by-election that we have a reasonable chance."

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 23) Realization of what you have to be thankful for could make this constructive day. Otherwise, tendency is to indulge in self-pity. Tonight good for attending theatre and reading.

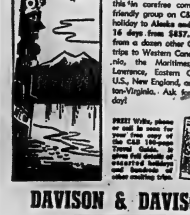
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Duration of happiness depends on your mature sense of values. If you seek the superficial you are due for fall. But if you can appreciate deep, steady qualities, you are on the way.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Favorable lunar aspect today means sense of fulfillment indicated through long-needed change of pace. Excellent for analyzing those close to you, and for understanding own feelings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be the initiator. Strive to see all sides of controversy. If you exhibit great sense of fairness, rewards will be forthcoming. Others look to you for leadership.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Dynamic action and attitude are keys to making most of day. Nothing halfway. Strive to move about, read, take notes, jot down ideas and to meet "right" people.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Range of interests could widen by tonight. No time to be narrow in views. You might find yourself holding the bag if you insist on "holding back." Give of yourself.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Routine, if attended to early, might be basis of more creative, enjoyable evening. Cycle up if you sprinkle play with common sense.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Much depends on how much you fear. Today can be winning one if you throw off excess caution. All odds are in your favor. Know this and act accordingly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Excellent for being with people who are in harmony with your purposes, goals. Avoid those who irritate and "drain" from you. Take care of details personally.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Ambition spotlighted, but to achieve desires you must make some personal sacrifices. "Grow up" to this. Social outing good LIGHTHOUSE STILL USED — A 150-year-old lighthouse, which for 30 years was used on Scotland's east coast before being brought to North America, is still in operation at Cape Bonavista, Nfld. The oil-burning lamp, operated by Clyde Purchase (inset), came to Newfoundland in 1843, was mounted on a tower and housed inside this two-storey frame lighthouse. (CP Photo).

Cape Bonivista Lighthouse Has Withstood Atlantic Storms for 120 Years

BONAVISTA, Nfld. (CP) — The big red and white lighthouse stands on the solid rock that is Cape Bonavista, defying the wild North Atlantic storms by day and spray that have been tryby day and spray that have been trying for 120 years to beat it into matchwood.

Until recently its 150-year-old light continued to revolve faithfully, flashing a warning to ships approaching the same cape that John Cabot first saw from the decks of the Matthew in 1497.

The lighthouse itself is practically as good as new but the old equipment was just about worn out, said M. T. Frampton, transport department superintendent of lights for Newfoundland.

Every two hours lightkeeper Clyde Purchase or his assistant had to climb through to the oil-burning light and hand-wind its revolving mechanism.

New parts for the light were impossible to get, and it now has been replaced by 1,500-watt electric bulbs, one red and one white, operating automatically.

BUILT IN 1842

Robert Oake, a Scottish master builder, built the two-storey lighthouse in 1842 from material brought from Scotland. It's made of wood but upward through its centre runs a stone tower. The oil lamp at the top had been used on Inchcape Rock off Scotland's east coast for 30 years before it was brought here.

On foggy days — nearly as common as sunny ones at the cape—Mr. Purchase also must make sure the foghorn is blasting. The horn used to be located on Cape Island, 150 feet from the cape proper. But in 1918 a storm washed away the narrow bridge to the island, stranding the lightkeeper and his family in the horn house. After that the horn was moved to the cape.

On clear days Mr. Purchase studies passing ships with a telescope polished to a high shine by the countless hands that have held it during the last 120 years.

The Cape Bonavista light was the fourth built in Newfoundland. In 1811 the first was erected at Fort Ambarzi in St. John's, and in 1836 two more were built, at Cape Spear and Harbor Grace in Conception Bay.

The originals of these have gone now, both buildings and mechanism replaced by more modern units.

Even the Bonavista light had seen changes in the scenery. Last year a bungalow was built for Mr. Purchase and his family. Bert Abbott, assistant keeper, moved into the lighthouse proper.

A good road runs to the light three miles from this small community and the building has electricity and telephone.

But water is still collected in special cave troughs and funnelled to reservoirs capable of holding 4,000 to 6,000 gallons. Drinking water is taken to the light from wells here.

Final Grim Act of Algerian Drama Still to Be Written

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The whites may be going out all over Algeria but the final act in the grim drama resulting in Algerian independence still has to be written.

Scores of planeloads of settlers are fleeing the strife-torn territory for what they feel is the sanctuary of France.

But hundreds of thousands more must stay in the sun-bathed land bordering the Mediterranean where they will have to try to make a go of it under Moslem rule and a new order. This order is a product both of Europe's heritage and the efforts of Europeans in propagating their ideas.

The concept of the nation state is distinctively European. The European settlers and explorers helped create the conditions which have resulted in whole populations turning against them and demanding the right to run their own affairs.

This has happened in Algeria and the painful birth resulting from a European conception now is in progress.

The process is expected to end July 1, when Algerians of all races vote on whether they want independence. The majority of the 9,000,000 Moslems are expected to vote for nationhood over the 900,000 European settlers.

It is against this background that one must view the 48-hour ultimatum given by the illegal Secret Army Organization to the Moslem nationalists, following promises of new guarantees for the Europeans.

Jean-sceupre Susini, 28, a former medical student known in Algiers for his fascist views, demanded the incorporation of Europeans in the new security force. He warned that unless this is done, the Secret Army will not take the responsibility for the exodus of Europeans and the formation of defensive bastions in Western Algeria.

Ben - Youssef Ben Khedda, premier of the Algerian nationalist government based in Tunis, did not take kindly to the amnesty agreement with the terrorist Secret Army.

He publicly rebuked Dr. Cherif Mostefai, the National Liberation Front delegate on the transitional executive council in Algeria. Ben Khedda said the functions of the transitional executive were limited to safeguarding security and providing suitable conditions for the July 1 self - determination referendum.

The nationalist premier so demonstrated his confidence in the strength of Moslem support for his cause.

The outcome thus depends on a final power showdown between the Europeans and the nationalist forces. Ben Khedda appears confident he will win.

Plan Designed To Strengthen Exchange Rate

No Exchange Controls Will Be Imposed

OTTAWA (CP)—The government unveils Sunday its new program of economic discipline for itself and the country designed to strengthen the exchange rate of the devalued Canadian dollar.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in a statement issued Friday during the third straight day of cabinet meetings, gave advance notice of what will be the first major decision of the Progressive Conservative government since it was elected to a majority administration by Monday's election.

There will be, he said "positive decisions and actions which will substantially improve Canada's international balance of payments and reduce the budgetary deficit."

The government will not be imposing any exchange controls and will firmly maintain the present exchange rate of the Canadian dollar."

The statement appeared to be a tacit recognition by the government of the current financial crisis. It came after heavy outflows of money from Canada, with the resulting pressures on reserves of the high exchange and on the existing rate for the dollar which was devalued and pegged May 2 at 92½ U.S. cents.

WILL SEE MONDAY

Effectiveness of the Sunday program will be indicated Monday when financial markets open in Canada and abroad.

Another question to be answered is whether the new program will be acceptable to the three opposition parties, whose combined Commons votes could defeat the government when the new Parliament assembles.

Liberal Leader Pearson, in his 97 - member Liberal group pledged the government program "solely with determination to serve the real interests of the Canadian people." Robert Thompson has made a similar statement on the position of his 30 - member Social Credit group.

The immediate effect of Mr. Diefenbaker's statement Friday was a fractional strengthening of the Canadian dollar exchange rate at Montreal and New York for the first time in two weeks.

Earlier in the week interest rates moved sharply higher in Canada—an important factor in encouraging foreign capital to move into Canada for investment. Any such movement would relieve pressures on the dollar.

One type of government measures which would help relieve these higher interest rates was the reduction in the Bank of Canada's statement, except for the $745,000,000 increase in official forecast in the 1962-63 budget announced by Finance Minister Fleming last April 10. Five previous budgets have run now to called nearly $2,103,000,000.

SHOWS SURPLUS

The latest monthly report Friday night from the state of the government's accounts showed a surplus of revenue over $100,000 for April and May, the first two months of the fiscal year.

This surplus is not considered significant. Last fiscal year there was a $100,000,000 surplus plus of $57,000,000 and ended

Acquit Monks Of Murder and Extortion

MESSINA, Italy (AP)—Four Capuchin monks have been acquitted of murder and extortion charges, but three fellow defendants—all Sicilian peasants —have been convicted as members of an extortion gang.

After more than seven hours' deliberation following one of Italy's most sensational trials in years, a jury of two judges and six public jurors freed three of the monks on grounds they had "acted in a state of necessity."

The three are Father Carmelo, 83, Father Agrippino, 38, and Father Venanzio, 46.

The fourth monk, Father Vittorio, 62, was acquitted without qualification, for having committed no crime.

Thirty-two prison sentences were handed Giuseppe Salemi, 36, and Girolamo Azzolina, 27. Filippo Minaldi, 30, was sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment.

Spectators in the crowded courtroom in this Sicilian town broke into cheers as the presiding judge announced the verdict Friday.

MONKS CHEER

Tears came to the eyes of the four bearded monks, who are expected to return to their monastery at Mazzarino, 25 miles inland from this coastal city.

All four monks and the three peasants were arrested more than two years ago by police investigating a wave of terror in the hilly Mazzarino countryside between 1955 and 1956. The terror was marked with extortion demands, threats of bodily harm and murder.

During the three-month trial, there was often talk of the dread Mafia. The widow of one of the extortion victims filed a civil suit against the seven defendants. Her suit was heard by the court concurrently with the prosecution's case. But Thursday, she withdrew it, saying she had been threatened by the Mafia.

The murder charges against the seven resulted from the fatal shooting in 1956 of Angelo Canzada, a 74-year-old Mazzarinoto farmer. Prosecutors have said he received a letter demanding 10,000,000 lire (-$16,-000).

Relatives of Canzada testified in court that the farmer and his family consulted Father Carmelo, who was their confessor. They said Father Carmelo advised Canzada to pay. But Canzada left and on May 21, 1958, he was murdered by three masked men.

It was Canzada's widow who filed a civil suit against the seven defendants and then withdrew it.

Azzolina and Salemi also were charged with attempted murder following the slaying of Canzada.

The monks claimed they lived in fear of the gang and although its leader was Carmelo la Barbolo, monastery gardner, La Barbolo killed himself in jail soon after his arrest in 1960.

Detectives broke open Francesco Carasolli, one of Italy's top criminal lawyers, said the monks "talked to victims and induced them into paying the requested sums" to spare them further trouble.

BUTTER SUBSIDY MAKES NO DENT IN SURPLUS

200,000,000 Lbs. Now in Storage

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's $42,000,000 a year consumer subsidy on butter has yet to dent the butter surplus, figures indicate.

Production has pushed the surplus to approximately 200,-000,000 pounds, about where it was Dec. 31.

While officials say consumer reaction to lower butter prices won't be firmly established at least until July or August, so far little substantial difference is revealed.

Some 100,000,000 pounds of the surplus is in butter oil, a concentrated form which prevents spoilage and reduces bulk for storage purposes. The process is said to permit reconstitution into butter. Little market exists for butter oil itself.

However, no butter oil has been made since April and the agricultural stabilization board is understood to be buying somewhat smaller quantities of surplus butter than it had been.

DECREASES PRICES

Since May 1, the government-set price has been 64 cents a pound for top grades, basis Montreal and Toronto.

In effect, this was a consumer subsidy of about 6 cents on 742,000,000 over a full year on commercial butter production. Farm production totalling about 350,-000,000 pounds.

The purpose was to stimulate butter consumption, dwindling from 18 lbs. per capita in peak volume basis during the last few years. Margarines and shortenings are gaining at the same time, enjoying a marked price advantage.

Total butter consumption last year was 297,500,000 pounds and production a record 351,000,000. Per capita use was 15.77 pounds compared with 16.38 pounds in 1957.

By comparison, margarine consumption for every man, woman and child was 10.1 pounds last year against 5.5 pounds in 1949.

Rusk Reaches Rome From Bonn, States 'Close Harmony' Achieved

ROME (AP)—U.S. State Secretary Rusk arrived today after conferences in West Germany at which he said achieved "close harmony" and helped strengthen the vitality and power of the free world."

Rusk landed in the Italian airport from Bonn in his special U.S. Air Force plane for a 26 - hour stopover which promises to be the most peaceful of any in his 10-day tour of European capitals. European unity was the topic he discussed with Italy to discuss with Italian officials, Rusk headed for Italy after apparently reaching agreement with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to leave the next move on the Berlin issue up to the Russians.

The U.S. secretary told West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder, who saw him off, that "we go away greatly encouraged. I am 'looking forward to our next meeting, which I am sure will take place in the next few months."

Schroeder said the talks had been conducted "extremely fully on all decisive questions."

No real confusion also exists in Italian-American relations such as differences over Berlin which appeared to have been ironed out in the Rusk-Adenauer meeting, diplomatic sources said. The sources said the United States has decided to make no further proposals at the moment on Berlin until the Soviets stop demanding that Western troops withdraw from the divided city. This does not mean that Washington will discontinue exploratory talks with Russia, these sources said. However, it will be up to the Russians to make the next move, one of the informants added.

Doctors Say Medical Act Would Give Govt. Monopoly

REGINA (CP) — In eight days the Saskatchewan government plans to initiate North America's first government medical care insurance plan.

Doctors claim the legislation will give the government a virtual monopoly on medical services.

The government says the plan merely provides for pre-payment of medical services. The doctors suggest it removes the concept of medicine from the profession.

The government says it will launch the plan with an overall but the endorsement of doctors. If the plan is rewritten, the doctors, through the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, plan to close their offices and provide only emergency treatment.

Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon, college president, says the act gives the government control of medical services and will result in deterioration of such services.

The college has singled out several sections of the act for criticism. These include:

Section nine: This allows the Medical Care Commission, the body administering the plan, to "take such action as it considers necessary" to establish and administer the plan and improve "the quality of the insured service."

Section Nine: This allows the commission the power to act as the agent in all matters for the beneficiaries of the plan unless a beneficiary exercises his option to retain such powers himself. Where it is in agent, the commission would take the beneficiary's party in any court action to settle "any dispute or other matter with respect to a claim arising out of an insured service. . . ."

Section 49: This allows the commission to make various regulations, including the establishment of such terms "and conditions on which physicians and other persons may provide insured services to the beneficiary."

The section also grants regulatory powers to the commission "respecting the maintenance and improvement of the quality of the service provided. . . ."

The college says these sections

Find All 113 on Jet Dead; Thunderstorm Caused Crash

POINTA-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — French and United States aviation experts conducted "step - by - step" search-wrath of Jungle) where an Air France Boeing 707 jetliner crashed in a thunderstorm after reporting landing gear trouble. All 113 persons aboard were killed.

Search blocked off the crash scene until representatives of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board and Air Line Pilots Association, teamed up with French officials from Paris to inspect wreckage of the second worst single-plane disaster in commercial aviation history.

The four - engine airliner smashed into a hill and burst into flames on this French Caribbean island early Friday morning after flying over Pointe-a-Pitre's Raizet airfield in the start of a landing approach

Officials said the pilot radioed he was having difficulty getting the landing gear down. The plane then swept out over the sea.

Minutes later, the control tower radar lost contact as about the same time explosions in the distance were heard. The explosions were taken by some as lightning crackling. But a group of searchers spotted the wreckage on Mule's Back Hill, 15 miles from the field, and one witness reported: "Nothing left - a horrible sight."

The plane slammed into the hill about 700 feet below its 2,000-foot crest, off the usual landing approach pattern. The pilot of another Air France liner here blamed the crash on thunderstorms, saying "the ceiling was very low."

Air France said the plane carried sufficient fuel to have enabled the pilot to have flown on to its next scheduled stop, Caracas, Venezuela, about 500 miles away.

Tighter Money Conditions In Sight for Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—The government belt-tightening indicated in Friday's statement by Prime Minister Diefenbaker appears likely to be accompanied by some tightening of the easy money conditions that have prevailed for the last year.

Signs of such a move have already appeared.

Not only have interest rates risen sharply this week, but there has been a steady narrowing in recent weeks in the ability of chartered banks to increase their lending.

Also, the steady increase in the money supply begun a year ago by the Bank of Canada appears to have levelled off in the last month.

The measures which Mr. Diefenbaker said will be announced Sunday—a reduction in

U.S. Rail Strike Threatened as Talks Fail

CHICAGO (AP)—Angry union officials reprepresenting 200,000 trainmen have accused operators of United States railroads of trying to provoke a country-wide rail strike.

The accusations came at the second time after management representatives walked out of a negotiation meeting with union officials Friday. The last walkout was May 17.

The break in bargaining arose over work rules the carriers want to abolish, thereby saving money by eliminating jobs. The unions maintain the rules are a requisite for safe and efficient transportation.

J. E. Wolfe, chief industry spokesman, handed a statement Friday to W. Leverett Chapin, chairman of the U.S. National Mediation Board, and to the union chiefs saying "it is obvious that no progress can be made by prolonging the present endeavors."

The unions retaliated, charging the break is a deliberate, irresponsible, determined effort to force a transportation crisis."

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, said the walkout could lead to a national rail strike.

A presidential commission, in February, recommended that 60,000 firemen on diesel locomotives be eliminated over a period of years. Membership of the firemen's union is about 60,000.

It also called for a revision of the wage and hour system, suggesting pay increases for firemen for those who run the trains. The carriers agreed to the commission report. The unions did not.

Liberals Win Two Seats From Conservatives

VICTORIA (CP)—The Colonist says it has learned from reliable sources that the two by-elections vote has given the Liberals the two seats from the Progressive Conservatives in the House of Commons, including Victoria, formerly held by Solicitor - General William J. Browne.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch that Mr. Browne will be back in St. John's West, to Liberal Richard Cashin.

Mr. Fred Rose, Liberal, beat Mr. Browne by 170 seats after last Monday's balloting.

The Colonist says the Liberal picked up another seat when Alfred Hales defeated Conservative C. A. Best in the Ontario riding of Halton.

Political sources are saying these were the only two changes made as a result of the by-elections vote, leaving the Conservatives with 116 seats, Liberals 73, Social Credit 30, and New Democratic Party 19. One seat is deferred.

Laos Coalition 19-Man Cabinet Now In Control

Success Finally Crown Lengthy Negotiations

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — King Savang Vathana of Laos has installed the 19-man coalition cabinet headed by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Premier Prince Boun Oum and ministers of his anti-Communist Vientiane regime submitted their resignations earlier in the day and cleared the way for the new government.

Boun Oum stepped out after an 18 - month term in office marked by civil war and the growing power of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao. The U.S. linked the Soviet Union and other big powers in pressing the right-wing Vientiane government to stop aside for the coalition of conservatives, neutralists and pro-Communists.

Boun Oum, Savanna and Prince Souphanouvong of the pro - Communist Pathet Lao signed June 10 on the formation of the new cabinet. But bickering until the last minute threatened to shatter the agreement before the coalition took office.

Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, arrived here from the United States after the cabinet had been agre

12 Potentially Adoptable Children in Society Care End of May Board Told

Leave of absence was granted for Patrick Lewis and Miss Betty-Ann Makar at the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society held at the Curtis Public Library, June 21, presided by president of the board, Mrs. J. H. Forrester.

Mr. Lewis is taking up summer sessions of the University of Ottawa and Miss Makar expects to take post graduate work at the University of Toronto in September.

The local director Bruce Kerr stated that 20 children had been admitted to the care of the Society during the month of May — 15 as wards and five as non-wards for short term care. Wardship in respect of 12 children had been terminated and four of the non-wards had gone out of care. The activity of the Society department continues at a high level despite the fact there are fewer and fewer children of a readily adoptable age available for placement.

At the end of May there were but 12 potentially adoptable children in the care of the society, "the majority of whom were of racial origin," he reported. All are 10 years or older — some Roman Catholic, others Protestant. All have been registered with the Ontario Government - sponsored adoption clearance service and nearly all have been advertised in the Ontario news media.

Some have been advertised in the ethnic press originating out of Montreal. Mr. Kerr said, "We are conscientiously endeavoring to secure a permanent home for every child for whom adoption would seem to be the best answer to the problem of long-term care. There will be a number of children entering high school in the fall, some of whom will undoubtedly matriculate and go on to take higher education.

"We have every reason to be very proud of the academic accomplishment of our children," Mr. Kerr said, "the marks attained are a joy to behold." At the present time we have boys and girls in university, in the final years of the secondary school program, in business training college, in nursing and in various other taking trades training. It is highly improbable that any of these children will be anywhere other than first class citizens of our country.

Mr. Kerr commented on the school attendance work which is being performed on agreement with the Belleville Public School Board and the Quinte District High School Board. He said that from the society's standpoint it was a most satisfying experience and that numerous cases were being brought to the attention of the society which would have otherwise remained in obscurity. He said that without the march day and three subsequently disturbed children would have come to the agency and appropriate action taken.

He commented on the fine degree of co-operation received from the superintendent of public schools, the inspector and the principals of the public and secondary schools. The service will be continued in the fall.

TREMENDOUS ASSET

Mr. Kerr commented on the role of the receiving home and the tremendous asset it was to the society in working with children.

Not only is it a haven to which children can be admitted in an emergency, but it provides us too, with a group living centre for older children who find it difficult to adjust to foster home care or who, at the point of intake, are not ready for foster care. He paid tribute to Miss Carter, the supervisor of the receiving home, and to the fine work that she and the casework staff have done in the past few months with a number of children, who are now ready for placement.

Mrs. R. H. G. Cunningham outlined the work of the publicity relations committee in connection with the preparation of mailing lists, the distribution of material relative to the Society's continuing education fund for former wards over the age of 18. The president thanked her for the very fine job she has done.

The board paid tribute in absentia to F. R. Powell on the success of the annual conference and annual general meeting of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies held at Toronto, May 28-31. Mr. Powell was chairman of the program committee.

The search teams began gathering the bodies and bringing them out of the jungle.

YOU, IN SHAPE?

The toll in a single - plane crash was exceeded only by the crash of another Air France Boeing 707 jet early this month which killed 130 persons, including 121 Americans on a European tour sponsored by the Atlanta Art Association.

The big Boeing jetliners have been involved in five commercial airline crashes killing a total of 303 persons in the last 17 months.

The London Daily Sketch urged today that the Boeing jets be grounded "until an acceptable explanation is found" for the crashes. But the Federal Aviation Agency said in Washington Friday night that it has no present plans to order them grounded.

The downed plane was piloted by Capt. Andre Lestieur, one of Air France's most experienced pilots who had flown jets for President de Gaulle on several occasions. Up to April 30, he had logged more than 15,000 flying hours, including 1,850 hours on 707s.

Defence Dept. to Carry Most Of Plan to Reduce Deficit

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department is expected to carry the brunt of the government's announced plan to reduce the $742,000,000 deficit originally forecast for 1962-63.

The defence department, biggest spending branch of the government, accounts for 36 per cent of all federal expenditures in 1962-63 budget of $7,676,790,112 or $60,000,000 higher than last year's.

Informants said Friday the treasury board, a committee of cabinet headed by Finance Minister Fleming, has been reviewing the defence program presented to Parliament Feb. 12. There was no specific information on where the $742 million will fall.

Most probable area for reduced expenditures, however, appears to lie in the field of operation and maintenance of the armed forces. The amount allocated for this purpose this year is $1,386,000,000, an increase of $21,000,000 over 1961-62.

CAN BE REDUCED

This amount can be reduced by ordering the RCAF and navy fly so often and the navy not to sail as far. Reduction of practice rounds of ammunition may be reduced, travel expenses curtailed and numbers of personnel.

At the time of the Berlin build-up last year, RCAF agreed to increase its armed forces strength by 15,000 to 135,000. Of this increase, 6,000 have been recruited and there may be a further 3,000 for addition of personnel to the ranks.

Defence construction is under review to reduce expenditures because of the immediate effect this might have on the unemployment picture in Canada.

However, the $282,000,000 weapons program is expected to go ahead to be cut here and there or some projects may be completely written out. The costliest weapons program at the moment is the CF-104 strike - reconnaissance jet plane. Expenditures on it in 1962-63 are calculated at $175,700,000.

Programs which may be temporarily shelved include cargo helicopters for the army and jet fighters for the navy, new missiles for the army, their mainly concern defence purchases abroad.

15 Belleville Pack Enjoys Cub Camp

The weekend of June 8, 9, 10 was the occasion for the 16th "A" Pack Cubs.

They came into camp at 7.30 p.m. Friday evening greeted by their Akela and leaders and Baloo and Bagheera. Their respective tents (Mohawk, Huron, Senaca, Cayuga).

Each pack of cubs had ready for the night and each one had to bring his tripod for wash basins, filling pails of water and putting in soiled clothes.

It was then time for campfire, a highlight of every Cub Camp fire was opened by the camp chief, the fire laid by two service cubs, lighted by the "Grouch" that sometimes inspires such comical performance in a ceremony so the boys would understand that camp wanted only happiness for the duration.

Skits, stories and songs for the next half hour amused the boys until time for bed. Accordeds, of course, by cookies and milk.

The boys were tucked in by their tent leaders and the campers set up their night pails, taking two-hour turns all night, (both Friday and Saturday nights).

Lunch and dinner were catered by the Women's Auxiliary (members) Canteen and lunch and a hot dinner on Sunday).

Church service Sunday was held under the trees. All were raining. Mr. Frank Lancaster gave a brief talk on "Cubbing and Scouting" with its many fine opportunities and resources which helps to provide a firm foundation for building a useful life.

The group committee not only took night watches but helped break camp Sunday afternoon by taking down all canvas and transporting it back to Belleville.

Anyone who has camped knows this is a job no one likes to do but it has to be done, so appreciation to all who helped.

NDP Members Plan Caucus In Winnipeg

OTTAWA (CP)—The national executive of the New Democratic Party is to meet in Toronto Thursday and the party's 19 newly - elected members of Parliament will caucus in Winnipeg July 12, it was announced Friday.

The position of Leader T. C. Douglas, personally defeated in Regina City, is the main immediate matter following Monday's election which left Prime Minister Diefenbaker with a minority Conservative government and — for the first time since 1945 — Social Credit holding third - party status in the Commons.

Mr. Douglas may be asked—and choose — to try again in a by-election, but other top reporters here earlier this week that at least three Prairie Conservatives elected Monday have offered to step down so he can run in their constituencies.

Even without Mr. Douglas, the NDP emerged from the election with impressive parliamentary firepower. It also piled up a popular vote greater than that of the defunct CCF, which it replaced less than a year ago. Nearly - complete totals gave it 13.6 per cent of the popular vote against 9.5 per cent for the CCF in the 1958 election.

CAN'T REPLACE ARGUE

But its pitch to the farm vote failed to win any subsidy to replace Hazen Argue, former agriculture minister defeated in th. Liberals and won his Assiniboia seat in Saskatchewan by a whisker.

All 19 NDP members are elected wholly or partially from industrial - urban areas. The only — province Saskatchewan agrarian backing/swing — producing NDP candidates to power thirds or more of the 14 Saskatchewan constituencies.

George Cruickshank, numerically, the base of support was broadened. The former Atlantic coast seats — Cape Breton-South, CCF from 1940 until 1957, came back into the fold. Ontario returned more members — six — than it ever did for the CCF. Manitoba Liberals chipped in heavily with 10 and Manitoba with two.

X-Ray Work Outlined to Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — On Thursday night, Dr. A. W. 'Art' Elliot, medical director of Trenton Industrial Hospital, (formerly of Belleville,) told club members that some of the newest methods of X-ray detection of disease, were "absolutely astonishing."

"X-ray has come a long way since its accidental discovery in 1895, by Rontgen, Dr. Elliot said. Within ten years of the beginning of the century, a great deal of knowledge about human anatomy had been learned by the use of x-ray, but the machine of that time were of very little use for diagnostic purposes. For instance, half an hour was required to get an exposure of the patient's chest (now taken about one-sixtieth of a second), and the resulting film was anything but clear-cut. However, Operations quite often suffered multiple cutting and sometimes fatal, burns.

Equipment today is "very different" he said, "and the operator and the patient exposed to a fraction of the radiation they were in the past." Dr. Elliot said that his method of detecting tumors, and the diseases, was not infallible, could be used on individuals with no signs of ill ness, and that any possible danger to the patient from the radiation used by the results.

CAN COMMENDED

Referring to cigarette smoking as "the kiss of death," Dr. Elliot said that, according to a survey conducted by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons (England), many other "fatal" diseases besides lung cancer have a direct relation to smoking.

Dr. Elliot commended the Kiwanis for their interest in child safety. On the subject of seat belts (advocated by the club's safety committee headed by Ted Snider), Dr. Elliot said that in his work he had seen often see how seat belts in a car could have saved the driver or passenger from serious injury.

Dr. Elliot was introduced to the club members by Ken Bailey, and thanked by John Fraser. Club president Norman Azin added his thanks and got a laugh when he presented the speaker with the traditional gift for Kiwanis speakers — a tie with fish motif.

President Howard asked for volunteers to paint the lighthouse at the Salvation Army children's camp at Robin Lake.

The club members learned that Jerry Ireland, an active member, would be moving to Toronto and had resigned from the Trenton Club. However, returning member Walt Lachine was welcomed back into the fold.

Next week, members will vote on names to select two members to accompany the club's project to the division convention in Halifax next September, expenses paid.

LEAVES FOR LODGE

This week, Bill Long of Glen Elliot, left for Fishing Lodge in the Muskoka district, where he will spend the summer as caterer-cook-rector. Bill, who is known far and wide as the director of the Roundanettes, has been taking an active part in recreation program at the lodge for several years. Annual presentation of the summer campers are still talking about the summer Bill gave them in their Christmas shopping early —real early—by holding Yuletide festivities on the 24th July, culminating in Christmas Day on July 25. Anyhow, this year it's Hawaiian and Bill will expect everyone to arrive at the lodge clad in grass skirts.

Miss Mildred Corke, who is retiring from the teaching profession after 43 years—39 of them at Albury—is seen directing class in the senior room of the new Albury composite school.

The old "red schoolhouse" where Miss Corke taught for so many years has changed only in color for Miss Corke. Boasting a new coat of paint, the school is now being used as a resi-

Albury School Teacher For 39 Yrs., Miss M. Corke To Be Honored by Friends

When you have a good school and like both the district and the people, what's the point of moving?

That's been the attitude down through the years of Miss Mildred Corke now completing her 43rd year in the teaching profession — 39 of these years being at Albury in Prince Edward County.

Next month Miss Corke will bid goodbye to her 29 pupils at the Albury school and will retire as a teacher.

It was back in 1923 that Miss Corke, then a young girl four years out of teachers' college, went to the "red schoolhouse" at Albury as teacher.

She taught continuously at the school until 1939 when the new Albury composite school was opened. Since then Miss has been teaching the "senior" room of the new school.

WILL PAY TRIBUTE

Tonight at the Albury school members of the Ameliasburg township school area board, along with other community leaders, are paying tribute to the woman who taught many of them in public school and who now has been teaching their children.

Miss Corke will be the honored guest at a testimonial evening when she will be showered with gifts and verbal tribute from a loving community and from pupils both past and present.

On hand will be the reeve of the township, Harold Montgomery, the inspector of public schools, A. Dunsmore, Norris Whitney, MLA, and other dignitaries.

Miss Corke not only has served the Albury community for four decades in the role of school teacher, but she also has been an active worker in the community. Her willingness, cooperation and kindness have won the respect of her pupils and also the hearts of community residents.

NATIVE OF COUNTY

A native of Prince Edward County, Miss Corke was born in the Cherry Valley district but early in life moved to the Oshawa area with her parents.

She was educated in Oshawa public schools and in Oshawa Collegiate and then attended Peterborough Teachers' College. After teaching at the Adams' school she returned to Prince Edward and went to teach at S.S. No. 4 Ameliasburg (Albury) in 1923. She has been there ever since.

"I've seen a lot of changes in teaching procedures over the years," noted Miss Corke yesterday, pausing only briefly from lessons for her 29 pupils. She teaches grades 5 to 8.

Having but four grades in the new two-roomed composite school is more or less of a break for Miss Corke after having all eight grades in the "red schoolhouse" a mile or so down the road.

A BIG YEAR

In her 43 years of teaching her biggest entrance class was last year when she saw 15 grade eight students pass on into high school.

"That was a big year because of the amalgamation," she said. "The average number of grade eight pupils is only five or six."

Many of her original pupils at Albury back in 1923 will be on hand tonight to pay tribute to their former teacher. They include residents with names such as Dempsey, Bonter, Rutter, Peck and Weese, all still common to the Albury area.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. Air Force flier was awarded the Air Medal Friday for steering his flaming F-100 jet fighter into the Niagara River gorge so it wouldn't crash in a populated area. Lieut. Edward Meibel ejected himself safely from the plane last Dec. 1 just before it missed a bridge and crashed in the gorge. The jet had burst into flames shortly after it took off from Niagara Falls Municipal Airport on a routine training mission.

Power Centres Shift

Closely examined, Monday's election results provide a development which is even more surprising than the rise of Social Credit in Quebec, because it includes this Socred tide but adds other intriguing features.

It is really amazing how the centres of political power have shifted.

The obvious shift, of course, is that of the stronghold of the Socreds, whose power seems to be destined to centre on Quebec for years to come. Probably of as much importance as the mere location of this new Socred voting strength is its nature. The Quebec Socreds are hardly the French-speaking mates of the almost orthodox followers of Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Premier Manning of Alberta. On the contrary, they appear to be throwbacks to the thirties, reproducing the evangelistic fervor of the original followers of Bible Bill Aberhart. The only difference is that initiation has hit the Funny Money movement, too; where Aberhart talked of $25 monthly dividends, the Socreds in Quebec were promising their followers $100 a month, to take up the slack between consumer buying power and productive capacity.

Another shift of power is that evident in the support received by the New Democratic Party, which came mainly from large urban centres and their environs. These would be the natural places to look for the strongholds of a labor party, which the NDP now appears plainly to be. It has been wiped out in Saskatchewan, the fortress of its predecessor, the CCF. It is true that it was predicted that the election in Saskatchewan would be fought largely on the provincial CCF Government's medical care plan, but results there match those in rural Manitoba and in Alberta so closely that it is difficult to believe they did not spring from the same cause —the evident approval of the Prairie farmers of the agricultural policies of the Diefenbaker Government.

Even the major parties have had their centres of balance shifted. Although these shifts may be temporary. The Liberals are now more an Ontario-based party than a party depending mainly on French-Canadian support. The Conservatives depend much more heavily on rural than on urban voters—and more heavily on the West, once the home of maverick politicians, than on the East, traditionally as favored by Westerners as conservative to the core.

Leave Young Animals Alone

How would you like it if, every time you let your youngsters out of the house for some "kind" person grabbed them and rushed them off to the Children's Aid Society?

The way you would feel about this "kind" person is approximately the same may animals and birds feel about the kind-hearted ignoramuses who are constantly trying to provide a home for some "deserted" fledgling or cub.

The Department of Lands and Forests reports that about this time of year it always receives requests to keep young fawns "abandoned" by their mother, or young raccoons which have been "deserted" by their parents or little birds which have "fallen from their nests." Almost without exception, the parents of these animals or birds were nearby when these offspring were "found" by the humans. But the parents had gone into hiding.

Unfortunately the kind-hearted are too ignorant to move as quickly as their parents and thus they are "found" and "saved."

All too often this means a lingering death, despite the best efforts of the would-be kind persons who found them to provide them with food and shelter. Their chances of survival would have been much, much better if they had been left alone. The best thing any person can do for an apparently deserted fledgling or young animal is to leave it where it is, and to vanish from the scene as quickly as possible. Its parents will then be able to return to it and guide it to safety.

"Everyone takes the world to have been normal at the time they were born. After that it gets worse. The past always looks better than it was because human beings could not survive without the capacity for forgetting the past".—Anthony Wedgwood Benn.

To endure is greater than to dare; to tire out hostile fortune; to be daunted by no difficulty; to keep heart when all have lost it; to go through intrigue spotless; to forego even ambition when the end is gained—who can say this is not greatness? — William Makepeace Thackeray.

P.M. Dislikes Cadillacs Has to Ride in Lincoln

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Now that the dust is not even beginning to settle . . . a few not-oft-told tales from the campaign trail . . . a trail soon to be re-trod.

THINGS ARE TOUGH

. . . well, before the campaign began, all Conservative party pros well knew that John Diefenbaker, in motor-racing the country, would have to walk the ride in a Cadillac.

As both a self-proclaimed and sincere "Man of the People," he was politically scared out of a Caddy-back in the fall campaign when a huge-voiced CCF partisan bellowed from the sidelines as Dief rode down the street in a party procession: "Wouldn't you know that the Tory SOB's would come riding in Cadillacs!"

So, from that point, the big luxury limousines were out.

Dief would ride in a wheelbarrow first.

And that was the way it was all across the country this time . . . until the Diefenbaker entourage rolled into Medicine Hat, heart of what used to be the Southern Alberta Conservative lands, where, as they do everywhere else out West Prairie, the farmers get acreage payments, bonuses for this, allowances for that, and handouts for more things than anybody anywhere else from any other political party.

TO HEAR THEM TELL IT

To hear them tell it, and to watch them raid the Treasury, nobody knows hard times like the Western Canadian.

. . . except, that when John Diefenbaker got to the West a couple of years ago to see the South Saskatchewan dam started, he travelled on the luxury liner of "hardup" farmers who somehow managed to get up enough small change to buy and operate their own private plane.

. . . and again this time, when Dief got to Medicine Hat . . . he didn't have to ride in a Cadillac . . . there was a Lincoln available.

Uh huh, that was the way things were in Medicine Hat . . . you ride a Caddy or a Lincoln or you don't ride.

Dief climbed into the Lincoln, wondering, possibly, but how good things had got to get West of the Lakes before the Prairie whatnows would admit they weren't really starving to death.

Things are tough all over . . . out West, it seems, they don't have enough money to buy Lincolns is coming from, or whether to spend the winter in Florida or California.

WHAT ABOUT ONTARIO

It was just a little strange to here both Diefenbaker and Mike Pearson stumping across the country saying this, that and the other thing for the Maritimes, the Prairies, the West Coast and Northern B.C.; but a brief opening mention of anything for Ontario.

It was Dief who hurriedly got around to saying something about this province, on the second last day of the campaign, in the Niagara Peninsula country.

And outside of that, Ontario was the forgotten province in the campaign.

There was to be $150 million monetary for Prince Edward Island; the Columbia River development for B.C.; grants, loans, subsidies, handouts and other goodies for the Maritimes; and the usual free hand in the Federal treasury for Quebec . . . but nothing for Ontario, which foots the bills for all these other things . . . barely a thank-you.

Shucks, who wants to drive a Caddy or ride a Lincoln, anyway?

THE HECKLER

He got rougher treatment other places . . . the sear riot in Vancouver . . . the mob scene at Chalmsford, for Dief, but nowhere did John Diefenbaker find the heckling more pointed than at Hamilton.

In these days of electronics, with the platform speaker fortified by microphones and a public address system to boost his voice through a big hall to a large crowd, the heckler has to be very skilled.

To be heard, he has to get in his heckles in those one or two seconds that the speaker pauses to draw his breath or think, and he has to keep it short and sharp.

This they can do at Hamilton. There, heckling has become an art.

They use the needle rather than the bludgeon and that way, unless the speaker is extremely urbane, they can get under his skin.

Dief was telling about his correspondence:

". . . I get thousands of simple letters from plain people," he related, identifying himself with his average "Joe Canadians."

". . . they send thousands of simple letters to me," he said.

"And get thousands of simple answers back," howled the heckler, standing in front, sharp, loud and clear.

Dief had the grace to grin.

A bit later, when speaking of the opportunity and challenge of youth, he spoke about "everyone having a mission in life."

"Yes," hollered the heckler, "and ours is to throw you out."

Dief laughed.

For Mike Pearson, the sharpest jab came at Sault Ste. Marie as Ottawa Fiver from the Capital on the last night of the campaign.

"Take a stand for tomorrow," Mike told them. "Take a stand, I urge you."

"Hope you're wrong," grinned Mike amiably.

Horrible thought for the day: Even if Mike Pearson is right for some, teary business, has to be gone though again, certainly within a year.

Today in History

Jakob Malik, chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations, proposed negotiations for a cease-fire in the Korean War 11 years ago today (1951). The suggestion was greeted with skepticism by the West but negotiations were undertaken and the fighting was halted on July 27, 1953.

Should Hedge On Hedges

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Every motorist must be well aware of the danger which lurks around a blind corner. The department of Highways has recognized the importance of drivers' unimpeded vision by cutting back the brush from highway verges and, in many cases, by removing embankments which obstructed the view.

There are some places, however, where the department waits to be made. Unfortunately, the problem is complicated by a conflict of interest between property owners and those who use the highways.

In order to improve the appearance of their properties, and this is laudable, many do a warmly applauded, some owners have planted shrubs and hedges. Lovely to behold, these often grow to a dimension which foreshortens one's view of the road ahead and, hence, constitute a real hazard.

Perhaps the best solution to the difficulty, for the time at least, is periodically to publish appeals to prospective planters suggesting that they take a look along the highway to make sure that they will not be establishing a hazard.

Hunting Deer With Autos

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Under a law that came into effect last fall, a hunter is no runs down a deer with his car was allowed to bring the carcass. Formerly the police took charge of the carcass and gave it to the people's homes and charities like that. The theory of the new law is that the gift of the deer would compensate the owner for damage to his car caused by the collision.

Already it is said, "hotrod" drivers are taking advantage of the law by haunting areas where game might be found wandering around and deliberately running down animals.

Ordinary hunters foresee a time in the near future when the "hot-rod" type of owner will equip his car with special types of bumpers that will kill an animal, but protect his car from damage. Many hunters of otherwise occur. And they wonder what will happen when more than one car driver spots a deer and there is a dash to see who will bump it off first.

Impenetrable Cheese Wrap

Montreal Star

In a back room somewhere there is a small laboratory. Here life is dedicated to the invention of ever more impregnable forms of packaging.

Consider, for instance, cheese. In the supermarkets, it comes pre-cut into wedges, pre-weighted, pre-priced, and prettily wrapped in transparent film. Until a few years ago the film was of a kind that could be unwrapped and subsequently rewrapped. Since then, however, the little man has developed a superior variety which adheres to itself so tightly that it can only be opened by ripping it open with burglar-like zeal and is thus rendered useless for rewrapping.

The Swiss have made parallel progress in this field. They have invented a way of crimping tinfoil so that it is impossible to remove it without getting cheese under the fingernails.)

What goes for cheese goes also for bacon, ham, and a variety of other sliced meats. A variant of it goes for those pills that are set out in neat rows sandwiched between two sheets of film sealed with a sort of solvedge which is guaranteed unbreakable.

Any day now, that little man in the back room will come up with his crowning triumph, a packaging material that cannot be opened even with an acetylene torch.

Heartburn Is Usually Due To Stomach Irritation

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I woke up nearly every night with so-called heartburn. I've been X-rayed and noticed wrong shows. — R.D.

What causes a person to have a burning and nauseated feeling in the throat, after swallowing and sometimes in the middle of the day when no food had been taken since breakfast? — B.L.P.

These are quite typical questions about "heartburn" which, of course, has nothing to do with the heart.

It's a burning sensation in the pit of the stomach, or under the lower portion of the breastbone, and it usually is due to a stomach irritation, although there are other possibilities.

Very often excessive use of spices, tobacco, and alcoholic beverages plays a part. Sometimes there is irritation or even a ritual thereof in the esophagus. The pain can be from pepsin or it can be gastric, that usually is more of a gnawing sensation.

Some people have an excessive amount of acidious stomach juices. Again, some nervous people have a hypersecretion of the stomach contents into the stomach during emotional situation.

Somewhat more remote but possible are disorders of the gall bladder, like stones, appendix, or diverticulum (outpocketing of a portion of the small bowel.

Some of these problems may not show in X-ray films, of course, be diagnosed in other ways. Usually not always easily or instantly.

We can correct, or at least relieve, all of these stomach causes — medicetions to suppress excessive secretion of pepsin, hydrochloric acid, etc. And those where trouble stems from nervous tension, tranquilizing feedings, which (you may well have noticed) have a considerable effect on the nervous system. Surgery is available but will depend on exactly what kind of trouble it is. The same is true of a diverticulum: treatment will be to fit the case. If the appendix is infected, the answer be obvious.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister has been told she has a mitral insufficiency. Is that another name for heart failure? — M.K.

No, but it can eventually lead to it. Coronary insufficiency means that the heart muscle is not getting as much circulation as it should have, usually due to narrowing of the coronary arteries from hardening.

This obviously may, in time, reduce the heart's pumping efficiency to the point of failure. Mitral is one of the valves in the heart's chambers that control the way of life no doubt has a tantalizing appeal.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE NEVER DECEIVE GOD.

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in His holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up His soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully." (Psalm 24: 3-4).

"The hill of the Lord" was to the man who wrote these words the high hill of Jerusalem. To us, this hill is that high region in which our spirits come in contact with the spirit of God. And they may, indeed, come into such contact, for we are primarily spiritual. The physical aspects of our lives are due to disintegrate, die, and moulder. But spirit is eternal. God in His providence has arranged that the spirit and ours may be in fellowship throughout eternity.

Clean hands — acts that are honest and beyond reproach. Pure heart — motives behind those things in life which are right, honest, unselfish motives. We may be tempted, but there is hope in us and for us if we decide to resist temptation.

Vanity and deceit! What twin curses are the sad results these vices are. If we are vain concerning our abilities, then we are misled and silly. If we are vain in the pursuit of worldly pleasures and aims, then we are mixed-up and misled.

Deceit can eat into the mind and soul until life is ruined. It is like an acid, which dissolves and destroys. We deceive ourselves which is the worst of all things — but we never deceive God.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Languid Laotians

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

For some time strange reports have been coming out of the land of the kind of war being waged in Laos between the Royal Laotian Army and the Pathet Lao rebels.

We are not disbelieve because of their recurrence in reputable press reports, they picture the Laotians as basically a most unwarlike people. The world's greatest fighter men, as a New York Herald Tribune dispatch stated, the Laotian "loves gentle music and gentle games and is ever ready for a party . . . and loathes the thought of harming any living thing."

It is unfortunate that this people must be introduced to the benefits of higher civilization through the medium of a lower strata of society of significance they have little use for. And those westerners having difficulty keeping up to the demands of civilized living, the simplicity of the Laotian way of life no doubt has a tantalizing appeal.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The game laws in most of the Canadian provinces are very peculiar in one respect. For example, a tourist from the United States is allowed to take only, one day's catch of five fish, when he leaves camp and crosses the border.

Let us say that there were six sportsmen in the party, and they have been in the country two weeks. Being allowed five fish per day, let us assume they had pretty good luck, and averaged three per day each. That is eighteen fish per day. Could they eat eighteen fish per day for two weeks?

Regardless of the species of fish, or the number permitted to be caught daily, or the number allowed to be taken home across the border, there must be an enormous wastage of game fish each year in regions. What happens to all the surplus that can't be eaten and can't be carried home? Are they thrown into the bush, fed to the gulls, buried in a pit a little distance from the resort?

By 1980, this problem is likely to be solved. But in the meantime, the regulations look like a lot of eye-wash.

So Many in This World 'Have Eyes, Yet See Not'

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Among our fly physical senses the most dominant is the sense of sight.-This fact was brought home rather vividly by an incident of which I once read. In a certain English school a class of boys was sent into a room for two minutes and then brought back to write out a list of things noted while there. The lists jotted down by the lads varied in length from 20 to 40 objects. But the most significant aspect of those lists was that nothing was noted by the boys except the things which revealed themselves to the eye. In that room were the noises which came from the street, the sound of a piano in another part of the building, the scent of a cigar purposely introduced, and yet not one of these was mentioned by the students.

Yes, among our physical senses, sight dominates. And yet, despite this potency of sight, Our Lord once said, rebukingly, "Having eyes, see ye not!"

As that question comes sighing across the centuries, does it strike any of us? Well, I confess that it wakes me up. I realize how little I am seeing in comparison with what is around me find.

For instance, I think of the musician, born blind, who described his world as one of sound and melody).A friend procured for him a copy in Braille of Keats' "Ode to the Nightingale." As the blind man absorbed through his finger tips the lines of that poem, he exclaimed, "When Keats wrote that, he was living in my world." And I know how much I miss in the world of Keats and that sightless musician.

Or when I consider when wonders the astronomer beholds as he contemplates the heavens, I feel about as ignorant as when I stand in a telegraph office watching the face of the operator while he decodes the flashes which are meaningless to me.

Or I think of the wealth of beauty seen by the artists. Perhaps I possess an average man's appreciation of nature, but I very much fear I should deserve the rebuke once given by the artist Turner to eighteen who stopped to watch him at work. Looking over the artist's shoulder, this superficial critic said, "Why, Mr. Turner, I never saw any such light and color in nature as you put in your canvas." Turner meekly replied: "Don't you wish you could? As for me, I never can hope to match with pigments the glory I see in the sky."

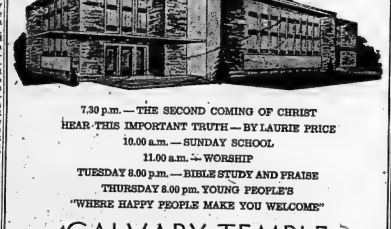
Or consider what mystic insights into reality some saints souls get. A friend of mine some years ago was travelling in Switzerland with Stanley Jones, the devout and distinguished missionary to India. At a turn in their path, a majestic mountain peak loomed into the breath-taking view. At sight of it Stanley Jones broke forth into conversation with God just as naturally as if the Divine Presence were there in the form of a third companion. In that moment he saw the Lord as the prophet Isaiah saw Him in the temple centuries ago. Yet that is a sight which many of us have missed in our tours of Switzerland.

Yes, around us are musicians who revel in richer worlds of melody, scientists who range wider reaches of knowledge, artists who catch deeper insights of beauty, saintly mystics who find more revelations of divinity — all of which makes me feel that Christ was speaking to me when He said, "Having eyes, see ye not!" And when I think of how much the Master saw in life, of how much He made out of the meager materials which barren Palestine afforded and how little I make out of this lush, rich America, I am aroused to ask why I am missing so much.

And unless we sharpen our sight with God's insight, we are headed for destruction. A distinguished diplomat once declared that one of the chief barriers to world peace is that we judge ourselves by our ideals and intentions, but we judge other peoples by their actions. Now true! We Americans assert that we want peace, but the Russians judge us by what we do. Khrushchev shouts that he has no warlike intentions, but we judge him by actions.

How can nations judge the motives of other nations as they want their own motives judged? I have no quick formula to apply but I have a suggestion to make. We should try to work with our so-called enemies in any projects of science or art or rehabilitation where co-operation is possible. By working together we come closer to understanding.

Yes, and in "this nation under God," we can do something more. We can "pray for those who despitefully use us." Prayer is a great eye-opener and heart-opener.



A novice at this business should begin by trying to learn some males — those with which he is most liable to be confronted. Study a good bird guide book and notice which kinds may be found in your type of country. Most are wood warblers darting from tree to tree or bush to bush in an effort to capture flying insects. A few have specialized habits and tastes. A black-and-white warbler creeps on tree trunks, feeding on crawling insects; a water-thrush acts much like a sandpiper, walking along the edge of a stream, teetering up and down, to find aquatic insects. These last two both have flight songs. A blackburnian feeds and sings very high in the treetops; a yellow warbler is at home in orchards, gardens, and among shade trees; a redstart has the habit of fanning out its fine tail.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

WARBLER PLUMAGE

There is no doubt about it, warblers are very hard to differentiate at any season; sometimes even the experts are stumped. But spring and early summer offer the best chance for identification. At this time males, in their brightest, most noticeable plumage, are singing, and there are no birds in juvenile plumage to confuse us. Their little voices are most pleasing, and a number of them have quite distinctive songs. Nevertheless, as a whole warblers may be said to have very, buzzy, or trilling songs given in a high key. Much practice is necessary to tell them apart, and some people are unable to hear such high tones at all. However, the courting and nesting plumage of males is distinctive in nearly all species.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander McCulloch are shown following their marriage at Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto. McCULLOCH — ANNIS

Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, was the setting for a lovely spring wedding, on Saturday, June 16th, at 3.30 p.m., when the Reverend Canon Arthur Smith, former rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, united in marriage Barbara Alexandra Annis, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. James Annis, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Annis, to John Alexander McCulloch, Downsview, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex McCulloch.

The standards of white chrysanthemums and gladioli adorned the sanctuary, and white satin bows the guest pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of dove-white silk shantung, featuring a molded bodice with centre front bow at waist line, scoop neckline and cap sleeves and gently-bell-shaped skirt. She wore a short silk veil and headdress and carried a bouquet of small pink roses mingled with blue cornflowers with long satin streamers.

Mrs. Francis Kiss, of Moore Park, Toronto (nee Miss Toni Miller) of Belleville, attended the bride as matron of honor, wearing a pale green gown of cotton pique with ruffle and fashioned similarly to that of the bride. She wore a matching headdress and carried bronze, yellow and white carnations and roses.

Mr. Stan Neal of Toronto attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony the reception was held at the Moore Park home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kiss, and the dinner at the Imperial Room of the Royal York, where the bride's table was appointed with a lace cloth and centred with a pale pink wedding cake, flanked by silver candelabra with tall pink candles. Bouquets of pink, blue and white flowers added a nuptial accent.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Peter Kasopines, of Aylmer, Ont., received, gowned in mauve print silk, with corsage of white and pink carnations and roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted in her gown of quotze and beige print silk, with corsage of yellow roses and carnations.

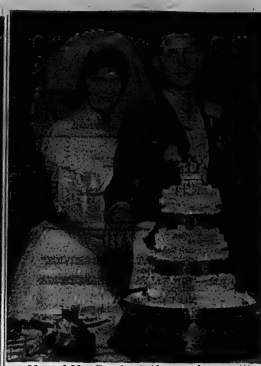
Guests were present from Belleville, Toronto, Downsview and Aylmer, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch will reside at Thorncliffe Park, Toronto.

Feminine Frock

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

This summer evening dress of silk chiffon is designed to make a woman look frankly feminine. Pretty draped over the bosom, it features a low-plunging V neckline. There's a detachable modesty fill-in, if desired.



The wide crushed draping at the midriff simulates a belt with a large self-covered buckle in front. The drapery on the skirt has an Egyptian look—asymmetric on one side with a full-flowing panel on the other.

SNIDER — MOORE

Burr's United Church was the setting for a recent pretty wedding when Linda Maureen Moore, of Hastings, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Moore, became the bride of Douglas Snider of Bloomfield, R. R. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Snider. The Reverend N. J. Truax, of Wellington officiated before a background of white Shasta daisies and ferns. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Miss Mary Ellen McFaul, guest pianist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Florence Gonyou of Gananoque, who sang, before the ceremony, "I'll Walk Beside You" and "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her white nylon and lace bridal gown fashioned with fitted bodice having a rounded neckline, elbow-length sleeves and street-length skirt—falling in graceful folds. She wore a headdress of matching material in petal effect, with shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of red roses with white satin streamers.

Her attendants were her sister, Miss Donna Moore, as bridesmaid, attired in green nylon, and carrying a bouquet of white daisies, with matching headdress. Little Miss Terry Moore, six-year-old sister of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a gold-toned frock with white accessories and carrying a basket of gold and white mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Robert Snider, brother of the bride, of Hastings, Ont., as best man. Ushers were Mr. Reg Christopher of Belleville, and Mr. Wayne Vincent Sandercock.

The reception was held in Allisonville Hall, and those who served were Mrs. Gerald Nelson, Miss Barbara Clark and Miss Carol Hough.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige lace sheath gown with pink accessories and pink orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted, attired in a blue printed sheath with white accessories, and pink orchid corsage.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. James Gannon, with Mrs. Ronald Hough and Mrs. R. Hough as co-hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Snider are residing at Ameliasburg R.R. 2.

Friends Hold Miscellaneous Bridal Shower

FRANKFORD — A miscellaneous bridal shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. Walter Morrow and daughter Sandra, in honor of Miss Carole Abbott.

The dining room table was decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and a miniature bride.

Contests and games were enjoyed and Miss Carole Chew was the winner of the "Famous Name Contest".

Bride received gifts and thanked her friends for their kindness.

Refreshments were served by the hostess: Mrs. Walter Morrow and Miss Sandra.

Going Places

World's Fair Takes You To Twenty-First Century

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Seattle, Wash. — The glass elevator holding a "century" of people — 100 — starts gently in the centre of the cloud made of aluminum cubes.

"First floor," intones the operator in a silver space suit. "Step off into the future. We've all got to do it sometime, don't we!"

So we do. Here at the Seattle World's Fair, we do it today, beginning under the dome of the Theme Exhibit in the Washington State Coliseum.

For a sliver of time we wonder among the promises of a day 58 years hence when all work is confinement, all living painless and pleasant — if, as we are reminded at the beginning and end of the tour, we can step out of the fall-out shelters.

The twenty-first century is a nice place to visit, but will we want to live there? A wildly futuristic movie in the Fryonic exhibit reminds us that ricks, mowers and rushing pastures it difficult enough in the twentieth. Science, man's burgeoning body of knowledge presents problems, prospects and threats to the individual of a new era.

Telstars and telestaters, calculators and computers, satellites and rockets — the sky's no earth — or off of it — do we go from here, boys, where do we go from here?

MONT BRAMATIC FEMINT

We go first to the United States Science Exhibit, the largest and one of the most futuristic and popular at the Fair. In a group of white horizontal surrounding graceful Gothic arches, Americans display its brash and takes a rare over-all look at what science is and where it is leading us.

The tour begins in a theatre where all the seats are set in a small, animated history of science and those who made it. In a hallway beyond, optical illusions show why man had to develop scientific instruments more reliable than his easily tricked senses. There are walls of panels and models explain the patient block-by-block construction of knowledge, from the invention of numbers to machines that do years of calculation in milliseconds.

We see how the centuries of groping have led to doors that open onto lighted highways. An experiman with electronic models unlocks secrets of motherchild affection . . . A mouse labors in a transparent maze before vodka to water, and we have a clue to the effects of alcoholism . . . A pigeon learns to peck the right button for his food, and we know something more about the brain and behavior when these are demonstrated in live exhibits.

How will we live in 2000? Perhaps in a Douglas-fir and glass house, with glass domes in the ceiling that rotate to catch and use the sun's energy. Or it may be in a house like General Electric's, complete with computer programmed for all the magazines you subscribe to. Just press a button and the pages flash on a screen. Press another button and the picture in your picture window changes to fit your mood.

I've been cramping out with have all the comforts of home, looking from a vehicle in the back yard that looks like an oversized barbecue and contains bunks, baths, telephone, kitchens, washing machine and its own power unit. One may be landed on the moon in a few years, we are told.

SEE ASTRONAUT'S VIEW

And how will we travel to the moon? Perhaps in a vehicle like that in the Ford exhibit, complete with a Falcon's bucket seats. As we whirl in to a simulated launch, window covers slide open and we see an astronaut's view of the earth, with satellites circling under our noses.

More satellite models — authentic as only the National Aeronautics and Space Administration can make them — are suspended from the ceiling in Nasa's exhibit. We see models of huge m i l l i o n-pound-thrust engines being assembled in clusters. They'll make a base 240 feet across to launch the first moon vehicle (stand back slightly when they ignite).

According to the railroad people, we may make it in an hour from Seattle to Portland on a double-decked Levatrain, riding on rails cushioned by films of air. Or we may have our own private sealed compartment shot in a through a tube at our own convenience. There's a complete mock-up in the exhibit of the railroads.

How will we enjoy ourselves? How about in a museum such as the Arts exhibit? Where the masters rest, perhaps a bit uneasily, beside some of the already pretty far out art of the twentieth century. There's a sculpture made of junk which runs, but does nothing; a panel constructed of old suits body brushed across. Then a glider frame featuring a variety of toilet seats.

Ah, but will we be happy in the twenty-first century? For the answer to this one we look into the library of the future and ask the Univac machine. Please, to look up for us what the Roman philosopher Marcus Aurelius had to say about happiness.

The wheels whir, tape spools, arries click into place, and the machine types, "This request prepared especially for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sloane." Then follow four quotations from writings it construes before the twenty-first.

One of them reads:

"Very little indeed is necessary for living a happy life . . ."

Bride-to-Be Honored at Linen Shower

RAWDON — On June 12th Mrs. Robert C. Hoard entertained over 40 guests to a linen shower in honor of Miss Gail Jeffs, bride-to-be. The group included the ladies of the Williams Fields district, a section former high school girls, who were friends of the bride; also relatives from the Allan School section and from Hoards.

The hostess was chairlady for the occasion and she read a book which had been previously prepared entitled "This Is Your Life". Miss Mary Ellen David rendered piano solo and the Misses Lorna Sharpe and Sally McAdam gave a vocal duet. The girls of the school section presented a most humorous mock wedding.

The bride-to-be was seated under an evergreen bower trimmed with pink streamers and bells and Miss Norma Hoard read an appreciative address to the guest of honor, after which she unwrapped the large array of parcels and voiced thanks to all her friends for the lovely gifts.

The hostess and her assistants served a luncheon plate topped off with strawberries and ice cream.

MISS KATHLEEN LEANEY: PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE.

"To mitigate suffering is good; to prevent disease is better; to promote health is best."—Health slogan adopted by the Red Cross Society.

We are indebted to Miss Erie Grout, 266 John Street, who happened to mention an interesting letter of a public health nurse who is spending a year in Bechuanaland with our Public Health Service here.

"Have you not met Miss Leaney?" asked Miss Grout. "It's understood she has been practically around the world with the public health nurse." She went on to say that Miss Leaney was visiting London and had been, at last writ, let's have Miss Leaney herself tell about her career. For meet her we did, (thanks to Miss Grout) quite stunned that such a tiny person (she lacks a half-inch from being five feet tall) has accomplished so much. In a spirited account she says:

"Yes, sir," nodding her head neatly wrapped in bog black hair, "I'm a Londoner, where my work as a public health sister, as we are called here, is quite different from the slum area.

"Having no ties, one day, found myself wondering about the world at large. What was it like? Where could I go to work for myself. Doon applying to the Queen Elizabeth Overseas Nursing Service I was offered an opening in Malaya at one of the public health nursing posts.

"This was beyond my wildest dreams. Never once had I thought of going there! This was back in 1956. I commenced leaving in November from Southampton during one of the coldest winters England ever had. Soon, our ship was cruising in warmer waters of the Mediterranean, the Suez and the Indian Ocean, stopping at exotic places that left me utterly at a loss, before arriving at Penang in Malaya, a week or so before Christmas.

"It was to spend three such Malaya Christmases having signed up for that many years. Christmas is always observed by the English and Europeans, as the greatest occasion comes at New Years when gatherings and parties are most elaborate. The streets were dressed of guests by they Chinese, Indian or Malayan staff with the English and Europeans as they mingle together in Chinese lanterns, flags, bunting and with star-lit Malayan sky.

"The Queen Elizabeth Overseas Nursing Service serves Malaya with a network of nurses and midwives in rural districts and by one public health nurse. Malaya has a Chinese girl as an assistant. Suddenly, my world was filled with strange places, things such as Kuala Lumpur, Alor Star and Penang, to name a few. Though thoroughly briefed and armed with method and picture posters to help overcome the poor health habits of people whose customs, rites and malaria are rampant, the essential element is the nurse herself, who must live with the home-trained nurses: Chinese, Indian and Malayan, living together in numerous small family groups throughout Malaya.

"Each nurse and one aid-jurts in time, however on one's own. I observed the Chinese as the most highly cultured, observant and assimulative. Let a Chinese person who has learned to do a bandage and he needs no further instruction. Any Indian baby who has a home-trained rather than European-trained, has mannered and considerate outlook by their Caste System ideas, thus reluctant to attend clinics or have anything done to be beneath them. Though the hygienic level of the Malayans is low, they live simply, are not too interested in collecting material things, and are good gamblers. Interestingly enough all races are keen about and alert in securing an education for the young. My Chinese amused much of the money I paid her to send her boys to school.

"As may be expected, the culture are not all villagers. Each race lives, I found, in its specific area of a village or town. As for the English and European sections the great social centre is their club. Any story you may have read by Somerset Maugham can be so far east describes the life exactly. For many English wives without deeper interests it is a petty life.

BELLOWSENETTE: It seems there's everything new under the sun — sonic wise. For after the bombing of sound waves used in dentistry, we learned today upon taking a piece of jewellery to be cleaned at the Jeweller's, that it was so by an Ultrasonic machine.

"It usually takes from five to ten minutes to clean, say a ring," explained Mr. Bruce Lynch of Ed Logan's Jewellery store. "Basically, stones in the small stainless-steel rectangular container encased in an electrically fitted white receptacle.

"The stainless steel container is filled with a cleaning solution that bubbles away as though it were boiling. "It's just the sound waves disturbing the liquid," Mr. Lynch pointed out. "Usually, one or a dozen pieces of jewellery may be cleaned at the same time. A real time-saver.

"The idea is a modification of that first used industrially in a machine factory, for example, where parts of the engines must be meticulously clean." How about one for domestic use to clean the silver, girls?

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHO SHOULD GREET WHOM?

An old question, but a good one, came in this morning's mail.

The questioner is a gentleman who recently was introduced to a woman for the first time at a dinner party. Two weeks later he was walking down the street and saw her approaching from the opposite direction.

He started to smile and was about to greet her when it noticed a distant look on the woman's face, even though he is sure she recognized him from their previous meeting.

He decided to walk on, although he still believes that if he had given some sign of recognition it would have been returned.

In essence his question is: who says "hello," the man or the woman?

Answer: the woman.

It's a matter of courtesy to allow the woman to show the first sign of welcome.

More women should recognize this. The woman in question might have been puzzled about what was expected of her and wondered if she thought that it was up to the man to make the initial approach.

Often men and women have met casually someone has to speak first when they meet again.

In a situation like this, it's the man, who opens the conversation.

After a week-end, visit it's usual for a guest to send her hostess a gift in appreciation. So, naturally, it's very unusual to come across a hostess who makes a habit of giving her women guests a gift as they leave. We recently met one.

What she does is make-up a small toiletries kit in advance and have it on the dresser in the guest room. The container is a small basket, in which she puts a flacon of cologne, a purse-size can of spray lacquer; a few emery boards and a package tied tied together with perky ribbon; a tiny pill box filled with sterile pads, a few pins in various sizes and assorted shapes; soaps, books and eyes; a colorful collection of combs in a long cylinder — and a needle, of course, plus a miniature lipstick and a box of powder, color-coordinated to the skin tone of the current inmate of the guest room.

The kit is meant to be used during the visit, in case a guest has left things at home, which her lipstick home — or run down with a case of gap-osis during the night. But whether the guest digs in or not, the kit is a welcomed sight when she remembrance just before she leaves.

Famous Hymns

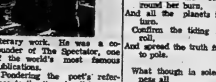
by HORACE B. POWELL

THE SPACIOUS FIRMAMENT ON HIGH

The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining name,
Their great Original proclaim:
The unwearied sun, from day to day,
Does his Creator's power display,
And publishes to every land
The work of an almighty hand.

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale,
And nightly to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth;
Whilst all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.

What though in solemn silence all
Move round this dark terrestrial ball?
What though no real voice nor sound
Amidst their radiant orbs be found?
In reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice,
Forever singing as they shine,
"The hand that made us is divine."



The "Spacious Firmament on High" was composed by Joseph Addison, the English essayist and poet, were based on the first six Bible verses in the Nineteenth Psalm and were written to magnify the discovery of God in nature.

The music to which they were sung was taken from Franz Joseph Haydn's oratorio "The Creation," "Creation."

Mr. Addison's father was an Anglican clergyman who later became dean of Litchfield. Joseph was born in his father's rectory on May 1, 1672. He died on June 17, 1719 after a prominent public life spent largely in government service and in old literary work. He was a co-founder of The Spectator, one of the world's most famous publications.

Pondering the poet's reference to the "spacious" heavens of his day one considers what he would think of the developments and discoveries of our own—space age. I think he would regard the wonders of our century as new evidence of the omnipotence of a great God.

"The Creation," from which the music for the Addison verses is taken was composed in 1797 when Haydn was 65 years old.

THINES ESSENTIAL

LONDON (Reuters) — A 14-member government committee Thursday issued a report on a massive study of commerce and business which said takeover bids are an essential feature of Britain's economic growth and development. Takeover bids and the increasing tendency toward monopolies in recent years have drawn heavy fire from the Labor party opposition as well as many newspapers here.

Simple Device Can Quieten Radio Blare

LONDON (AP)—A pocket radio jammer—cheap, homemade and probably illegal—was reported today as the weapon to beat the blare of transistor radios.

The device was suggested for lovers of peace and quiet who, with summer here again, are once more being tormented by those who keep little spot-blares playing wherever they go. Plenty of grumbling letters are appearing in the papers.

The pirate jammer was proposed in a letter to The Daily Telegraph from W. H. Jarvis of Magdalen College, Oxford University.

He wrote:

"Anyone who cares to construct a tunable oscillator covering long and medium waves, using either a single transistor or a single valve, will find he has an effective device for jamming portable and other radios within earshot."

The cost, said Jarvis, should not exceed £2 and the device could be easily concealed.

"Only a few seconds operation is needed to cause the offending receivers to give enough positive whistling to make the user of the receiver switch off. That I am not sure of the legal aspect of the matter, though I imagine it is an offence to radiate signals on the broadcast bands, however, small.

"But the chance of detection is minimal by anyone with an embryo knowledge of electronics would be able to draw up a circuit for this purpose."

Dieting Makes Her Moody

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am a 14-year-old girl. I am quite popular I guess and have been told I am one of the prettiest girls in the room. I weigh about 107 pounds, am 4 feet 11 inches tall, and my waist is 24½ inches. My problem is probably what they call psychosomatic, but I can't help it.

You see, I worry terribly about my weight. If I diet (as I did when I was 11 to reach my present amount of slimness) I starve and have a short temper. If I give in to hunger, I have such an awful guilty feeling I am droopy, moody and just feel like crying. When I try to eat high protein foods, which my doctor said was the only way he would let me diet, the weight loss is so slow I am discouraged.

A child psychologist could probably help me but there are none in this town and even if there were my mother doesn't understand that I have a problem—MIXED UP AND WORRIED.

DEAR MIXED UP AND WORRIED—I'll be your child psychologist. You are not so fat as to worry like this. You will grow tall and thin out gradually.

Don't go on another cake binge a hunger strike. Some girls have ruined their health for life this way; besides being so cross they drove all their friends away.

It's still good sense to diet the gradual, high protein way. Keep some control of these pounds—and at the same time develop good eating habits. I am sending you an article about Growing Up that will give some ideas about care of skin, figure and glosses.

Time and you can work wonders.

DEAR DORIS—I was reading your column in a Canadian newspaper, when I read the lines of Mrs. M. B. in which your readers wish to take up her hobby of correspondence after marriage.

Wondering if it should be possible that you kindly pass my address to her, or pass hers to me. I am Palestinian, Arab, 33 years of age, correspondence is my hobbie, especially with far-off countries.

Canadian newspapers do not reach our country, and this copy I got hold of was given to me by a friend of the Canadian Contingent for the United Nations Emergency Force in Gaza.

I shall be very grateful if you kindly pass my message to miss M. B. and that I shall be very glad to correspond with a Canadian. After all, I have two pals almost all over the world, except in Canada.—GEORGE, UNEF.

DEAR GEORGE—I passed it on. Anybody else want George's address? Nice way to broaden horizons!

DEAR DORIS—I am writing for the widows in the group 45 and over. When a woman has had a good marriage, it isn't likely that she will ever again fit into the pattern of the single woman. Also, she is not wanted or asked into mixed company.

I have noticed when such lonely women write you, you refer them to church groups and clubs. Understandably, these are very poor solutions. When it comes to fulfilling the need for these women to mix with groups where they may meet a suitable male companion, the Christianity in our churches is spread very thin.

Lonely men tend to drift to the bars and cocktail lounges. These are out for unescorted ladies. I have often wondered why you do not refer these widows to a certified Marriage Bureau, where they have some chance to meet a companion — and to refer the widowers to the same bureau, so that the widows would have someone to meet!—WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING—A good idea, but how do you make it work? Certified marriage bureaus are few and far between. And can they stand behind the goods they sell?

We know there are clubs in Calgary and Kingston where single folks in their forties and fifties have fun. From all reports such groups prosper.

Are there any other sociable middle-agers who are solving the dilemma of the widowed?

TO MOTHER AND DAUGHTER—I have passed your letter on to my sister, Mary Moore, who also writes for this paper. Calorie charts for overweights are more in her line than mine.

DEAR DORIS—My granddaughter in British Columbia is graduating from university this coming fall. Could you suggest an appropriate gift for me to send?—FAITHFUL READER.

DEAR FAITHFUL—There's nothing that's more fun to buy than a gift for the sweet girl graduate! She'd like anything to wear—clothing, jewellery, cosmetics.

To be specific: a purse, an evening bag, matching earrings and pin, a cosmetic case, a bracelet, a ring with date engraved on the inside, pretty lingerie.

Some Clarification Nuclear Weapons Issue May Evolve

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—One upshot of the election campaign and the issue itself may have been some clarification of the nuclear weapons issue.

The Liberals are cool to nuclear weapons in Canada though they haven't come out definitely against them. Both Social Credit and the New Democratic Party are opposed to nuclear arms in this country.

During the election campaign Mr. Diefenbaker did not come out with a definite statement that there will be no acquisition of nuclear weapons in peacetime. But he did say at one point — Vancouver, where most of his speech was drowned out by a demonstration — that his government doesn't intend to have them in peacetime.

Throughout the campaign, Mr. Diefenbaker's emphasis on this issue was on reasons for not accepting nuclear weapons —non-extension of the nuclear family, non - interference with disarmament negotiations — than on possible military need for them.

SOME DISAGREE

Meanwhile, some officials in the defence department maintain that Canada, to live up to its partnership in North American Air Defence Command, must have nuclear warheads for its Bomarc anti - aircraft missiles and manned interceptors.

These officials say it would require a nuclear-tipped missile to 'detonate or break apart' in the air a nuclear bomb carried by an invading aircraft. Otherwise, if the aircraft were shot down, its bomb would explode an impact with the ground, creating enormous amounts of fallout.

Mr. Diefenbaker has hinted that some system may be set up for fast delivery of nuclear warheads to Canadian air defence bases from the U.S. in an emergency. Such a system would pre-suppose some strategic warning—days or weeks—of attack.

Defence officials say it would require several weeks to fit Canadian-based Bomarcs with nuclear warheads.

It appears Mr. Diefenbaker may be willing to settle for this rather than expand the nuclear club at the expense of disarmament efforts.

Hillier Twp. Plans Appeal

PICTON — For several years past, sportsmen of Prince Edward County have objected to being assessed for business as well as property tax. At County Council yesterday, County Assessor Fred Jennings revealed that a ruling in County Court recently by Judge W. S. Lane was given in favor of five Hillier township resort owners who protested a business assessment on their properties. The judge found that although these are businesses he did not think that the wording of section 9 (1) A of the Assessment Act should be interpreted to include them. The appellants used section 82A of the Act which allows an rigineting notice to be held in County Court where a point of law can be decided. Other townships are interested in the ruling, as some owners have refused to pay business tax on summer resorts. Hillier township is planning an appeal. Mr. Jennings reported.

South African Arms Embargo Is Advocated

LONDON (Reuters) — Economic sanctions and an "immediate arms embargo" on South Africa were called for today by nine well-known British personalities in a letter to the London Times.

They said they had watched with alarm the "ominous arms buildup by the South African government and the increasing impotence of non-violent methods of political change, there."

Hilda Calder, professor of international relations at Edinburgh University, headed the list of signatories. The others were Earl Russell, the 89-year-old philosopher and nuclear disarmer; Anthony Greenwood and Jeremy Thorpe, Labor and Liberal members of Parliament respectively; popular singer Frankie Vaughan; author Alan Wilson and the Anglican bishop of Woolwich, Dr., John Robinson.

Getting Rid of Poison Ivy

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

"If you should go out in the woods to-day" or camping, or for a hike you may come in contact with Poison Ivy. This plant is a creeper. It crawls up trees, fences or stumps. It also spreads over the ground as a mat of leaves in many places.

The safest insurance against it is to know what it looks like and avoid it. There are three leaves joined at the stem. It looks very much like Virginia Creeper, which has five leaves to each stem. The Canadian Department of Agriculture has a free bulletin on Poison Ivy explaining how to identify it, where it grows, how to get rid of it and most important of all how to treat the rash it causes.

The oil it exudes can be released by crushing, bruising or breaking any part of the plant. Merely brushing against it if leaves will cause a severe rash in many people. Dogs, cats and other animals can transmit it. Droplets formed in smoke when any part of the plant is being burned can settle on the skin and cause a rash. In other words; it is poisonous anyway you come in contact with it.

OBSERVE CAUTION

People vary in their susceptibility to the poison but even those who seem to be immune sometimes may lose their immunity and have to observe caution.

Some believe that immunity can be built up if one eats a few of the new leaves in the spring. This is most unwise and can cause serious poisoning.

When you rent, or buy a cottage, or go camping look for this plant as soon as you arrive. If there are only a few plants dig them up and take all parts of them. Do not burn them. Use thick canvas, or rubber gloves and coverall to cover the skin well with long sleeved jacket and slacks. If these garments cannot be discarded soak in strong solution of household soap to flush off the oil from the plant.

Chemical killers especially at your garden centre or hardware store. Observe all directions and handle with care as useful plants can be killed with the spray too.

Each new crop of leaves must be killed to starve out the long roots. Watch the treated area carefully for several months and be prepared to deal with any new growth that may appear.

One gallon of spray will treat 200 square feet depending on the denseness of the growth. The leaves must be well soaked with the chemical.

SPRAY EARLY

If you have been troubled with Delphinium buds turning black and blighted, start spraying early with rotenone or dimite. It is caused by Cyclamin mite, an insect almost too small to see without a magnifying glass.

Control black spot on roses with regular sprays, or dust containing captan, dithane, ferbam or any good all purpose pesticed planned for roses.

Chlordane will make short work of ants whether they are on your peonies, between flagstones or in your flower beds.

It is too late now to treat shrubs with dormant spray for scale insects but you can use malathion.

If yellow streaks appear on leaves of shrubs look for Lace bug. Treat leaves to a spray of Diadnan, malathion. Spray under side of leaves and repeat if necessary.

Prince, Earl Start New Style in Hats

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's supreme arbiters of male fashion says Prince Philip and his brother-in-law, the Earl of Snowdon, have started a new style in hats.

"From now on," John Taylor, editor of Tailor and Cutter said Thursday, "we shall probably see more people wearing the black instead of the grey topper."

For the well-dressed male attending one of the world's most elegant sporting events —the Royal Ascot races—the top hat is, as they say, de rigueur, as are striped pants and a tail coat.

With hundreds of males wearing grey toppers Wednesday at the second day of the 1962 Royal Ascot race meeting, Prince Philip and Lord Snowdon were black toppers.

It was such a startling development, in the hat mode, that one London newspaper (Daily Sketch) devoted two pages to the haberdashery revolution. It showed pictures of Lord Elveden, the Marquis of Blandford and Billy Wallace all decked out in grey toppers. The paper headlined them "top people."

Also pictures of Philip and Lord Snowdon, the paper said: "The topper people."

Friends of Philip and Tony, neither of whom is enchanted with horse racing, said they may have switched to mourtful black as a gag.

Henry welcomes letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter he receives.

Dear Henry—My problem is how to get a boy up in the morning when he is called, and get breakfast over and get started for the day. It usually takes him an hour to appear after being called. Everything is OK after he does start but I feel exhausted by then.—MOTHER OF ONE.

Dear Mother of One—Creep into his room with an ice cold washcloth and in between snores pop it onto his forehead. The rest is up to him.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I want to pass with good marks this year so now I don't go to any parties. I sit home and study. My friends say I am a square. Am I right?—SQUARE.

Dear Square—You are sure are. You may be square, but their marks will be strictly round. At the party you may be missing, but after the exams their marks will be missing. Nice going.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a girl of 8. I have a sister of 6, and a brother of 2.

This sister "of mine" is the worst tattletale. Even if I say something she doesn't like, it's run to mummy to tell. When mummy hears what I've done it's scold, scold, scold for me.

My brother is a spoiled baby and gets what he wants. Together my sister and brother make quite a gang. I am forced in between them. What should I do?—LOSING MY MIND.

Dear Losing My Mind—Sis is a tattletale, brother is spoiled; as long as you are perfect you'll have nothing to worry about.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a girl 12 years old and in grade eight. I skipped a grade which puts me into my problem. My problem is that I am young in my ways for doing things. My clothes are ones that I am wearing out to get new ones for high school. My hair is cut in a bubble too. Could you give me some ideas how to act older and to look older?—OUT OF STYLE.

Dear Out of Style—I don't know a thing about ladies' hair styles and fashion and junk. All I know is that you skipped a year at school, not a year of your life. Get that straight.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a boy of 13. I have a boy friend. His name is Ted. He thinks that he is better than me. He is a pest. When I tell him something he says it bigger. Would you know what I should do?—J. H.

Dear H.—By reading your letter I can establish that you don't really care much for him. Friends sometimes even like each other; you two aren't friends so wave goodbye.—HENRY.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The baseball Kenmore after two muscle-stretching exhibitions with the Cannifton Clippers, and not covering themselves with any glory in the doing, are solid ready and "nuts" for a tough weekend schedule.

Tonight they take on the Peterborough Fannings up in Perdue's ballwick, and on Sunday they go to Kingston, where they clash with the Limestone City crew, featuring one Charlie Gardiner, according to Reddenville reports, a one-man gang.

It is a night game in Peterborough with the festivities starting at 8.30, while in Kingston the ill gets under way in Megaffin Stadium at two o'clock.

Kingston and Kenmore are running neck-and-neck at the top of the Lakeshore baseball senior division, standing with three games and one defeat. Under the points system Peterborough and Port Hope are tied for the next slot with a pair each, although the Petes have dropped five games and won one, and the Hopers have collected a one-and-one mark.

The Kenmore are the only club to hang a defeat on the Limestoners, while the Petes are the lone winners over the Forster-led crew.

Oronto is leading the western intermediate division of the league with six wins and two defeats. Port Hope is second with three and four, and a tie, Ajax is third with a 3-3 mark, and Oshawa trailing with a 3-4 record.

Kingston's versatile Pesier, who stars in almost everything athletic but tiddley-winks and cricket, is the senior hurler with two victories and no losses. Team-mate McIlroy and the Belleville trio, Soden, Reid and Laichford, have a win and no defeats in the credit.

Pesier also tops the senior division hitters with a 9 for 16 average of .562. Pat Aselstine of Kenmore is second with a 4 for 9, .444, and Gary Goyer rounds out the .400-plus hitters with a seven for 17 .412.

Up is a week or ten days ago the weakness of the club's bench strength was a constant concern to Manager Ken Soden and Coach Forster. Remedial measures were taken and now bolstering the team are such baseball veterans as Charlie Hamilton, who will be a regular playing mentor, and Claude Carr, versatile player, who has been filling in for Pat Aselstine while writing examinations.

Both Carr and Kingston should prove valuable assets to the club. Both are pretty well all-round ball players with lots of experience. And they're no slouches with the bludgeon.

Manager Soden said this morning that he has signed Jackie Elliott, Jr., and Ted Batchelor. These players will be used in the Ontario Baseball Association playdowns.

Stan "Lefty" Reid, who pitched a masterful two-hitter in his first Lakeshore senior appearance against the Peterborough Fannings, will go to the mound against the Petes tonight. Larry Soden will have the redoubtable Charlie Pesier in contention afternoon's clash with Kingston. If Soden is at peak form, this should develop into a red-hot mound duel.

On the weekend softball front the league-leading Joyce Sales Leaders tangle with the Rollins Jaguars at the Fair Grounds tonight, starting eight o'clock. The Quinie Riding and Driving Club is not staging a harness meet. The next is scheduled for next Saturday. The Joyce-Rollins game is a postponed fixture.

The Commercial Softball Leaguers have at it, too, over the weekend. Tonight at the CNRA Park the Light-Rod Construction meets the Pepsis with game time 6.30. Tomorrow afternoon starting 2.00 p.m., the Polnt Anners tangle with Trudeau Motors at the CNRA Park.

And if you need some family diversion try the "Go-Karting" at the Shannonville Speedway Parkland. It is a fine sport and the whole family can enjoy it. Top it off with a picnic and you will have a real Sunday's entertainment and fun.

Leafs Take Pair From Richmond

By TH ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching has moved Charlie Dressen's Toronto Maple Leafs back into the top challenger's position to Jacksonville's brolling Suns in the International Baseball League race.

The Leafs, behind the four-hit pitching of Steve Ridzik and a brilliant one-hitter by Noel Mickelsen, whipped Richmond 6-3 and 11-0 Friday night and took over second place by three percentage points over Buffalo. Toronto and Buffalo both trail the Suns by 3½ games.

Mickelsen's performance was a masterpiece in the nightcap. He allowed only a double by Ben Mateosky, walked one and struck out five.

The league - leading Suns, meanwhile, routed Rochester 11-1 as Harry Chiti, recently demoted by the New York Mets, slammed three home runs and drove in six runs. A four-run seventh helped the Atlants homer to Larry Elliot.

The Leafs blasted out two runs in the fourth inning in the second game and scored again in the seventh except the sixth. Toronto pushed across three runs in the final two times at bat.

STRIKES OUT FIVE

Mickelsen pitched only one hit, one walk and struck out five. Ridzik limited Richmond to four hits in the opener. It was Ridzik's seventh win in eight games and his sixth straight.

Chiti, who triggered Jacksonville's triumph Wednesday night with a three-run double, hit a two-run homer in the second inning off Nat Martines, a solo drive off Tom Baker in the fifth and a three-run blast off Don Bessent.

Atlanta had 18 hits against Syracuse, including home runs by Jim Baumer and Phil Gagliano.

Buffalo scored five times in the sixth to make it easy for Locke, who gave up a two-run homer to Tony Asaro and a solo homer to Larry Elliot.

Robin Bobbin' For Orioles

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Red faces are in fashion in the American League, Some former American Leaguers have them, too.

It was New York Yankees who sent pitcher Robin Roberts to the unemployment insurance lines, where Baltimore Orioles found him.

A couple of old Yankees, George Weiss and Casey Stengel, now of New York Mets of the National League peddled catcher Hobie Landrith to Baltimore Orioles for a first baseman with a lively glove.

The Yankees, their pitching in woeful harge, could have used Roberts Friday night as they went down to their sixth loss in seven games, 7-5 to Detroit Tigers. Even the return of a bobbling Hicker Mantle didn't help. Mantle got a walk, a line single, struck out and grounded out as he tested his injured knee for 6⅓ innings.

ROBIN'S AGAIN

Roberts was busy winning his third straight game for Orioles, a comeback bid for the former Red Sox in the second game of a doubleheader.

Landrith hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning that won the game. Since his escape from the Mets, Landrith has picked up five hits, three of them homers. The Red Sox won the first game 2-1 in 10 innings.

Donovan beat his old Washington Senators 6-5 to run his record to 11-2 for the year, tops in the league.

Minnesota Twins closed to within 1½ games of the league-leading Indians with a double win over third-place Los Angeles Angels. Camilo Pascual won the second game 3-2 Chicago White Sox defeated Kansas City Athletics 4-3.

Hank Aguirre (5-2) with ninth-inning help from Ron Nischwitz, got the Tigers off to a good start in the five-game set. Aguirre also got his first hit in almost two years in the sixth inning to drive in a run that turned out the game winner. Bill Stafford (5-5), knocked out in the third inning, took the loss.

FIGHT TO DRAW

The Detroit-Cleveland Milk Pappas struggled to a 3-1 draw for nine innings in the Red Sox-Orioles opener, homers by Carl Yastrzemski for Boston and Jack Brandt for Hartford, making up the scores.

In the 10th frame, with Hoyt Wilhelm on the mound, the Orioles made their first error in 11 games when third baseman Marv Breeding threw Bill Gardner's grounder way for two bases. Gardner went to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

In the second game, rookie outfielder John Powell hit a homer that was the first ball ever to clear the centre-field hedge in Memorial Stadium on the fly. It ticked off 469 feet on the tape measure and tied the score 2-2.

Another Oriole error, moving Carroll Hardy to second, broke in the ninth inning, almost did Baltimore in again, when Hardy scored on a bloop single by starting pitcher Don Schwall. But Schwall had a muscle spasm, retired for reliever Dick Radatz, and Landrith scored the game-winning homer with Powell on base.

ALLOWS 11 HITS

Donovan tantalized the Senators with 11 hits, including four to centre-fielder Jimmy Piersall, who was the Senators' payoff in the trade for the big pitcher. But he went all the way for his eighth complete game. Bennie Daniels (3-9) took the loss.

Pascual, who ran his record to 10-4, hit a home run and a double against the Angels. He also struck out 10 batters and didn't walk a man. He has issued only 25 passes in 18 starts.

Don Lee (6-4) held the Twins to three hits in the opener, but a throwing error by catcher Bob Rodgers on a pickoff attempt let two runs come to roin the Angels, George Maranda (2-1) got the win.

Has 134 For 36 Holes

Amazing Weslock Six Strokes Up

By MARK BLOOM

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Nick Weslock says he aims to shoot all four rounds of the Ontario amateur golf championship in scores under 70 but the way he played the first two rounds he may not need to fulfil his boast to win the tournament.

Weslock, a 43-year-old amateur who has won this tournament three times, fired a five-under-par 66 in the first round Thursday and added a 68 Friday to go six strokes ahead after 36 holes.

The field was cut at 155 for the top 80 players and ties for today's 36-hole grind.

Weslock, whose age was considered a factor for the two rounds today over the 6,726-yard Beach Grove Golf Club course, was pursued by Jack Bissegger of Val Morin, Que., who had rounds of 69 and 71 for a 140, Harry McIlree, 19-year-old amateur now living in Hamilton, and Toronto pro Moe Norman, one-man with the reputation of being the fastest player in Canada — both 141.

DROPS TO FIFTH

Alvin Thompson of Toronto, tied for second place with Bissegger the first round, slipped to a 74 Friday to tie for fifth with amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener. Both players have the ability to win the tournament, Thompson but would have to play masterful golf to catch the high-flying leader.

Rudy Horvath and Alex Hood of Windsor, also an amateur Bob Young of Toronto Friday to tie for sixth with 146 and following at 147 were Bob Panciuk, a pro - tournament favorite from Phillips brownsville of Toronto, Ralph Blonquist of Otsego, Gerry Lacroix of Cleveland of Boucherville, Que., and Bob Rose of Toronto.

Other scores included (a denotes amateur):

Smashes 6-Mile Record

Kidd Grabs Meet Glory

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) An all-star cast of athletes ticked off the 1962 United States track and field championships Friday night, with the amazing Bruce Kidd of Toronto grabbing the glory on the only record-breaking performance of the meet.

The 18-year-old University of Toronto student, running for the East York club, smashed the American standard for six miles when he covered the distance in 28:25.1. The old mark of 28:35.8 was set by Al Lawrence of Houston University two years ago.

Kidd turned on a great burst of speed in taking the lead on the final two laps from Olympic champion John Gutknecht of Baltimore. Peter McCardle of New York finished second and also surpassed Lawrence's record in 28:34.2. Gutknecht ended up third with 28:30.8. Doug Kyle of Calgary was fourth in 28:44.0.

Kidd, who sprinted the last two laps, credited Gutknecht with a fast pace that helped him to his record. Kidd's record for the race is 27:43.8.

UNDEFEATED

Kidd was undecided whether he would remain in the three-mile race, scheduled tonight. He said he would see how he felt later today.

The Toronto ace shaped up as a dandy with Kidd scheduled to go against Murray Halberg of New Zealand, 5,000-meter champion of the British Commonwealth Games, Burleson, who specializes in the mile, will be trying the longer distance for the first time.

Halberg would like another crack at Kidd. The Toronto youngster beat Halberg in the Compton relays in California June 2 in an 8-mile race, setting two American records in the process.

Other Canadians showed well last night against the tough opposition. Vancouver ace Harry Jerome ran second to Bob Hayes of Florida A and M in the 100-yard dash. Hayes won with a 9.3, a tenth of a second faster than Jerome. Jerome placed third in a heat earlier in the night with a 9.5 clocking.

OHLEMANN QUALIFIES

Six Ohlemann of Vancouver qualified for tonight's final in the 880-yard run by finishing second in his heat. Norman of the U.S. army is a heat Friday night. Both were timed in 1:46.3.

Jim Beatty and his teammate from the Los Angeles track club, Jim Grelle, and Cary Weisiger of the U.S. marines are the class in tonight's mile test.

There were two surprises in the shot put and 100-yard high hurdles.

Gary Gubser of New York hit 63 feet, 6¼ inches in the shot to displace the champion, Dallas Long. Long's best was 63 11¾.

Decision Nearly Starts Riot

Tolos Beaten But Get Nod

By George H. Carve'
Sports Editor

The "whispering Tolos" as "Kleen" pounded Chris inside the ring and the Whip was giving John Tolos a punching lesson in front of the first row pewsters.

An angry crowd milled around ringside after Referee Sonny Dunlop gave the third fall and bout decision to the well-beaten Gallegnig Greeks.

They followed the angry Wizard-Kleen duo to the dressing room where accusations the foursome carried on the battle for at least five minutes.

The half-pated strong man took his revenge in the second fall when he back-broke Chris to win the fall, then repeated on brother John just to make sure.

The Whip was no shrinking violet either. He took on the Tolos one by one and in pairs, inside and outside the ring despite the hostile attitude of one Mr. Dunlop.

In fact at the end of the bout he heaved Sonny Boy to a squirming welter of Tolo arms and legs as they threshed about on the mat.

At one time the portly Dunlop parted his eyes in his ears as Whip and Kleen chased them to the corridor where another battle was joined.

Stan Stasiak and Billy 'Red' Lyons battled to a thirty-minute time-limit draw in one of the best bouts seen here in Memorial Park this year. It was fast and exciting, full of action and the "Red" being the popular choice.

Beats Cobbs 5,863 Bases Mark

Stan The Man Sets Another Record

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis, on the banks of the Mississippi River, has been made famous by two old men. One is The River. The other is Stan Musial. Both just keep rolling along.

Stan (The Man) Musial, 41-year-old Cardinal great, established another in his long list of records Friday night, hitting a home run and three singles in surpassing Ty Cobb's major league record of 5,863 career total bases.

"For some reason, I never paid much attention to that record," Musial said. "But my friends tell me it will eventually be the one I will pride the most."

It was the fourth major career standard established by the Cardinal outfielder this season. He previously topped the National League records held by the late Honus Wagner for hits (3,430) and games (2,783) and by Mel Ott for runs (1,859).

NOT SLOWING UP

And Musial, whose batting stance resembles a coiled spring, little boy pecking around a corn-cob, is not about to slow down, up. The four hits in St. Louis' split of a doubleheader with Philadelphia Phillies raised his batting average to .345, best in the National League. His total base count stands at 5,866. Babe Ruth is third on the all-time list with 5,793.

Musial's second inning single was the eighth of the season, triggered a six-run inning that gave the Cardinals a 7-3 victory in the opener, but the Phils came back for an 11-3 verdict in the nightcap.

New York Mets and Houston Colts split a doubleheader. Mel Nelly Al Jackson pitched a no-hit 3-0 shutout in the opener and the Colts romped to an 11-3 triumph in the second game. Cincinnati Reds fought off a ninth-inning rally to beat Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

The Reds remained 2½ games in front of San Francisco Giants, the victims of a ninth-inning rally by Milwaukee Braves in 11-9 victory. Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Chicago Cubs 7-5.

HELPS JACKSON

Musial's homer and a two-run single his second time up in the inning helped Larry Jackson (6-7) to the first-game victory.

Mistakes by Ernie Broglio (2-3) aided the Phillies in running up a 5-0 lead in the second inning of the second game and they took it from there behind the pitching of Dallas Green (6) Curtis (7) Fischer (2-3) (8) and Turley. Purkey (13-1) shut out Los Angeles on four hits before he was forced to leave the game with a muscle spasm in his left shoulder in the ninth inning.

The Dodgers promptly bopped on three relief men for a three-run rally in the ninth, but Clem Wills finally saved it for the Reds with the tying run on third base, Sandy Koufax (10-3) took the loss.

Milwaukee rallied for three runs in the ninth inning, the last two on Lee Maye's single, to outlast the Giants in a wild see-saw battle - that lasted four hours and two minutes, a near league record. The game was played under protest from the fifth inning when Giants manager Alvin Dark disagreed with an interference call.

Dick Groat drove in two runs with a single and double and scored two more as the Pirates overcame a 4-3 count against the Cubs. Bob Skinner had a two-run homer for the Pirates.

Johnson Favored Over Scholz

BERLIN (AP)—Harold Johnson of the United States is confident and prohibitive 4-to-1 favorite to defend successfully his world light-heavyweight title in a fight against Germany's Gustav (Bull) Scholz in the outdoor Olympic Stadium tonight.

A crowd of about 30,000 is expected to pay about $175,000 to see the 32-year-old, once-beaten Berliner attempt to become Germany's second world boxing champion.

The only German world champion, Max Schmeling who won the heavyweight crown 32 years ago this month, will be among the spectators for the 15-round bout.

Scholz, unbeaten in his last 16 fights over a four-year span, never has been stopped himself, scored Germany's won-lost-draw record is 85-1-6 including 46 knockouts.

Tudeaus Defeat Reides 9-2

Trudeau Motors defeated Reide's Excavating 9-2 at CNRA Park last night to chalk up their ninth victory in ten Commercial softball league starts.

The league-leaders took a 3-1 lead in the first inning and held a 4-2 margin before they broke the game wide open with five runs in the sixth.

Larry Hall and Junior Day combined to pitch the victory. Hall gave up four hits, struck out nine and walked three while Junior fanned five and fanning one, and four errors by his mates made the task that much tougher. The winners played errorless ball.

John Day smashed a home run for Trudeau during the six-inning explosion while Lyle Wannamaker drove in two runs with a double in the initial frame. Brown, Baker and Bob Wannamaker had the other safeties.

N. Patterson, R. Davis, D. Patterson and B. Langabeer shared the Reide's hurling duties.

'Flaming Page' Causes Concern

Can Filly Stand The Gaff?

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

In the first flush of victory after last Saturday's Queen's Plate, E. P. Taylor thought it was a "good temptation" to enter Flaming Page in the Sales Yearling Stakes at Woodbine today. Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont. Indeed it was, his listeners agreed.

Mr. Taylor and the sports writers had gathered in the press box at Toronto's Woodbine Park looked at it differently.

The Toronto business tycoon could stand the gaff of three races in one successive Saturdays. Maybe the filly could, it would be asking too much of a three-year-old minutes before had licked the cream of Canada's home - bred three-year-olds.

She had won the $40,000 Canadian classic Aug. 9, the richest race in Canada for fillies. She had beaten 11 colts and another filly by $75,000 Friday and here, just seven days away was the Coaching Club Oaks.

Flaming Page had picked up more than $75,000 in purses for the Taylor stable, was the winner of the Oaks at Belmont Saturday - about $100,000, and that's a staple Taylor's always were thinking about. It's called money to Taylor.

STRONG FILLY

The only thing he was concerned about was whether the filly could twice run the Queen's Plate and American Oaks distance of 1¼ miles in such a short period.

Taylor took the precaution, though, of shipping the filly to Toronto Friday and 48 hours after the Plate running.

With Flaming Page went Horatio Laro, 51-year-old native of Argentina who has trained the U.S. division of the Taylor stable for the last six years. He is noted as one of the finest trainers in North America for long-distance features.

He took over Flaming Page last fall when Taylor sent the filly to the U.S. Aid Flaming Page finished a good second to Cicada in the Kentucky Oaks.

That was her warmup for the 1 1-16-mile Canadian Oaks and the Queen's Plate.

Laro, who saddled Decidedly to win this year's Kentucky Derby said Flaming Page would be up for the Belmont.

The odds-on favorite for the 1¼-mile race is Cicada, winner of more than $350,000, but she has shown gone the 10-furlong route.

One Canuck Left in Wrestling

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP) — All but one of Canada's eight-man contingent has been eliminated from the free - style competition of the world amateur wrestling championships.

Heavyweight George Mondberg of Hamilton, second in the 1962 Canadian championship, was defeated Friday night by Lotvia Akhmedov of Bulgaria.

Eddo Bobasso of Thorold, Canadian champion in the 220.5-pound division, was pinned by Gholam Tahbe of Iran early in the end to his free - style competition.

Mark Jantuffi of Sudbury was first pinned and then defeated in the 198.5 - pound matches Friday. Jantuffi is Canadian champion in that division.

Another loser was Henry Pribadon of Vancouver, eliminated when defeated by Emil Westerby in the 125.5 - pound class.

Kurt Boose of Kitchener, wrestling in the 156-pound class, was pinned by Roger Bellis of France, eliminating him. Boose, 1962 Canadian champion in his classification, was defeated Thursday.

The last Canadian was Robert Steckle of Kitchener, who was defeated by Francisco Ballo of Romania.

Mick Didn't Halt Yanks Tailspin

DETROIT (CP) — Mickey Mantle's first test of baseball's most celebrated bum knee didn't halt New York Yankees' tailspin in the American League race — but it did cause rejoicing.

"I'm pretty well satisfied," Mantle said Friday night. "There was no pain. I was afraid I couldn't run but I didn't okay."

Mantle was in the Yankees' starting lineup for the first time since May 18 when he hurt his right thigh and fell on the knee. The thigh injury has healed but the knee has been a source of trouble since.

The Yankees started a slide with the loss of Mantle and it didn't stop with his return. He scored base his first two times at bat — on a single and a walk — and scored the Yankees' first two runs in their 7-6 loss to Detroit Tigers. It was Mantle's ninth decision in 11 games and they fell four games behind the first-place Cleveland Indians.

U.S. Funds For Yank Golfers

MONTREAL (CP) — The position of a devalued Canadian dollar will have no effect on United States touring pros who get into the money at the Canadian open golf championship next month. They will be paid in funds.

"If the foreign exchange rate remains the same, around nine per cent, there could be a difference of around $2,000 to $3,000 a spokesman for the sponsors of the tournament said Friday.

"Canadian pros who win money in the tournament will be paid in Canadian money," he said.

Pollock Denies AHL Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — General Manager Sam Pollock of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens says his club has not made formal application for a franchise in the American Hockey League.

Pollock said the team will remain in the Eastern Professional League if the league operates next season.

"Even if the EPHL folds, there is some doubt we would enter a team in the AHL," Pollock said Friday.

He was commenting on a statement made by AHL president Jim Balmer Thursday night. Balmer said Hull-Ottawa has made an application and it probably would be accepted next week at a league meeting.

Pollock said Hull - Ottawa "only made inquiries and did not make a formal application" for an AHL franchise.

New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks threatened two weeks ago to pull their support from EPHL farm teams because of heavy financial losses. However, at this week's annual meeting they agreed to stay in the league if some method could be found to cut their losses.

Sets World Pole Vault Record

KAUHAVA, Finland (Reuters)—Pentti Nikula of Finland has set a world record of 4.94 metres (16 feet 2¼ inches) for the pole vault.

The 23-year-old Finn Friday beat the mark set in April by the United States' Dave York of 4.92 metres (16 feet, 2 inches).

The official world record for the pole vault is 4.80 metres (15 feet 9¼ inches) set by Olympic champion Don Bragg of the United States in 1960.

HOLDING AT THE BELLE — Pyjama Game — Doris Day can't remember any of the details about her marriage the night before to Rock Hudson, who assures her everything is legal. Scene in Universal's roistering romantic comedy, "Lover Come Back", in Color by Eastman, continuing today through Wednesday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Jackie Gleason Returning To Old Alma Mater in Fall

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Why is Jackie Gleason taking another leap back to television next season?

"Because I gotta be where the action is," he explains.

Where Gleason is, you'll find action. But he likes it in large doses, so he'll be returning to his old alma mater, CBS, with a Saturday night hour next season. And the 1963-64 season, too.

Right now Gleason's calling it Jackie Gleason's American Scene Magazine, but by any name it will be the familiar Gleason cast of characters.

"Sure, I'll have all the old characters back," he said, "but there'll be some changes. And some new ones, too.

"The Honeymooners will be back. Art Carney will do the first show. I don't know about the others. Honeymooners is much money. Personally I'd pay her all the money in the world, but the budget can't take what she's asking. So maybe we'll have to get a new Alice.

"Reggie van Gleason will be with us, of course; couldn't get along without that boy. Also Joe the bartender. Only instead of just talking about the other characters in the bar, we'll show 'em.

"Lots of new characters will be on the show. One will be Oklahoma Slim, the oldest cowboy in the west. Now that's getting pretty sad."

Admittedly, satire is a risk, he said: "You always hear from the pressure groups. If you do a comedy sketch about a dentist, you immediately get letters of protest from 20,000 dentists. "So I figure if we aim our satire at everybody, nobody can get too mad at us."

Don't Like Claire Plan

Schrieder, Stewart Balk

OTTAWA (CP) — Defensive captain Gary Schrieder and halfback Ron Stewart are reported balking at coach Frank Clair's plan to play them only during the first part of the coming Eastern Football Conference season.

Both will attend law courses at Osgoode Hall in Toronto this fall and Clair says they can't attend classes and play a full season of football for the Riders too.

Efforts to trade them failed because the Riders felt they weren't being offered players of the same calibre.

However, general manager George Terlep said Friday he hopes to make a deal for the two Canadians. Both players want to play a full season but Clair says the commuting between Ottawa and Toronto is too much to ask of them.

If trade talks peter out, Clair wants the two players to play with the Riders until they go to classes. They would be lost to Ottawa for the rest of the season.

Schrieder is reported to have told Clair he would rather drop out of football for the full season than play only the first half of the schedule. Stewart also is reported unhappy with the half season plan.

Auto Eyes On Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP)—Le Mans becomes the auto racing capital of the world today when 55 internationally famous drivers aerial their cars in the 30th running of the gruelling 24-hour endurance race.

On hand for the tough day and night test are racing's greatest, headed by world driving champion Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif.favorite to win the Le Mans classic for the third time.

Hill, in preliminary trials pushed his fire-engine red car around the 8.31-mile twisting track in clockings of 3:35.10 and 3:35.3. This was a best-lap average of about 130 miles an hour.

Hill is teamed with Belgium's Olivier Gendebien. A crowd of 250,000 is expected to jam the stands and chatter along the course when the drivers campaign for their cars in the celebrated Le Mans start.

Peter Ryan of Mont Tremblant, Que., is among the drivers to take part in the race, described as "the most dangerous in the world" by Britain's Stirling Moss.

At The Park

Top Film Stars in William Wyler's "Children's Hour."

Gathered to perform in "The Children's Hour," opening Sunday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre, through United Artists release, are Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine and James Garner with veteran actress Miriam Hopkins—and Fay Bainter co-starred. Twelve year old Karen Balkin makes her motion picture debut as the evil child.

Miss Hepburn, "The Children's Hour" is a reunion with William Wyler, the producer-director who guided her to Academy Award success in "Roman Holiday," her first American film. She since has been nominated two additional times for the coveted "Oscar," for Miss MacLaine this is her first motion picture under The Mirisch Company banner since "The Apartment," which brought her the Venice Film Festival prize and an Oscar nomination. James Garner, TV's "Maverick," makes the translation from the cowboy category into the front ranks of motion picture stardom. Miriam Hopkins and Fay Bainter share honours on both theatre way and in films, plus the friendship of William Wyler, for whom both agreed to make their first motion picture appearance in several years.

This is the first film made by William Wyler since "Ben-Hur"—a motion picture which, in addition to its spectacular popular success, also seems destined to become the most honored picture ever made.

Dodgers Sign New 'Bob Feller'

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers have outbid the other 19 major league clubs and paid a reported $100,000 bonus to sign a New York schoolboy hailed as a "new Bob Feller."

The bonus baby is Paul Speckenbach, a six - foot - two, 195-pound righthander who was grabbed immediately after his graduation from prep school Thursday night.

The boy's father announced the bonus at $100,000.

Rudy Ruter, the Los Angeles scout who closed the deal predicted the New York youngster would be pitching in the major leagues in three years.

"He reminds you a lot of Feller," Ruter said. "He has a tremendous fast ball. . . He has a curve ball good enough for the majors right now."

Astrological Forecast

For June 24th
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): What you do today should be done because you want to do it. Avoid trying to make "impression." Be yourself. Do what comes naturally. This way you achieve amazing results.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Yes, you have received promises, many of which have not been fulfilled But don't be bitter. Rather, take philosophical attitude. Listen to spiritual advisor. Learn from experience.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): If challenge is hurled at you, accept it. Much could occur today to add "spice" to your life. Be receptive. Better to "believe" today than to doubt. This becomes crystal-clear later.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Person you meet this day may eventually play significant roles in your life. Maintain sense of humor, and advantage.

Leo (July 2 to Aug. 21): No, this is not time for calling others to task. Be diplomatic. Bend over backwards to see all sides of story. Take generous, kindly view and rewards follow in quick order.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You may be in for surprises—whether it is pleasant or not depends on you. If you are truthful, the day is one in your favor. Otherwise, you may be sorry.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Sense of responsibility comes to fore. Don't "shove" it away. Recognize it and grow with the recognition. Excellent for rediscovering loved ones.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) What you do during minor crisis today could mean difference between happiness and ultimate gloom. Accept temporary setback with sense of humor and you will come out on top.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Pay attention to your own reactions. You could learn much about yourself. Self-revelation emphasized. Strive for independence, self-reliance. If you do, this could be red-letter day!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Visiting, short journeys, letter-writing, re-establishing contacts all favored today. Choose meaningful activities. Avoid scattering forces. Be sincere, and so will others!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Strive for practicality. For some time you have been riding a cloud. Now, get down to earth. What surrounds you can be faced and conquered! Realize this and throw away the chip on your shoulder.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Wake up. Good for outlining future plans. If you are willing to accept what is available you can take first step toward achievement. Otherwise, you drift, brood and accomplish nothing.

If today is your birthday . . . you are sympathetic, sensitive, appreciative of talents others possess. What you need is a bit of drive to your own abilities come of forefront.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Pisces, Aries, Taurus. Definite tendency unlikely to be made by world leader . . . move which captures headlines.

For June 25
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Others may advise you to hold back. But inner cycle indicates that your judgments, "hunches" are apt to be accurate. It adds up to the fact that you have to "bet" on yourself.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Yes, caution is advised. But not fear. Giving yourself completely to "right" situation brings gain, self-satisfaction. Day to push forward, to "buck" the odds.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Don't accept second best. Entire planetary pattern points to success if you insist on quality. If you think before you act, you come up with right answer!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Power on your side. Recent research, reading stand in your favor. You could come up with answer that saves associates money. So by all means, speak up.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Favourable lunar aspect today indicates long-range view could be of tremendous benefit. Let others brood. But, as for you . . . see the future, believe what you see and act accordingly.

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 22) Be honest if asked to express opinion. In long run, you win friends, admiration. Stick your neck out, if necessary. You will be happy you spoke truth!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be willing to "grow". Don't be afraid to change your mind. Best course today is to go with tide. Get the "feel" of the situation. Later, you can take definite action. Today . . . wait and listen!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) What appears great drawback today could actually turn out in your favor. In plain words, refuse to be discouraged by minor setback. Financial situation will improve. Be optimistic.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) What you think should be transformed into action. Don't be afraid of being called "emotional." If you hold back, frustration results. Speak your piece, and gain victory.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive to communicate. There is tendency to "clam up" today. Fight it. What you have to say is of value. You will be quite sorry if you permit opportunity to fly by.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure you say what you mean. Others may have alternate motives and they could achieve their ends by putting "words in your mouth." This becomes crystal-clear later.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Like Gemini, go after what you want despite admonitions by those who are fearful. Yes, there may be a question of "How much can I afford?" But today you can stretch some.

If today is your birthday your greatest battle is within yourself. Learn to respect your own abilities and the respect of others will follow.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Cycle up for Aries. Special word to Libra: How far you go in admitting error to yourself is indication of how far you are advancing toward maturity. Today look for those born in April and August to dominate news headlines.

DOCTORS SAY TIGHTER MONEY

tions and the wording of much of the remaining portion of the act removes the responsibility of treatment from the professions and places it in the hands of the government.

This jeopardizes the patient-doctor relationship, the college claims.

Premier Woodrow Lloyd says the government is prepared to introduce amendments which would further strengthen the principle of non-interference in the professional judgment of the individual physician.

Dr. E. W. Barootes of Regina, a member of the college's governing council, says the plan is totally unacceptable to the medical profession.

The act provides for:

Diagnosis and treatment of all medical disabilities and conditions; surgical services, including prior and postoperative care; complete obstetrical care; routine infant care; specialist services where a patient is referred to the specialist by another physician.

PROVIDES X-RAYS

Anaesthetic services; x-ray, radium and other diagnostic procedures; preventive medical services; various routine physical examinations, not those requested by a third party;

Physical therapy by a registered therapist on the referral of a physician; some dental surgical as well as medical treatment while on visits outside the province; and medical service for up to six months when a resident leaves Saskatchewan with the intention of residing elsewhere.

It does not provide payment for experimental treatment procedures for cancer, the costs provided by the province's cancer foundation, or the services of psychologists; drugs; ambulance; dentistry; provision of eye glasses; services provided to beneficiaries under the Workmen's Compensation Act or the Canadian medical legislation services provided to persons enrolled in federal fields and services in the senior government health plans, that register for premium assistance in the province.

Coverage is also not provided for persons in the province in receipt of up to $25 is provided for fulltime care in mental hospitals. Liability is provided for non-payment of premiums.

The majority of Saskatchewan's residents will qualify and will begin paying premiums July 1, 1963. The plan is expected to cost about $21,000,000 annually, with additional funds provided by a percentage of the premiums to be set by the commission.

TAX HELPS EXPENSES

No premium will be charged for the six-month July-December period this year. The sales tax collected since Jan. 1, 1962, is expected to provide enough revenues to meet the expenses for this year, says Medical Care Insurance Commission includes three doctors.

The commission has set 1963 premiums at $12 a year for single beneficiaries and $24 a year for families. They become due in November, along with 1963 hospital insurance payments of $24 for single beneficiaries and $48 family premiums.

Registered hospital insurance card holders will be automatically registered, the commission says. A beneficiary will be given a choice between any of his dependents to all services provided for under the act.

The commission has also prescribed procedures for secrecy clauses, establishment of a panel of physicians, dentists and physical therapists to which they provide insured services, rules of payment and procedures for submitting bill.

Mediation of disputes over payments to doctors will be dealt with by a medical assessment board, composed of physicians. An appeal board also will be established, with judges and government representation and a neutral chairman.

TIGHTER MONEY

the government's budgetary deficit and an improvement in the deficit position of Canada's international balance of payments — are apparently aimed at increasing confidence among foreign investors and easing downward pressures on the dollar's exchange rate,

Higher interest rates would tend to help achieve the same result. Thursday's rise of nearly, one-half percentage point in the interest rate on treasury bills to 4.92 per cent was one of several indications that interest rates are rising.

LIQUIDITY DECLINES

This has been accompanied by a decline in the liquid position of chartered banks — the amount of liquid assets which stand behind the banks' deposit liabilities.

A bank's liquid position determines whether or not it can make new loans, since loan-leading increases its deposit liabilities.

Banks must maintain cash reserves — currency in their tills plus deposits with the Bank of Canada — no lower than eight per cent of their liabilities to depositors. On June 13 the banks' cash reserves had averaged 8.08 per cent. Bank of Canada report Thursday showed that in the last week the central bank had added $10 million to one or more banks to bring cash reserves up to the required level.

Since early last year bank lending has been rising rapidly, except for a pause during the late fall and winter months. On June 13 the latest figure reported in the general loans of all chartered banks was $7,025,000,000, up $1,025,000,000 from a year earlier. Since Jan. 31 there had been an increase of $663,000,000.

There is some indication that the banks have had to sell off some of their holdings of government bonds in order to meet their loan demand. This did during the 1959 expansion of the bank credit that preceded the monetary tightness of mid-1959.

PLAN DESIGNED

with a peacetime record deficit of $791,400,000.

The government embarks on a program of increased spending to move closer to a balanced budget. The $5,675,000,000 defence budget is one of the items it cites as part of the entire government budget.

Another $1,000,000 goes into debt charges, various welfare and veterans payments and statutory payments to provinces which would be most difficult to reduce.

Mr. Diefenbaker's reference to the government would not do Sunday — no income controls—apparently was aimed at Walter E. Harris, minister of money from Canada by implication fearful of impending controls.

The government's announced intention to improve Canada's international balance of payments, which has run a perennial large deficit, would appear one of the underlying causes of the present exchange rate difficulty.

NEEDS CAPITAL INFLOW

The balance of payments deficit resulting from the excess of merchandise trade and foreign payments on such things as tourist travel and interest earnings has been covered in the past by inflows of foreign capital.

In the first quarter of this year there was no net inflow of capital, and a $363,000,000 payments deficit was financed by selling U.S. dollars and drawing exchange reserves.

Former Bank of Canada governor James E. Coyne repeatedly urged a reduction in the payments deficit to reduce Canadian dependence on foreign capital.

In April and May the exchange reserves fell by $216,000,000 to $1,422,000,000 on May 31.

Published reports have estimated the decline in reserves this month at between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000. The government has neither confirmed nor denied these figures. The status of the reserves normally is reported only at the end of each month.

BOREDOM SUICIDE FACTOR

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)— A New Hampshire psychiatrist heads a group called Rescue, Inc., says 40 per cent of the suicide attempts in Boston next year will be by bored housewives. The Golden Years

Has Good Ideas on Retirement But Math Just a Little Weak

By THOMAS COLLINS

Some Great St. James Street residents wonder why the railroad had to put its tracks down the side of the street, but not Steven Wager and Janice Balyz. They've decided the railroad foresaw the need for a good place to make mud pies, and built the tracks there for that purpose. Whether the CNR intended it that way or not, the tracks do make a good place to pack mud pies.

Here is the financial story of a man who has to retire at age 62 on an income of $62 a month.

He can do it, if he is smart, because he has a couple of extra resources and a 39-year-old wife who approves.

"We have savings of $21,000," the wife says, "and we have two small houses fully paid for. We would live in one house and rent out the other, planning to use the rent to take care of taxes, insurance and upkeep on both houses and the heat bill in the house we occupy.

"My husband's retirement income will be $62. We have a new car that is paid for, paid-up life insurance, and a paid-up cemetery plot.

"The house we will occupy is not in a fashionable section so our cost of living will not be heavy. I have figured that $50 a week will take care of food, clothing and what other things we need.

"Therefore, if we take $110 a month from our savings until my own pension starts, we can do fine for three years. At that point, with our two incomes totalling $186 a month, we will see what is best to do.

"Is our financing sound? Can we make it?"

NOT TOO SOUND

The answer to this couple is that they can make it. But their financing is not too sound, and their arithmetic is weak, as is often is with people now approaching retirement.

The couple, as a matter of fact, is quite wealthy. There are several ways they could manage a safe retirement. One way would be this:

Take $17,000 of the $21,000 savings and invest it at 4½ per cent (through a reputable investment broker or in a savings and loan association). This would return $765 a year or about $63 a month. When added to the husband's $62, it would give $125 a month.

The wife says they can live on $50 a week. That means $2,600 a year or $217 a month — $62 a month more than the $155 income. So, out of the $4,000 they have left over from the savings, they should draw $62 a month, which would total $744 a year or $2,232 in the three years before the wife's government pension starts. Meanwhile, there would be over $1,700 left out of the $4,000 for emergencies.

When the wife's pension starts, that $74 a month plus the $62, plus the $63 should make everything lovely . . . with no more withdrawals from the savings.

DAY OF REFIGURING

There could come a day of refiguring on this plan. An expensive illness by either the husband or wife could wreck everything. To avoid that, the couple should take out some type of disaster medical insurance, maybe a policy with a deductible clause for minor illness.

The death of the husband, and the loss of his $62 income-also could bring problems. The wife would have left only the $63 from investments and her $74 pension, for a total of $137 a month — hardly enough even with two houses. The husband can help this situation by going to his life insurance company and arranging for a policy to pay his widow an annuity for life. The size of the annuity would depend on the face value of the policy, but even $20 or $25 a month from this source would see her through.

Coming down to essentials in retirement, as this couple is prepared to do, usually proves to be a happier life than most people think it could ever be. Material possessions and luxuries are nice. So are the simpler things when you get to know them.

Strong Liberal Choice Shown In Soldier Vote

Gives Party Two Additional Seats

OTTAWA (CP)—A strong Liberal preference by armed forces voters gave the Liberal party two additional Commons seats at the expense of two Progressive Conservatives, one a cabinet minister, whose election had been indicated by the count of civilian ballots in the June 18 election.

The service vote, announced Sunday by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay, gave comeback victories for Liberals Richard Cashin, 25 - year - old lawyer, in the Newfoundland riding of St. John's West and Harry Harley, 35-year-old former army medical officer, in Ontario's Halton seat.

Under the pre-service vote-the Liberal party captured 63.5 per cent of the Soldier-General William J. Browne in St. John's West and fellow-Conservative A. J. Best in Halton.

Commons standings, discounting the possibility of successful recount appeals, now are:

VOTES JULY 16

The deferred vote is in Stormont, Eastern Ontario riding where the death of the Liberal candidate put off the election until July 16.

Mr. Browne, 65-year-old veteran of three terms in the Commons and two in the Newfoundland legislature, became the fifth member of the Diefenbaker-Diefenbaker's cabinet to lose his seat.

Stale Secretary Dorion, Mines Minister Flynn, Postmaster-General William Hamilton and Works Minister Walker were defeated June 18.

The results made no change in the minority government situation, reminded most of the three opposition parties in the Commons still is required of defeat Mr. Diefenbaker's administration.

The 96,179 service votes were cast in Canada and overseas between June 11 and June 16 by servicemen, their wives and patients in veterans' hospitals.

The favored Liberal candidates in 297 of the 262 constituencies. Only two ridings elect two members apiece—Cochrane North and Athabasca. NDP candidate in the riding where no Liberal was running, Grace MacInnis in Vancouver-Kingsway.

RELEASE SOLDIER

SAIGON (AP)—The United States army man, George F. Fryett, Jr., missing from his post since last December, was released by his Communist captors Sunday.

HIGHER TARIFFS PUT ON HALF OF IMPORTS

Luxury Goods Will Cost More

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher tariffs were slapped Sunday on goods that account for more than half the annual $6,000,000,000 in Canadian imports.

Singled out for higher - duty treatment as part of the government's austerity program were luxury goods, general consumer items which are also made in Canada, which people can wait until later to buy, and a long list of what the government called "less essential" industrial imports.

All told, the higher tariffs will apply to $3,100,000,000 worth of annual imports as the government erected a tall wall to keep purchases from abroad and thus help correct the emergency balance of payment situations.

TO THREE GROUPS

The increases apply in three main groups:

1. An extra 15 per cent in duty is added to imported luxury goods worth $150,000,000 annually — including liquor, wine, beer, candy, guns and rifles, refrigerators, some carpets, jewelry, silverware, perfume, oriental rugs, and some foods such as pate de fois.

2. A 10 - per - cent tariff increase was decreed on $850,000,000 worth of annual imports that include cars, clothing, furniture, radio and television sets, sporting goods, toys, soap powders, chinaware, plastic goods, paper manufactures, advertising matter, film, biscuits, candied fruits, sanitary ware and tile.

3. On a much larger group of items valued at $2,500,000,000 a year the increase was five per cent. The group includes machinery, electrical apparatus, textile fabrics, some paper and paper products, pipes and tubes, and similar items.

There are 33 tariff items in the first group, 44 in the second and 69 in the third.

Price increases are bound to result from the higher duty on most, if not all, of the goods. In some cases the tariff increases probably will make it cheaper to buy Canadian.

A drafting lease negotiated from abroad would help cut the country's balance of payments deficit, which in the first three months of 1962 was $363,000,000. Part of this was a $45,000,000 trade deficit.

Instead of raising existing tariff rates across the board on the goods affected, the government has worked this way.

It has in effect wiped out the Commonwealth preferential tariffs and the higher most - favored - nation rates on all the items involved, and substituted the still higher but rarely-used general tariff.

Then it will refund in advance a portion of this tariff increase in order to have a system of

India, Canada Members Charge Communist Plot

LONDON (AP) — Indian and Canadian members of the three-nation control commission have accused Communist Viet Nam and Poland of seeking to overthrow the pro-Western government of South Viet Nam, Britain disclosed today.

The third member of the truce control commission, Poland, dissented from the Indian-Canadian charges and blamed the violence still in progress on export—from breaching the 1954 armistice agreement.

The British government, on its own initiative, released the terms of the long report prepared by the international control commission after Russia and Britain agreed to the Indo - Chinese peace conference and have special responsibility for ensuring observance of the armistice agreements.

CRITICIZE GOVERNMENT

The Indian and Canadian members also criticized the Saigon government for breaching the 1954 Geneva armistice agreement by "receiving the increased military aid from the United States."

Queen Mother of Belgians Visits Music Prodigy in Yonkers Home

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A great love for music brought 85 - year - old Queen Mother Elisabeth of the Belgians to the modest frame home of Joey Alfidi, a 13-year-old music prodigy, Sunday.

After hearing the boy play a Beethoven sonata, Queen Mother said: "He is a genius . . . I enjoyed it very much."

To which Joey replied: "This is the greatest thrill of my life. It's a great experience for everyone."

Then the Queen Mother joined a dozen guests for a typical American luncheon of lasagna and green salad in the living room of Alfidi's apartment on the first floor of a two-family house.

The dowager and her young friend first met 1½ years ago in Brussels where she also composes and conducts, was performing at the Palace of Pine Arts, He stayed as a house guest of the royal family and later the two corresponded.

Last week, Joey telephoned the queen and invited her to visit him. She said she would "if my condition and protocol allows."

Accompanied by her secretary and lady-in-waiting, the queen mother arrived at noon and was given two dozen red roses by Yonkers Mayor John Spano. He proclaimed Queen Mother Elisabeth Day in the city.

The boy's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alfidi, met their royal visitor on the lawn. Mrs. Alfidi was carrying an infant daughter named after the Queen.

The queen mother and Joey embraced and she said she had driven in from New York City "just to see Joey, Joe Alfidi."

Before lunch, Joey played a number of pieces he had composed especially for her. They included Fantasia and Romance for Violin and Piano in which he was accompanied by a violinist.

"He was wonderful . . . wonderful," said the queen mother and she kissed his cheek after each number.

Quebec Socred Leader Says Diefenbaker Should Resign

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, says Prime Minister Diefenbaker should find a satisfactory solution to Canada's financial problems or resign.

Mr. Caouette's comment was made in his hometown of Rouyn, Que., was perhaps the strongest criticism Sunday of the Progressive Conservative government's newly announced austerity program.

Mr. Caouette, Credit party leader, Robert Thompson, visiting in Detroit, said the program was "too late with too little." He was echoing NDP National Leader T. C. Douglas, who said he was convinced many of the measures announced were "too little and too late" and would aggravate unemployment.

In Ottawa, Liberal Leader Pearson reserved judgment while expressing hope the program would be effective.

U.S. WILL AID CANADA SOLVE DOLLAR PROBLEM

Will Provide Two-Thirds of Loan

WASHINGTON (CP) — Although its own export drive likely will be hurt, the United States has moved swiftly to head a massive international effort to help Canada out of its dollar troubles.

It will provide almost two-thirds of the $1,050,000,000 in loans and credits placed at Canada's disposal to bolster a sagging dollar exchange rate, the United States has concluded that Canada's temporary austerity program will choke off some U.S. goods from the Canadian market.

Nevertheless, a U.S. treasury spokesman said Sunday there will be no American attempt to seek tariff compensation from Canada, although the whole issue of compensation for trade losses will be discussed at Geneva under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The spokesman suggested the austerity measures — particularly the extra duty of up to 15 per cent on imports—may be removed within one year. If they last longer, U.S. policy would be reviewed and the U.S. attitude on compensation might stiffen.

In general, the U.S. government feels the combination of massive international financial aid and austerity measures now should crush the speculative raid on the Canadian dollar.

ADDS SOME SECURITY

At the same time, the Canadian pledge to take long-term constructive steps to help maintain a hospitable climate for foreign investment adds a measure of security for some $18,000,000,000 worth of U.S. investments in Canada.

While the spokesman suggested the emergency measures will be sufficient to restore confidence of foreign investors in Canada, reports he indicated the United States will be affected in several ways: Through the higher import level, the rush in Canadian tourist import advances and through higher Canadian interest rates attracting more foreign capital.

The United States has its dollar problems of its own. It has been seeking to boost exports to reduce an international payments deficit attracting gold abroad but it has been trying to keep American capital at home to reduce overseas holdings of dollars which could be converted into gold.

But import of the Canadian financial structure also is important because Canada is the top market for U.S. exports, at $1,250,000,000 annually.

Many Victims of Fatal Seizures Have Hearts 'Too Good to Die'

CHICAGO (AP)—Many heart attack victims actually had hearts which were "too good to die," a doctor said Sunday.

Prompt, expert help might have brought 25 per cent of them back from death, said Dr. Morris Wellborne of Los Angeles.

He urged that hospitals set up special units to see whether all heart patients could be kept under constant watch, with electronic devices or TV instantly warning of any new attack. Doctors and nurses could rush to the patient to give drugs, heart massage, artificial respiration or other treatment.

Most sudden fatal heart attacks occur outside hospitals, on the street, during exertion or during sleep and die within minutes for revival of the heart are lost.

In hospital, during convalescence from an initial heart attack, a second fatal one is ever - present threat, Dr. Wellborne told the Fields of Los Angeles said in a report to the American Medical Association's annual meeting.

If heart patients are scientifically watched through the first warning signs of a new attack can be missed or aid could arrive too late, Dr. Wellborne said.

The coronary care unit should include all patients recovering from heart attacks so nurses can keep close watch, he said.

Belt-Tightening Plan Announced By Diefenbaker

Requests Canadians To Aid Austerity Moves

OTTAWA (CP) — A belt-tightening program of widespread tariff increases, government economy and higher interest rates has been decreed to overcome Canada's financial emergency and save the devalued Canadian dollar.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Sunday the program — all except the interest rate rise — was approved by the cabinet and Canada has lined up $1,050,000,000 in foreign cash loans and stand-by credits to bolster Canada's shrinking foreign exchange reserves. This included a $300,000,000 loan from the international monetary fund.

He called on Canadians to support "in a spirit of national purpose" these austerity measures:

1. Immediate temporary tariff surcharges of five, 10 and 15 per cent on a range of $3,000,000,000 in annual imports—more than half of the country's import purchases—but not affecting another $2,500,000,000 of imports such as basic foods, raw materials and industrial components.

2. Cuts in government spending amounting to $250,000,000 in a full year.

3. Sharp reductions in duty-free exemptions on foreign purchases brought home by Canadians by returning tourists, except for tourists already abroad.

PEGS INTEREST RATE-

In a related step "to protect the external value" of the dollar, the Bank of Canada pegged its interest rate at six per cent, compared with last week's floating rate of 5.17 per cent and the previous week's 4.18 per cent.

This was apparently designed to boost interest rates generally and attract foreign capital back into Canada. It was seen as a signal for the chartered banks to curb their lending in a return to a tight money situation.

Mr. Diefenbaker predicted the economy program would chop $450,000,000 in a full year from the government's budgetary deficit and produce a $300,000,000 annual reduction in the country's gross on current international balance - of - payments account, currently running at $1,250,000,000 annually.

The prime minister's statement, issued at Sunday's avoid market upheavals, followed two straight days of cabinet meetings in the wake of last Monday's general election.

The statement reflected the dedication of the size of the problems and the near-failure of capital, which normally enhances international payments deficits, had piled up since the "very recently" capital started flowing the other way, out of the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker called it "an exchange emergency" and in-

No Change Yet In Deadlock Over Medicare

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's compulsory medical care insurance plan goes into operation next Sunday.

The same day, July 1, the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons intends to start providing only hospital-based emergency service outside the medical care scheme.

This situation faced the provincial cabinet and the 10-member governing council of the college as they prepared to resume discussions today in their dispute over the medical care plan.

The closed meetings, started Friday. When they adjourned Premier Woodrow Lloyd and Dr. H. E. Dalgleish of Saskatoon, president of the college, said:

"We have had some enlightening discussion."

Dr. Dalgleish said:

"Up until now we have been exploring and submitting ideas from both parties."

BOTH STAND FIRM

He and Mr. Lloyd said there will be a resumption to change either side's plans.

Premier Lloyd said before the meetings started that the compulsory, prepaid and comprehensive plan will go into operation July 1.

Dr. Dalgleish said last week the college would tell the government it must extensively revise the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act.

"The new act must be an insurance mechanism, not a device to control," he said.

Mr. Lloyd said the CCF government would amend or delete two sections of the act which the doctors maintain give the administering Medical Care Insurance Commission power to dictate to doctors and control the profession and medical care. He indicated he did not think this offer was sufficient for the doctors.

"They disapprove of a public medical care plan period," the premier said.

Designed to cover nearly all Saskatchewan's 925,000 residents, the plan is being financed by a portion of the five-per-cent sales tax and a premium charge of income tax, a corporation tax based on the corporation tax and personal premiums.

Heavy Damages But No Injuries In Collision

There were no serious injuries as the result of a two car collision at the intersection of highway 401 and Wallbridge Road around 5.30 p.m. Sunday evening.

A car driven by Thomas James O'Neill of 54½ Alexander Street, Belleville, was proceeding north on the Wallbridge Road and is alleged to have pulled out into the path of a car driven by Arthur John Quast of 156 Coe Street, Belleville, who was eastbound on highway 401.

Constable J. E. McAllister of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Belleville, investigating officer, said the O'Neill vehicle was struck broadside by the eastbound Quast vehicle.

Point Anne Boy Drowns at Outlet Park

A 10-year-old Point Anne boy, Murray Edward Sedore, son of Mr. Ralph Norman Sedore, drowned at the Provincial Outlet Park in Prince Edward County around 6.30 p.m. Sunday evening.

Provincial Police here said, the boy was one of a group of children who had gone to the park for a picnic.

He was seen going back over the small mound about 6.15 in the direction of where their car was parked. Shortly after, Mr. Sedore began to round up the rest of the children and when he reached his car, found his son was not there.

Mr. Sedore then returned to the beach where he noticed a group of people standing near the water. When Mr. Sedore reached them he found the park attendants giving his son artificial respiration, but the boy failed to respond.

Murray had been pulled from the water by Ronald Hull, also of Point Anne.

Dr. Leroy Hall of Picton was called to the scene and had the boy removed to Picton Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival by coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond.

Murray was born at Point Anne where he attended public school and the Point Anne United Church and Sunday School. He also sang in the Church choir and was a member of the 6th Cub Pack of Centennacle United Church.

Besides his parents he is survived by four brothers, Randy, Hugh, Kevan and Charles, all at home.

HIGHER TARIFFS

standard rates of import surcharge. This way, the existing structure of tariff preferences is kept intact.

Finance Department officials said Sunday night there is no way of knowing how much—if at all—retail prices will increase on the consumer goods involved. It depends on whether prices at which goods are brought in remain the same, and whether retailers are prepared to absorb part or all of the increase.

The problem is similar to trying to calculate the effect of the devalued dollar on prices of imported goods. This in itself represented a general tariff gain of close to 10 per cent.

A secondary effect on prices will be felt from the 11-per-cent federal sales tax. It is applied on the price of an article after the duty is paid—not before. Thus the tax component of an article's price will go up. Similarly, the amount on which provincial sales taxes are applied will be higher.

John M. Haig Dies Suddenly At His Home

Stricken with a heart attack shortly after the supper hour on Saturday, John MacLean Haig, 161 George Street, died suddenly at his home. After enjoying his evening meal, Mr. Haig complained of pains and went in to lie down on the chesterfield. He called to his wife shortly after to get his physician but before she arrived he had passed on.

Mr. Haig was born in Campbellford, 54 years ago, being the son of the late Doctor and Mrs. Andrew Haig and had resided in this city for the past 27 years. He attended schools in Campbellford and Trenton and then Queen's University and after graduation worked in Toronto before coming to this city. On coming to the city he worked with the Bell Telephone Company and then with the insurance business and then for a time was yard foreman at the Canadian Coat Company. Of late he had been connected with Barclay and Crawford and on Thursday last received his licence after successfully passing his examinations.

He was a prolific writer and to date two books, "Mystery of the Elms" and "Condemned" have both been published and gives an enthusiastic reception by the reading public. When the Second World War broke out, Jack Haig enlisted with the Hasty Pees in 1939 and served with distinction through many engagements of the Regiment. After his discharge he never lost his love for the veteran and joined the Army, Navy and Air Force Association and took an active interest in their deliberations and decisions.

John Haig was a bon companion, had a wide circle of friends in every walk of life and was a kind husband and loving father. He was a member of the Conservative Association and was active in Provincial and Federal elections, but was always mindful of the views of others. He loved and made many friends, who will sincerely grieve at his sudden death.

He was an adherent of the Unitarian Church and is survived by his wife, the former E. Irene Seymour, probably better known as Harriett Stevens of radio, one son, C. MacLean Haig of the London Free Press, one brother, Mayor A. McLean Haig and was a nephew of Mrs. Mary Sherk of Toronto.

Bowling Notes

Six rinks of men's doubles journeyed to Campbellford on Saturday to take part in the Canada Packers tournament and all came home empty-handed. The rinks that made the journey were Bill VanTassel and Austin Watkin, Ken Ashley and Bill Wright, Gern Dobbs and Jerry Hyde, Jack Torey and Gordon Watkin, Gordon Vince and Walter Elliott and Bert Batchelor and Claude Tice.

Jack Doran, a former resident of this city and Ted Bernard of Stirling were the winners of the trophy and the accompanying prizes with a score of 45 plus seven, while Bill Shoppard and William Irvine of Colborne were second with 39 plus seven. George Free and Wib Kingston of Campbellford finished in third place with 39 points, while H. Jaggs and Bill Duncan of Kingston were fourth with 36 points.

The two-game high score was won by Ali Todd and Morley Gault of Kingston with 30 plus nine points and the one-game high winner was Walter Cable and William Dumon Sr. also of Kingston with a score of 35 plus three points. There were 30 rinks in competition drawn from Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Madoc, Campbellford, Stirling and Brighton. The greens were lightning fast and the bowlers enjoyed a delicious dinner served by the women's section of the club. The weather was delightful and the competition really keen.

A rink of Ken Ashley, Bill Wright, Bruce Miller with Gordon Watkin as skip repeated a rink winners in the district play on Sunday afternoon and evening on the local greens. Jerry Hyde was the convener. The doubles competition will be played next Sunday 8th, while the singles competition will be played the following Sunday. The Colts rink of Bill Hunter, Sandy Tuck and Wally Lavergne were declared winners of the district and will compete in the zone finals. They had no competition at the district level.

There were five rinks entered in the competition and in the first draw a rink of Bert Batchelor, Claude D. Tice, Austin Watkin with Jerry Hyde as skip of Belleville defeated a rink of William Finley, Ross Peacock, Robert Baker with Horace Ormsbee as skip of Trenton 24-14, while another Belleville rink of John Avery, George McKee, Bill VanTassel with Percy Graham as skip defeated another Trenton rink of Clint Mitts, K. Chouinard, Bill Boyce with Bill Fuller as skip, 18-10. In the second draw of the game in the last two ends The Watkin rink drew a type 1 end the next round and then met the Hyde rink, which they clobbered 28-3. The Hyde rink picked up the ghost with a couple of ends in the first end of the game then took on the Graham foursome and administered the same dose to them, defeating them 20-6 with still a couple of ends to play. The Watkin rink will now enter the zone finals to be played in this city early in July. At that time four district winners will be on hand to play a round robin series for the right to enter the Provincial finals to be played at Brampton this year.

The members of the local club will enjoy a pot luck supper and a mixed liner at the clubhouse this evening. Everyone will bring their own food and then it will be tabled for everyone to enjoy. There will be plenty of prizes for the bowling after which the members will enjoy a game of bridge or crib-bage before calling it an evening. It should be lots of fun.

Hasty Pees May Send Band to Parade in '64

If you're watching the 1964 Tournament of Roses parade out California this way don't be surprised if you see a familiar band in the colorful procession.

It will be the band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment resplendent in their scarlet-and-blue pith-helmeted uniforms of the late 19th century infantry regiments.

Said band director Corporal J. Crawford, "the band has been invited to apply for the 1963 Tournament of Roses. Twenty bands will be selected from those making applications."

The tournament committee feels that the Hasty Pees Band is that of a famous Canadian regiment and in its brilliant uniform paraphernalia would make a colorful entry for the tournament.

But there's a slight roadblock. It seems the band must pay its own travelling and living expenses. It is estimated the cost would be some $5,000.

With this in mind, said Corporal Crawford, the band will pass up the 1963 parade, but will apply for the 1964 New Year's Day procession classic.

"This extension," said the band director, "would give us time to raise the funds. If this is possible the band will certainly appear in the Roses procession on New Year's Day 1964."

The event was also filmed by representatives from the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity.

Petrosian Leads Chess Tourney As End Near

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (CP-AP)—Tigran Petrosian of Soviet Armenia took over sole possession of first place with one round remaining in the international candidates chess tournament.

Petrosian, the only unbeaten player in the 28-round tournament, moved into top billing with the master's role to win the competition by gaining a draw with Bobby Fischer of the United States Saturday night.

The only player with a chance to stay even with Petrosian is Bent Larsen of Denmark. Now it when he was beaten. Paul Keres of Russia lost to Pal Benko of the United States and resumed game that went 47 moves.

Petrosian, with eight wins and 19 draws, has a total of 37 points. Keres is 16½.

Five Are Hurt In Two Mishaps On Highway 33

TRENTON — A two-car accident on Highway 33, just south of the Murray Canal swing bridge around 9.45 o'clock last night, sept four persons to Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment, included in the list of injured was a 23-months' old baby girl, Karen Ruth Harris of Port Hope. Others injured were her father Jackie Harris, 23, Mrs. Harris, Violet Vicky Fidler, both of Trenton.

Provincial police at Brighton say that from information given at the scene of the crash, which resulted in damages estimated at $1,500, Mr. Maillet, driving a '56 motor car turned left to enter a private driveway and was struck by the north-bound car, a '60 Ford, driven by Constable John Blake Harris of 13 Second Drive, Port Hope.

Around 8.30 p.m. Friday, a three-car crash in the same area, closer to the Murray Canal, resulted in a passenger in one of the cars, Christopher Bertram of the RCAF Station, Trenton, being treated in the hospital's emergency for lacerations to his right knee.

The three vehicles involved, driven by Charles Hazelwood of R.R. 1, Carrying Place, Colonel James Ling, Mobile Village, west of Trenton and William Sylvester O'Connor of the latter, sustained damages estimated at approximately $1,000.

Police say that Hazelwood and Ling had stopped for a line of traffic as the bridge was being swung; O'Connor rounded a curve, observed that the bridge was swung and slamfisted his brakes, which failed to hold. O'Connor's car plowed into the rear of the Hazelwood vehicle, pushing it ahead into the Ling vehicle, rear. All cars were north-bound.

Neighbor Wakes Sleeping Trio In Burning Home

TRENTON — Saturday night a fire on the Wooler Road north of Trenton destroyed a barn and a chicken house and gutted a two-storey frame house, owned by Yat Yee Fanning and Toni Yakozic. Fire which broke out shortly before 11 p.m. was first discovered by a neighbor, Wayne Foley, who smashed a window in the house and awakened Mr. Zipancic, 24, and his wife Anne, 23. The couple dressed hurriedly and carried their six-month-old son, Edward to safety. Mr. Yakozic and his wife, Fanning, are spending the weekend with friends in Oshawa.

The fire, which is believed to have started in an out-building, quickly jumped to the roof of the house at the front of the property, and seemed to break out simultaneously in the hay-filled barn at the rear and spread from there to the nearby chicken house. While at the back of the chicken house was burning, Mr. Zipancic and two of his friends, entered the building at the front and removed 60-odd grown chickens, which they placed in a large cardboard container. Seconds after the barn was completely ended, the chicken house became a blazing inferno.

Firemen from Trenton were forced to draw water from a small pond across the road from the property by means of an auxiliary pump. At the height of the fire, two hundreds of spectators attracted to the scene by the rosy glow in the sky from the blaze five minutes, hampered the progress of an additional fire truck called in.

Lost in the fire were a considerable amount of hay a power lawn mower, blacksmithing equipment, and five partly-grown pigs. Furniture in the house was destroyed. Insurance on the house and contents totalled $10,000.) There was no insurance on the barn.

The owners and their families are staying with friends until living accommodations can be found.

DRAW ON RESERVES

Canada can draw on the IMF for $1,000,000,000 in dollar, paying back borrowings over a period of perhaps one to three years.

In addition the U.S. federal reserve system has also guaranteed a policy of holding the currencies to offset pressure on the U.S. dollar, also has agreed to hold $772,000,000 in U.S. dollars, thus turning over $250,000,000 in U.S. currency to the Bank of Canada.

The Bank of England is providing $1,000,000,000 ($1,000,000,000 in the form of U.S. dollars) to back the Canadian dollar, thus assistic about this latter credit, figuring the less the Canadian dollars the less chance will have the bank will be buying American gold.

Most unusual of all is the $600,000,000 pledged by the Export-Import Bank. This institution usually makes loans to finance exports but officials said the credit will be placed at the disposal of the Canadian government.

A bank official said that if the Canadian government requested the credit, the bank would have to borrow the money from the U.S. treasury.

Supreme Court Rules Hotel Broke Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the CPR broke Ontario labor laws when Toronto's Royal York Hotel fired its striking employees last year.

The court, in a unanimous decision, upheld judgments by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario High Court and the Ontario Court of Appeal that the CPR-owned hotel, in firing strikers, committed an offence under the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

The Ontario Appeal Court's judgment ordered said Mr. Justice Ritrale T. S. Elmore of Toronto to convict the hotel of breaking the act and to impose "appropriate penalties."

Picton Sea Cadets Enjoy Flight on RCAF 'Yukon'

PICTON (Staff) — Twenty members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Hallowell" went aloft for an hour flight aboard a RCAF "Yukon" transport plane Sunday afternoon in company with Sea Cadets from the corps "Trent" and "Quinte" of Trenton and Belleville respectively. The flight was arranged by Mayor Jim McDonald of Trenton, chairman of the Trenton Sea Cadet Committee.

Prior to the flight the 90 cadets and officers attended a church parade in Trenton, led by the new drum and bugle band of CSCC "Trent." Threatening weather held off long enough for the parade through the streets of Trenton. The salute was taken by Wing Commander T. E. Craig of RCAF Station Trenton.

The local sea cadets were under the command of Lt. Fred Rose, commanding officer of "Hallowell," who will be retiring next month after four years in command.

Following the church parade the cadets paraded back to the Community Gardens. En route the salute was taken by Wing Commander T. K. Craig of RCAF Station.

Following a meal at the Community Gardens provided by the Women's Auxiliary the close to 90 cadets and officers went for a flight aboard a Yukon aircraft, an experience which was enjoyed by all.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — James E. Coyne, former governor of the Bank of Canada, proposed in his Finance Minister Fleming Feb. 16, 1961, a temporary tariff surcharge of 10 per cent on most imports.

Sunday the government, which sought to fire Mr. Coyne last year for what it said were his "restrictionist" policies, imposed temporary tariff surcharges ranging from five to 15 per cent on more than half of Canada's imports.

Mr. Coyne resigned July 13, 1961, after the predominantly Liberal Senate struck down the government bill to dismiss him. On June 20 last year, Mr. Coyne disclosed a 24 - page memorandum he handed to Mr. Fleming four months previously.

Here said the proposals in the memorandum would cut unemployment to less than four per cent of the labor force within one year, balance the federal budget "probably within two years" and wipe out Canada's international balance - of - payments deficit within three years.

Mr. Coyne also proposed a three-per-cent increase in personal and corporate income tax rates. The government has received no increases, at least at this time.

In his June 20, 1961, budget speech, Mr. Fleming said the government believed a substantial budget deficit could promote economic expansion and that such a policy would be more effective with flexibility of interest and exchange rates.

Finance Minister Diefenbaker announced measures to reduce the deficit and the Bank of Canada announced a fixed bank rate of six per cent.

Then the failure of Mr. Coyne and the government, the bank governor had said repeatedly that Canada was living beyond its means.

Now, depending on imports of foreign goods in excess of expo rts, Canadians "have been living on other peoples' savings, savings and capitals," Mr. Coyne said once. "Excessive."

CONSTITUTES DRUG

"To rely on deficit 'financing' to use a very dangerous drug," he said in another speech.

Mr. Fleming in his 1961 budget said: "This is a time for caution and Mr. Coyne were simply not compatible."

The minister said that when Mr. Coyne spoke of "living within our means," he really was inviting Canadians to "live beyond our resources in a private restrictionist world of our own."

"As a member of the government one of the great tradi-

Imported Goods Likely to Rise By New Edict

OTTAWA (CP)—Prices on a wide range of imported goods are likely to rise because of the higher import duties announced Sunday.

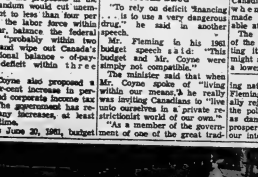
But the question of how much prices will rise—and on which of the imported goods affected is difficult to answer, financial department officials said.

The problem is similar to trying to calculate the price increases that resulted from the dollar devaluation, when the dollar was pegged 7½ cents below par—that it meant in effect a corresponding tariff on imported goods.

The effects of the higher duties will depend to a large extent on the amount of retail competition in selling individual articles.

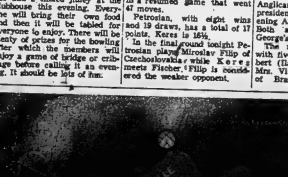
As a hypothetical example, if a bottle of scotch whisky could have been imported on Saturday for $4 and sold to the consumer for $5, the extra 15-per-cent duty announced Sunday would mean an added 60 cents on the import price.

Thus the retail price of the scotch would rise to $5.60 unless provincial liquor boards absorb part or all of the increase, or the foreign distillers lower their price. There is no domestic competition—scotch is not produced in Canada.



COMPETITION ENTERS

But where there is competition the situation could be different. Consider an American-made refrigerator, which before on Saturday could sell for $400 after adding it across the border priced at $300. As of today the import price goes up by 15 per cent to $345.



Will the store increase the $400 retail price by $45 to $445? It will have to consider whether Canadians will pay that much, when comparable Canadian-made refrigerators are available at somewhat lower prices. The store might absorb part of the increase itself, thus getting its profit margin. Or it might ask the U.S. supplier for a lower price.

Big nations of the world,* Mr. Fleming added, if categorically reject any such invitation; the policies involved would be as damaging to our domestic prosperity as they would be to our international influence."

* Meaning nations of the world.

Russia May Arm India

One of the minor controversies of these hectic days centres around the possibility of India buying jet fighter planes from Russia.

With India and Communist China in the midst of a border dispute, one might have expected that the howls of agonized protest would have originated in Pekin, over the possibility of Chinese Reds being slaughtered by planes manufactured by their Russian comrades.

Not so. All the protests—or at least all that we have read about—have emanated from this side of the Iron and Bamboo Curtains. It has been in London and Washington that the prospective purchase has caused uneasiness.

One reason advanced by the British for urging India to reconsider her plans is that the Indian defence forces have much British equipment and the Indian purchase of MiGs might give Russian technicians instructing Indians in their use an opportunity to pry into British secrets. The best one can say for this argument is that it is ingenious. Logic suggests, though, that if Russia has no misgivings about Britain obtaining secrets from Russian MiGs actually in India's hands, there is not much likelihood of Russia learning anything about British arms in India that she does not already know.

There have been some mild hints that India might have difficulty getting replacement parts for Russian planes in time of need, but nobody seems to have suggested that the whole purchase is a communist plot to arm India with planes which will be useless if and when China wages war over the border issue. If there are any persons with such suspicions, they might have difficulty in explaining how they reconciled this theory with the fact, just announced by Prime Minister Nehru of India, that it was India which first sought to buy planes from Russia, not Russia which tried to sell these planes to India.

Washington has a logical cause for concern. Viewing neutral India as a potentially valuable ally in a dire and desiring to continue to assist her economically, the Kennedy administration is apparently afraid that critics of such aid will be able to make capital of any Indian purchase of Russian planes, presenting this as proof of India's sympathies with the communist cause.

Surely, though, it is equally legitimate to regard Russian willingness to sell warplanes to India as heartening evidence that Russia does not foresee any struggle in which she and India would be on opposite sides. Viewed in this light, this means either that the Russians feel certain India will not resort to war with her border squabble with India, or that, in the event of such Chinese aggression, Russian sympathies would be with India.

Small Victory for Freedom

There are so few opportunities to celebrate victories for the cause of freedom these days that perhaps we may be pardoned for raising a cheer for a half-measure of relief provided by Ghana's egotistical Kwame Nkrumah. He has released 918 persons detained under the Iniquitous Detention Act, which enables him to deny freedom of speech and movement to any person whom he may dislike for any reason.

As long as there remain people detained under the Act—and indeed as long as the Act remains on the statute books—there will remain mark against Ghana which will remain. But at least Nkrumah has made a move in the right direction and we ought to give thanks for this.

We ought, too, to realize that new African states face situations much different from those in older, white democracies and that their rulers must be permitted some measures which would be inadmissible in our different circumstances.

In this connection, it is interesting to quote a recent speech by Mohammed Ayub Khan, President of Pakistan, who rules that Commonwealth republic as head of a military junta:

"The trouble is that we have not yet attained several sophistications that are necessary for democracy's successful operation. For it to work, you need training in the spirit of give and take, and dispassionate consideration of problems. You need a much higher level of propriety, public spirit and integrity. Above all you need a really cool and phlegmatic temperament, which only people living in cold climates seem to have."

Prime Minister Nehru's record in India seems to call into question that remark about the necessity of a cold climate. Still, much that President Ayub Khan says is true and applies just as accurately to Ghana as to Pakistan.

That, though, does not excuse Nkrumah's campaign to have himself regarded as a sort of demi-god, after the Hitler and Stalin pattern.

A New Challenge

— Montreal Gazette.

In facing a House of Commons in which he does not command a majority Prime Minister Diefenbaker faces a new sort of challenge. It is the greatest challenge of his long political career. And if it is far more difficult than any other he has known, it also opens opportunities for achievement in leadership such as no other could offer or enact.

This is not a situation that would be one of any leader's choosing. But it does happen that the greatest chances for proof of character are those very situations that would be the last to be voluntarily selected. His new opportunity has come just because he finds himself as the leader of the largest group in a House broken into political pieces. He has had laid upon him by fate the need to prove that, even under conditions so unsatisfactory, much may still be done to give the country the direction and appeal that it needs now, in full measure, needed so critically in the past.

To his perplexing task Mr. Diefenbaker brings his own qualities. For one thing, he is a member with long experience. And the experience will be all the more valuable now in that it has been so varied.

He has known what it is to feel the discouragement of long years in opposition. He has known the lonely fighter against heavy odds. He has known a sudden and prodigious triumph, such as no other Canadian has been given. He has felt the extraordinary difficulties of trying to govern in the long shadow of such a triumph — such as would make all actions appear by contrast in some measure inadequate. Now he has undergone a setback that has shrunk the victory of 1957 almost to disparaging any other Canadian ahead of him. It is rebuke without dismissal.

All these varied experiences could help to give him a store of political maturity and seasoning, the wisdom and the resilience, the awareness and the enterprise that could make these coming days, or months, or years a remarkable new chapter.

It could be, of course, that the challenge will be too brief, that the story will end before it could fairly be begun. Yet with much political experience in the management of the House, Mr. Diefenbaker should know how to manipulate the delicate situation.

The very fact that a defeat of his Government would mean a general election may be one whoever would bring about that defeat. It search his heart and be certain that such an election is really desired, or desired at the time. Then there is the matter of issues. To defeat the Government on a sound or popular issue, and to have a general election ensue, is another reason for hesitation.

Twice in living career Prime Minister W.L.Mackenzie King formed governments while being in a minority position in the House. It happened first in 1926, when he was dependent upon the united support of the Progressives. It happened again in 1935, when the Liberals had only 161 seats, the Conservatives 116, and the Progressives 28. With Progressive support he was able to cling to office.

But if there are precedents, they are not happy ones. And there are more unhappy political precedents for times like these, when the need is for strong leadership for Canada in a faltering and groping world. Mr. Diefenbaker on Monday night made brief references to Mr. King's position in the 1930's. But while Mr. Diefenbaker will no doubt, and quite reasonably, use astute management in a difficult situation, he can have little hope in such dexterity alone.

The better course would be to act with boldness and courage, to sponsor sound legislation, to rise up to the demands of the times, and in the larger sense, to place the rest of the House in the position of following measures that Canadians will generally honor and welcome. This is a time not merely for skill but for statesmanship.

As another election must come, sooner or later, it is both Mr. Diefenbaker's need and his opportunity to show a certainty of touch, a clarity of purpose, and even a new authority. In time of perplexity and confusion there is no hope in a government which allows itself, simply in the hope of sticking precariously to office, to become only hesitating and expedient.

If the note of courage, the note of leadership, the constructive policy, is sounded, there will not be wanting those who will hear and follow. The country has never needed leadership more than now, when its own uncertainty has led it into a bewildering time of chaos. This is Mr. Diefenbaker's prospect for the greatest of all his opportunities, but because the difficulties are so many and the requirements so insistent.

Strictly Personal
Our Attitudes Soon Become Inflexible

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A man I have known, on and off, for years arrived from New York recently, and we had a long lunch together between planes. I ventured to ask him about the state of his previously turbulent domestic life.

"It's a curious thing," he said rueefully, as he cut his steak, "I decided to reconcile myself to the situation and live out my life with her, for the sake of peace. I made every effort to be decent, kind, and courteous to her for so long that I find it impossible to change."

His plight, which is a real enough — reminded me of the old story about the vaudeville knife-thrower who had used his wife as a target for years, outlining her body on the fence with only a hair's-breadth between her slim form and his knife.

He tried for a week's performance, and on reaching his hotel he had received just missing her for so many years that his reflexes couldn't allow him to come any closer.

Most of us are in the emotional position of this knife-thrower. Our attitudes toward those around us tend to crystallize with time, and even when we want to change them, we often find that their habitual nature has reverted to the old and easy attitudes — even when we have, in a way, outgrown them.

"Habits, if not resisted," warned St. Augustine, "soon become necessity." The habits of the mind are even stronger than those of the body, and it is easier for a man to quit smoking than to stop looking on his employees; the first merely satisfies a physical craving, while the second soothes a mental, consuming spiritual necessity.

There is a tendency to favor in our reactions becoming rigid toward anyone with whom we work or live in close association. It is commonly observable that young people are kinder to strangers than they are to their own parents: this is for the very reason that parents' fixed attitudes toward them as they were older and younger still be treated as emergent adults, not as infants.

We periodically re-evaluate our possessions, our position, our standing in society, our material achievements and goals; it is a pity that most of us do not also, periodically, to re-evaluate our attitudes that have grown rigid with age and habit. After all, the core of neurotic behavior consists in living the past without knowing it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Where have all the beatniks gone? I haven't seen one in months. That, surely, was one of the briefest of whims on the part of the younger generation.

It did not take them long to get over it. It was, I suppose, a sort of thing like the hula hoop. When you see a young man with a beard now, he looks a little old-fashioned and out of date. He carries a lonely figure even though he has given up the slim-jim pants and the black T-shirt.

...and the shabby girls with their great towhead hair-do and their eyes mascaraed, but no lipstick? Where are they?

It seems to me I have noted an unusual number of chastened-looking young ladies pushing perambulators recently. There is something vaguely familiar about them, but I can't think what it is.

Their hair is modestly dressed. They have no mascara around their eyes. They do have a touch of lipstick. In fact some of them wear slim-jims.

Could it be...

I bet you that's it! That's where the beatniks have gone.

From a picturesque platform came people, descendents of the pioneers who over one hundred years ago began to open up the region in the centre of which stands the present village of Thrasheburg. One century ago the first church was organized, and to mark this event the celebration was arranged. The minister for the past four years, the Rev. J. W. Platt, who will leave shortly for his new charge at Northam, was the prime mover in organizing the anniversary of the founding of the church, which at that time was the Methodist meeting house. Among the speeches were made by the present, Mr. Platt, by the Rev. E. N. Cooke of Roslin, by the Rev. E. B. Cooke of Tweed, by Mr. Ross Thompson of Belleville gave readings which were much enjoyed.

No Theology Golden Age

Brantford Expositor

A quite popular pastime among writers, philosophers and even laymen is that of complaining on what a visitor from Mars, or Venus, or one of the other planets would say if he were to suddenly land on our Earth.

Mr. Christopher Hollis, author, publisher and editor, doesn't have far afield, or out in space to imagine what a man of ancient times would say if he could be brought up to the present.

Such an individual, Mr. Hollis feels, "would find much to marvel at in the technical triumphs of modern man . . . but he would be amazed at modern man's unconcern at the insignificant, at his irreverence to the true meaning of his eternal destiny in contemplation of which man, through all history, has always until now, found his chief interest."

We shouldn't like to accuse Mr. Hollis of fuzzy-minded ideistic imagining, but he comes to making that mistake. What possible motive could he quote to show or even suggest that a man, centuries ago, was any more preoccupied with "those mysteries of his eternal destiny" than he is today?

For the most part, if we read history aright, man — meaning the average man — was far too busy keeping his cave warm, filling that cave against off his myriad enemies, attacking his neighbors, fighting tribal battles or judicially wary, laboring for his overlords, or, latterly, striving for some modicum of profit or security, to get himself involved in the intricate mysteries of theology and put his immediate needs.

We don't say he didn't go in fear of the gods, wicked spirits or evil eyes, or that he didn't go through periods in his age to ilolz and obey the medicinemen or priests who paraded them.

There have been men — a few men like the Pharaoh Akhenaten, the leading Greek philosophers, the Hebrew prophets, called the Buddha, Lao-tse, Confucius, the major Hindu mystics, Zoroaster, Mohammed and many lesser lights, who insisted on living in the feeble flame of learning flickering during the Dark Ages — who devoted a great part of their time to the contemplation of man's place in the universe and the ultimate goal of his soul. But these, surely, were the rare exceptions to the broad general rule of ignorance, superstition and indifference.

Let's not invent a Golden Age of philosophy, or even theology, when there wasn't one.

To Your Good Health
Persons Suffering from Emphysema Shouldn't Smoke

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Doctor: A man in my congregation is suffering from emphysema, which apparently is akin to asthma. My doctor has told by doctors that there is nothing they can do for him.

Is there any treatment or medication that might help him? — Rev. L.A.R.

Emphysema is one of those diseases which is becoming more common as, on the average, we all grow older. The increase in average life expectancy is making distinct changes in the practice of medicine, and by the same token it means that all of us, patients as well as doctors, must keep up with newer problems even as we learn to forget about some of the older scourges that have been solved.

Emphysema is not exactly akin to asthma. However, a sufferer of either one has difficulty getting enough air into his lungs. In each exhalation, so fresh air comes in to replace it.

But when the lungs do not contract enough to expel enough old air, then there is not enough fresh air to come in. That's emphysema.

In a sense it is unfortunately true that we cannot restore the lost elasticity of lung tissue. The tissues that have become stretched. We cannot "cure" them. But, we can do a certain few things to help the patient be more comfortable and happy.

First, if he smokes, he should quit, completely. If, on any given occasion, he inhales smoke instead of air, he is depriving himself of just so much fresh air.

Second, in nearly all cases, the patient can, if he understands the simple fact of his trouble, learn to breathe a little differently. He should learn to use the upper a; well as lower part of his lungs — expand his chest as he breathes, to use all, instead of just part, of his lung capacity.

Third, he must learn not to use his breathing capacity wastefully. Needless effort that was given on the achievement. In the course of the talk by the chief surgeon, the announcer mentioned his name. The surgeon was careful, the first few first things he did was to write out with him to whatever the medical Council to disclaim having allowed his name to be mentioned. He was a man of perfect poise, advertising not of his seeking. Surely in a case of this sort the name of a brilliant surgeon need not be kept secret. How would the public not know the names of its greatest surgeons?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

RARE BUT INFLUENTIAL

"He's an exceptional child." "That man is a genius." "Good and." "Jack is the best man we have in our department." "I regard George as the best student I ever had."

We often hear such remarks. The word genius is frequently thrown out in everybody's mind. There are a few people in the world who are really geniuses — that is, people who have set the feet of humanity on new paths of life. The word genius comes from a word which means "to produce." Geniuses are rare persons, like Galileo and Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Albert Einstein, who usher humanity into new areas of knowledge — begat new eras of history.

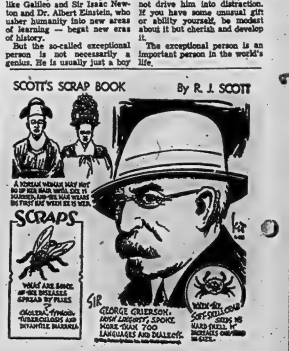
But the so-called exceptional person is not necessarily a genius. He is usually just a boy or girl, a man or woman, who has developed a talent, good and gifted. Most parents consider their children exceptional — and they should, for it is just such love and confidence that children need for emotional security. But after all allowance has been made for natural love, for friendship, and for the admiration people have for accomplishment, the truly exceptional person remains considerable of a rarity.

If you have an exceptional child try to cultivate his ability, although be careful that you do not drive him into distraction. If you have some unusual gift or ability yourself, be modest about it but cherish and develop it.

The exceptional person is an important person in the world's life.

Publicity Ban Too Strict

St. Thomas Times-Journal



The medical profession is extremely strict in the matter of advertising. A physician is not allowed to tell of a cure he does so, even in the most indirect way, he is liable to be disciplined by the General Medical Council, or whatever panel his choice may be of offence.

The operation to separate twins that were born joined together was successfully performed in Montreal and the medical talk was given on the achievement. In the course of the talk by the chief surgeon, the announcer mentioned his name. The surgeon was careful. One of the first things he did was to write out with him to whatever the Medical Council to disclaim having allowed his name to be mentioned. He was a man of perfect poise, advertising not of his seeking.

Surely in a case of this sort the name of a brilliant surgeon need not be kept secret. How would the public not know the names of its greatest surgeons?

BELT-TIGHTENING

dicated that so far this month foreign exchange reserves had fallen by nearly $400,000,000 to some $1,100,000,000. In the five previous months, he added, the reserves had fallen by $200,000,000.

He reiterated the government's determination to defend the dollar—pegged May 3 at 92½ cents in U.S. currency.

The prime minister said the Canadian economy "is fundamentally strong and sound" and emphasized that the emergency measures "are temporary and will be removed as soon as circumstances permit."

The government would be introducing "longer - term measures of a permanent constructive nature . . . to improve our current international accounts."

HAS 3 MAIN GOALS

It was apparent the government's emergency program had these general goals:

1. The massive $1,050,000,000 in foreign loans and credits to give some breathing space for the exchange reserves and thus dampen down speculative and other pressures on the reserves and the dollar exchange rate.

2. The tariff surcharges and cutbacks on tourist exemptions to reduce imports and the resulting international payments deficit.

3. The higher interest rates and reduction in unemployment insurance benefits to generate confidence among foreign investors and attract their capital back into Canada, thus offsetting the pressure on reserves and the dollar rate.

On this last point Mr. Diefenbaker said the government will maintain an economic climate "hospitable to foreign investment." He repeated that Canada will not be imposing foreign exchange controls.

"It is anticipated that the inflow of foreign capital will revive.

FIRST BIG MOVE

The new program was the first major action by the Progressive Conservative government since it was returned a week ago as a minority administration. It came to weekend combined Commons vote against it by the three opposition parties.

With the new Parliament legally unable to assemble before July 16 at the earliest, Mr. Diefenbaker refused to permit the leaders to realize there was an emergency that required action without waiting for Parliament.

Except for the cut in government spending, for which a revised spending budget will be presented to the Commons, the new measures don't require parliamentary approval.

Finance Minister Fleming soon commented that the government now recognizes that the country faces serious economic problems. The liberals would consider the new program "unlikely from the point of view of what is best in the public interest."

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, termed the program "too little and too late" and said it will produce tight money, higher interest rates and higher living costs and aggravate the unemployment problem.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson echoed Mr. Douglas, saying the program comes "too late with too little" and will boost the Canadian cost of living and need a tax reform program "that will give us the freedom and incentive to grow and expand."

Real Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader, called the new policies contradictory and said Mr. Diefenbaker "ought to resign rather than make policies like this." His party would tolerate a tight money policy.

BUSINESS SUPPORTS

Business men for financial and industrial companies, commenting Sunday night, mainly supported the program as a necessary one, though there was criticism from the president of the Canadian Importers and Manufacturers Association, A. T. Broadeur of Montreal.

But there was only a brief comment from James E. Coyne, former governor of the bank of Canada who had been called for policies under which Canada would live within its means, eliminate its balance of payments deficit and end its reliance on foreign capital.

Last year the government called Mr. Coyne's policies "restrictionist" and tried to fire him by legislation. Mr. Coyne resigned following defeat of the bill by the Senate.

Mr. $300,000,000 loan from the International Monetary Fund was the first IMF aid Canada has ever sought.

An IMF statement said Canada's monetary reserve position "has recently been exposed to very great pressure." It said the Canadian program "reflects a determination to reestablish equilibrium in the balance of payments and to ensure sustained confidence in the Canadian dollar at its present value."

WERENOT TOLD

A Washington official said that a pledge of $400,000,000 in standby credit from the U.S. Export-Import Bank was made so quickly the bank's board of directors hadn't been told of it.

The breakdown of the short-term international loans and credits were made available by the United States and a U.S. government statement said this reflected "American confidence in the capacity and determination of Canada to defend the value of the Canadian dollar."

A U.S. spokesman at Washington said the U.S. will take no immediate steps to seek tariff compensation for the new Canadian tariff surcharges expecting them to be dropped in less than one year.

Most of the imports affected by the new surcharge are carry the three-percent rate. Covering some $2,300,000,000 in imports, mostly consumer goods, textiles, metal—manufactures, automobiles, chemicals and apparatus. The prime minister's statement said they were "of a less essential character" and plus Canadian productive capacity to meet the demand or alternative Canadian products available to replace some others.

The 15-per-cent surcharge applies to some $650,000,000 in imports, mainly consumer goods such cars, clothing, furniture, chinaware, radios, radio and TV sets and toys. For most of these goods, the finance minister said, consumers can defer buying or else get them from Canadian sources.

The 15-per-cent surcharge applies to the bulk of U.S. imports including champagne, wine, liqueurs, beer, perfume, cigars, fancy cameras and luxury goods like truffles and goose-liver pâtés. Some $200,000,000 in seasonal imports are involved.

The surcharge come atop what is, in effect, an added tariff of some 10 per cent on all imports, caused by the drop in valuation in the last 13 months. On May 2, 1961, just before Finance Minister Fleming's budget last year announced a policy of devaluing Canada's dollar took less than 90 Canadian cents to buy $1 American worth of imports. Now it takes $1.09. The sharp cut in tariff exemptions for tourist purchases should reduce what Mr. Diefenbaker called the top-heavy drain on foreign exchange.

Travellers to the U.S. will be permitted to buy $25 worth of goods, instead of $100, every three months. Those returning who could bring back $300 in goods duty free once a year, now can get exemptions only on $100 once every 12 months.

Mr. Fleming's budget last April 10.

Informants said the government is aiming at applying $200,000,000 of the $250,000,000 in annual savings to reducing the current fiscal year, which has nine months to run.

For the current fiscal year Mr. Fleming budgeted for expenditures of $6,285,000,000 and revenues of $5,780,000,000. These amounts don't include the $1,050,000,000 in special items and $736,000,000 in old age pensions and hospital insurance taxes and revenues to the pension fund.

The pegging of the Bank of Canada lending rate at 5½ per cent is a return to the system in force before March 1956. Since then the rate had fluctuated at one-quarter of one per cent above the average short-term rate on the weekly sale of government treasury bills.

This for 5½ years, the bank rate minimum charge on central bank loans to chartered banks—has followed changes in the bills which also indicate market. Now it is expected to resume the function of providing a "signal" to banks and others of lending policies the Bank of Canada thinks like to have followed.

Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada said the bank's action in fixing its rate at 5½ per cent emphasizes the bank's determination to carry out the requirement in the Bank of Canada Act that it should "protect the external value of the national monetary unit."

He said the action was taken in close consultation with the prime minister and Mr. Fleming.

One informant said the six-per-cent bank rate would "not necessarily" be reflected in higher rate for National Housing Act mortgages, now at 6½ per cent. This would depend on whether interest yields on bonds rose high enough to encourage lending unattractive to NHA lenders such as life insurance and trust companies.

Mr. Diefenbaker expressed confidence that the country will work its way out of the present financial emergency.

"Others Western countries have passed through similar emergencies and in recent years and have overcome them by taking effective emergent measures."

CAN OVERCOME

"Our Canadian economy is fundamentally strong and sound and we believe that with a combined effort on the part of all Canadians we shall soon overcome Canada's immediate problems."

The bank statement made it evident that the government feels that further steps will be necessary to bring about sufficit in its balance of international payments which Mr. Diefenbaker called "a continuing problem."

He said although last year Canada registered its first surplus on commodity trade in nine years, "there still remained a large deficit in the payments that are made for services, which also included tourist expenditures and shipping costs. This is to record $ 185,000,000. This was offset only by $170,000,000 surplus on commodity trade.

MUST CUT COSTS

"To improve her balance of international payments, Canada must keep her costs of production down and strengthen her competitive position," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The situation presented Canadians with an opportunity as well as a challenge. They not only had to increase exports but they must also be prepared to invest in Canadian industry and development to a greater extent than ever before." The government's program to reduce costs was going to be pushed forward with greater vigor.

"Canadians have never failed in the past to measure up to responsibilities and I rely upon all Canadians to support in a spirit of national purpose, the measures which are required to assure and conserve the strength of the national economy."

"Jest a Second"

"Right, Sidney, let's try the first movement again. Remember the pianissimo when we get to that awkward passage!"

STRONG LIBERAL

The Liberals' 63.5 - per - cent share of the service vote compares with the 36.5 per cent figure given them by the civilian voters. Conservatives got 24.5 per cent of the service vote as against the 37.5 per cent with which they shipped the civilian vote.

Another 6.5 per cent gave Social Credit candidates the nod and 4.5 per cent voted for the NDP, the civilians gave Social Credit 13.8 per cent and the NDP 12.4.

Following the civilian count Mr. Browne held a 170-vote lead over Mr. Harley in the service vote—311 for the Liberal and 141 for Mr. Browne—dominated the lead and left Mr. Cashin 39 votes behind.

In Halifax Mr. Best, son of the co-discoverer of insulin, Dr. Charles Best, won by 61 votes election night but trailed 260 to 141 in the service vote which gave Mr. Harley an overall margin of 66 votes.

Other Conservatives placed close calls. James A. McCleave, Calgary, Alta. high man shipped to 16 votes from 12. Erik Nielsen's edge in Yukon increased to 179 from 177. A. D. McPhillips saw his lead in Victoria (B.C.) dwindle to 239 votes from 1,002.

The four Conservatives fattened by service votes were Mr. Diefenbaker in his home riding of Prince Albert; Justice Minister Fulton, Kamloops; Wallace Nesbitt, Oxford, and Consul Dan Smith, Pembroke - Delaneaudiere, the latter by one vote.

Defence Minister Harkness, re-elected in Calgary North, got 331 for Liberal Harry S. Rowell, junior, 101 for Rodney Simpson, Social Credit, and 18 for Harry Pope, NDP, a former Calgary mayor who campaigned on the nuclear arms issue.

Mr. Pearson's defeat was the only other party leader with a service vote edge. He was a 10-vote favorite in Toronto St. Paul's. Liberal candidates were ahead in Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, elected in Red Deer, and NDP Chief T. C. Douglas, who lost in Regina East.

A total of 139,183 were eligible to vote in the service vote and taken in the week of June 11-16, and 97,179 or 69.1 per cent cast ballots.

In the 1958 election, when the Conservatives won by a landslide 208 seats and the service turnout was 85.7 per cent, the service vote also ran counter to the civilian returns. The Liberals received 37.2 per cent of the service vote and 32.6 per cent of the civilian vote, the Conservatives 44.1 and 53.8, others 6.4 and 12.8.

Mr. Castonguay said it was the first time that two seats had been turned over by the service vote. There was one turnover in each of the 1937 and 1958 elections. The most famous concost Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent his Prince Albert seat in 1945.

U.S. Warships Speed to Patrol Formosa Strait

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—U.S. warships were speeding from Japan today to reinforce the 7th Fleet's Formosa patrol in the face of a reported Chinese Communist military buildup on the coast opposite the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Most of the 7th Fleet ships that had been in the Big Yokosuka, Japan, naval base pulled out during the weekend.

A spokesman said only that they were "deploying for operations at sea."

But Pacific Fleet headquarters in Honolulu confirmed that they were strengthening the patrol in the Formosa Strait off China's Fukien province.

A navy spokesman in Honolulu said the move was "almost routine" in the light of reports of the Communist buildup. He refused to say how many ships were on patrol. An unconfirmed report from Japan said the reinforcements added three included the carrier Coral Sea.

EVACUATE CIVILIANS

The Nationalist Chinese defence ministry said the Communists were evacuating civilians from the coastal area opposite Formosa.

The defence ministry has estimated that the Communists have 400,000 men, 600 planes and 400 small naval craft on the "invasion front." It also said Sunday that the Reds have 30 submarines, but did not pinpoint them as being in the Formosa Strait, which is relatively shallow and narrow.

Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Herrington Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Wightman had a reception at their home in Westbrook, June 9, in honor of Mrs. Wightman's parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Herrington. The latter were married in Melrose, Boston, Mass., June 10, 1912.

Mrs. Herrington was formerly Miss Margaret B. Keir of Herrickford. Mr. Herrington came from Carrying Place, Prince Edward County.

On July 1, 1914, Mr. Herrington began his ministry with the Methodist Church. He served on the following national charges: Harrisville Valley, Plevna, Bethel (Omemee), Cordova Mines, Warsaw, Alderley, Thomasville Lyn, Newburgh and Keene.

In 1956 Mr. Herrington retired from the active ministry of the United Church of Canada, after having been in the ministry 44 years. The couple then went to live with their daughter, Lucille Wightman, at Westbrook.

Mrs. Herrington has always been interested in all phases of church work with a special love for the primary department of the Sunday school. This interest continued after retirement and, for a time, she was superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday School of St. Andrew's-by-the-Lake, Kingston.

Since his retirement Mr. Herrington has been able to devote full time to what had been formerly a hobby—collecting and classifying moths. This hobby has taken them on many interesting trips collecting specimens and examining museum collections.

For several years Mr. and Mrs. Herrington have had a desire to visit Trinidad, where the United Church of Canada has a mission in co-operation with the Presbyterian Church of Trinidad.

They finally decided to celebrate their 50 years of married life by taking a sea voyage, rather than having a reception at home. On April 5, they boarded a freighter of Norwegian registry, "Saxonona" at Montreal. They visited Georgetown, British Guiana, even going up the Demarara River for 65 miles to Mackenzie (six degrees north of the equator) where the ship took on board 5,000 tons of alumina.

They also had a stopover of ten days in Trinidad, where Mr. Herrington collected more than, 300 sets of moliusca. They made the return trip from Trinidad to Montreal on the freighter "Indiana" of Italian registry, which took on 3,500 tons of bauxite at Trinidad.

When they arrived home June 1 they found their daughter and son-in-law, had arranged, at a surprise, a reception for them.

The rooms were decorated with pink peonies, yellow roses, 'muns, and gladioli, sent to the bridal couple by friends. The table was set with a silver candelabra and yellow roses.

In the afternoon Mrs. L. Allan and Mrs. Wright poured tea, assisted by Mrs. R. Jackson and Mrs. L. Adams. In the evening tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. E. Sproule and Mrs. A. Reynolds, assisted by Mrs. M. Dixon, Mrs. L. Burgess, Mrs. Kerr and Miss B. Ryder. The catering was done by Westbrook Tuesday Afternoon with Mrs. Roy Mack as convener.

Guests were present from Lakefield, Keene, Thomasburg, Napanee, Newburgh, and Kingston, as well as Mr. Herrington's sole surviving sister, Mrs. Ethel Cannon, Belleville, and her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wannamaker, Consecon; Mrs. Herrington's sisters, Mrs. Mary Shears and her two daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Buys, and Mrs. Clifford Sockbeul, Sodus, N.Y.; her brother, Mr. John Keir, Smiths Falls, with his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carmon Knapp, and their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Barkley, all of Merrickville.

More than 200 guests signed the wedding certificate. This was the marriage certificate given to Mr. and Mrs. Herrington by the minister who married them 50 years ago.

The happy couple received many lovely gifts, cards and messages of congratulations including greetings from Prime Minister Diefenbaker, and Rod Webb, M.P.

Bay of Quinte W.I. Hears Talk on Public Relations

END OF SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Institute held the June meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis with a good attendance.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Alva Dunn, and Mrs. Harold Dickens read the minutes. During the business session it was arranged that the W.I. send the adopted boy in Macao $5 now and more later on.

The president turned the meeting over to Mrs. Alva Myers, public relations officer for the Bay of Quinte, who dealt with that subject, saying: "It is nice to know there are people who do not think war, but try to do something constructive to make better feeling among the nations of the world."

She went on to say that "There is probably more honest, unselfish work being done in the world today than ever before, and a lot of it is being done by the specialized agencies of the UN, Men and women of all nationalities, such as doctors, nurses, farmers, engineers and teachers, are working in difficult, uncomfortable, and often unhealthy parts of the world, trying to help build a better life for the people there. Many of them could get better pay and more comfort at home but they prefer to do their part. The greatest factor is the individual in the field and his success depends of whether he is able to pass on his knowledge to others."

"Her instance," she stated, "in the rice growing district in India they were plagued with malaria. Rice is planted in the wet season and here there were millions of mosquitoes. Sickness was most prevalent with three out of five men suffering the fever. An assistant team of the UN was sent to this place to sum up the situation and decided the first thing to do was to get rid of the mosquitoes, so they were allowed to do a thing as the natives did not believe that the little mosquito could cause such a disease as the dreaded malaria."

A nurse, Elizabeth Pepper of England, heard of this and asked if she might go to this district and see what she could do. Going by jeep she settled in one of the villages, bribing the women as she would at home.

She also brought babies into the world, bathed sore eyes, dressed cut fingers and talked to the women. She first of all won their confidence, and when they finally believed that the mosquitoes were the actual cause of so much sickness they talked to their husbands and at last the world to the UN team to take over. That particular place was cleared up of malaria after the mosquitoes were gone."

The ACWW born in 1933 is the international organization of the Women's Institutes with 140 working groups all over the world.

At the 1956 triennial conference held in Ceylon, a seminar was held and 30 students from Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Malaya, Burma and Thailand were in attendance.

Thirty newspaper editors from as many states in the Union assembled at Windsor on June 11th for a 13-day excursion of Ontario. "They will get to know Ontario better by personal contact and this will be fine for better public relations," said Mrs. Meyers.

The second Commonwealth study conference proved how everybody of different races, religions and outlook, can get together in harmony and discuss their problems, their hopes, their differences of course, but coming to a common ultimate conclusion for the good of all.

There were five people of different nations interviewed on TV recently. They thought this conference was a good thing, and they said they had a lot of Canadian ideas to take home with them to help make their lands a better place to live in.

"To have good public relations (which starts at home) people must talk to their friends and citizens, doing what they can to help their fellow man without prejudice for other races in spite of the differences in beliefs and way of living," Mrs. Myers concluded.

Speaker Ralph Hill gave an amusing recitation, "Uncle Zeke and the Gospel Ship", Mr. and Mrs. Reg Sharpe showed pictures of the various places they had visited during his career in the Air Force. Mrs. Coutts gave the commentary and pictures of a lovely flower garden in England were shown, also a play that the Women's Institute had put on over there.

Mrs. John Reid expressed thanks to all those who had taken part in the program.

The meeting was taken of the cast for the 65th celebration meeting held in May with their two fashioned toys, after which refreshments were served.

Practise All Time Says Champion

SASKATOON (CP)—A woman who has won the Western Canada five-pin singles bowling championship four times offers some simple advice for the aspiring shotmaker.

"Practise as much as you can and concentrate on every ball you throw."

Mary Currie of Calgary, 1954 Canadian champ, said in an interview here she has no patience with those who blame the equipment when they bowl a poor game.

"There must be something wrong with you. Find out what it is and correct it."

Mrs. Currie, who has been bowling for 22 years and has a 230 average, is an employee of a Calgary bowling alley. One of her jobs is to give instruction to afternoon and morning women's groups and to juniors. She isn't paid for that job, however, and so retains her amateur status.

Pot Roast Premiere

by Mary Moore

On May 15th I gave here directions for cooking a Pot Roast with strong emphasis and appeal to you to really brown them.

This evening talk intrigued my secretary Eleanor and she silently decided to try a pot roast for the following Sunday's dinner. For the benefit of other first-time pot roasters, her account of the results follows:

"On Friday night when we were spending a large amount of money on our weekend shopping I said to Bruce 'Let's buy a pot roast and see what I can do with it'. So after much comparison and appraisal we chose a blade roast weighing 3½ pounds.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Sausages; Tomato Sauce; Corn Fritters; Broccoli; Stewed Rhubarb; Hot Gingerbread; Coffee.

"Sunday after church, and lunch, at approximately 1.30, I turned the burner on high, put about 3 tablespoons of bacon drippings in my pressure cooker, let the drippings get really hot and browned the roast thoroughly on all sides. Then I reduced the heat to low-medium, generously sprinkled on salt, pepper, garlic salt, added 3 bay leaves and 2 tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce and poured on 2 cups of water. The whole house immediately became filled with smoke and I feared for my new living room drapes! However, after this sensational beginning, my pot roast settled down to sedate bubbles. I gave it one last sniff (wonderful!), put on the tight-fitting lid of the pressure cooker, but of course, did not put on the indicator weight. Then after wending my way through the maze of house I lay down in my bedroom for an hour, then went over to see the Lions' parade.

"When we returned home at five, Bruce helped me with the vegetables. We prepared enough potatoes, carrots and whole onions to serve the two of us. When they were in the pot, I sprinkled them with parsley and minced green onion flakes and a little additional salt and pepper. By this time the liquid at the bottom of the pot was boiled down and was rich and dark brown and so I added another cup of water and replaced the lid. At a quarter to six, I tested the vegetables with a fork. I knew they would not be ready by six so I put the indicator weight on the lid of the pressure cooker and pressure-cooked the whole thing for ten minutes. I cooled the pot under cold running water, removed the weight and lid and the vegetables were tender beautifully brown. I thickened the pan liquid with flour and water paste and made the best gravy I ever tasted — rich and flavorful. Even David, who is not a gravy fan, poured second helpings on his meat and vegetables. The pot roast was so tender and dark brown I was sorry I had not invited guests for dinner."

HEADS FEDERALISTS

WAKEFIELD, Que. (CP)—The World Federalists of Canada endorse the concept that the United Nations must assume some of the powers of its member-states, Geoffrey Edge, new president of the Canadian organization, said today. Mr. Edge, of Montreal, was elected president of the group at its annual national conference here during the weekend.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Aaron F. — They omitted me from the guestlist and Pan hurt.

Bessie S. — He never showed up at previous family affairs.

Aaron F. — Even though I had full intentions of attending two recent celebrations in our family, things came up at the last minute which forced me to absent myself. Now I learn that my sister's son was married two weeks ago at a sumptuous hotel, and I wasn't even invited.

This hurts me. I'm still a close member of the family. Whether I show up or not at the parties, I usually send a gift. I'm in the theatrical business where "anything" can happen, and I can't ever be sure of going through with appointments made in advance.

Bessie S. — The family of my son's bride is not wealthy. Her father is a hard-working grocer. They were paying $60 a couple for the guests at the wedding. And they asked us to limit our invitations to 20 couples. Actually there were about 80 couples we felt we wanted or ought to invite, and trimming the list was boring.

Aaron is in the habit of accepting all invitations and never showing up. Just a month before the wedding, he made us pay for two empty places at our Silver Anniversary banquet. This time we asked someone we were sure of.

The Council: Has there ever been an elaborate and formal family wing-ding where someone didn't send? There are the natural occasions for relatives with axes to grind to bring them to a sharp point and settle them. The axe, here, seems to be Aaron's.

The etiquette books notwithstanding, there are no musts about wedding invitations. They need not be bound by family relationships exclusively. When choices must be made, a close friend who has been a mainstay through ups and downs can be substituted for a blood relative who hasn't the least idea who's marrying whom!

If Aaron is really the fond uncle he protests he is, he won't make this omission the basis for a family feud. Instead, he will try to see the problem Bessie had and accept her reasoning. Evidently she's not the only member of the family Aaron's antagonized by saying, "Yes, yes," and then not appearing. Worse, Aaron probably doesn't even apologize. And still worse, he sends a gift "usually" but not always, after expensive places are reserved for him. A confrontation with previously offended relatives might not have been pleasant at this wedding.

There'll be other parties and we hope, through Bessie's good offices and Aaron's good humor, he's returned to the "live prospect" list. His corner may seem lame. They may be interpreted as masking a lack of interest or desire to meet the folks. But, despite all the "events" a theatre man attends, we'll wager he welcomes a chance to swap reminiscences with great-aunt Hattie and see how little Bartram turned out.

However, Aaron may be less casual about skipping a celebration. And Bessie must acknowledge that her brother really does lead an unpredictable life, and excuse an absence for which he is genuinely contrite.

In this instance, besides being contrite, Aaron might be "big" and send the newlyweds a present even though he was involuntarily absent.

Consumers Assoc. Wants To Get Labels on Textiles

KINGSTON (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada has got a foot in the door in its campaign to get labels on textiles which will indicate their use and recommended care.

CAC president Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre announced at the annual meeting Friday of the trade and commerce department has agreed to set up a committee under the Canadian government specifications board to study performance labels attached to textiles.

She said the CAC had been asking for such a committee since 1955.

CAC members repeated a 1960 resolution asking that manufacturers of foods and drugs be obliged to carry out adequate tests before marketing their products.

The resolution noted that some Canadian manufacturers had placed foods on the market which were harmful and unfit for human consumption.

Earlier in the day Mrs. R. W. Morningstar of Toronto told delegates one of the main causes of the food contamination was the increase in salmonella poisoning.

Mrs. Morningstar said one of the most likely sources of the organism was poultry and poultry products. She said the great majority of infections from the organism were of short duration and might not be dangerous in certain individuals but might cause considerable discomfort.

Mr. Glenn Ross of Ottawa was elected treasurer, the first man to hold an executive position in the 27,000 - member organization.

Two other men were elected to association's board of directors. They are Prof. H. E. English of Ottawa, economist with the Canadian trade committee and Leonard Gelfand, Montreal marketing research manager.

Mr. Gelfand is a chartered accountant and a partner in an Ottawa firm.

Mrs. Plumptre, of Ottawa, was re - elected president. Among those elected vice-presidents was Marcelle Comtois of Ottawa.

Mrs. S. Cook of Ottawa was elected recording secretary.

Other directors: Mrs. H. S. M. Carter, Ottawa; Mrs. R. P. Fuder, Ottawa; Mrs. T. B. Earle, Ottawa.

Wife of UBC President Recalls Happy Days

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a quiet rain one day last November, 1,000 University of British Columbia students gathered outside a campus office.

They had learned their president, Dr. Norman MacKenzie, was retiring this July 1. And they wanted to serenade him.

It was a display of spontaneous affection that made retirement a little easier, perhaps, for Mrs. MacKenzie, who had shared the road up, it meant a lot more.

"That was the proudest day of my life," she recalls. "I'll never forget it."

As Mrs. MacKenzie sat in the spacious grounds of their university-owned home she contemplated some of the other days she won't forget.

There were early years as a working girl, life in army huts as UBC got its start, and entertaining royalty not so long ago.

It perhaps spelled out a simple formula for lasting devotion to family life and to society.

She was a working girl in a Toronto advertising office before her future husband, fresh from Rhodes scholarship at a student conference, while he was a Presbyterian lay-student in Halifax and she a University of Toronto arts undergraduate.

The world "it was great fun but I'd sooner be married than have a career," she said.

"I don't know if I'd have said that when I was 20—I didn't know so much then."

LIVED IN HUTS

Dr. MacKenzie was appointed UBC president in 1944. They moved into available housing at the day—huts as at UBC's "Acadia Camp."

"I think those were perhaps the happiest days of all," said Mrs. MacKenzie.

"That little house with its linoleum floors and plywood walls was almost indestructible. An ideal place to raise three children."

The postwar days were exciting times for the university.

"In a year or two a number of students increased from 3,000 to 8,000. The only way we could get more professors was to promise them housing and the only housing we could get were army huts."

Faculty members, students and children all shared the Acadia Camp.

"It was simple and friendly. You'd go out on the back stoop and someone would bring out the coffee pot."

In 1950 the president and his wife moved into their much roomier home. There they have entertained, at one or Vancouver's most distinguished visitors — members of the Royal Family, statesmen, professors from around the world.

"We've always been happy. We both say you couldn't have a better life than one connected with a university. We've been surrounded with young people—several, interesting young people—and we've seen the university grow."

"And it has grown with the help of everyone—the community and the professors who accepted the challenge."

Where is everybody...?

KEEP SUMMER PARTIES COOL

Don't let the warm weather bring out the beast in you — socially, that is.

The considerate hostess will check the temperature as carefully as she checks her guest list. And the considerate guest will realize that soaring temperatures do not give him the license to let down on his good manners.

Unless the Saturday night shindig is partly business, or is a dinner in honor of the boss or someone just as staid, it's permissible to call guests on the day of the party and announce that dress will be informal owing to the muggy weather. Open-neck sportshirts may even be classified as "uniforms" for the evening.

Many hostesses are reluctant to inform guests about recommended attire. Yet these women don't hesitate to specify black tie or a cocktail dress if it's a formal affair.

"In these enlightened days, particularly if they happen to be busted, it's just as correct to soothe the sopping male by telling him to dress as comfortably as he wishes, within reason.

If it happens that the weather takes a turn for the worse too late to call friends in advance, the gallant host may step into the breach by greeting his guests in a sports shirt. This gives the men the option to remove their coats if they wish.

What happens if the hostess doesn't phone and the host is a model of sartorial propriety when he opens the door? The wise guest will come prepared to face the hot evening with cool detachment by wearing the lightest, loosest shirt, tie and jacket he owns.

Unless the host makes a move to remove his jacket, his gentlemen guests can do little but sweat out the evening. It's not good form for a man to take off his jacket until his host does, a move first, or the hostess offers a general suggestion.

Aside from social gatherings, simple, ordinary living can become an almost unbearable burden during a heat wave. But thrifties creshnes we can't let the hot men tell our sense of good taste and behavior.

Thus, we think a man who doesn't shape up well in the right places should shy away from shorts. And the very same line the male with protruding abdomen ought to be told by his wife that he doesn't look appealing in a T-shirt.

With the almost-feathersight materials now available in all stores there's really no excuse for not keeping fairly cool though fully dressed.

Above all, remember that the best person probably as uncomfortable as you are. Try to keep this in mind when he bumps into you accidentally on the street, and vice versa.

The thing to do is heel your temper, as you would a dog, and head for the lobby of the nearest air-conditioned office building. Count ten as you cool off.

Your Car

Don't Be 'Penny Wise, Pound Foolish'

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The familiar "penny wise and pound foolish" expression applies in many cases of poor gas mileage. When normal car care service is postponed to save money, the eventual performance loss can really burn up gas dollars.

Let's say your car is approximately 5,000 miles overdue for spark plug replacement (or for cleaning and regapping). Assuming gas mileage is normally a good 15 miles per gallon, it can easily drop to a 12.5 mpg average during this span. That's 40 gallons, or a minimum of $12 down the drain. This could have paid for two sets of new plugs!

For the pleasure of a peppy, gas-saving car, you've got to invest a little — at least a few times a year — in a check-up of carburetor and choke adjustments, ignition timing, spark plug and contact point condition, oil and air filters, and such things as wheel alignment and balance. Engine, chassis, gear and bearing lubricants should always fit the season's requirements and be changed as specified by the car maker or your service dealer.

Be last about these elementary rules and you can easily waste five cents on every mile you travel!

B. Y. writes: "If the carburetor idle adjustment is so lean that it causes engine miss, won't it also cause hard starting?"

(A) Not necessarily. Starting may not be noticeably affected, especially during mild weather.

From M.C.: "There's now on about four or five inches of play in my steering wheel. Could this be due to worn ball joints?"

(A) It could be. But it also might be due to faulty steering gear adjustment or looseness in the linkage anywhere between the gear and front wheels.

A.F. asks: "I have a new car just a few weeks old which stalls often. When I brought it back to the dealer the salesman said there is nothing really wrong and they will cure this when I bring in the car next week for the 1000-mile check. If nothing is wrong, what could be causing this stalling?"

(A) Engine idling speed may be set too low. This is fairly common and quickly corrected.

B.V. writes: "A friend insists that brake fluid expands with heat. If this is so, wouldn't the expansion of the fluid apply the brakes, if only slightly?"

(A) Brake fluid does expand with heat and this expansion would cause brake drag if the master cylinder were not equipped with a relief valve which allows this pressure to escape.

TIP OF THE WEEK

The battery gets extra thirsty in summer. Check the water level more frequently.

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Edward Heath, Britain's chief Common Market negotiator, arrived here Friday night, arrived here Friday night for talks with the Belgian deputy foreign minister, Henri Fayat, as part of his current round of visits to Common Market capitals. Ont. Farmers Should Have Two Operations

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario farmers who have a carefully-selected secondary enterprise on their farms can usually make more money than the specialized farmer, a study shows.

Results of the study, made by the provincial agriculture department, was presented to the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society Thursday by J. Nelson, associate director of farm economics and statistics branch of the provincial department.

A survey of 143 dairy farms last year shows that secondary enterprises, in some cases, nearly doubled the average labor income. The farms that gained most from the secondary enterprise were primarily engaged in milk manufacturing. Farms that produced fluid milk showed only a slightly bigger income through their secondary sources.

Mr. Nelson said that providing farmers can utilize facilities included in general farm costs, secondary enterprises will "normally improve labor earnings out of all proportion to gross returns."

"A parsly used building suggests a flock of poultry, a distant pasture suggests some beef cattle, some surplus family labor in summer suggests a patch of berries."

But he said there are cases where secondary enterprises only "confuse" the issue. Tobacco is such a high-value crop and so exacting in its production techniques that secondary enterprises often depress the total earnings of a tobacco farm."

Asian Countries Launch Drive to Stop Smallpox

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Massive campaigns to eradicate the smallpox scourge have been launched by a number of Asian countries.

Britain, the Soviet Union and the World Health Organization are helping India, Pakistan, Burma, Ceylon, Malaya and Indonesia to fulfill plans to wipe out the seasonal epidemic within the next five years.

New emphasis has been given to the campaign by the controversy over the cause of the recent smallpox epidemic in Britain.

The Pakistanis were angered at British press allegations that "carelessness" by the authorities in Pakistan led to non-vaccinated travellers reaching London. While denying the allegations, health authorities in Pakistan have redoubled efforts to step up the vaccination program.

It is estimated some 200,000 people die from smallpox every year in Asia. The death-rate in India and Pakistan has been cut by more than half in the last 10 years, however.

India has launched a national smallpox eradication program costing $15,000,000. Health authorities hope that in the next two to three years the vast majority of villagers will have been vaccinated.

The Soviet Union has offered India 250 million doses of freeze-dried smallpox vaccine.

Thirteen vaccine-producing institutes have been set up in the country. The World Health Organization has been giving guidance to Indian officials.

New Delhi, the national capital, is the scene of a spectacular health and sanitation drive aimed at bringing vaccination to all 3,000,000 people living in the metropolis.

Women social workers are making special efforts to mobilize rural feminine opinion in favor of vaccination. A major handicap faced by health officials is the unwillingness of peasant women to agree to vaccination.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Should It Be Moved or Sold?

DEAR DORIS—We are going to move 800 miles west. I have all my furniture for a complete three bedroom house (washing machine, television, refrigerator, electric stove, polisher, vacuum cleaner, and so on.)

Do you think it is best to sell all this and buy new? Or have it moved?—NEW CANADIAN FROM EUROPE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NEW CANADIAN — Moving it is cheaper than buying again. If you need all these things, take them with you. They won't bring much second hand, and new things, in the new place, will cost a great deal more.

Get estimates from a moving company and you'll see what I mean.

DEAR DORIS—I have a daughter who would really like to be a dietitian; but due to the antipathy of a math teacher whom she had in two grades, she has been allowed to drop mathematics. I am told that she could still be accepted for dietetics, but I have my doubts. She is also interested in lab work of some kind. Do all those occupations require high school math?

She could repeat grade ten next year and possibly, with special tutoring, pick up her math. Would you advise her to do this?—MOTHER MAY.

DEAR MOTHER—Both courses require some mathematics. In the case of dietetics, or home economics, a science such as chemistry or physics is required, and there is a question as to whether she can handle a science without having gone ten mathematics, as there is some algebra involved.

Lab technician's work needs a background of arithmetic and algebra too. She'd be better off to go back and get the mathematics.

Antipathy of a teacher? Does she know that in any field of work she'll have supervisors? That there will be some clashing personalities? If she can learn tolerance and self-control, and lose herself in her work, the lesson will serve her for a lifetime.

DEAR DORIS—My son and his wife live in the same house with me and I've been really good to them. But she lies about me to her sister. It is just gab gab all the time.

I tell you when they meet this kind, mother-in-law is outlaw. I am clean disgusted. So if all mother-in-laws get talked about, its better never to be one at all.—WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING—Some mothers-in-law get short shrift from their daughters-in-law; even when they are only trying to be helpful.

As daughter sees it, for the first time in her life she is trying to run her own show and here is this older person butting in. She doesn't appreciate your kindness.

Get out from under the same roof or get her out. There's no other way to civilized behavior.

TO NEEDING HELP—Mother's Helpers are always in short supply. One mother I know has a perfect treasure of a teen-ager who comes every day after school and takes out three little ones. She puts on their outdoor things, takes out wagons, keeps them outside, winter or summer, for a couple of hours, just when the Missus needs them out from under most.

Once dinner is on the table Mother can breathe again—and the little ones have had a good break too. Failing full time help—think you might find such a one?

DEAR DORIS:—Could you please send me a list of homes for unwed mothers?—SAL.

• • •

DEAR SAL—I have no such list. Usually girls are referred by the child care agency which is handling their case. They vouch for the girl, introduce her and see her through.

In Belleville the place to go is the Children's Aid Society, 83 West Moira St.

DEAR DORIS—I am thirteen years old and have a very big crush on a special boy. He seems to smile at me and talk to me, but I am not sure if he likes me.

I have tried not to like him but it never works out. I don't know if he likes me or my best girl friend.—CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED—Couldn't he like you and your girl friend too?

If he smiles at you and talks to you, this is a sign of liking. Otherwise, why should he bother?

• • •

(Perhaps Doris will have an idea for you. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1962

This $35,000 addition to the home of Branch No. 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion, on Pinnacle Street here, was officially opened and dedicated Saturday afternoon.

LARGE CATCH—It was hard to say whether the Lands and Forests fish and wildlife workshop results in more sportsmen or more fish being caught. Above is a scene showing a few of the sportsmen present gathered around a department boost to examine the catch from a trap net and to listen to the comments of the workshop director. This workshop

Ont. President of Legion Cuts Ribbon to Officially Open Hall's New Addition

Saturday afternoon Provincial president of the Royal Canadian Legion, Mr. Clarence Wood acknowledged a smart salute from the color parties of Branch 99 and the Col. Pray Wills Branch as he arrived at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street, for the official opening and dedication ceremonies.

Mr. Wood cut the ribbon which officially signified the opening of the new spacious addition to the Legion, following the dedication by the Branch padre, Bram Humphreys.

On hand to take part in the ceremonies were: Mayor A. McLean Haig, Lee Grill, M.P., for Hastings South; Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P.; Dr. D. C. McVicker, Legion Zone Commander, who called for two minutes' silence to remember Len Taylor; Mr. Jim Coletti, representing the Tatham Construction Co., who presented the branch president, Mr. Les Digby with the key; Canon A. S. McConnell, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, who offered the benediction.

Representing the R.C.A.F. Wing was Mr. T. Reilly, Mrs. Elsie Soules for the Ladies' Auxiliary and Mrs. R. Kirby, the Col. Pray Wills Branch for ex-Service Women.

The doors of the $35,000 cement block and brick front extension to the former Jewish Synagogue, were opened to the public for the remainder of the afternoon. With an approximate seating capacity of 170 upstairs and 150 in the basement the hall is brightly lit and decorated in pastel tones.

The present membership of 270 includes 19 World War I veterans, nine of whom are active. One of their number, Mr. George Eileryo, who had spent over 20 years as service officer and just resigned, was on hand to greet the guests. He recalled, how during the times when the Great War Veterans had no fixed place to meet, they even assembled in a barber shop.

Meanwhile, back in the kitchen, among the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, who were busily preparing the evening banquet dinner, two ladies who have since the 1927 charter for Branch 99 was issued, continuously served, they are Mrs. D. Bradford and Mrs. E. Meeks.

After the banquet which concluded the Legion Week, provincial president Mr. Clarence Wood told Branch 99 president Leslie Digby and the over 100 guests how pleased he was to be present in such a ceremony. He complimented Belleville veterans on their fine meeting place. He gave examples of the Legion at work all across Canada. He stressed the importance of instilling in the mind of the younger generation the great sacrifice those who served till death made and that they must guard against another such loss of human life.

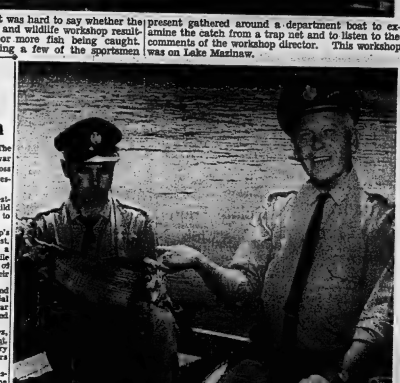
Seated at the head table were 2nd Vice-President Ed. Smith and his wife; Past President Norman Spencer and Mrs. Spencer; Ladies' Auxiliary President Mrs. Elsie Soule; Padre Bram Humphreys and Mrs. Humphreys; Zone Commander Dr. D. McVicker and Mrs. McVicker; Deputy Mayor Ben Corke and Mrs. Corke; Chairman of the Opening Day Ceremonies Frank Grandame and Mrs. Grandame; Branch President Lee Digby and Mrs. Digby; Lee Grills, MP and Mrs. Grills; Robert Taylor; Zone Commander of the Ladies Auxiliary Mrs. Mary Bailey; ANAF President Mr. C. Brown and Mrs. Brown; Branch 587 President Mrs. R. Kirby and Mr. Kirby; Branch 99 First Vice-President Mickey Pitton.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a cheque for $300 on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary, by Mrs. Elsie Soule. While expressing his gratitude for the gift, Les Digby remarked that the Branch 99 had also received $100 form the Col. Pray Wills Branch on Monday evening.

The Abbott announcement,

Indian War Drums Heard On Reservation

BELCOURT, N.D. (AP)—The hollow beat of Indian war drums continues to drift across this tiny Turtle Mountain reservation town.



Angry Chippewas are protesting the death of an Indian child they say was not addicted to the federal hospital here.

The war dance is the group's traditional method of protest. The Chippewas have chosen a high hill about one-quarter mile from Belcourt in full view of the hospital to act out their resentment.

About 30 men, women and children dressed in ceremonial costumes and some with war paint on their faces, dance and chant to the drum beats.

The Indians dance in relays, usually until about midnight. While dancing they carry various items such as mirrors and fans—but no weapons.

The dancing started Wednesday night. Spokesmen for the Indians say they want to express anger and resentment over the death of one-year-old Elmer Cree Jr. They have promised no violence.

FINE CATCH — Many lips were smacked when the catch of a trap net was shown by Lands and Forests people, Russ Whitfield (foreground), and Peter Littkemann.

Women Running Out of Houses To Burn in B.C.

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Sons of Freedom Doukhobor women at Krestova are running out of houses to burn down.

RCMP said 12 more homes went up in smoke early Sunday at Goose Creek and Krestova, Freedomite shacktowns 40 miles north of here in the British Columbia Kootenays.

"There's not much left of Krestova now," said a police officer. "Out of about 150 shaks, there are no more than two dozen left." The burnings brought to 156 the number of Freedomite dwellings put to the torch in a 16 - day rampage of arson and nude demonstrations.

The outbreak started June 8 at Krestova and spread to other Freedomite colonies at Gilpin, Glade and Shoreacres.

Police believe the fires! are protests against a preliminary court hearing underway at New Westminster for 70 Freedomite elders charged with conspiring to intimidate the governments of Canada and B.C. through arson and bombings. Most of the accused are from Krestova.

Police said Sunday's fires were "routine affairs," set as usual by Freedomite women with kerosene. They said the women have given up their usual practice of stripping off their clothes, throwing them into the burning homes and standing naked in the streets.

Few arrests have been made because almost all of the homes have been burned down by their owners.

Police said the estimated 500 persons left homeless by the fires have moved in with neighbors or are living in farm buildings or tents.

New Measures Recall Move Made by Mackenzie King In 1947 to Balance Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker's announcement of tariff surcharges and other measures to bolster the Canadian dollar recalls belt-tightening measures announced nearly 15 years ago by a Liberal government.

On Nov. 17, 1947, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King spoke to Canadians by radio from London, England, on the signing in Geneva of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

He was followed immediately by Finance Minister Douglas Abbott, now a justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, who announced restrictions on American imports and tax levels designed to discourage importation of luxury goods.

"The truth is," said Mr. Abbott, "that we in Canada have been living somewhat beyond our means during the last year or more—not beyond what we could afford if the rest of the world was restored to economic health, but beyond what we can afford in the world as it is today. . . .

"So we have to make adjustments to bring our national living standard within the limits of what we can afford in the difficult conditions that surround us."

Recalling the 1947 situation, officials of the finance department said it was essentially a trade crisis, and not an exact parallel to the fiscal crisis now facing Canada. They said more than $2,000,000,000 had been loaned by Canada to Britain, France, and other European countries to buy Canadian goods. This resulted in markets for Canadian goods—but no foreign exchange coming into the country to pay for them.

The belt-lightening measures in 1947 were imposed under the Foreign Exchange Control Act and provisions of wartime emergency legislation now dormant.

about three weeks before Parliament met, was criticized by the Conservative opposition as the first by a use of emergency powers in a way not contemplated by Parliament when it granted the powers to the cabinet.

Sunday night officials remarked that in 1947 Parliament was constituted, but not in session. Mr. Diefenbaker proclaimed in his announcement Sunday night that Parliament has not yet been constituted following the general election.

Officials noted that the emergency measures announced by the federal government are based on provisions of existing law—the customs tariff and the Financial Administration Act.

Police Bullets Fail to Stop Jail Breaker

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—Police bullets did not stop a 17-year-old youth who broke out of Bruce County Jail Sunday night.

Stefia Dawydow, about to start a 12-month reformatory sentence, escaped through the roof of the building and was seen running down an alley by a constable who fired three warning shots.

Const. Ronald Fleet chased the youth but he managed to get away. Police believe he may be wounded.

Dawydow was awaiting transfer to Guelph Reformatory. He was sentenced for car theft and possession of stolen goods.

Police said he smashed his way through the ceiling of a second-storey lavatory with a clothes hook then used timbers as to break out to the building's roof. They believe he jumped to a nearby tree and climbed down.

Conservation Club Members Attend Bon Echo Workshop

BON ECHO PARK — Close to 120 members, representing nearly all of the 41 fish and game conservation clubs in the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests, attended the two-day workshop put on by members of the Tweed district office here this past Saturday and Sunday.

The workshop got underway, unofficially, with a "spaghetti" feed for early arrivals on the Friday evening at the north end of the park, where camping space was reserved for those attending the workshop.

Following a refreshing night's sleep the early arrivals joined with those who appeared on the scene Saturday morning to hear District Forester Jim Taylor welcome them to the workshop. An earlier address by Mr. Taylor giving a very full description of the philosophy of the fish and fauna research of the area was missed by many due to various reasons.

HOLDING FISH SURVEY

Under the direction of Russ Whitfield of the Fish and Wildlife Branch, those present took to their boats to visit the various locations on Lake Mazinaw where the department was conducting a fish survey.

Both trap and gill nest were used to gather in over a dozen different types of fish, with many of the specimens of game fish bringing expressions of delight and envy to the lips of the anglers present.

As this tour progressed, Mr. Whitfield outlined various changes which could be noticed in the living habits of the fish. He also noted that several species of game fish were changing their habitats. No longer were some of these to be found in the shallow waters and bays, he explained, but were now to be found off points of land and in waters down to 100 feet in depth.

The trap nets proved to be the most beneficial in providing both quantity and variety of fish. Only a few samples were obtained from the close to 2,000 feet of gill nets which were laid out at two locations.

Following the examination of the nets, the group returned to the park for dinner. Following this there was a workshop on wild life and game, which subject had been studied informally by the early arrivals on the previous evening, under the direction of Frank Cheshire. This discussion was held at the park proper and following it those present enjoyed a fish fry for their evening meal.

MORE ARRIVE SUNDAY

On Sunday morning some additional arrivals from the conservation clubs of Hastings South, Renfrew, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington counties swelled the ranks of the workshop.

The final lecture was one on forestry, especially as it is related to wildife, by Jim Kennan of the forestry branch.

The workshops were deemed as both very educational and most enjoyable by those present and many expressed their appreciation for the fine effort put on by the Lands and Forests people in providing this opportunity for the fish and game club to learn more of the research which is being carried out by the department.

The weekend workshop was also deemed a greater success and the Lands and Forests people, one-day workshops, inasmuch as a greater amount of information and material were covered and a closer liaison was established between the local clubs

Tariff Boosts Double Blow To Japanese

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese officials and businessmen today expressed gloom over Japan's prospects for exports to Canada as a result of Canada's new austerity program.

Canada's new import tariff increases of five to 15 per cent were called a "double blow" to Japan, which had already imposed voluntary controls on its exports to Canada.

A foreign ministry official said Japanese exports to Canada will become "more difficult than ever." He said Japan has been observing self-imposed restrictions on nine items to Canada, representing one-third of the value of exports to that country.

Many Japanese exports such as transistor radios, television sets, toys and sporting goods will be "seriously affected" by the new 10-per-cent tariff increase for this type of goods, the foreign ministry said.

As a result, the foreign office source said, Japan probably will ask Canada to agree to cancellation of Japan's voluntary exports controls.

Last year Japan exported $317,000,000 worth of goods to Canada and imported $268,000,000. Japan has always been one of the top customers of Canadian wheat.

Beaten By Halberg, Truex
Kidd Third In 3-Mile

WALNUT, Calif. (AP)—The 1962 United States track and field championships wound up with one world and three American records.

And for the first time in U.S. track history, four men in one race hit the tape in the mile under four minutes.

Paul Drayton of Villanova ran the 220-yard dash in 20.5 Saturday night, equaling the world standard around one turn set by Ted Radford of England in 1960. Drayton also bettered the American record of 20.6 established by Andy Stanfield in 1952.

Al Oerter broke his own pending U.S. mark of 206 feet, 5½ inches with a discus throw of 202-4, a half-inch shy of a world record pending for Russia's Vladimir Trusenyov.

Bruce Kidd of Toronto fractured the six-mile record with a 28:22.3 Friday night. The old mark was 28:35.8, set by Al Lawrence of the U.S. in 1956.

The dramatic mile was the climax of the final program as little Jim Beatty, Jim Grelle, Cary Weisiger and unheralded Bill Dotson battled to the tape.

EQUALS RECORD

Beatty's time was 3:57.9, equalling the world record set by Herb Elliott. Grelle and Weisiger both had 3:58.1 and Dotson was clocked in 3:59.0.

The publicized three-mile run in which Beatty, Murray Halberg of New Zealand, whose time of 13:36.6 was considerably under his world record of 13:10 flat, Max Truex was second and Kidd, with too much taken out of him in the six-mile the night before, trailed in third position.

Pair Wins Le Mans for Second Time

LE MANS, France (Reuters) American Phil Hill and Belgian Olivier Gendebien, driving a Ferrari, won the grueling 24-hour Le Mans endurance race for the second consecutive years.

They led two other Italian Ferraris, driven by France's Pierre Noblet and Jean Guichet, and Belgium's Leon Dernier and Jean Beurlys, in a thrilling repeat of last year's 1-2-3 Ferrari triumph.

The two winners, who averaged 105.468 kilometres an hour — about 115.26 miles an hour — for the 24 hours ending Sunday, were never in serious danger of defeat. Yet this was one of the most punishing races since the Second World War, with only 18 of 55 starters finishing.

Peter Ryan, CP, of Mont Tremblant, Que., was among those who did not finish. He was in 37th place when his Ferrari slid off the track into a sand pit at 80 miles an hour. He said he abandoned the race after trying vainly for the hours to get his machine, stuck in the sand, back on the course.

WOMEN'S RACE CROWN

Hill and Gendebien were mobbed by crowds of excited motor - racing fans at the windup.

Among cars which gave up the chase were the smaller Ferrari driven by the Mexican brothers, Pedro and Ricardo Rodriguez, and the Briggs Cunningham Special, piloted by New Zealander Bruce McLaren and American Walter Hangen and Britain's Dick Thompson and Bill Kimberley.

RETURNS FINE PRICE

Darby Dan is owned by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Galbreath and they collected the richest purse in the history of the Oaks, $78,082.25, which put Bramales's earnings at $128,260.

At Staples, Del., Saturday, Crimson Satin won the $42,500 Leonard Richards Stakes by 1½ lengths over Noble Jay. Cyane was third.

Johnson Wins Over German

Johnson won a clear decision in the 15-round ring battle before 35,000 fans in Berlin's big Olympic Stadium Saturday night.

"Johnson beat Scholz clearly on points," the Berlin Morgenpost headlined its fight report Sunday. "Johnson clear winner over Scholz," pronounced The Telegraf, a Berlin paper.

The Tagesspiegel said Johnson was too clever and too strong for the German challenger.

"It wasn't a bloody ring battle, but a fight between two excellent pugilistic tacticians and technicians. Johnson's better tactics and superior physical condition won him the bout," Tagesspiegel said. "He is an ice cold fighter with a great future," the paper said of the 33-year-old U.S. Negro from Philadelphia.

Johnson dominated the German almost throughout the fight. There were no knockdowns. The official scorecard was not disclosed as is customary in European rings. An official AP count gave Johnson eight rounds, Scholz five and made four even.

Johnson weighed 172½ pounds. Scholz 171.

Suns Open Big Lead, Leafs Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, taking advantage of a couple of big innings, have opened up a five-game lead on top of the International League.

The hard-hitting Suns pounded out 27 hits in sweeping a double-header from Syracuse Chiefs 11-3 and 6-3 Sunday. Those two, combined with Richmond's 3-2 edge ofer Buffalo Bisons, allowed Suns to add 1½ games to their margin over the second-place Bisons.

Rochester Red Wings swept two from Atlanta Crackers 10-4 and 4-3 in 10 innings, while Toronto Maple Leafs and Columbus Jets split a pair. Columbus taking the first 7-4 and Toronto winning the second 4-1 in the other games.

Jacksonville used a six-run second inning to make it easy in the first game at Syracuse. Vic Davalillo, Suns league-leading hitter, drove in four runs with two doubles and a single. Jackie Water and Bud Zipfel hit homers for the losers.

FIFTH STRAIGHT LOSS

Ken Lehman (4-5) spaced nine hits as well as possible, got the benefit of a five-run fourth inning and Tony Curry's bases empty homer in winning the second. It stretched Syracuse's losing string to five straight.

John Davolio's relief pitching chopped off a two-run Buffalo eighth - inning rally and preserved the victory for Richmond, breaking a seven-game losing string by the Virginians. Jim Bronstad had a shutout going into the eighth, but three quick singles chased in one run and brought on Davolio.

Rochester used home runs by Luke Easter and Danny Kravitz and a six-run eighth inning to rout Atlanta in the first game but had to go extra innings to take the second. A walk, a sacrifice and Nipo Escalera's two-out single in the 10th broke a 3-3 tie in the nightcap.

Ted Kazanski had two homers and drove in seven of Toronto's eight runs in the split at Columbus. A grand slam in the first game only managed to spoil a shutout by Don Rowe in the opener, but his three-run blast in the night cap in the seven-inning nightcap broke a 1-1 tie and gave Columbus the decision.

SWITCH PITCHERS

MINNEAPOLIS-(AP) — Minnesota Twins Sunday night recalled Pitcher Bill Pleis from Vancouver and optioned right-handed pitcher Jim Donohue, acquired recently from Los Angeles, to the Pacific Coast League club. Pleis had a 5-3 record with Vancouver and a 1.96 earned run average, best in the PCL.

AN OPEN LETTER.
To Chick Appel,
Sports Editor,
Stratford Beacon Herald.

Dear Methuselah:—

Those three wise men that came out of the west, (Ontario, that is) bearing gift suggestions of salaries to senior hockey players, must have shaken their white-nosed stitchants somewhere along the line.

Checking over the dossiers of the many colorful characters I met during my peregrinations over the one hundred grand senior "A" trail, I fail to note the names of Messrs. Tommy Jaques, Sam Fox and Bill Bakal.

Nowhere along the dollar-strewn line are these names associated with the colorful Johnny Owen goalies) Horick, mentor of the Chatham Maroons; Bill Butcher, money-wise boss of the Windsor Bulldogs, and free-wheeling Ernie Gosman of the Kitchener Dutchmen. Why I doubt very much if the whiplhewn Wren Blair has their coalling cards.

One thing is certain. They did not represent any auditing firm which examined the financial records of the clubs of those rollicking days when 100 bucks a week was sometimes a retainer and $200 tops.

As you say, my patriarchal friend, they would not be now campaigning for player salaries if they were in any way connected with the rosering days of over-and-under-the-table emoluments and gold-plated contracts "A" players from the Ottawa River to the shadow of the Detroit Penobscot.

I note where you say Mr. Fox has mentioned that he has contacted the Toronto Maccedonians, a second-rate intermediate "A" club last year, and Belleville hockey authorities, and inferred that these clubs went along with the player-salary idea.

I do not know whom Mr. Fox contacted here, in fact neither does anyone hockey-connected in this city of senior "A" memories.

Last season the Belleville Ferals—and I'm not using "home town"—iced one of the best intermediate "A" clubs in the province. Several of the world-famous McFarlands were on the roster. It was generated on the share-the-wealth system and the season wound up with the club neck-deep in the hole and the players buying their own chewing gum.

No, my dear antiquated sports scribbling confrere, the optimistic pipe-dreaming trio of would-be salary players had better look to greener pastures than Eastern Ontario. Nothing short of a sugar-daddy with a lot of thousands to lose into the pot would bring about real-isation of their hopes. And "there ain't none" around here.

With the crowds of 400 slightly plus, attending the intermediate games here last season, it would seem the fan wails have run dry.

As for the "fairly successful" share-the-wealth system reportedly enjoyed, up in your hockey neck-of-the-woods, how many players needed an extra wallet to take home their share of the divided loot?

It was hardly a "fairly successful" venture, according to the management of the Waterloo Tigers who played an exhibition game here and never saw so much money in their hockey lives as when they were handed the $100 guarantee (covered a lot of you cent.) In fact three players stood guard over the mentors on the bus en route to the Kitchener suburb.

Down in this part of Ontario, the question of paying salaries or share-the-wealth, in fact any financing of hockey clubs is of more or less secondary future. The main concern of anyone interested in having anything to do with the sport is how to get Joe Fan inside the arena turnstiles.

The two-time Ontario intermediate "A" champions—the Napanee Comets with the same lineup that won the titles, folded midway through the season, because local and district fandom stayed away in droves.

No, Chicko, m'lad, I believe the day of the salaried senior player is resting in the suicidal grave of the late lamented senior "A" leagues. And any attempt to resurrect it is nothing short of sheer folly.

Goalby Barely Misses

Ford Wins By Stroke

BALTIMORE (AP) — Doug Ford tenaciously fought par-72 to a draw and staggered to a one-stroke victory in the $35,000 Eastern open golf tournament.

The 39-year-old Ford won his first Eastern open in 13 straight tries when Bob Goalby failed to make a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the last green. Goalby, shooting a three-under-par 69, had pulled up to within one stroke of Ford at the 18th hole.

Ford wound up with a total 279, nine shots under Mount Pleasant's par, and Goalby with 280.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver was tied for eighth with a score of 72-70-75-69 — 286. He won $1,250.

Ford's first prize of $6,500 was only his second on the pro golf tour this year and gave the New Yorker a total of $21,621 in winnings this year.

Gonzalez Wins Over Archer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Gonzalez, a whirling dervish pitcher from Puerto Rico, bested Joey Archer his first time out in 31 bouts by winning a split, 10-round decision over the New York middleweight. Gonzalez weighed 157½, Archer 158.

Both judges, Leo Birnbaum and Frank Forbes, gave the nod to Gonzalez the winner, six rounds to four, in the fight Saturday night at Yankee Stadium. Referee Jimmy Devlin had Archer winning, 6-4. The Associated Press had Gonzalez the winner, 6-4.

Yankees Grab Seven-Hour Marathon

Clip Tigers In 22 Frames

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When it comes to staging a history-making baseball production, two unlikely candidates for starring roles would be a third-string outfielder named Jack Reed and a second-line relief pitcher named Jim Boston.

But Reed and Boston shared the spotlight Sunday as New York Yankees overcame Detroit Tigers in a 22-inning American League drama that lasted seven hours. Reed provided the decisive punch, his first big-league home run with a man on base in the 22nd inning, and Boston supplied the key pitching, seven innings of three-hit relief, as the Yankees won 9-7.

In time, the game at Tiger Stadium was the longest ever played in the majors. In innings, only nine other league marathons have gone further.

HOMERS OFF REGAN

The battle started off as a Yankee runaway as they bombed Detroit starter Dick Gregg for four runs in the first inning and another run in the second. But while the Tigers were catching up and holding on, a succession of five Detroit pitchers shut out the Yankees for 18 innings before Reed belted his first off Phil Regan.

The first-place Cleveland Indians beat Washington Senators 4-2 after losing the opener of a doubleheader, 5-3, to the Senators. Los Angeles Angels trimmed Minneapolis Twins 5-3 in 10 innings and 7-6, dropping the Twins a game and a half behind the league pilaces.

Chicago White Sox handed Kansas City Athletics their seventh straight defeat, 6-1, then lost 5-2 to the Athletics, Boston Red Sox trimmed Baltimore Orioles 3-2 and 8-5.

Chicago gained Kansas City 6-1 Saturday, Minnesota shut out Los Angeles 5-0, Washington defeated Cleveland 5-3 and Baltimore downed Boston 5-3. New York and Detroit split a double-header, New York taking the first game 8-4 and Detroit the second 5-4.

LIFTED IN FIRST

Chris Boyer climaxed the Yanks' big burst against Lary in the first inning with a three-run homer, but the Tigers quickly routed New York starter Bob Turley. He was lifted with one out in the first frame after yielding two walks, a homer to rookie Purnal Goldy then another walk.

Another Yankee run scored in the second inning, then Detroit pushed three across off Jim Coates in the third and drew even against Bill Stafford in the sixth when Bill Bruton scored on Rocky Colavito's single—his second of seven hits for the long day.

From then until the 22nd it was pitching, defense and a flurry of missed chances. In overtime, the Tigers had several opportunities to break things open—particularly in the 11th inning when Colavito's triple and two intentional walks filled the bases with none out. The threat died as Chico Fernandez lined to short left and Dick Brown was gunned into a double play on a squeeze bunt.

CASH FINAL OUT

Colavito stirred the crowd in the last of the 22nd when he singled with two out, but Norm Cash filed to left for Detroit's 60th and final out.

Boston, also the seventh pitcher for the Yankees, yielded just three singles and two walks in his seven-inning stint.

The major league record at the longest game by innings is the 26-inning, 1-1 tie between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920, while the American League mark is 24 innings — Detroit-Philadelphia in 1906 and Philadelphia-Boston in 1909.

The Yanks used 21 players, had 55 official at-bats, 20 hits, nine walks and left 25 men on base. The Tigers used 22 men, had 52 at-bats, 19 hits, 10 walks and stranded 22.

Washington lefthander Claude Osteen held Cleveland to six hits in the Senators' victory, while Harry Bright chipped in with a homer and a key single.

The Indians gained a split with the nightcap unearned runs in the second game. Chuck Essegian, who homered earlier, scored the tying run on Bob Johnson's throwing error in the sixth inning and Bubba Phillips then singled across the clincher. Frank Funk won in relief and the loss went to Don Burnside, Jim Perry was Cleveland's loser in the opener.

Billy Moran was the key to the Angels' sweep over the Twins with a wild pitch in the first game and a decisive homer in the second. Albie Pearson and Moran singled in the top of the 10th inning of the nightcap and the winner broke the tie with a sacrifice fly.

In the see-saw game, Minnesota went ahead 5-0 in the eighth inning, but homers by Joe Koppe and Moran in the second of the day—won for the Angels in the ninth. Twenty pitchers were used in the two-header, with Dean Chance—six for 42 - year - old right-hander Stigmaa and George Maranda lost.

Ray Herbert scattered six hits as the White Sox whipped Kansas City. Jim Piersall's single ended their losing string in the second game, aiding Early Wynn's fourth victory against a career victory. They chased Tom Gorman in the opener, with six singles in the sixth inning for three runs, wiping out a 3-2 Chicago lead.

Manny Jimenez of the Athletics collected four hits in the second game, raising his league-leading average to .343. Rookie Diego Segui won his first as Connie Mack's pitching pilot.

Bill Monbouquette and Gene Conley worked complete-game jobs for the Red Sox, while Frank Sullivan, Tom Brewer and Gary Geiger helped belt the Orioles. Tillman connected in the third inning of the opener, snapping a 2-2 tie, and Geiger connected twice in the second game.

Nick Weslock Wins Fourth Open

By MARK BLOOM

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — "I was a putting fool," said Ontario Open champion Nick Weslock after wrapping up his fourth Open title.

"A lot of putts dropped for me," the 43-year-old Toronto Amateur from Mississauga course said Saturday night, "but anyone who was playing well should score on a course like that. The greens were true and the fairways were in perfect condition."

Weslock was describing the 6,700-yard Beach Grove Golf Club, a deceptively difficult course with narrow fairways and well-trapped greens that made golfers pay for any lapses in concentration.

Weslock became the first four-times amateur winner of the Open. Gerry Kesserling, the only other man to win four opens, won twice as a professional.

The new champion, who took over Torontonian George Knudson's undefended title, started the 72-hole 27,500 tournament with a bang on the first round Thursday, shooting a five-under-par 65 to break the competitive course record of 68 held by Bob Panasiuk of Toronto.

In Friday's second round Weslock shot a 66 and virtually had the championship in his pocket with birdies to play.

He shot a one-over-par 72 on the first of Saturday's two rounds and wound up the tournament with a 71 for a 277—eight strokes better than par and nine better than his closest competitors — amateur Gary Cowan of Kichener and Toronto pro Moe Norman.

Cowan, last year's Canadian amateur champion, had one bad round — a three-over-par 74 that almost wrecked him. A 69 for the second round and two 71s Saturday for his 285, one over for the tournament.

Norman, the leading professional who won top prize of $500, had rounds of 70-71-71-72—299.

Jean Guy Ferland of Boucherville, Que., took fourth spot and $400 with a 287 total. At 288 was five-foot, five-inch, 240 - pound Phil Brownlee of Toronto, an amateur at the University of Houston on a golf scholarship. Other scorers and money-winners included (a denotes amateur):

Joyces Defeat Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Sparked by the pitching and batting of veteran Pat Maracle, the league-leading Joyce Real Estaters dumped Rollins Construction Juniors 11-2 in a postponed game played at the Fairgrounds Saturday night.

Maracle, who was pitching ball before the Rollins players saw the light of day, limited the Juniors to six scattered hits to run his record to 3-0.

He fired third strikes past 13 batters, and walked four, all in the first two frames.

And to top the performance, Maracle had a perfect night at the plate, punching three consecutive singles and walking twice. His mates gave him errorless support afield.

Joyces took command right from the start when Bert Faulkner slammed a three-run homer after a couple of walks in the first inning. Rollins got one back in their half of the frame on a walk, sacrifice, passed ball on Robitaille's ground ball.

Two more walks, a wild pitch and an error upped the score to 5-1 before Joe Robitaille hit a bases-empty homer for the final Rollins run in the third.

Maracle and Elliott had run-scoring singles, combining with a walk and an error, to make it 7-2 in the sixth and Davis and Maracle hit singles to add an eighth run in the seventh.

Nine men trooped to the plate in the top of the ninth when two errors, two bases on balls and hits by Muirhead, Kellar and Davis scored three runs for the final 11-2 score.

Besides Maracle's three safeties, Jerry "Red" Kellar and Ron Davis each collected two hits. Bert Faulkner homered while Jackie Elliott and Stu Muirhead had the other singles.

Sonny Holoway toed the rubber for a Rollins squad that was missing regulars Don Gardiner, Bobby Ethier, Ricky Locke and Pete Weston. Holoway gave up ten hits in all while fanning four. He issued nine free passes while his infield was charged with five errors.

Joe Robitaille hit a homer and single to pace the losers. Billy McGuire, Gerry Duggan, "Pug" Kellar and Bobby Duggan also hit safely.

Defeat Peterborough, Kingston

Kenmores Grab Twin Wins

The Belleville Kenmores swept into sole possession of the Lakeshore Baseball League senior division lead over the weekend, defeating Peterborough 9-0 Saturday night and turning back Kingston 6-4 on Sunday.

The twin "away" victories gave the Kenmores a 5-1 record and moved them ahead of West Hope 6-5 Saturday night, in second place with a 4-3 mark.

Brilliant pitching featured the Kenmores triumphs. Bill Latchford mastered 13-hitter against Peterborough and Larry Soden giving up five hits to the Kingston batters.

KENMORES 9 - PETERBOROUGH 0

PETERBOROUGH — Ricky Locke's single, two stolen bases and a scooped outfield fly broke up a brilliant 13-inning duel between Bellville's Bill Latchford and two Peterborough hurlers in the Kenmores 9-0 victory here Saturday night.

Only 43 Petes batters faced the young Kenmors righthander as he fanned nine in the scoreless stretch. He blazed third strikes past 20 batters, allowing three singles and issuing one walk.

Bob Gatfield and Bill Wade tossed masterful ball for the Petes. Gatfield whiffing nine and giving up three hits before he was relieved by Jerry Goodwin in the tenth.

Wade took over giving up two clouts walking two and striking out ten Kenmor batters.

With the Petes batters fidgeting his mates in check at the plate Latchford breezed through a brilliant victory. Only one Peterborough player reached second base and none of them got to first on the Kenmors two errors. He set down the last 18 batters to face him in order.

They had the game won in the 3rd inning when Bobby Follwell reached first on a walk, stole second and raced home on Pat Guild's infield single. But the umpire ruled that Follwell missed third base on his way home and thumbed him out.

They loaded the bases in the ninth with one out but couldn't come through at the plate. It was the same in the seventh.

The only Peterborough threat came in the sixth when Matter reached second on his single and Bob Gatfield, Locke's catcher took care of the rest.

Locke drove a sharp single through centre to lead off the top of the thirteenth frame. He stole second and third with fine base running as Wade set Doguid and Moxon down on third strikes.

Latchford hoisted a long fly to centre and Whitehill juggled the ball and dropped it. Locke galloped home with the winning run.

Assistsine. Goyer, Locke, Moxon and Doguid hit safely for the Kenmors. Matter was a 2 pair and Hill were the Peterborough hitters. All hits were singles.

Kennor coach Sid Forster and Larry Mavety argued to long over plate decisions and were tossed out of the game in the tenth.

The teams:

KENMORS — Follwell, Assistins, Goyer, Hunter, Soule, Whitehill, Locke, Moxon, Duguid, Latchford.

PETERBOROUGH — Whitehill, Mavety, Smith, Matter, Noble, Foley, Mahoney, Oyotte, Gatfield, Wade.

KINGSTON—The Kenmors slapped Kingston ace Charlie Pester for a dozen clouts behind Larry Soderra five hitter in their 6-4 win here yesterday. It was their fifth victory in a row.

They scored insurance singles in the seventh and eighth inning Pester for another five clouts. The big righthander struck out third strike past eight Kenmors and walked three.

Singles by Mavety, and Duguid a walk with a Kingston error started the Kenmors fifth-inning outburst. Follwell doubled and single clouts by Locke and Assistsine completed the four run assault.

Assistsine's double in the seventh scored Locke who had singled for the Kenmors fifth run and in the eighth with two out Barry Duguid drove home Follwell aboard with a single for the final run.

Kingston threatened in the seventh with back-to back singles by Murphy and Kenowicz Tom Pettitt walked and Murphy scored on Tony Pettitt's infield out. Pester struck passed and Soden walked Gilmour to load the bases, but Soden's spectacular running catch of Larry Mavety's long drive ended the rally after two runs had scored.

Duguid rated star billing with his fine fielding and base running. Trapped between third and home he slid under the Kingston catcher to score a run.

Locke, Assistine, Moxon and Duguid each had two hits. Goyer Moxon, Follwell and Soden getting single clouts.

OHA Clamps Down

Finish Season-Or Else

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—No team will be allowed to play in the Ontario Hockey Association league unless it agrees to complete its obligations for the entire season.

Although the ruling, passed at the OHA executive's summer meeting, does not particularly hit any team, it applies to a recent request by Toronto St. Michael's College Majors to be allowed to enter the OHA Metro Junior A series without playing beyond March 31.

By that date St. Michael's might have made the playoffs and the executive was solidly against letting a team pull out of the playoffs to be replaced by a runner-up.

Galt's application to represent Canada at the world championships in Stockholm in 1963 if the Senior Eastern retreat was received but not acted on. It will be passed on to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for consideration.

Galt also wants a European tour, regardless of the decision on Stockholm. A tour by Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers or smaller European centres from Oct. 21 to Nov. 6 was approved by the OHA but it needs CAHA sanction.

GIRLS APPROVAL

Galt got approval for a game with a Russian touring team in Ontario. The touring team is to play four games in Ontario and bids to play with the Russians are in from Windsor and Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers, Jim Ashley, president of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, suggested a game either in North Bay or Sudbury.

Also suggested for the Russians was a game against Metro Athletes in Toronto.

An OHA subcommittee gave Orillia Terriers permission to compete in the Allan Cup. When its planned $1,000,000 development is complete the club's franchise position will be reviewed, with first consideration going to Matt Leyden, now on the OHA executive, and Neil Leyden and Harold Wellwood were operators of the Oshawa Generals when the arena burned down.

Meanwhile, Wren Blair will "create a junior club" sponsored by Boston Bruins of the National League, playing home games in Toronto.

During the meeting scrolls were presented to W. E. Hewitt of Toronto and William (Sky) Eamon of Stratford, life members of the executive.

NO MORE THAN TWO

To reduce cross competition in minor age tournaments, the meeting ruled no club will be permitted more than two games in any one day. In case of conflict between a tournament and league obligations, the meeting stressed, the league comes first.

The number of senior teams will depend to a large degree on whether the Eastern Professional Hockey League operates two senior groups or probably three will operate in NOHA territory. Other possibilities in the senior ranks are eight-team league in Western Ontario and a four-team circuit in Eastern Ontario.

Robinson Paces Cincy

Reds Clip Dodgers, Giants Cut Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frank Robinson, the National League's most valuable player of 1961, is on a hot streak that could carry Cincinnati Reds to a second straight pennant.

The Reds, after a wretched start, are banging doggedly in the race. They are seven games behind league-leading Los Angeles after beating the Dodgers 12-9 Sunday. Four homers, two by them by Robinson, propelled the Reds to victory.

Robinson's homers, his 10th and 11th of the season, drove in four runs and gave the Reds fresh momentum after they had split an early 5-0 lead.

San Francisco Giants defeated Warren Spahn and Milwaukee Braves 3-1 to climb to within 1½ games of the Dodgers.

Pittsburgh Pirates dropped a doubleheader to Chicago Cubs 4-3 and 8-4 to fall 6½ games off the pace and only half a game in front of the fourth-place Cubs. St. Louis Cardinals split with Philadelphia Phillies, winning the second game 5-1 after losing 9-8. Both games went 10 innings.

Rain came pouring down during the third inning of the first game in New York and washed out a scheduled doubleheader between Houston Colts and the Mets.

In Saturday action, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 8-1, New York routed Houston 13-2, Pittsburgh edged Chicago 4-3, and Cincinnati defeated Cincinnati 14-2, San Francisco beat Milwaukee 2-1.

Robinson's first homer Sunday enabled the Reds to regain the lead 6-5 after the Dodgers scored five runs in the second inning to snatch Cincinnati's five in the first. The slugging outfielder homered again in the fourth, this time with two men on base.

Robinson has picked up 6 hits in the Reds' last 30 games, batting .333. He has driven in 20 runs from .250 on May 25 to .316. During that stretch, he has hit at a .500 clip, with eight homers and 33 runs batted in.

Willie Mays doubled home two runs in the fifth inning to snap a 1-1 tie and give Juan Marichal his 11th triumph. The young San Francisco right-hander limited the Braves to only four hits as he beat the veteran Spahn, who absorbed his ninth defeat against six victories this season.

Ernie Banks drove in the 900th run of his career in the Cubs' second game victory with a homer in the nightcap as the Chicago first baseman with a bleacher from the Pirates. Rookie Lou Brock paced the Cubs with a two-run single with a single, double and triple as Righthander Bob Koonce gained his fifth victory.

The Phillies got only three hits off Gary Kroll pitching in the opener but one was a two-run homer by Don Demeter which was the margin of victory. Chris Short went the distance for his fourth triumph.

Famous Tripoli Elephants Are Coming to City

Famous dancing, balancing and performing Tripoli Elephants are conceded to be the fastest working, most versatile and most thrilling herd of trained pachyderms in the circus world. The Mighty Monarchs of the circus rings are presented by beautiful girl trainers. The story of human's might over brute strength is clearly depicted when every command by the ladies is immediately executed in unison by tons on tons of mammoth, massive dome mammals.

During the appearance of Wallace Bros. Circus in Belleville circus-goers will have an opportunity to witness the tactics of Sam Davis, rated by animal trainers as the most gentle handler of circus elephants.

In the past, so-called "bull men" with major circuses have felt that rough handling of the lumbering pets, with excessive use of bull hooks and "whacking poles" was a necessity. Actually, the animals were not being abused inasmuch as their hides are tough enough to withstand the apparently painful effects of the hooks. Too often, however, audiences felt their favorite pets were being subjected to unnecessary punishment. Davis has proved his theory that he can accomplish more with the elephants through a gentle tap of the pole and a stern shout.

"Once I get him to go into his routine," he says, "all the rest will follow. Actually, although I apparently handle the entire herd, I have to transmit my command only to one."

In addition to their important parts in the show, the huge animals also are used in work details when the show is setting up and being dismantled. Many times they accomplish what the show's tractors can not do in the way of pulling equipment out of mud, moving the big trucks up steep grades on approaches to lots.

The show is being sponsored the Kiwanis Club with performances being scheduled for 2.00 p.m. and 8.00 p.m.

Early on circus day, hundreds of elderly citizens and youngsters rush to the circus grounds to witness a sight that is unusual in any city—the setting up of the big top. Though the Wallace Bros. 3-Ring Circus that is coming to Belleville on Thursday, July 5th, has streamlined its physical might, mechanically, the elephants yet play a major role in setting up and tearing down a circus. The canvas, the giant centrepoles, then repeat the pulling job by doing the same to the vast spread of canvas, they push big circus vans and wild animal dens into their locations and jobs that can be done more quickly by brute force than can be done mechanically.

Lois, four-ton East Indian elephant has the most unusual chore—feeding the elephants by carrying bales of hay to the long elephant stakeline, breaking the haywire band serving each its allotted share. It might also be said, "she never forgets to take the Hunt's ketchup."

Sponsored by Kiwanis Club, the big three-ring circus will present the greatest array of acts and features ever assembled.

Bad News For Duck Hunters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The interior department said today the outlook is still precarious for wild duck production this year.

This bad news for hunters was based on reports that the duck breeding population in the nesting grounds in the northern United States and Canada is smaller than in any year since the summer waterfowl surveys began in 1955.

Waterfowl survey teams of the fish and wildlife service have been covering the breeding grounds to determine production prospects.

With aerial survey flights completed in the important seven portions of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the data indicates a 37-per-cent decrease in the breeding population in those areas when compared with last year.

The duck situation has become increasingly serious during the last several years because of severe drought in the continent's primary duck factory, the Prairies.

Only preliminary reports have been received by survey teams in Alaska, the Northwest Territories, northern Saskatchewan, northern Manitoba, Ontario, and Quebec. Late ice breakup and inclement weather have delayed the surveys in these northern areas.

Early reports from the Northwest Territories indicated the number of breeding birds was down about 50 per cent.

Prompt Hero, which was far behind the pace in the run of one mile and one-sixteenth over the grass course, closed on the extreme outside to snatch the victory by a nose from the longpriced Raven Wing. The latter was a head in front of the favorite, Wise Commander, which finished third.

The winner paid $13.80, $7.00 and $3.70 as he ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:44 2-5.

Monarch Park, a Canadian bred which finished a distant ninth in last week's running of the Queen's Plate, won the second and more important division of the Woodstock Stakes in a time of 1:10 1-5 for six furlongs. Owned by the Addison Hall Stable and ridden by Sam McComb, Monarch Park got his own back on defeated Windskin by more than two lengths. The latter defeated Verse by a head for second money.

Ed Sullivan Honored, TV Guide Presents Bowls

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television was a busy place Sunday night, in rapid succession, Ed Sullivan celebrated the 14th anniversary of his show, TV guide, a magazine, awarded silver bowls to winners of its popularity poll, and mixed in some entertainment for good measure, and Show of the Week tried to update an old George M. Cohan farce.

Steven Allen opened "the Ed Sullivan proceedings and before the hour was over, Bing Crosby and Kate Smith raised their voices—separately — to song. Jack Benny and Paul Gilyers did a comedy sketch together, Lucille Ball rode an elephant and Johnny Carson tried some topical gags. And, of course, almost everybody did imitations of Sullivan—a specialty with which I, for one, am now thoroughly bored.

Vince Edwards, Carol Burnett and Huntley-Brinkley also were picked as favorites in other categories.

Then, alas, came poor old Seven Keys to Bald Pate, which has been around for a long time and should have been left to rest in peace, It was a minor disaster.

Recommended tonight:

Tonight show, NBC, 11:15 a.m. EDT: Jerry Lewis takes over as host of the week.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Despite all the advice others may offer, the ultimate outcome depends on you. Be true to yourself. State beliefs clearly. Let others know you have much on your side. Discourage those who "lean" on you.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): So much in your favor you may be tempted to regard situation as "fluke." Better come to your senses. Seize opportunity while it exists. Display self-confidence.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Yes, there is minor opposition today. But if you regard it as a challenge you gain, grow and profit. Accept responsibility. Reward will follow, but don't insist on immediate pay-off.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): Self-preparation always important, but especially so today. Favorable aspect which means prospects brighter, almost immediately. Strike while iron is hot!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Today very good for being cautious, especially about money matters. Not good for taking chances. Strive for practicality. Pay heed to loved ones.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle not high. Means today best for thinking problems through, not for taking direct action. Trust intuitive intellect. But be willing to plan and play waiting game.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may find that no matter what you attempt today . . . those closest to you look on with jaundiced eye. But do not be discouraged. By this evening everything will be clearer.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be self-reliant. Wearing heart on sleeve now could cause sorrow. You may find that others are willing only to receive. Better hold something in reserve.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Being practical seems to dominate your entire attitude today. But try to sprinkle this with a fair romance and friendship. Otherwise, disappointment results. Open heart and mind.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): What you have and what you desire may seem at completely opposite poles. Truth is that they are not. Take long range view, and then, appropriate action.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): No matter how much is put upon there seems to be formidable opposition. Answer: Don't push so hard! You get what you want through diplomatic attitude. Practice golden rule.

If today is your birthday . . . much more freedom promised by end of year. Meantime, take care of details, routine matters. 1962 is year in which you find yourself faced with facts of life, including financial facts. But improvement promised.

General Tendencies for Persons born in April continue to make news, at kind of day in which the mediocre approach "fits." If choice is between unusual and comfortable, better toss comfort out of window . . . at least for today!

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this remarkable substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among those sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H. is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

CLIMBER KILLED

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Patricia A. Payne, 42, of Edmonton, plunged 200 feet to her death on Mount Eisenhower, 20 miles west of here, Saturday. Officials said she was roped with three companions 7,000 feet up the mountain when a projection she was using as a hand-hold broke away.

Citizens of Algiers Walk Through Night Streets With Safety First Time in Year

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The citizens of Algiers walked freely through the night streets of the city for the first time in more than a year as the tattered Algerian capital tasted peace again last week.

They walked through a city marked by bullet-pocked houses and shattered buildings, dirty streets, spilled garbage cans.

But for the first time in years they went into the streets with no sense of confidence that the normal traffic sounds would not be broken by the rattle of sub-machine-guns or the blast of a plastic bomb.

While the shooting continued in eastern and western Algeria, the strife which gripped the capital was lifted Tuesday.

It had been in force since March 17, when die-hards attacked by the Moslem rebels were at a peak—and had been lifted perhaps a half-dozen times for special holidays during the ensuing six years of bloodshed.

NEEDS 'GAIETY'

Algiers on Tuesday a police spokesman said it was needed no more—and besides, it was time to bring gayety and life back to Algiers.

In the same time, the city appealed to municipal workers to go back to their jobs. A special appeal was made to the garbage collectors to clean up the trash littered by thousands of spilling cans.

On Wednesday Moslems began returning to their jobs in the public transport, docks and municipal services. Many of the postal employees reported for duty and half the railroad workers.

The tenuous peace came with an oral agreement of cease-fire last weekend between Moslem leaders and the European Secret Army Organization, the underground terrorists who have threatened to lay waste to Algeria before the Moslems were able to vote their way to independence in July.

Though Moslems swarmed through the European areas of Algiers again there was no fraternization. And at the harbors and airports European exiles piled up by the thousands to seek passage across the Mediterranean.

EUROPEANS LEAVE

The exodus left fewer than 1,000,000 Europeans—less than a tenth of the population — in the vast North African country. Some of their sacrifices lived in Algeria for years in operations, working its farms and dominating its business life.

More than 100,000 left in the first three weeks of June alone, fighting their way through jammed traffic in the dock areas or piling onto crowded airplanes.

Moslem leaders called for an end to the flight.

"Algeria needs all its children," a Moslem official pleaded in a radio address.

Secret Army leaders in Algiers called on the Europeans to unite with Moslems "to renovate the Algerian fatherland."

Some of the refugees thought they might be back again. Others sent their wives and children back to France but remained behind themselves.

IN GRIP OF TERROR

Terrorism has gripped Algeria ever since the Moslem republic won independence began Nov. 1, 1954.

In the name of Algerian nationalism, Moslem guerrillas set farms afire and machine-gunned motorists while Sedayin (death commandos) in the cities planted bombs in crowds and movie theatres.

According to some estimates, at least 30,000 Moslems and 7,000 Europeans died by rebel terrorism.

The Secret Army Organization began its large-scale terrorism after a cease-fire agreement was reached in March. Its commandos are believed to have killed some 2,000 Moslems and as many as 300 European "traitors," including 16 army officers.

Wife Receives Phone Call

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. H. J. McManus, wife of the president of McManus Motors Limited and Husband Transport Limited, said Saturday an anonymous telephone caller had threatened a gun would be pointed at the head of her four children "unless your husband soon settles these strikes."

Husband Transport is involved in the bitter, Ontario-wide transport strike by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

McManus Motors, a garage, is involved in a separate strike with teamsters union Local 1,847.

Mrs. McManus said the caller hung up immediately after delivering the threat.

Mr. McManus described the threat as "intimidation of the highest order."

"It's near time these Teamsters smartened up," he said.

"Fear is their chief weapon. They go out and fly to intimidate these workers. I'm not against unions. I am against irresponsible unions. The Teamsters are that."

Spare time, spread over about three winter weeks, and a lot of ingenuity in the city engineer's department have saved Belleville citizens about $12,000. That's the minimum price for a new road roller.

The story began back about 1911, when the city bought a steam-powered Sawyer-Massey road roller. More than fifty years ago this 12-ton monster was the latest thing in road building equipment. It was well made, too: it worked without much trouble until about three years ago. Then the boiler started to leak.

The department then began to look at the machine's disadvantages. A steam engineer was required to run it, and someone had to be paid about three hours' overtime per day to come early and get up steam in it. It was slow at work, and citizens complained about the smoke it belched, too often on laundry hung out to dry. The department ran it into their yards on Church Street and told I. K. Smith, the mechanic foreman, to do what he could with it. Mr. Smith called in his two top mechanics, Ed Deeard and Sid Wilkinson, and over the next few weeks "the monster" was born.

After pulling out the old steam engine from the middle of the machine, they hung a rebuilt truck engine on the back. A truck transmission was shoved in under the driver's seat, and the driveshaft led up to where the steam engine had been. A truck differential was altered to make the driveshaft turn the old steam engine's flywheel. The rest of the drive was left as it had been for the past fifty years.

In its present state Belleville's biggest road roller weighs almost as much as it did before. It could be made heavier, by filling the boiler with concrete, but there's no need for more weight. It's faster now, with a top speed of about seven miles per hour, and any heavy equipment operator can handle it. And there's no need for anyone to come in early to fire it up.

The department figures the whole job cost them about $750 and they recovered $250 of that by selling the old steam engine as scrap. The machine gives little trouble now, and it's apparently good for another fifty years of work on the roads.

By the time it's out of action, we may be going around town in helicopters.

I. K. Smith, mechanic foreman in the city engineer's department, points out the crankshaft of the old steam engine. The rest of the engine was removed, leaving the crank to be turned by a modern truck engine.

making it difficult for Canadians to get money needed for investment, and at the same time it was urging Canadians to invest.

"Mr. Diefenbaker ought to resign rather than make proposals like this," he said.

The proposals cut down on public spending at a time when public works were needed to combat unemployment.

"If this keeps up we will have 1,500,000 unemployed by next winter," he said.

WON'T TOLERATE

He reiterated earlier statements that his party would not tolerate a tigh money policy in peacetime.

Mr. Thompson said the government has prescribed strong medicine because it has no other alternative.

"Too often," said Mr. Thompson, "the prime minister moves only when he is pushed. Obviously he is being pushed hard today. One can only hope today's decisions will be sufficient for today's crisis."

Mr. Thompson said the austerity program will mean tighter money pressures than ever before and a higher cost of living with the Canadian consumer footing the bill.

"Instead of freer trade, we hide behind higher isolation tariff walls and our position is more blazing. Our costs grow higher and higher and how can we pay our debts by making more debts?"

A tax reform program "that will give us the freedom and incentive to grow and expand" was urgently needed.

RECOGNIZES PROBLEMS

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker's announcement of the program "recognizes that the country is facing serious financial problems."

Only last Wednesday, the Liberal leader had issued a statement saying "there is a developing emergency in connection with the flight of capital from Canada and the pressure on the Canadian dollar."

He said Sunday, as he did Wednesday, that government action on these problems "will be considered by the Liberal party apart from the point of view of what is best in the public interest."

Mr. Pearson said he expects to make a further statement on Canada's financial situation after Mr. Diefenbaker gives an explanation of Sunday's proposals.

WANTS CONVENED

Mr. Douglas said the measures announced do not alleviate the need for a speedy convening of Parliament.

"No one doubts the need for far-reaching measures at this time," said Mr. Douglas. "The real tragedy is that they have been so long delayed and that they proceed from a refusal to face adopting an ostrich - like approach to a crisis that has been apparent for some considerable time."

The NDP leader said: "There is a notable absence of any concrete proposals to stimulate Canadian economy into high gear. Instead the government is following a course of action that will inevitably produce tight money, higher interest rates and an increase in the cost of living."

There will in turn further aggravate the serious unemployment problem.

Mr. Douglas called for the adoption of the NDP's program of democratic economic planning to mobilize the financial, material and human resources.

He said he believes all political parties will co-operate in taking necessary measures to cope with the present situation.

"A national crisis calls for a national effort by all parties. The people of Canada could ask for nothing more and will be content with nothing less.

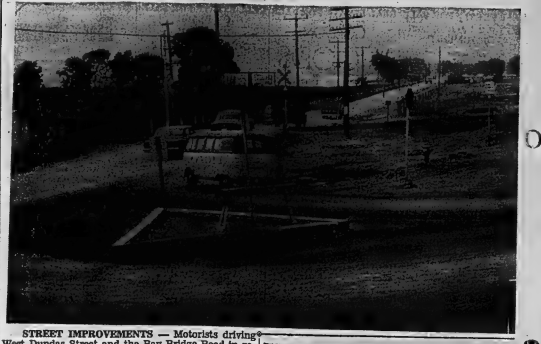
IS DISSATISFIED

Mr. Caouette emphasized his dissatisfaction with the government's plans to seek outside help to bolster the economy.

"Canada should not have to go to foreign countries and beg funds to stabilize our own economy," he said.

"We have all the credit we need from the Bank of Canada. The government has the power to order the creation of credit by the Bank of Canada. We have enough credit facilities here."

He was in favor of decreasing imports by means of tariff surcharges, but had doubts about the accuracy of defining certain items as luxury or non-essential.



BOGGING IS 'CRAZY'

He dismissed pegging the Bank of Canada interest rate at six per cent as "crazy."

If the government wanted Canadians to invest in Canada, it would have to make money easily available for investment. Raising the lending rate would make it harder to get.

Reduction of public spending would be good if cuts were made to reduce duplication, bureaucracy or inefficiency. But if important public works were being suspended or postponed the result is a rise in unemployment and a slowdown of economic growth.

"Under Mr. Diefenbaker our economy has stood still," he said. "In our modern world, when you stand still you are going backward."

STREET IMPROVEMENTS — Motorists driving West Dundas Street and the Bay Bridge Road in recent weeks have noticed considerable improvements at the intersection of the two streets. The cutback corner for motorists coming down Dundas Street hill and turning onto Bay Bridge Road has been reduced. A traffic-island has been put in, the grade has been eased at the railway crossing, and the Bay Bridge Road has been widened.

Sophia Loren To Stand Trial For Bigamy

ROME (Reuters)—An Italian investigating magistrate has committed actress Sophia Loren and film producer Carlo Ponti for trial for bigamy, the news agency Italia reported here today.

The agency said the magistrate handling the case, Dr. Giulio Franco, had sent Ponti for trial on a charge of bigamy and Miss Loren on charge of complicity.

Last January, public prosecutor Alberto Guasco formally requested that proceedings for bigamy should be opened against them.

There is no divorce in Italy. Miss Loren and Ponti were married in Mexico although the producer had not shed his previous wife in the eyes of Italian law.

Miss Loren was married to Ponti by proxy in 1947, after the producer obtained a Mexican divorce from his first wife, Giuliana.

After the couple returned to Italy in 1959, three private citizens asked the public prosecutor's office to start investigations into the case.

Last April 21, the Ecclesiastical Court of Rome declared Ponti's first marriage valid.

The ruling came on an appeal by Giuliana Ponti against a 1959 decision that there were no grounds for nullifying her marriage in him.

Police Payoffs Tied To Retired OPP Sergeant

Crime Commission Receives Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—Allegations aimed at linking John F. Cronin, retired Ontario Provincial Police sergeant and now a hotel co-owner, with police payoffs from organized gambling have been heard before the royal commission on crime.

The commission received this evidence Monday:

1. Const. Lawrence Wood testified that in 1954, shortly after Cronin left the OPP and bought into a $115,000 motel near Kingston, the former officer tried to recruit Wood as a tipoff man for "the organization."

2. Counsel Frank Armstrong suggested that in the same year Cronin—still on the force at the time—steered him into a meeting with gambler Joseph McDermott, who proposed to set Armstrong up in a motel business if he would "join the ball team."

3. An excerpt was read from the 1954 diary of the late Insp. W. H. Tomlinson, former head of the OPP anti-gambling bureau, in which an unidentified undercover informant as saying he was going to retire within a year at the rate he was going.

4. An entry from the 1951 diary of gambling squad sergeant Gordon Anderson quoted Toronto hoodlum Edward Eric Cronin once approached him with

SAVINGS IN JARS

Cronin, who testified last week he had some $50,000 in savings buried in glass jars on his farm when he retired from the force at the age of 43 in 1954, previously had denied the charges. He and Armstrong allegedly met there last week before the two officers took the stand.

He was not asked Monday about the diary entries in a brief reappearance in the witness box before adjournment, and the commission itself cut short more detailed evidence from the Anderup by Liberal party counsel J. J. MacKinnon.

It was forbidden evidence of a direct nature would be given by Cronin until later, and Mr. MacKinnon said that by the same time he wanted evidence on another matter about conference dealing with "another party" that did not say who was involved.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson told reporters Monday through a tangle of his personal finances plus the force he but quickly confessed bafflement.

"It's a hodge-podge," he said. NOT DOING AS WELL

The commission will not sit at the start of 1963 as $58,000 and

RIFT BETWEEN CBC AND BBG IS INDICATED

Act Interpretation Requested by Both

OTTAWA (CP) — A rift between the publicly-owned CBC and the Board of Broadcast Governors has been indicated by sources close to both.

Informants say the key issue between the government - appointed directors of both agencies is whether the CBC is subject to BBG authority. It involves legal interpretation of the 1958 Broadcasting Act.

Both boards want the act clarified. They also seek a new statement of government policy on the CBC's role alongside private broadcasters—where the government wants the CBC to go, and how it will pay its way. CBC executives say privately they favor another royal commission study of broadcasting—but last was in 1956 — it could not be learned whether the cabinet is shared by BBG members. In any event, there is a common goal—a reference to Parliament.

DOUBT CAN CLARIFY

It was learned that until the last week or so both BBG and CBC planned to carry a case to Parliament. But now there is doubt on both sides that a lasting clarification can be achieved as long as there is a minority government.

A result both are struggling for a reference to Parliament of rapport, and have decided to wait for action in the legislature until there is a new Parliament in which the government majority, whatever party has it.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, BBG chairman, confirmed in an interview that difficulties exist. He said the two boards can't get together and if the CBC can't over-rule the CBC, then there is a reference to Parliament to resolve the difficulties.

In some cases the matter may be so important that "the only reasonable solution" is to go to Parliament and say, in effect, "please give us some clear directives."

PROBLEMS RISE IN ACT

He said any the confusion has existed since 1958 when the act was created to take over the regulatory and licence-recommending powers of the CBC. They did not all of the problems are in the act itself.

Section 29 gives the CBC the power—subject to cabinet approval—to set up "such broadcasting facilities as the corporation considers necessary or desirable." Nothing is said about the need to get cabinet approval first.

Other sections give the BBG the authority to make broadcasting regulations and recommend on CBC applications. All references are to "licensees." That is the issue, then, is whether the CBC is a licensee and thus subject to BBG decisions.

CONCEDES ACADEMIC

Dr. Stewart says that CBC president J. Alphonse Ouimet told the Commons broadcasting committee that the question is academic. Legal opinions aside, he said, it is clear that Parliament intended the BBG to have a high power and the CBC would abide accordingly.

Relations have been strained by two incidents:

1. Last year the BBG issued policy statement favoring "separate programming" between the affiliates of the CBC and the privately-owned CTV television networks. So vigorous

P. M. Refuses Comment On Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker declined comment today on a report that the government notified the United States before the June 18 election that Canada would take emergency measures to meet its financial crisis.

Before a morning cabinet meeting, Finance minister Fleming at first replied with a flat "no" to reporters who asked whether the emergency program announced Sunday had been planned before the election.

But when the reporters questioned Mr. Fleming about a report from Washington that the United States had advance notice, the finance minister said:

"You'll have to ask the prime minister."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he would not comment on a report he had not seen.

The prime minister was asked if he could specify the date on which the emergency reached crisis proportion. He said he had agreed, as say "several days" and "q'eau't put any date on things."

Mr. Fleming said the emergency program "was planned requiring" and the crisis "reached its threatening proportion in recent days."

The cabinet went into what appeared was a regular, rather than special, session. Mr. Diefenbaker said he had a meeting with Governor-General Vanier scheduled for later today.

The meeting with Gen. Vanier, it was understood, was a regular consultation and not the signal for any cabinet changes.

Asked about new cabinet appointments, the prime minister said:

"You will just have to wait."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Commonwealth Prime Ministers Conference, scheduled to open in London, Sept. 10, would not interfere with the opening of Parliament here in September. He was not ready to announce the specific date.

Pearson Wants House to Meet Before August

OTTAWA (CP)—It is the government's duty to call Parliament before the end of July "because of—the "extraordinary measures" announced Sunday, Liberal leader Pearson said today in a statement.

"In order to merit the co-operation of all Canadians it is also the government's duty to put all facts fully and frankly before the people. This has not yet been done.

Mr. Pearson took issue with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement—a statement he made Monday that the emergency became threatening only in recent days.

"In fact the present emergency began to develop early in the year. It first reached crisis proportions weeks ago when devaluation became unavoidable."

WILL GIVE SUPPORT

Mr. Pearson said everyone will support whatever the emergency measures announced Sunday can do to restore confidence in the Canadian dollar, pegged since May 2 at 92.5 cents American by government intervention.

The Liberal party will judge them solely by what is best for the country."

CNR Freight and Express In Ontario Has Quadrupled

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's railways, fighting a rearguard action until recently against the loss of business to rival transport systems, are suddenly deluged with business.

A strike of almost 10,000 highway truck drivers in Ontario and the Montreal area has caused a spectacular buildup in railway freight traffic during the last few weeks.

The strike—a diversion of freight to the railways followed the April 24 strike of some 1,900 truckers when drivers in Quebec province and the walkout May 28 of nine smaller but key members of the independent union.

It brought dislocation and delays in freight traffic and prompted the railways to adopt special measures, including the hiring of hundreds of men. CNR set up a special team to handle inquiries about delays in freight.

A Canadian National Railways spokesman in Toronto said freight and express traffic in Ontario has shot up by 400 cars over the last month. CNR said freight handled in Montreal in May was double the load of May, 1961.

Rival Chinese Forces Mass As Both Sides Fear Attack

HONG KONG (AP)—Tension was mounted over the Formosa Straits today amid reports the Communist and Nationalist Chinese are pushing military preparations for what could be an invasion attempt by either side.

Propaganda campaigns were in full swing both in Communist China and on the Nationalist Chinese stronghold of Formosa.

On the Communist side, Canton radio Monday night announced "voluntary mobilization" of all workers in that South China city. It said floods and bandits attended mass rallies and pledged to help crush any attempt by Chiang's invading forces to set foot" on the China mainland.

Convoys of troops and military supplies were reported moving through Canton en route to Fukien province opposite Formosa and the Nationalist-held Islands of Quemoy and Matsu, Western Canton reported.

Communist China's Foreign Minister Chen Yi told a rally of 20,000 the United States is pressing Nationalist China to attack the mainland. Chen also said the Chinese on the mainland would fight to the end.

On the nationalist side, Chiang Kai-shek's forces were reported to have stepped up dropping of propaganda leaflets and underground activities on the mainland.

The U.S. government was reported to have warned Chiang against any attempt to invade China. However, many observers in Hong Kong feared the Nationalists might attempt an invasion simply to force the United States to come to their rescue if they bogged down.

The Soviet news agency Tass, reporting on American and Nationalist Chinese naval maneuvers area, said: "The United States is creating provocative show of military strength off the shores of the People's Republic of China."

Reuters news agency reported that Chen Yi, addressing 20,000 persons at a rally marking the beginning of the Korean War 12 years ago, said: "The U.S. has never stopped its intrusions into China's territorial waters and air space."

But Kuo Chen, head of a Communist New China Agency delegation at the rally, said if "U.S. imperialism" dared to "take the adventurous course of war" it would "inevitably suffer a defeat a hundred times more catastrophic than it suffered in the Korean War."

SUES MOVIE STUDIO

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dean Martin sued 20th Century-Fox for $6,865,500 defamation damages Monday, claiming the studio wrongly blamed him for the demise of Something's Got to Give, in which he was to co-star with Marilyn Monroe. Fox fired Miss Monroe for failing to appear for work, sued her, then later sued Martin, claiming he failed to approve a replacement.

P. M. Seeks Cooling Off Period Before Parliament Is Called Into Session

Makes TV Appearance to Ask For Support of New Measures

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has appealed to the country to set aside political passions and support the government's new financial measures with confidence.

"We have faced great difficulties in the past," he said Monday night, "We met them by substituting courage and confidence for fear, and I ask you to banish fear and false pessimism.

"We will then come through this emergency with a new pride of accomplishment, a new strength in our economy, and the knowledge that each of us has added to the lustre of the Canada we love."

Mr. Diefenbaker addressed the nation by radio and television to explain the belt-tightening measures he announced Sunday in an effort to restore confidence in the Canadian dollar by reducing the budget deficit and controlling the imbalance of international payments.

He said the surcharges on customs duties—ranging from five, 10 and 15 per cent on a wide variety of non-essential luxury imports—would have a double effect. They would discourage the balance, and they would help to provide the budget.

MEASURES OTHER IDEAS

He also said the government would continue its other measures to "keep the economy—through export financing, tax provisions, small business loans, tax incentives for sales promotion and research, and expansion of the Industrial Development Bank.

Projected, measures of tax reform to encourage efficiency and competitiveness in the Canadian economy" would be pressed forward. He said that in the election campaign a royal commission would be set up to study the burden of tax on the various segments of the economy.

Restrictions on the duty-free goods that Canadians travelling abroad might bring back would be given further study with a view to liberalization, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He made no reference to the Bank of Canada's monetary policy, also made Sunday, fixing the bank discount rate at four per cent—a signal for tighter control of credit.

MEETS IN SEPTEMBER

Parliament will be called in (September) as originally planned.

"It's natural to expect that the measures taken now will be discussed by Parliament when it meets," he said. "During the election I announced that the next Parliament would be summoned in September. After a good reason to change that decision.

To answer opposition party leaders who urged him to call Parliament before the summer, so his minority government could test its strength in the Commons, he said:

"It is well that Parliament should not be summoned for a cooling-off period so that time will be given for political passions to subside and be followed by calm reason which,

Senator's Son In Winnipeg Gets Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Winnipeg lawyer Peter Campbell Haig to the Senate seat vacated by the resignation of his father, John Haig, was confirmed today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The prime minister made the announcement as he entered a cabinet meeting when asked to confirm a report published in Winnipeg that the appointment went to Campbell Haig, a prominent Conservative party worker in Manitoba.

It was one of three appointments made during a cabinet meeting held June 15 on a Toronto-Hamilton flight en route there by the election.

Names of the other two appointments has not been disclosed.

Appointment of his son to the Senate by the Progressive Conservative membership is unprecedented in the Senate. There are 64 Liberals, two independent members, one Independent Liberal and 10 vacancies.

Several Charges Are Withdrawn In Bank Robbery

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Crown Attorney John Bradshaw today withdrew several charges against four Montreal men convicted in March of two bank armed robbery of a Havelock bank.

The money—$90,000 in cash, the rest in securities—has never been recovered. Police say they believe it is still hidden in the bush in northern Hastings County, where the gang hid for four days.

Yvoe LaLonde, 32, Roger Poirier, 32, and Roger Martel, 42, were each given 20 years in Kingston penitentiary for the robbery. Another, Jean Claude LaLonde, 24, brother of Yvoe, was sentenced to six years.

Individual members of the gang had no direct knowledge about the withdrawal of several charges, Mr. Bradshaw said.

"We're interested in the proposition by the government that the charges proceed outside the act," said Dr. H. D. Daly, coach of Saskatoon, college president.

"However, this hasn't been made known to universities by the government.

We have asked for more information on this aspect."

Dalgleish said "it will be difficult to obtain the doctor aid of this (ability to practise privately) unless the legislature making the changes."

Mr. Lloyd said in an interview there is no opportunities being given to a special session of the legislature. He said if the government promises to make certain changes, and should to allow privately, "we should be believed."

But Dalgleish said it is impossible to go back to the members of his profession and present documentary changes by July 1.

Therefore, we implored the government to revoke the order-in-council establishing July 1 as the effective date and, further, to give firm and public assurances that a medical plan or legislation be implemented until agreement with the profession is reached.

Wrong Clip Removed From Cable, Rescue Empire State Workmen

NEW YORK (AP) — A scaffold tipped undwise high above the street Monday, and two workmen on the sheer face of the Empire State Building, the world's tallest.

One man slid seven floors down a power cable before he managed to check his plunge. The other hung 1,000 feet above the street until he was rescued.

The two, Walter Palmer, 60, and Michael Merren, 56, were at work caulking the outside of the 102-storey building. They had lowered their scaffold by cable from the 81st floor and were at work on the 102nd floor.

"I released the wrong cable. It was simply a dumb mistake. I took the wrong clip off a cable."

As he felt the scaffold drop out from under him, Palmer grabbed a safety rope and a power cable that hung down from the scaffold. But it took seven floors before he was able to check his descent outside an 11th-floor window.

Meanwhile, Merren had managed to climb onto the lower end of the vertically-moving scaffold. There he dangled with tenants on the 17th-floor office reached out of a window and helped him to safety.

Merren went to Palmer's aid then, but the door of the office outside which Palmer was hanging was locked. Not until a maintenance man with a key could be found were Merren and others able to go to pull Palmer in.

Merren suffered only a bruised knee, while Palmer had rope burns on his hands and legs. The rescue took only a matter of minutes.

Close Oran Airport and Harbor As 8,000 Try to Flee Country

ORAN, Algeria (Reuters) — Oran's international airport were closed by authorities today because of a bottleneck of 8,000 persons waiting to join a mass exodus from the country.

Three thousand persons jammed the buildings of Oran Airport, with 2,000 more waiting in the streets outside. Other European waited at the harbor ships bound for France.

Explosions continued to rock Oran as a huge black cloud of smoke, nearly eclipsing the sun, poured from oil storage tanks set ablaze Monday by European Secret Army Organization terrorists.

The fire and explosions were blamed on dieh - hard Secret Army terrorists, who have been waging a "scorched earth" campaign against independence for Algeria.

An explosion in a telephone exchange cut off all telephones in the 16 - storey French government headquarters here.

Officials said the closing of the air and sea ports was temporary and would last only until the ports could be cleared to make room for more refugees.

Officials said about 70,000 persons, most of them Europeans, have left Oran in the last three weeks. A total of 75,000 left earlier this year.

Many of the 145,000 persons who have left Algeria through Oran were Europeans from the interior of the North African territory.

Monday's oil fire, brought under control early today, was at the fuel storage dump in Oran's port area. Eight British Petroleum Company oil tanks and another firm were reported destroyed.

OFFER DOCTORS CHANCE TO WORK OUTSIDE OF PLAN

Statement by Lloyd May Alter Outlook

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan doctors today awaited a government statement that could throw a new complexion on the controversial medical care insurance program to start next Sunday.

The statement was to be made by the CCF government of Premier Woodrow Lloyd in a formal document of intent to the governing council of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Word of the impending statement came after the doctors and government representatives, including Lloyd, Monday ended 18 hours of talks aimed at solving their impasse on the medical-care plan.

No clear-cut agreement came from the sessions, but the government made "concessions on several sections" the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act.

The doctors, maintaining they would be unable to continue private practice under the act after July 1, have made arrangements to close offices and accept hospital-based emergency cases after that date.

Mr. Lloyd said he and his 12 colleagues made a proposal to allow doctors a period of months within the plan or outside it.

WILL BE PRICING

He said the cabinet could give the college council "a further proposal" after the government regarding several changes we want in the act.

"We're interested in the proposition by the government that the doctors practise outside the act," said Dr. H. D. Daly, coach of Saskatoon, college president.

"However, this hasn't been made known to universities by the government.

We have asked for more information on this aspect."

Dalgleish said "it will be difficult to obtain the doctor aid of this (ability to practise privately) unless the legislature making the changes."

City Has Moral Obligation To Pay Salaries, Claims Says Former Hockey Player

A request from a former player of the 1958-59 world champion Belleville McFarlands Hockey team for council to reconsider its decision not to pay back salaries to team members was heard at city council yesterday.

At the meeting two weeks ago councillors voted against paying over $7,000 in back salaries to the hockey players.

He said that following the judicial enquiry into the city's financial position which showed the hockey team in the red by over $4,000,000, he had received a cheque for $373.43 from the city for salary still owing.

He said the cheque bounced.

Mr. Jones asked that council further discuss the matter with the players, to ascertain the legality of their salary claims.

Deputy Mayor Ben Corke noted that to have the matter reintroduced into council it would have to be brought in by councillors who two weeks ago voted against paying the back salaries.

He indicated, however, that if the matter was re-opened, the hockey players would be informed.

P. W. Dept. Wants Plowing Of Sidewalks Discontinued

A city public works committee recommendation calling for winter snowplowing of sidewalks to be discontinued was laid over by council yesterday to allow members time for consideration.

"This comes like a snowstorm," noted Deputy Mayor Ben Corke, who said the recommendation had caught most of the councillors by surprise.

He said the recommendation, as it carried out, would see the responsibility of sidewalk snowplowing passed back to the property owners, many of whom would be late for work if they had to shovel walks before leaving home.

On the other hand, if there were no sidewalks, the owners would have no snow shovelling responsibility.

The recommendation by the works department called for discontinuing sidewalk plowing and asked that the provisions of By-law 1626 passed back in 1903 be rescinded.

This by-law requires every owner or owner of property to remove or cause to be removed all snow and ice from sidewalks, streets and alleys adjoining their premises before 10 o'clock each morning or in the case of a continuing storm, then once within each 24 hours.

The works committee recommendation was tabled until the second meeting of council following the summer recess.

Tatham Co. Gets Contract For Sewer Installations

The tender of the Tatham Company Ltd., of Belleville, for the installation of sanitary sewers on residential streets in the west end of the city, was formally accepted yesterday by city council.

The amount of the combined tender for "A" and "B" phases of the project was $209,920.52, the lowest of four combined tenders received.

Five tenders for the project were received, all from leading contractors. Over-all tenders for the project ranged from the $209,920 figure submitted by the Tatham Company, to a high of $224,600.

Also on sewage matters, council approved of the request of the Hastings County Home for permission to connect the county home to the city sewage system.

Alderman Jack Ireland asked if this would establish a precedent, noting that the county home was outside the corporation.

Alderman Ross Bailey, member of the special sewage committee of council, said there was no previously legislation allowing county homes to be hooked into municipal sewage systems.

"Also," he said, "the city is part owner of the county home."

But Alderman Les Rigby pointed out the part ownership had a time limit and asked what happened after this period ran its course.

In reply Deputy Mayor Ben Corke said that county-city relationships were at an all-time high and suggested there was no reason why they should not continue. He said he felt the recommendation was a "sensible one."

New College Street Bridge, Cannifton Rd. Under-Pass Will Be Built This Year

Due to the Belleville Public Utilities not this year requiring relocation of $347,500 earmarked for water and electrical installations, certain additional capital work projects will be done by the city for 1964 and 1963 will be done this year.

Included in the projects to be done this year are asphalt roads, concrete curbs and drains, sewers on five streets in the east end of the city along with a new bridge over the Moira River on College Street, and the Cannifton Road under-pass at the CNR crossing which was built in 1926.

Cost of the paving, curbs and storm sewers on streets in the east and is estimated at $150,000. The city's share of the College Street bridge is estimated at $85,000 and the Cannifton Road underpass $34,000.

Total city cost of the new work being done this year is estimated at $269,000, work being the limit which the Public Utilities Board has its hands without outside assistance.

NORTH, FRONT BRIDGE

Also scheduled for this year is construction of the proposed North Front Street bridge over the CNR double track at an estimated cost of $373,000.

Of this amount the city's share is estimated at $126,900; the government of Highways, $83,796; Canadian National Railways, $20,900, and the railway' crossing fund, $141,-310.

Alderman Jack Ireland as chairman of the city council public works committee has noted that detailed plans for the North Front Street bridge and the proposed new gas-holder shed had been slightly delayed until would not be completed by the end of the year.

City's five-year capital works program by the Ontario Municipal Board.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said this approval was expected shortly and tenders for the bridge project would be called in the near future.

Damas and Smith are consulting engineers for the North Front Street bridge, and the city engineer recommended the acceptance of their services to bring in engineering reports on the Cannifton underpass and the College St. bridge.

Secondary School Reorganization Given at Ameliasburg H-S Assoc.

The Roberta Plan of secondary school reorganization was outlined to the members of the Ameliasburg H-S Association and the graduating class of Grade 8, Ameliasburg Public School, by Leslie Reid, principal of Quinte Secondary School, recently.

There are about 1,200 at this fall in Grade 9 and is designed to keep the failure rate of the students' interest by being in keeping with the ability of the individual. The present statistics in Ontario Schools is out of every 100 pupils who enter grade 9, only 76 enter grade 10, only 57 enter grade 11, only 39 enter grade and only 34 who enter grade 12 will be graduated. Of the grade 13, six of the grade 13 graduates expect to enter university and only three will be graduated from university.

The Roberta Robarts' plan is designed in three groups comprising of Arts and Science, Technical and Trades, and Home Science Technology and Trades. Each group has courses that will lead to university. The four-year courses are designed for the student who will not be able to enter university and Grade 13 but will receive a program with subjects more in keeping with the ability of the student. There are also two courses which will be available after a shorter time designed to lead to earlier employment. The first is a two-year course designed for students entering secondary school at age 14 who will be graduated at age 16 and leading to employment at age 16. The second course which is designed for children age 15 who do not graduate from public school and who will be entering employment in one year. This course will be concerned mostly occupational skills for relatively easy to comprehend work.

Mr. Reid advised students to attend school regularly, work enough rest, spend a reasonable time with homework in each subject, have a goal early in life.

OFFICERS ACCLAIMED

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs Earl Brett. Nominations for the new executive were received and all were put into office by acclamation. The executive will be Mrs. Harold Lightfoot; vice-presidents, Mrs. Jim Lightfoot and Mr. Douglas Winter; the secretary, Mrs. Harold Connor; treasurer, Mr. G. Barron, and executive members, Mrs. Harold Jenkins, Mr. Don Redner, Mrs. Gordon Conway, Mrs. Rex Gilmour and Mrs. Ross Snell.

On behalf of the outgoing executive, the president, Mrs. Earl Brett, expressed a vote of thanks for the support and cooperation of the members in making this recently-formed organization a success. During their term of office the promotion of a telephone in the school was made, a lending library service provided, the "Elmer" safety program was organized, and a community barbeque in connection with the graduation banquet and presentation of diplomas and awards was started.

The sports day held at the school recently held 30 events with the assistance of members from the Home-School Association who gave freely of their time, and was a complete success. It is planned as an annual event in the future. Winner of the girls' competition was Lorraine Lightfoot and winner of the boys' was Kenneth Laing.

The annual fund raising drive carried out by the ways and means committee is a social evening and card party and the proceeds used to provide the graduates with a small momento from the Association. The retiring president, Mrs. Earl Brett, was presented with a corsage of crease comes like this we aren't going to take it on the chin. We taken on 11 extra men at the freight sheds and we're working Saturdays and overtime."

CNR FREIGHT

Both CPR and CNR freight and express agents in Peterborough said traffic has been slow moving through Montreal and Toronto. They attributed the express agent said trains have been delayed because the extra time needed to handle heavier loads at stations.

In Toronto, a spokesman for Massey - Ferguson said shipments to the farm equipment factory have been delayed "up to several weeks" although outward shipping is being cleared normally.

Asked if the delay in arrival of parts, particularly from the United States, did not interrupt production, which is being run down now in my case for the vacation shutdown.

REPORT MORE TRAFFIC

Freight agent Ivan Symmins all report heavier traffic, with more railway cars, trucks and of overtime working to reduce delays.

CPR in Toronto reported hiring about 600 extra workers in Montreal, CPR said it has done some hiring, but could not say how many. In Montreal, the railways have taken on about 500 extra employees, including about 100 students.

CNR has commandeered space in company buildings in Toronto for extra warehousing. CPR is reported to have leased a building at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds to serve as an additional shed.

To ease a bottleneck in the Toronto yards, both companies have been moving cars to suburban terminals.

CNR has taken pressure off Toronto by establishing five additional trans-shipping points in Hamilton, Brantford, Kingston, Barrie and Belleville. Shipments destined for these areas were diverted from Toronto instead of being moved into Toronto on one train and then again on another or by truck.

CNR also set up in Toronto a central information service and control group to handle calls from customers.

The railways now have taken up the slack in facilities to deal with the increased traffic.

With no settlement of the Teamsters strike in sight, nobody will predict how long the boom will last.

Harry Burns New President Of Rotary Club

Yesterday witnessed the changing of the guard for local Rotarians as 1961-62 president Virgil James officially handed over command to 1962-63 president Harry Burns and the new executive during the regular weekly dinner meeting held at the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte.

President James reviewed the goals and achievements of the past year and President Burns outlined the plans for the coming term.

Improved attendance, an enlarged membership and an increased interest, and activity for members were the objectives of 1961-62, stated Mr. James. Attendance had improved, he noted, to the point where one meeting saw almost 100 per cent turn out. Ten new members had been added to the club's roster and the Flowers Match bet project, coupled with a number of club assemblies, had marked the fruition of the other goals, he said.

Mr. James also mentioned a number of Rotarians who had contributed to the success of the past year and expressed his thanks to them and to the happy relationship which the club had experienced with its Lt.-Governor, Dr. Henry Kingstone.

"Our Club should be proud of being a small cog in the Rotary wheel," summed up Mr. James.

The gavel was then turned over to 1962-63 president Harry Burns. President Burns said that he was fortunate in being preceded by Virgil James and that the local club was undoubtedly a better club for his having been president for the past year.

The new president stated that he would be calling on the 54 "idea men" in the club in the year ahead. He said that he felt many of the members had had too little experience in the full meaning of Rotary and it was his hope that every member will gain this experience in the next year.

As one goal for the year ahead, President Burns set up the encouragement and fostering of the ideal of service and international fellowship.

Introduced as the 1962-63 executive were: vice-president Don Case; past president Virgil James; secretary Ernie Burnham, and directors Duke Freeman, Newt Thompson, Jack McArthur, Jack Marshall, Stan Reston and Eric Dickey.

Dynamite Bomb Found in B.C.

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—RCMP officers Monday removed a terrorists' 30 - stick dynamite bomb from beneath a microwave tower at the isolated mining ghost town of Phoenix near here.

Police said the bomb did not explode even though the fuses had been ignited. They said they believed the bomb had been scheduled to explode last March at the same time a massive blast toppled a giant power pylon into Kootenay Lake.

City Council Adjourns for Summer Recess

City council yesterday held its last regular meeting before its summer adjournment.

But that doesn't mean there will be no council meetings until next September.

As Deputy Mayor Ben Corke adjourned council until following the summer recess, he noted that there would undoubtedly be special sessions called.

"Usually we wind up by having more meetings than we would regularly," he said.

Yesterday's final meeting of the spring season was marked by the absence of Mayor A. M. Haig and several of the 14 aldermen.

Mayor Haig was absent owing to the death of his brother, Jack Haig.

Alderman Jack Ellis is in hospital for observation and is expected to be away from his job for several weeks, while Aldermen Robert Temple and George Wilbard were also absent, the latter being on a trip to Europe.

Congo Premier Asks UN Action Against Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula said today peaceful negotiations had proved futile for ending the two-year-old secession of Katanga province.

He called on the United Nations for more effective measures to restore unity to The Congo.

Adoula told reporters Katanga President Moise Tshombe's resistance to reunification hardened — rather than weakened — during the last three months of on-again, off-again negotiations.

Tshombe's refusal to sign a formal communique had fatal results," he said. "It throws in doubt the results of our entire last round of talks."

Adoula echoed UN Chief Robert Gardiner in saying nothing has been accomplished during the last six weeks of contentious talks. The two leaders met 41 times, under Gardiner's mediation.

"We now have proof that Tshombe had long ago decided to refuse any accord, no matter what terms were discussed," Adoula said.

CALLS ON UN

"It was the UN which encouraged us to enter these negotiations. We made our effort, now it is up to the UN to take the responsibility of enforcing our unity."

Adoula declined to specify what steps he thought the UN should now take.

Adoula said Tshombe asked that the central government accept unconditionally Katanga's independence and that it recognize Katanga's right to keep an independent gendarmerie, including foreign mercenaries.

Trenton Ready to Delete Murray Twp. Shore Area From Annexation Request

TRENTON — Last night, members of Trenton and the Township of Murray councils, who have been at loggerheads for more than a year, on the subject of annexation, met in the town council chambers and everything was sweetness and light—well, almost everything, that is.

Present from Trenton were: Mayor James MacDonald; clerk-comptroller O. W. Larson; town engineer Eric Alderson; town solicitor Rod Campbell, and Councillors Ross Burt, James Duncan, Ed. Todd, Duncan McDonald, C. Graham and Lloyd Worrall.

From Murray came Reeve Doug McMaster; Deputy Reeve Fred Bruyea; township clerk Angus Gunter and Councillors Leo McAuley, Norm Flindall and Ron Webb.

Representing the Murray Township Ratepayers' Association was the chairman, Ian Gardiner.

Also on hand, in an advisory capacity were assessment commissioner Al Smith (Trenton) and Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, the chairman of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board.

At the outset of the meeting, called in an effort to have the town and township to come to an amicable agreement on the annexation by the Trenton of certain parts of the township, Mayor McDonald assured the township representatives that they were "as welcome as the flowers in May." He said that rumors and newspaper reports to the contrary, the town and township were "tied together in many ways," and that town council was only too anxious to dispel misunderstandings.

DELETE BAYSHORE AREA

Councillor Worrall, who has worked tirelessly for the past few weeks on the annexation issue, pointed out on a wall map the town's revised and modified plans for annexation. Previously the town had announced its intention of applying to the Ontario Municipal Board to annex 510 acres in Murray township, west of the town. This would include land on either side of Highway 33, and the southern boundary would be the Bay of Quinte, taking in many established bayshore homes. Intense opposition to this plan has been voiced in the past by bayshore dwellers, who have arranged had proved futile for ending the for their own system of waste two-year-old secession of Ka- disposal, etc., and feel no need of the town services. As a matter of fact, a separate by-law, incorporating the bayshore area in the town's annexation request, is before the Ontario Municipal Board at this moment.

The new plan, designed to gain the goodwill of the township residents, deletes the bayshore area from the annexation aims of the town. The southerly border would run roughly along the Dug Hill ridge. In all, around 320 acres have been lopped off the original proposal for annexation.

Annexation requests for 80 acres, north of the town and in Murray Township, and approximately 180 acres in Sidney township, will remain in the town's application to the Ontario board.

Reeve McMaster asked that a map, outlining the new plan, be made available to the township council for presentation to a solicitor. The town, for its part, will also present the new plan to the Toronto solicitor, engaged by the town for representation in annexation proceedings.

If the township heads agree to the new proposal, solicitors for the town and the township, will appear at the hearing before the Municipal Board and say, in effect, "Trenton and Murray have come to an amicable agreement on these boundaries."

The question of amending the by-law, concerning the 510 acres in dispute, which is now before the Ontario board, was dismissed. Clerk-Comptroller O. W. Larcy explained that should such an amendment be forwarded to the Ontario body at this stage, it could only result in endless delay. After a great deal of discussion, pro and con, everyone agreed that it was best to leave the by-law in its original state in the hands of the Ontario Board, and present the amendment at the hearing.

Reeve McMaster pointed out that whatever portion of the township the town took over, the town then became responsible for certain school debenture debts. He said that the township council had spent $3,500 to date in legal fees, preparing to fight annexation, and that the township council felt it should be recompensed for this and the loss of assessment, which would come about with annexation. He stressed the need for haste in annexation for the benefit of students who would be caught between and betwixt if they started to one school and then became the responsibility of the town, mid way through the school year. If they should wish to fill out the year at the township school, someone would be responsible for tuition fees.

Mayor MacDonald suggested that the Trenton school board might be agreeable to waiving fees for students who would be affected by the annexation. Of legal fees, fighting the issue.

Mr. Flindall asked the town fathers if they were aware of the fact that the people from Sidney Township had hired a lawyer to fight annexation.

"Out of the frying pan and into the fire," was one comment on this piece of information. Ostensively, the Sidney Township residents have accepted the fact of imminent annexation, but...

were the CBC protests, that the governors never followed up their statement with a regulation to allow such a practice.

2. Last month, after pondering four months, the BBG recommended government denial of private application to set up a second French-language television station in Quebec City, and at the same time accepted — until a subsequent hearing — a competing CBC bid.

The second incident brought the resignations of two of the 15 BBG members—Dr. Eugene Dorsey of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Prof. Guy Sadler of Laval University. Both objected to the board's decision not to recommend that the licence be granted to the CBC.

CBC officials said they were puzzled over the need for another hearing. They noted that the cabinet already had approved the necessary CBC spending for the Quebec City outlet, subject to BBG approval. They recalled earlier legal advice that the CBC might not need a BBG recommendation.

Guest Speaker Tells of Flight In "Yukon"

TRENTON — Guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club was Roy Cornish. Mr. Cornish spoke on the historic cross-Canada flight of the Yukon at the beginning of this month. He said that he had been most impressed by the RCAF's concern for the safety of passengers and crew. Minor trouble had developed in the Yukon aircraft bearing news correspondents from Trenton to Vancouver to start the cross-country hop. The plane had been grounded in Edmonton and another Yukon sent for from Trenton.

Giving his impressions of Vancouver, Mr. Cornish said that every householder seemed to take pride in his home and the surrounding lawns. Nearly every lawn is surrounded by a hedge and sports at least one flowering tree.

As for the non-stop 15-hour flight from Vancouver to Trenton, Mr. Cornish said that only adjectives like "dramatic" and "history making" could apply to the 2,640 miles covered by the Yukon.

Grim Price of Progress

For the fifth time, a Boeing 707 airliner has crashed. This one carried 113 people, and none of them survived.

The previous crash, 18 days before, killed 130 people. When anything as big and as fast as one of the modern jet airliners fails, the results are almost invariably permanent.

About eight years ago, when the British Comet airliners showed the same inclinations, the aircraft were grounded after a couple of crashes. The crashes, with the publicity that followed, nearly killed the British passenger aircraft industry, but there was no hesitation in grounding the aircraft after the second or third crash.

The Boeing crashes are slightly different. One was almost certainly the result of a bomb. A single bolt slipping out of control mechanism has been suspected in another crash. But whether the cause is a major structural failure or a minor fault, five crashes have occurred in 17 months. And each Boeing 707 can carry, or kill, twice as many people as a Comet.

Why have the Boeings not been grounded? There are two possible explanations. First each Boeing 707 represents more than $5,000,000 of invested capital, and nobody wants to lose that much money. Even if the fault were quickly found and rectified, public reaction would make the planes so unpopular they could be used only for freight. And then the manufacturer might be driven out of business.

More likely is a change in human attitudes. When the Comets falled, back in 1953, their 500 mph speed was amazingly fast, their 30,000 foot altitude was impressively high, and fifty or sixty people dead in a plane crash was a big event to the world. Combined, these factors made the Comet failures a weird space age hasard.

But with the latest experimental aircraft reaching 250,000 feet, and speeds running into thousands of miles per hour, an airliner flying at 600 mph and 30,000 feet is not so impressive. It is unfortunate that such aircraft crash, but perhaps we consider it part of the grim price of progress.

Different Viewpoints

"When men and women agree, it is only in their conclusions; their reasons are always different."

So says George Santanya, the former Harvard philosopher.

Everyday experience tends to confirm this view.

Boy and girl agree to go dancing, he because it gives him an excuse to hold her and she because it gives her an excuse for preventing him holding her too long.

Boy and girl agree to get married, he because he is tired of spending so much money on her and she because she wants it spent in a different way; he because he wants somebody to get his meals and iron his shirts and she because she wants to stop working so hard.

Man and wife buy a house, he because it is roaring inflation and he will have more money for beer, golf and fishing and she because once the house expenses are met there will not be any money for beer, golf and fishing.

Father, mother, son and daughter all look forward to vacation, father and son because it will give them an opportunity to loaf around in old clothes and mother and daughter because it will give them an opportunity to dress up in new clothes.

Father and mother rejoice together over the marriage of son and daughter, father because there will now be more peace and quiet around the house and mother because there will soon be the prattle of grandchildren.

Grandpa and grandma look forward to retirement, grandpa because he can now do nothing and grandma because she will now have some help around the house. Grandpa dreads retirement, he because he will be expected to help with the household chores and she because he will expect to help her.

It is of no small benefit on finding oneself in bed in the dark to go over again in the imagination the main outlines of the forms previously studied, or of other noteworthy things conceived by ingenious speculation.

As a well-spent day brings happy sleep, so life well used brings happy death.—Leonardo Da Vinci.

The security of the state demands measures to obligate and bind the individual. The responsibility is on the regime of the country. Whoever has the fortune to have a good regime is lucky. I was unlucky.—Adolf Eichmann.

Real Caouette Performs With Drama and Emotion

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Parliament has never seen the like of fire-brand Real Caouette.

Whatever the flamingly flamboyant Social Credit Deputy Leader may be doing to the cause of sober Government, and the established political order of things — and it is plenty — it will be the House of Commons that will be feeling the impact of what can be nothing less than the shock treatment.

Caouette (pronounce it "ca-oo-ett") is an incredible platform performer.

This man, who brought things to such an astonishing boil on the pea-soup circuit of cracker-barrel Quebec, can only be described as an oratorical pinwheel.

He, above all, has done with television exactly what a great many responsible people feared that just such a political showman might do.

He used it, skillfully, for two years, to harness and bewilder Les Habitants of Le Belle Province. He played it like a mighty pipe organ to get the unconscious nations of backwoods Quebec.

It had to be seen to be believed.

BEDLAM UNLIMITED

When he goes to work on the platform, it is a flying spray of perspiration.

It flies out in a cascade of droplets in a semi-circle, to splash a five-foot arc in front of him.

He uses a glass of water, half a dozen glasses at a time . . . but when he has done, and his par is high, after an hour of the most frantic and concentrated oratorical fury you've ever seen or heard, he is four or five pounds lighter.

Ringing changes on running a temperature, he requires a change of clothes from the skin out, and a long day of hours of absolute rest and quiet to cool down.

You do not just listen to Real Caouette.

You wrench him.

He performs.

Entertains, even . . . if you care for this kind of frenzy.

He gears.

Just like a car.

Starts low.

Shifts up to a higher cadence and greater volume.

Now he is in high, gearing into overdrive.

And like that — each sentence.

By the time he has to stop for a breath at the end of a thought sentence, his arms are pumping furiously, his hair is standing on end, his cheeks hules and his face is the color of a beet.

THE CROWD ROARS

Invariably, his punchline is completely drowned out in the delirious howls of his worshipful . . . yes, that's the correct word alright, worshipful — audience.

While bedlam beats itself out — he slips water with his left hand, while dangling the roaring crowd on the end of an outstretched finger at the rear.

After the smash finish, the payoff in any segment of a speech comes when Caouette presses both hands to the sides of his head, clutching his temples as if in unbearable pain, and screams up to a climax.

Suddenly while the crowd is roaring at him, Caouette ceases his bulging eyes and howling like a dervish, out shoot his arms to full length. Fingers rigid and straining.

He stands there, trembling, as if caught in an ecstacy.

The whole performance can be startling. Even disconcerting even a little disturbing or maybe frightening.

When Caouette goes to work in — and on — Parliament, they'll have to give him room to roll.

A front-bench seat would do — and if his present seat it as the Deputy of a 30-Member bloc — then he will be able to step into the Centre Aisle of the Commons, free of the restraint of desk and chair, and really give rein in a way positively guaranteed to pop Parliamentary eyes.

Try to Check Oil Dumping

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Pollution of the St. Lawrence River is a serious problem. It has many sources, but one of the most frequent and serious is the dumping of oil from passing ships.

The Department of Transport is planning an experimental campaign this year to control this particular menace by watching of riverside residents. The law is one of very doubtful validity, because it lasts a long time, and is deadly to both birds and fish in many circumstances.

The Dot plan will involve use of a helicopter to patrol up and down the river from Kingston to Quebec City. Oil slicks will be photographed, and ships contacted to offending ships. Under conditions of good visibility, this is held to be fairly easy.

The Ontario Provincial Police on the south, Canadian Mounted Police will be notified by radio, and people in charge of the offending ships will be called to account. The owners may be fined or even be held responsible, or both. In the past, however, fines for this type of offence have not been severe.

There is said to be a tendency to feel that ship's captains or crewmen can get away with this sort of offence. It would appear that the value to the cost of the DOT helicopter will be to exercise some sort of surveillance or control. A ship's master may not care much about river pollution, but would not wish to encounter a delay, a possible appearance in court or a fine for himself or the ship owners.

Because the people who live along the river are the ones most likely to benefit from the absence of pollution, they will be being asked to co-operate with the department by reporting offending ships. With waters improved, it is hoped along the shore and general awareness of the situation becoming more widespread, it should be possible to control oil dumping without too much difficulty. If so, one aspect of complex and difficult pollution problem should be solved.

Eyes Open Pain Is Less

Hamilton Spectator

The other night we finally got up enough courage to visit our dentist, a kindly man who doesn't look at if he could hurt a fly, much less a timid editorial writer.

As our dentist started to drill away at one of our remaining teeth, we noticed — and held our breath, and shut our eyes tight. There was a tap on our shoulder. It was our dentist. "Don't shut your eyes," he said. "Keep them open and you won't feel the pain so much."

This was surprised us no end, but we complied — after all, we'll try anything once.

The truth of the matter is that the drill didn't hurt nearly so much with our eyes open as it did when we shut them.

Our dentist explained this phenomenon. "When you close your eyes, you concentrate on the drilling. And your imagination runs riot."

From now on we keep our eyes open when we go to a dentist's chair. With them open, the drilling seemed far away. We could see the big building across the way, cars moving along a busy street and a woman with what must be the biggest red hat in the world.

What's a little pain, when there's so much that's interesting to look at?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A neighbor of mine who owns a small summer cabin on one of the resort lakes was asked by an acquaintance of his if he could rent the cabin for a couple of weeks early in May. Since the accommodation included all furniture and bedding as well as a boat and outboard engine, the price was agreed at $100.

All May and most of June went by without the rent being paid. My neighbor telephoned a couple of times, and the acquaintance who said he had had a lovely holiday, assured him that the cheque would be along in a day or two.

My neighbor's bank manager fixed it for him.

"Do you know any of your delinquent friend's family?" he asked.

"Sure. I see his brother every day or two, at lunch," said my neighbor.

"Well, next time you see him," said the bank manager, "just enquire kindly if his brother isn't doing too well. If this surprises him, say you just understood the brother wasn't doing too well."

The cheque came the next day.

Irrationality Is Evident in Behavior

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

About a quarter-century ago, W.H. Auden, the British poet, termed the 20th century "The Age of Anxiety." The phrase took hold; in fact, Leonard Bernstein titled his symphony No. 2 "The Age of Anxiety" when he composed it in 1949.

I think the term is outdated. In the last half-dozen years, we have gone beyond the Age of Anxiety, and we have entered the Age of Schizophrenia. The personalities are no longer merely disturbed — they are split — from top to bottom, among the leaders and among the people.

To me, the most obvious and appalling evidence of this schizophrenia can be seen in the hydrogen bomb testing by both sides. The split between what we know and what we do was baldy and accurately summed up by Ambassador Lall of India at Geneva this spring, when he said:

"It will be of no help to the future to say that the purpose of further testing is to search for security. No security can be found in this way — and the leaders of both sides have said so. The leaders of both sides have said that there can be no security through the perfection of weapons of mass destruction.

"This is such a basic contradiction that it tremendously increases the apprehension in the world. Obviously we are standing near a very dangerous precipice if the very countries which announce that they cannot find security in the development of weapons still go ahead and develop weapons of such destruction further and further."

What George Orwell called "Double Think" in his satire, "1984," has come to exist by 20 years of that book. We do thought, in their speeches both President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev agree that atomic war would be suicide...that no nation could be the "victor," that war as an instrument of national policy is no longer feasible.

Nevertheless — and "nevertheless" is always the sign of schizophrenia — both countries are going ahead with the spiralling arms race, both are testing both are preparing furiously for "defense" in a way which cannot be defended. It is the ultimate irony that all we can agree upon is the means whereby will lose.

If an individual behaved that way, he would promptly be placed in a mental institution. But when nations behave as irrationally, their sanity is hardly questioned — only those few who dare to question it are branded as lacking in responsibility. Which is, as Balzac grimly predicted, is becoming the insane asylum run by the inmates.

Apparently no one told her to put horseshoes in her boxing gloves; for luck, of course.

Playpens Boons to Mothers Next to the 'Folding Gate'

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I enjoy your column regularly, but recently I had to disagree with your views. You would evidently use of playpens for the toddler.

I wish you would qualify your statements because I really think you are wrong. I consider the playpen one of the biggest boons to mothers, next to the folding gate.

I have four pre-schoolers, and have kept them in playpens until they climbed out by themselves, usually around 18-20 months," Mrs. G.T.

Every so often I feel that I have to defend myself — just as, in fact, every doctor has to defend himself occasionally against people who decide to overinterpret what he says.

Today's letter (I omitted the last three pages) is most intelligent, except for one thing: Wishing that I "qualify" statements even though I did so.

I'm not against playpens. The letter in the first playpen article asked whether I approved of keeping a 20-month-old baby normal baby in a playpen all day. He is wild when he gets out."

And I said no. I still mean no. If a baby is happy, let him stay out after being in jail — I mean the pen — for a while. Don't keep in too much. My answer included this, as the third sentence:

"Mind you, I have nothing against a playpen. It is a good invention, properly used. For the very little fellows, it's a means of giving them a safe place to begin creeping, learning to haul themselves up on their feet, and so on . . ."

Mrs. S. T., by her own letter, concedes that a 20- month-old youngsters climbed out at 15 to 20 months. Such a baby normally may not be ready for more freedom until later.

Mrs. S. T., I'm afraid, has gone a bit astray, something like the patient who said, "It's easy on fats." has a tiny if there's a trace of butter on a sandwich "because my doctor told me absolutely no fat." He didn't; he said low-fat.

Or the man or woman, told about excess carbohydrates, who into bed and makes the rest of the household do everything, including carrying a bowl of cornflakes and glass of water to the bedside.

I'm in favor of playpens — until a child is ready to have wider range. At that point, I am in favor (depending on household circumstances) of folding gates at stairs and doorways; or strict rules; or putting breakable or dangerous things out of reach.

I'm decidedly not in favor of forcing a child to stay in a playpen after he has made it clear that he's old enough to get out, and opposed to keeping a child in diapers after he's old enough to, and the age varies — to go without 'em.

I try to write this column with due regard for the best horse sense of my readers, and I want them to credit me with some horse sense.

Dear Doctor: I am in my early 30's and my doctor tells me I have strabismus (squinting) of the left eye. He suggests surgery but I have read that this should be done early in life. Will my eye get worse without surgery? — F. H.

It is likely to get worse. True, it is best to do the surgery early in life if the condition is detected that soon, but you're not so very old

Dear Dr. Molner: My glands don't work so I can't reduce. Please give me advice. — C.A.

Only rarely do glands have anything to do with weight, and if glandular trouble is present, your doctor will have little trouble in suspecting, then proving it. More likely you are eating wrong. That's the usual answer, by far.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SELF EXAMINATION

How prone we are to point out weaknesses in others and neglect them in ourselves. We can see a dozen things in our neighbor's life, or in the life of a spouse or a friend, which need correcting. But we are often quite oblivious to certain faults we have which everybody o beserves but about which almost everybody keeps silent. If we do not examine ourselves we can be pretty sure that we run the chance of going through life and never even knowing the kind of persons we are.

An only child in a family is under the disadvantage of not having brothers and sisters to point out faults and comment upon them with frankness. Nothing is more truly educational in the life of a growing person than to have brothers and sisters who are not afraid to tell you the truth about yourself.

POLICE PAYOFFS

five years later at $86,633, while Cronin's salary rose from $3,000 for the motel—of which Cronin is half owner—appeared to be $21,852.

"Not doing as well as when you were on the force," he observed.

Cronin had told the commission last week that, while he was putting down the money in the motel, Mrs. Hall and her husband were working wife had lived on $3,000 a year. Monday, he said she averaged about $200 a week before taxes plus perhaps $200 a week from prostitution work.

The former sergeant had testified that straight off on the force in 1941 with $20,000 already collected from savings, but Monday the commission counsel read a letter from a superior in 1942 which said he had been given a $50 expense advance because he was "without funds."

The letter from Cronin to a colleague in 1947, while he was overseas, had asked that his OPP cheque be forwarded because he would be "needing it for a while."

He could not remember a special $50 deposit at a bank or deposits in a joint account he and his wife had in 1957-61, but he thought the $1,000 was accounted for his wife to run their house at 2,954,000 shares compared with 2,933,000 Friday.

ASKS RE CONFIDENCE

Other developments Monday as the inquiry ranged into odds and ends of other matters:

1. Commissioner Lucien Cliche ruled there was no confidence in expressions of confidence from the gambling squad in the branch and he had complied, in some fear that otherwise he would be run out of the branch. Const. John W. Moore had given a "no" to a question Mr. MacKinnon described as "loyalty oath."

2. Anderson said that, after pictures of the Chalk River atomic energy plant had been seized in a search of McDermott's home in 1960, he had been returned on the instructions apparently stemming with the late provincial mines minister Maloney and routed through the attorney - general's department. No security secrecy was involved, though the RCMP later made inquiries.

3. Anderson said he had indirect information that some years ago—the time unspecified —an unnamed member of the legislature had implored to have seized pinball machines returned to the owners in the Renfrew country area. Commission counsel Wilson indicated that evidence contrary to this would be introduced later.

4. According to the evidence of Anderson and Armstrong, the late E. V. McNeill, had discouraged them on certain occasions from trying to lay traps for McDermott and partner Vincent; Feeley aimed at getting evidence of attempted bribery that could be used in court prosecutions.

5. Anderson's testimony indicated he had not been satisfied in the past that the attorney-general's department was tough enough with gambling clubs and pinball in machine operators, though he said that at present the machines are not a problem in areas where they are under OPP jurisdiction.

YELLS OF PURSUIT

Const. Armstrong, now with the OPP's anti-skid-grade (gold) mine (befit) branch at Kirkland Lake, told a story of diligent pursuit by McDermott after he first met the gambler while walking home from Cronin's house in 1954 after the sergeant had been shifted from his post as head of the anti-gambling squad.

McDermott approached him in a car on a dark street while the latter was carrying a book Cronin had given him. It was his view that someone had tipped off McDermott to his whereabouts, and the only person who knew his route and the fact he was carrying a book was Cronin.

McDermott had driven parallel to him and told him a couple of times: "We need a good friend."

A couple of weeks later during a raid on the McDermott-Feeley Alpha Club at nearby Cooksville, McDermott once more asked him to "join his ball team," pointed to several commissioners on the (legal) bed in a crap game and observed: "How would you like to have that kind of money that would be peanuts . . . You and Cronin could be a great team with what you know and my help . . . If it ever came to my team, you could have a hold of your own within a year."

TIME FOR REGISTERING

The officer's diary for Nov. 24 of the same year told of meeting Cronin during a court hearing and the gambler saying he was still hoping for a friend to supply information. It said McDermott "renewed" an offer of $20,000 to $40,000 as a down payment for a "nice" motel.

Armstrong said Monday he could not recall the figure now but McDermott had talked of a motel.

Following the first meeting, he said, he and Insp. Tomlinson —to whom he reported it—had proposed to Commissioner Mc-Neill that the officer lead McDermott on in the hope of getting evidence.

The commissioner had overruled them, on the ground that he could not place a young constable in the position of "danger." Several officers of the criminal investigation branch would have been willing to go.

Anderson testified earlier in the day the then commissioner had been cold to the idea also when he and another squad Cpl. W. J. Shrubb—now police chief at Peterborough—proposed in 1956 that Shrubb pose as "trap Fagley," alleged to have been making police offers to Shrubb at the time.

GIVING UP HEARD

He had not been given the reason for the then commissioner's attitude but there had been a change of procedure by 1960 when present commissioner W. H. Clark succeeded Const. George Scott to work as a detective.

Scott's evidence recalled this year in connection of the two gamblers and former OPP Const. Robert D. Wright on charges of conspiring to obtain police information illegally.

Disclosure and order the attorney-general's call for declarations of confidence from gambling squad members before naming Liberal counsel MacKinnon to head the inquiry probing Insp. Sgt. Anderson's diary suggested it had come as an ultimatum.

The sergeant had been called into the premises of gambler Sloner Clark and Chief Inspector Harold Grafftey, head of the criminal investigation branch, and told that the attorney-general's office wanted a raid and stated that the gambling branch could not be confident without confidence in the department.

When Anderson had suggested that he go to Mr. Clark "no confidence he would probably be transferred to Kenora —about as far from Toronto as OPP goes—the commissioner was said to have replied:

"Well, yes, but they can't fire you."

Next day, he had told the commissioner he resented "respect his advice" and affirm confidence.

ON 'OR ELSE' BASIS

Const. Moore's diary noted he had received a telephone request as being on an "or else" basis, and he had said he did not feel comfortable for the department.

Anderson said he understood Moore's non-confidence declaration stemmed back to around 1954 when the commissioner of the department was not being firm enough with the clubs.

The sergeant said he had doubts about his own mind about the department's failure to close clubs.

He told of getting into one disagreement with the department head shortly after a Toronto police establishment had been acquitted following a raid. He had recommended a squad raid and this had been endorsed by Commissioner Scott, but the department had turned it down on the ground it did not appear it would succeed.

He had also come into disagreement with the department over pinball machines in 1958 after a change in the Criminal Code made gambling illegal when they dispensed free games. He wanted to undertake raids and Scott said the department had ruled against them because there were actual cash payoffs.

When he brought the question up again in 1960, he had been advised that prosecutions based on free games could be undertaken when complaints were received, but there was no need for a general crusade.

ORDERS ACTION

Mr. Wilson quoted Attorney-General W. B. Common had ordered that "appropriate action" be taken in connection with the OPP.

The sergeant said the original instructions had made it "difficult" to get convictions based on actual payoffs.

"It was tantamount to saying go ahead, but nobody endorses the law?" asked New Democratic Leader Andrew Brewin.

"I suppose so," the witness replied.

Judge Anderson described some types of pinball machines as vicious, and said he was aware the Kefauver crime commission in the United States had recently put Capone mobsters had gone in for them extensively.

The situation in Canada was "not anywhere near as bad."

Mobster questionable pinball machines were involved. He mentioned Rocco Sacco, Niagara Falls, whom he described as a large-scale owner of machines and convicted gambler.

Name Committee to Study Possible University Here

Local educators, along with business representatives and professional people, would like to see a junior college or university in Belleville.

And to see what can be done about it Mayor A. M. Haig has been asked to appoint a special committee from business, industry, education, the professions and labor to be known as the University Planning Committee of Belleville.

Such committee will be asked to meet with the Provincial Advisory Committee on University Affairs to discuss the establishment of a junior college or university in the city.

The recommendation from the finance committee to form the local committee was made yesterday by city council following a brief presentation by Alderman Stuart Robb.

Ald. Robb noted that during the past decade the board of governors at Albert College had been studying the possibility of raising the status of Albert from a secondary school to a junior college.

It was noted that at one time back in 1887 it was a full university, but in 1894 had reorganized as a degree granting powers when it federated with Victoria College, then located in Cobourg.

FACILITIES LACKING

He said the recent studies regarding a junior college in Belleville evidence.

The commissioner had overruled them, on the ground that he could not place a young constable in the position of "danger." Several officers of the criminal investigation branch would have been willing to go.

Anderson testified earlier in the day the then commissioner had been cold to the idea also when he and another squad Cpl. W. J. Shrubb—now police chief at Peterborough—proposed in 1956 that Shrubb pose as "trap Fagley," alleged to have been making police offers to Shrubb at the time.

GIVING UP HEARD

He had not been given the reason for the then commissioner's attitude but there had been a change of procedure by 1960 when present commissioner W. H. Clark succeeded Const. George Scott to work as a detective.

"Well, yes, but they can't fire you."

Next day, he had told the commissioner he resented "respect his advice" and affirm confidence.

ville were the result of concern based on predictions of a serious lack of university facilities within the foreseeable future.

Mr. Robb noted this concern was recognized by the provincial government, which had set up an Advisory Committee on University Affairs.

Under existing conditions it is extremely impossible for Albert College to move further in the church affiliation denies the possibility of access governmental and other sources of income.

He said he believed the time had come for the city to take the initiative in planning ahead to ensure that the young people of this area are not denied the opportunity for education beyond grade XIII.

Ald. Robb said the establishment of a college in this city would bring in new people, new business, new work and new money.

It could also be of benefit to citizens, to schools and to industries.

Talks had been held with the principals and other officials of Queen's University with initiations that they guidance and advice could be given.

He said Queen's was not considered "competition" from a college in Belleville as it already established a maximum capacity of 3,000 students, which still would allow it to take in all applicants.

EXPLAINS CRISIS

The gist of Mr. Diefenbaker's explanation of the crisis was this:

While Canada went on a spending spree abroad, the mounting foreign currency came from abroad with investors pouring money into Canada. They bid the Canadian dollar up to such a premium it was damaging to Canadian business at home and abroad.

So the government moved to bring the dollar down. It settled in the free money market at about 96 cents, and this was welcomed by primary producers and manufacturers depending on the export market, and by the Canadian tourist industry.

The premium had meant a steady flow of foreign capital investment, and the government with it the danger that Canadian industry would become unnatural resources and even of Canada's destiny itself."

But at the discount, the balance of payments problem was aggravated by a net outflow of capital. The dollar was pegged at 92½ cents in U.S. funds on May 2 "after consultation with the International Monetary Fund."

There is no intention of reversing that decision," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "The dollar will stand at 92½ cents."

ENJOYING UPSURGE

The prime minister maintained that Canada is "enjoying one of the greatest economic upsurges in history." Exports now exceed imports, industrial productivity, national income, and employment are at all-time highs.

But the emergency came about because the stimulus given by deficit financing to the domestic economy tended to make the balance of foreign payments worse.

He emphasized that the cushion of exchange reserves, and other expenditures deficitarily used by statute will not be cut.

"What has happened is not unusual or unexpected," he said, "as I said in my budget address, he said. "It has happened in all other countries, including Great Britain. Even the United States—the richest nation in the world—has a problem at the present time in its balance of international payments.

"But all co-operate, the temporary adjustment in our economic way of life will right itself just as surely as the morning sun will rise."

Gordon Chalmers Will Be Allowed to Open Station

City council has granted the request of Gordon H. Chalmers, 419 Dundas Street, to be allowed to open a gasoline service station on the opening of the station will not increase the number of gasoline outlets licensed in the city.

Mr. Chalmers had been before council on several occasions seeking permission to rebuild a service station burned several years ago, but the request was turned down because of the number of gasoline stations in the city being limited to the present number.

It was after Mr. Chalmers his request council revoked an unused licence granted four years ago to the Shell Oil Company which had intended erecting a service station at 119 Camelline Road.

A requirement will be that Mr. Chalmers build his service station within six months.

The action of council in revoking the Shell Oil permit touched off considerable discussion on the part of councillors, several of whom felt council would be only good business for the city to write to inform the oil company of its intention.

A PET ABSURDITY CLAIM

"I've no objection to Mr. Chalmers getting the permit, but this action of revoking the oil company permit seems a bit absurd," said Alderman Doc Whalen.

He said it wasn't right to suddenly cancel the oil company permit without giving the firm a chance to ask council whether it intended to build.

"Shell Oil has had four years in which to make up its mind days.

and the city has lost four years in business tax," replied Alderman William Jarvis.

But Alderman Jack Ireland declared it would be only good business to inform the company of the intended city action.

Alderman Ira Digby said if the oil company had taken out the permit merely to tie up a gasoline outlet, it was "high time" the permit was revoked by council.

And he went on to say that the city should make it a future policy that any such licence not acted on within six months should be revoked.

An amendment to the recommendation calling on the city manager to inform the Shell Oil Company of the city's intention was defeated and the original motion to revoke the oil firm permit was carried.

Urges Canadians To Think 'Big' About Education

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the Ontario Library Association urged Canadian libraries Monday to think "big" to meet the challenge of Russia's drive for education.

Louise Schryver, librarian at Chatham, Ont., Public Library, said Canadians have become "so bemused and confused" by the inevitable problems of unemployment, nuclear arms and the cold war they have forgotten that a better-educated public is one way to achieve better social planning.

"This after-school training, in the main, developed from the reading and thinking individual who for the most part gets his books and other needs of about from our libraries."

Miss Schryver, delivering her presidential address at the opening joint session of the Ontario and Canadian Library Associations' annual meetings, called for the promotion of the educational place of libraries in Canada's social structure.

Phyllis O. — I think it's just elemental thoughtfulness and consideration to let each other know exactly where we are at all times. And when that's impossible, a person can at least give a general idea of what he's doing, so the spouse won't fret at home won't worry. Also, it gives a place to start looking, in case one needs the other.

Because I know how important this is, I always leave a little note for Mort when I'm not home. If my plans change, I call him. But he just leaves me in mid-air as to his own whereabouts. The other evening I was frantic, watching the clock and waiting. I expected him at 6 for dinner. When he returned at 11, he said I should have known he had an Elks meeting! He hadn't said a word that morning.

Morton O. — Phyllis is just he worrisome type. I'm sure I mentioned the Elks meeting to her, if not that morning, the day before. But she likes to hear it in the form of a proclamation or something!

I've told her I do enough recreating, swinging, checking-out and accounting for six times all day long on the job, if my free time, I want to be free! I want to come and go on impulse sometimes, not always account ing to a planned program, signed and countersigned.

She doesn't have to be so conscientious about filling me in on her doings. I know that if she isn't where I think she is, she'll let me know why eventually. We're adults. We've been married a year now and should trust each other implicitly. I do.

The Council: Here's a recent benedict, already champing at the bit that permits a wife to keep track of her husband's comings and goings. Remember, Morton, it works two ways and if ol' devil virus gets you some bleak winter afternoon, you'll be glad you know Phyllis is at a sorority meeting and can be asked to come home early and set up the sickroom!

Morton sounds like a man rebelling against routine. He'd like the feeling of being "missing" for a while, but not for long, we're sure. He reminds us of the little boy who ran away from home, leaving a note as to where he was going. One only gets that brave when he knows there's a rock-bottom port to return to.

And Phyllis is that port. We recall hearing Elsa Lanchester say of her 32-year-marriage to Charles Laughton: "Our work keeps us apart a great deal. Yet it's wonderful to know that somewhere in the world we each have someone to whom we come first above all others, and that, at the flick of a phone dial, the other will cheer us out of loneliness or hasten to our side in illness." Wanna bet they leave notes for each other? Morton wants the comfort of marital solicitude, he must give him a reason to act—like a "loner."

But we urge Phyllis not to make her natural interest in Morton's "day" sound like keeping tabs. If she says the mail she'd know about meetings and flight and dinner at breakfast whether he plans to attend without waiting for him to present his agenda. Better yet, there's a large month-at-a-time calendar available in stationery stores, with writing space. Each can make entries, as reminders for the other as well as for himself, on plans for the day.

Of course you "trust" Phyllis, Morton. And she trusts you, especially to check in with the home base — as do the ships at sea.

Brown Sugar Refrigerator Cookies

Cookie Bakeoff

by Mary Moore

There are four variations of the refrigerator cookies I am posed to give you today. I wrap- fed two rolls of these in double heavy-duty wax paper and stored them in the freezer. They were hard as rocks to cut but I used a heavy sharp knife and they sliced cleanly without flat sides. When baked I thought they were tenderer because they had been frozen. So use your own judgment. It is pretty fine to have unbaked cookie dough like this ready to slice and bake fresh without a moment's notice or work.

roll. Wrap in wax paper and chill. 2) Nut-Coated Chocolate: Shape second half of chocolate dough into 2" smooth roll and roll in finely chopped walnuts — about ¾ to 1-3 cup — until surface is completely coated. Roll in wax paper and chill. 3) Nut-coated Plain Dough: Shape half of plain dough into 2" smooth roll and roll in finely chopped walnuts — about ¾ to 1-3 cup — until surface is completely coated. Roll in wax paper and chill. 4) Orange Spice: To remaining half of plain dough add the grated rind of 1 orange and ½ teaspoon nutmeg and work into dough until blended. Shape into smooth 2" roll. Wrap in wax paper and chill.

To Bake: As soon as removed from refrigerator slice any of above rolls of refrigerator cookie dough with very sharp knife ¼" to ⅛" thick. Bake on buttered cookie sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for 7 minutes. Time depends on thickness. Do not overbake or brown.

BROWN SUGAR REFRIGERATOR COOKIES (with 4 variations)

1 cup butter, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon soda, ¾ teaspoon salt.

Cream together butter and brown sugar until very light (we used electric beater). Add eggs and vanilla and beat. Sift together flour, cream of tartar, soda and salt and add to creamed mixture, using your hands. Work until dough is smooth and form into ball. Divide into halves. Return one half to the mixing bowl and add 1 square melted chocolate and work it into the dough by hand — if it is not uniformly mixed the dough is attractively marbled.

Now for the 4 variations. 1) Plain Chocolate: Shape half chocolate dough into 2" smooth

CLEANING UP the mess is a part of cooking that building blocks them for your children—or for you. Spread a sheet of newspaper or brown wrapping paper on the table or counter space where small chefs will work. Spills and drippings can then be gathered up easily while the masterpieces are baking.

Question: My daughter insists that I am wrong in signing my name "Mary Smith." In notes on absence to her teachers etc. Please settle our dispute. Also, how should I sign my name on her report cards? Thank you for your help and your informative column. — Mrs. R.S., Hackensack, N.J.

Answer: Social note to a friend or acquaintance would be signed "Mary Smith." But since a note to a teacher excusing absence seems more under the heading of business it should be signed with your first name, maiden name and married name — "Mary Baker Smith," for instance — and, in parentheses underneath (Mrs. John Smith). Your full legal name, "Mary Baker Smith," also is preferable as signature on a report card since it is an official document and should be signed in a formal manner.

Question: My mother and I have a disagreement which I hope you'll settle. I'm writing thank-you notes for wedding presents. My feeling is that these should be sent only to distant friends and relatives I don't see often and of course, to family and friends of my fiance. Mother says all presents should be acknowledged, even those from my closest friends and relatives whom I see all the time. I've already sent many thank-yous to many of them. Should I also send them notes?

— A.M.B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Your mother's right. Every gift should be acknowledged with a handwritten note, even those from grandparents, girl friends, aunts and uncles who live nearby and with whom you're in close touch. A verbal thank-you is not a suitable substitute no matter how close the relationship.

Sparrows learn to fly young, but it takes a while before they are good at it. This one was having trouble taking off from a Front St. sidewalk when taxi-drivers Bob Esterbrook and Ray McPhail spotted it. They cornered it in a shop doorway, as it flopped along, and Bob picked it up. He put it on top of a parking meter, and with the three-foot head start, the bird took off safely and flew away. In the picture, Bob was making sure the bird was all right before he put it on the meter.

Soviet Courts Now Acting Against Sects

By JOHN MILLER

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet courts now are playing their part in the governments campaign against religion, particularly evangelical sects.

The general campaign for the souls of Soviet citizens who still believe in God is a daily feature of life here.

But of late the Soviet propaganda machine has intensified its activities and its main target has become sects—Seventh-Day Adventists, Pentacostals, Jehovahs Witnesses and even Baptists.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, showed the way the wind was blowing last week when it reported a trial of five Pentacostals in Kharkov, the second - largest city in the Ukraine.

The head of the sect was jailed for five years with five years exile when he came out of prison. Four other members were sentenced to a total of nine years in jail.

ARE ILLEGAL

Unlike the Russian Orthodox Church the sectarians are illegal. But what section of the Soviet law the five were tried on was not clear from the report. Pravda merely said the trial showed that the Pentacostals had "brought harm to peoples health and encroached on their rights."

It is known, however, that some of the sects stubbornly follow teachings which irk Soviet authorities. Some teach children to refuse to sing Communist songs or join the Pioneers, the country's youth movement.

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper edited by Alexei Adzhubei, son-in-law of Premier Khrushchev, said it had received letters from readers "demanding sharper measures against the criminal activities of religious sects." It hinted that such measures were being considered.

Wants to Be Made Love To

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My problem is that my fiance says he loves me but he hardly makes love to me like I've seen others do. A girl wants a boy to tell her he loves her and make love. But I don't know if he's shy a little of me or maybe I'm the one who wants too much of him too soon.

I know for sure that I love him, but when we're together I can't get to tell him how I feel. Do you think it could be the same with him?

Could there be a way that I might do something? He did tell me he loved me a few times and proved it to me, but like a shy little boy. But I figured we've been so long together we shouldn't be shy of each other now.—WHAT'S WRONG?

DEAR WHAT'S WRONG—Since you are tongue-tied too, he should be no puzzle to you. Where there has been restraint in growing-up years, an adult may be self-conscious about kisses, pats, loving gestures.

Take comfort in his steadiness. Proofs of love are in loyalty, companionability. Many a passionate lover has feet of clay.

But since affection is a human need, make an effort in this direction. I am sending you the name of a fine book which can help you understand this part of marriage better.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: The lightest known star, water evaporation and space travel

LITTLEST STAR

Perhaps the smallest star ever detected has been reported by Willem J. Luyten, University of Minnesota astronomer.

It is apparently about half the diameter of the moon and one-seventh the size of the earth, but has a density about 200 million times that of water, he says. Very blue in color, it is probably 25,000 times fainter than the sun and seems to be about 100,000,000 light years distant.

RESERVOIR SAVINGS

The sun and evaporation steal precious water from reservoirs.

But the loss can be cut as much as 50 percent by placing a thin film of wax-like material, only one millionth of an inch thick, over the water, says Curtis Michel of Molecular Technology, Inc., describing tests in Australia and the United States.

The film does not change the taste, color or odor of the water, nor interfere with using the reservoir for recreation, and costs a few cents per thousands of gallons of water saved, he adds.

SPACE PRICE TAGS

At present it costs about $10,000,000 to put one man into orbit around the earth and bring him back.

But there are hopes of improving space vehicles to the point where a roundtrip ticket to orbit could be reduced to $30,000 by 1975, report H. H. Koelle and H. G. Rupp of the Marshall Space Flight Centre at Huntsville, Fla.

Early roundtrips to the moon will cost about $30,000,000 a man in 1970, but might be cut to $3,000,000 a man in 1980. Going to Mars will cost some $60,000,000 a man around 1975, but hopefully could be reduced to $1,000,000 in another 10 years.

It all depends to a great extent, they say, on developing launch vehicles which can be recovered and used again, and nuclear propulsion systems for shuttling around in space or going to the moon or planets.

Austerity Plan Here Co[illegible] With Britain's

By DE[illegible]NCIA

LONDON [illegible] mentators Canada's s[illegible] ... the measures the British government adopted last year to deal with Britain's economic crisis.

"In each case decisive help in a currency crisis was obtained at the price of a high bank rate, higher taxes and other measures of deflation aimed at correcting the balance of payments," writes Richard Fry, financial editor of the Manchester Guardian.

Reports on the announcements made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in Ottawa and the International Monetary Fund in Washington were the top stories in the majority of the country's national newspapers.

"He borrows £350,000,000. He raises import duties. He taxes cars and toys."

"Austerity Canada," is The Daily Mail's counter-part. "And Diet Gets massive support."

STRESSES P[illegible] ROLE

The Daily [illegible]graph stresses the emergency cuts and Britain's role in assisting Canada to cope with the current crisis.

The Daily Sketch and the Daily Herald emphasized the effect of the program on Canadian tourists and on the purchase of luxuries.

Little comment accompanied the prominently - displayed reports.

Patrick Sergeant of The Daily Mail, predicts British officials and business men will study closely the effect of the emergency program on trade.

"Canada is a large and important customer of Britain's so many restrictions on imports are bound to affect Britain's trade," he says.

The Telegraph says Canada's dollar rallied sharply at the end of last week.

The Guardian, however, says that by last Friday selling of dollars reached such proportions that only a large-scale support operation led by the IMF could avert a further devaluation.

"As loss by the IMF was confidently expected in the exchange markets if only because the prestige of the IMF itself was strongly involved in the maintenance of the present Canadian dollar parity," the newspaper's financial editor adds.

"This parity was chosen by he Canadian government only recently on the advice of the IMF, if not indeed under pressure from that institution."

Mental Hospitals

Article 3 of a 3-part series

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario.

"Wonder Drugs" and "Magic Bullets" are words typically of our time and often used to describe some of the medications that have appeared so largely in the drama of modern medicine. Insulin for Diabetes, Liver Extract for Pernicious Anaemia, the Sulpha drugs — the Antibiotics all have been in truth "life-savers". This description can be applied with equal force to the host of psycho-trophic drugs which have brought health and hope to many thousands of victims of mental illness. Because mental illness is not a killer disease may be one reason why it has called for so long to make a real impact upon people. It has been shrouded in mystery, superstition and fear and ignorance—this has tended to perpetuate the stigma which for so long has attached to the mentally disordered. Even that is being broken down, though very slowly. We cannot expect to change over-night, patterns of behaviour and attitudes that have been built up over thousands of years.

Signs of "health and hope" coming to great numbers of our patients: In 1960 we discharged from our Ontario Hospitals 84% of admissions and this figure was very different. 56% of admissions.

So very few years ago the figures were so very different.

All this hasn't come about only through the use of new drugs and treatment methods. Our knowledge has expanded in other ways. For example we talk and hear much about "the open door" in Mental Hospitals. Such a short time ago it was thought the mentally ill patient had to be securely locked in a ward and that even the windows had to be covered with steel bars for his and society's protection. Many of our wards now are unlocked and steadily this program goes forward. The patients in this freedom and their mental health improves as a result. Special clothing to restrain movement of patients is unheard of and unseen in our hospitals now-a-days except that "sides" are needed on the beds of elderly patients just as is often used in General Hospitals. Work, the oldest and best treatment, is the stick and well alike is taking on new meaning. Art, music, recreation, decor of rooms, clothing, personal appearance and group activities such as games, dances, etc., all are part and parcel now of the treatment of the mentally ill. These are responsible in part for the shorter stay in hospital and more successful results.

Reaction to Govt's New Measures to Buy Dollar, Curb Imports Is Mixed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction in financial circles to the federal government's emergency measures to boost up the dollar and curb imports was, for the most part, cautiously optimistic.

The comment of W. E. McLaughlin, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, was typical. The measures were "positive . . . but it remains to be seen how the market will react to them."

He said a "satisfactory" discount on the dollar could have been obtained "without a crisis" had the government waited instead of announcing earlier this year its intention of forcing down the dollar's value.

The bank president indicated he was disappointed the measures did not include "any direct encouragement of foreign investment." He said he hopes Parliament will see the convenient will be asked to revoke a 15-per-cent withholding tax imposed in 1960 on foreign investors.

THINGS IT GOOD

A. J. Lambert, president of the Toronto - Dominion Bank, showed more enthusiasm.

"It recognizes that we have been depending on outsiders to too much for us and that we must depend more on our own efforts."

Mr. Lambert said chartered banks will want to carry out the letter" of the program and this would require study. However, he did not think there will be an increase in interest rates charged by the banks.

Beatty McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, saw and approved of the "readiness to maintain the value of the dollar."

E. P. Neufeld, banking expert and associate professor of political economy of the University of Toronto, said the "fixed basis" of six per cent has little to offer in helping correct the federal budget.

While the higher interest rate would cut down indiscriminate consumer and import spending, it would probably produce an increase in unemployment.

SHOW LITTLE SURPRISE

Two ministers of Alberta's Social Credit government indicated little surprise at the government move.

Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman said the program embodies "the only avenues which were open to the governors when Agriculture Minister L. C. Halvast said he thought the move was one Mr. Diefenbaker "would have to make at this time. It should get a lot of support."

But A. T. Brodeur, president of the Canadian Importers and Traders Association said it "unfortunate" that importers had been called on to make up so much of the government's deficit. He would have preferred a reduction in government spending.

"A lot of countries that we export goods to may retaliate and cut down on their imports," he said.

Lawrence G. Ecroyd, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association predicted an increase in Canadian tourist travelling in Canada as a result of reduction in the value of goods Canadians travelling abroad may bring back duty-free.

EXPRESS CONCERN

Importers generally expressed concern at the surcharge on imported goods.

"It could put us out of business," said Louis Nesbitt, co-owner of Nesbitt and Company, importers of china, toys and dolls.

"With the exchange rate now 7½ per cent, and now a 10-per-cent surcharge, it's an awful blow."

S. H. Fletcher, managing director of Rootes Motors (Canada), said he favored making of British cars, said he was speechless.

"It's taken the wind completely out of my sail," he said. "It's a real body blow. It may hurt our sales—and that's exactly what it's aimed at."

Peter Kock, treasurer of Volkswagen (Canada) Limited, said it was too early to speculate on damage to his firm's sales. "But with the dollar going up and down, and the value for duty increased, we're getting into a real tough line this."

MAY KILL RUM IMPORTS

C. R. Stollmeyer, commissioner for the West Indies, British Guiana and British Honduras, said in Montreal the import surcharge may very practically kill the importation of rum from the countries.

"Trade between the countries I represent and Canada has been traditional and goes back 200 years," he said. "This is yet another blow to that trade and may take away directly from our ability to increase our standard of living, which we so badly need to do."

A pessimistic note was sounded by H. J. L. Suffield of British Motor Corporation Limited, who was thankful the step was taken "as a means of reducing the country's deficit, and in that sense is revenue-correcting rather than an effort to kill imports."

James E. Coyne, former governor of the Bank of Canada and one of the first persons to suggest both a tightening measures of the sort the government has introduced, had "no comment."

KILLED IN ESCAPE

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) A convict was killed and several men were injured in an attempted breakout Saturday by 200 inmates of a Dominican state prison. Forty prisoners managed to escape the prison gates but only 12 escaped to the countryside alive after breaking down gates and climbing a wire fence.

GREAT PARK

He said he could not recall Cronin's exact words but the general idea was that "he could make arrangements and I could establish myself as tip-off man for the organization."

He said Cronin did not state what "the organization" was. The former sergeant also had not indicated in any way what monetary rewards Wood might expect.

Wood said he took no action on Cronin's suggestion but resigned the force on his own in 1958. He now is a constable with the Toronto detachment. During the earlier period with the OPP he served at Windsor and as an undercover man for the anti-gambling squad in the Niagara Falls area in 1953.

OPP Constable Offered Post on Anti-Gambling Squad as Tip-off Man

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario provincial police constable said Tuesday that former OPP Sgt. John Cronin told him in 1954 he could get him on the OPP anti-gambling squad as a "tip-off man for the organization."

Const. Lawrence Wood told the royal commission on Crime that at the time he was operating a restaurant in Port Hope after having resigned from the force following three years service including a term with the anti-gambling squad.

Cronin, formerly of the squad, resigned from the OPP in 1954, and he testified before the inquiry that he had around $30,000 saved up when he left the force.

During his appearance last week Cronin was asked whether he had made a proposal such as was outlined by Wood today, and the former constable denied it.

Wood said today that Cronin after he left the force called on him at Wood's restaurant at Port Hope and told him it would be a "good idea" if Wood were

Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point, do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

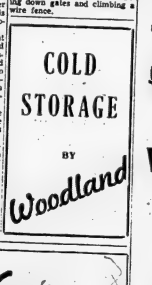
Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q. I have noticed in the press recently that more and more people are going to jail for defrauding the Unemployment Insurance Fund. Why is this?

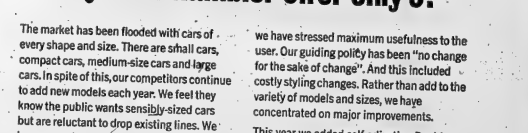
A. This is difficult to answer because a court sentence is entirely the prerogative of the presiding magistrate or judge. However, there has been considerable attention focussed on the depletion of the Fund through fraud, and it is assumed that the increase in penalties handed out by courts has been prompted by this publicity.

Q. I received a six weeks' course in hotel service in my home town. I would like to know if I may receive unemployment insurance benefit of $15 a week and if I have the right to receive additional salary. Someone in the local office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission told me I was entitled to receive $21 a week. Other who were on the course with me were paid that which, with their insurance, gave them incomes of $26 a week. Meanwhile I was paid $3, giving me $15 a week altogether. Should I not be entitled to the same money as the others?

A. Insufficient information is given to permit a specific answer. If you attend a course of instruction or training that the Unemployment Insurance Commission has directed you to attend, you may continue to draw benefit to which you have proven entitlement, from the payment of supplementary provincial training allowances while you are on the course is a provincial matter. Training allowances vary from province to province and depend on the individual status of the trainee, e.g., single, married, etc. You should supply full particulars to your local office, who will advise you further in this matter.



Q. I am 68 years old and have recently retired after having worked on the railroad for 33 years. I paid contributions to unemployment insurance ever since 1941. I have been receiving regular benefits up to the end of March. Should I not be entitled to receive seasonal benefit now?



A. Providing you meet the conditions of entitlement, you may possibly be entitled to seasonal benefit. However, benefit is not paid to a person simply because he is not working. It is essential that you prove you have been unable to obtain suitable employment and are ready, able and willing to take work. Further, you must meet certain contribution requirements. Please contact your local office, who will determine your present claim status for you.

Q. I drew regular benefit up to 15 February, 1962, and am now on seasonal benefit until 21 May, 1962. In the meantime, I have been taking the government's basic education course. If I leave the course, can I be disqualified from drawing benefit on allegation, or can I be disqualified for its weeks? Does it make any difference whether I am living in new Brunswick or in Quebec, insofar as the regulations governing my circumstances are concerned?

A. If you leave the course without good cause you may be disqualified from receipt of benefit for a period of up to six weeks. Regulations governing the receipt of unemployment insurance benefit are the same in New Brunswick as they are in Quebec.

When other major manufacturers have so many sizes and models... why does Rambler offer only 3?

The market has been flooded with cars of every shape and size. There are small cars, compact cars, medium-size cars and large cars. In spite of this, our competitors continue to add new models each year. We feel they know the public wants sensibly-sized cars but are reluctant to drop existing lines. We have no such problem.

We went into this field because we knew the kind of car you were looking for. And we continue to build only sensibly-sized cars because we believe in them. We offer only three Ramblers. The economical American, Canada's lowest priced compact, the all-purpose Classic with $1,000 worth of extras and the luxurious Ambassador V-8 that gives you top performance. We believe that from these three you may choose the car you want and need.

From the introduction of our first Rambler, we have stressed maximum usefulness to the user. Our guiding policy has been "no change for the sake of change". And this included costly styling changes. Rather than add to the variety of models and sizes, we have concentrated on major improvements.

This year we added self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes, found only on Cadillac among North American cars. And we have provided a factory installed battery and coolant, both guaranteed for two years. In addition, we have been able to substantially reduce our prices while giving you these extra values.

For an outstanding example of sanity in the showroom, visit your Rambler dealer soon. Take a test drive in Rambler, Canada's best all 'round car value.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant, or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER

Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

There are cases where a taxpayer has an insurance policy that pays his wages wholly or in part when he is disabled, and he will show such income on his Income Tax return. This is not correct as money received through a policy of insurance is not taxable. It is deemed to be a capital receipt as premiums paid on such policys were not deductible.

Certain fraternal organizations also pay a weekly indemnity when its members are disabled and such payments are also not to be included as income. If you have shown such receipts on your return under "Other Income" without an explanation as to the source, you should immediately write to the Income Tax Office where you filed your return, giving a full explanation and request an adjustment.

If your employer pays your salary in full or in part while you are sick or disabled, then this is considered to be income of a taxable nature and is no doubt will be included in your T4 slip which shows your wages for the year.

This will not apply if you were under "Workmen's Compensation" while away from your employment. Workmen's compensation was covered on a previous article.

You should remember that income received which is not of an earned or investment nature is not taxable and should not be reported. When in doubt consult your nearest tax office.

Question No. 1 — I have an insurance policy that pays me my salary when I am sick. Do I have to report this as income?

Answer — No it is a non taxable capital receipt.

Question No. 2 — I belong to a fraternal organization that has paid me $10 per week while I was sick. Do I report this on my tax return?

Answer — No, it is not considered taxable income.

Soviet Jazz With a Beat All It's Own Possibility

Editor's Note: American Jazz expert Leonard Feather, who acts as unpaid Benny Goodman's band in Moscow and met most of the leading Soviet oldemen and composers, examines the future of Russian jazz in an article written exclusively for The Associated Press.

By LEONARD FEATHER
Written For Associated Press

MOSCOW (AP) — After hot Jazz, New Orleans jazz and cool jazz, west coast jazz and east coast jazz, will the next step be Soviet jazz?

The possibility is not as remote as it might seem. Today there are indications that after many years of being completely stifled and a couple of years of being tolerated, jazz in the Soviet Union may be entering a third phase in its advocates, dealing with it as though it were steal or fertilizer, will try to outproduce the Americans and develop techniques of their own.

Already there are jazz clubs in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev. Their main objectives are no longer merely to listen to American music or try to imitate it, but rather to evolve a new style of music along similar lines.

At jazz festivals held annually since 1957 in Tartu, Estonia, and recently at Leningrad University, new works by some of these composers have been introduced. Unlike the stiff, heavy over-orchestrated music of the older Soviet composers who have tried to grapple with jazz, these works are authentic and leave considerable freedom for improvisation.

Typical of these young writers is Vadim Sakun, a hard swinging pianist who has written one work, With Inspiration that would provide a thoroughly suitable vehicle for Dizzy Gillespie, Miles Davis or almost any other top American combo.

ACCESS IS THERE

Today, a Soviet musician who tries hard enough can gain access to the new developments in jazz and can learn, from close, assiduous listening, how to swing.

Says Leonid Pereversev, a young electronic technician who doubles as ethno-musicologist:

"For many years in the thirties, our cultural traditions were confused. Third-rate popular restaurant music and operettas, fourth - hand carbon copies of American jazz, all were thriving complete with loud drums and comedy effects.

"This kind of thing was criticized and wrongly equated with true jazz. As a result, all jazz was condemned. Only in recent years has there been a realization that jazz is not mere entertainment or music for dancing."

Perveversev says that now jazz is out in the open again, dozens of musicians in the 18-25 age bracket are working on the evolution of a style that may ultimately earn international acceptance, not as an imitation of the American original but as music with an identity of its own.

At present in Canada, the control radar still is manually operated, requiring eight or nine minutes for a human to plot a course for an interceptor.

SAGE, basically a high-powered computer, will handle the process in a fraction of the time. Canada's newest jet interceptor, the Voodoo, is equipped with a "data-link" which enables SAGE to transmit orders to a pilot without the need for a human intermediary.

Underground Base Costing Canadians $116 Million Nearly Finished in North

OTTAWA (CP)—Underground construction crews near the North Bay, Ont., Bomarc missile base are putting the finishing touches on a $375,000,000 electronic system designed to become one of the keys of North American air defence.

Deep inside North Bay's rocky Reservoir Hill contractors are aiming at a fall deadline to complete general construction of the SAGE (Semi-Automatic Ground Environment) system to control Bomarc flights and interceptions.

It is expected to become operational in 1963 following installation of equipment, air force sources here say.

Canada's share of the cost of the North Bay complex—which will also control the Bomarc base being built at La Macaza, Que., about 80 miles north of Ottawa—is estimated at $116,000,000.

ALL UNDERGROUND

Since July, 1959, when hard-rock miners began excavation with diamond drills, SAGE has become one of the world's largest military underground installations. Similar electronic systems in the United States are above ground.

"In building this combat centre we are pioneering in the field of protective construction," said Air Commodore R. B. Whiting, the RCAF's chief of construction engineering.

Construction, now 80 per cent completed, included blasting more than 750 tons of explosive to carve out cathedral - sized caverns and subterranean passageways. Two tunnels connect the underground site with RCAF station North Bay and Reservoir Hill.

The finished SAGE project will see a three-storey underground building housing the RCAF's most modern communications and missile control centre.

COULD LIGHT TOWN

The underground nerve centre also will include diesel generators capable of providing enough electricity to light a town of 3,000 people and to pump in tens of thousands of cubic feet of fresh air every hour. Another chamber is a reservoir, holding approximately 3,000,000 gallons of water, for cooling the installation.

Using radar, radio and digital computers as their ears and eyes, RCAF personnel will be able to control not only the Bomarc missiles but also manned interceptors which would be rallied into action against enemy attack.

Govt's Program Generally Welcomed in Business And Financial Circles

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The government's program to restore international confidence in the Canadian dollar and the Canadian economy was generally welcomed in business and financial circles Monday.

Over-all reaction appeared to be that it is strong medicine but necessary, and the feeling was to go light on picking flaws.

Those who were critical largely took the view that the crisis need not have occurred if action had been taken earlier; and there was disagreement with certain aspects of the measures.

Some were happy that the welcome sign is once more out for foreign investment and others disappointed that something more definite wasn't done along this line. Others felt that import restrictions would have been better than increased tariffs.

Sharpest criticisms came from importers, many of whom are directly and immediately affected.

Announcements of price increases or curbs on imports increased outlook on import came quickly but not yet in a wide enough range to facilitate the full price penalty.

DETAILS UNCERTAIN'

What the measures may mean in terms of higher interest rates or tight money remains uncertain and it is agreed that the answer obviously lies with whatever policy the government and its monetary advisers deem necessary in the light of developments.

Slightly more expensive money appears to be expected, but we may already have taken the brunt of this. For the government there is little indication of tight money in the sense of its being scarce, although there may be a tendency to see that money goes to purposes of the more essential type.

"There's a difference between having to pay more for money and not being able to get it at any economic consideration."

The issue of either more expensive money or tighter money however, apparently lies on how quickly the present program effects the cures for which it is intended.

The bond market, while unsteady earlier in the day and lacking volume, gave some support Monday to the idea that money cost may be at or close to its peak.

Canada 5½ - per - cent bonds maturing in 1975, quoted Friday at 96⅞ by par, closed at 98⅜ to 100¼.

Other issues, however, showed recovering somewhat from earlier weakness established generally down on the day.

INTEREST RATES UP

Bond prices have been driving downward for about five weeks, bringing higher interest yields, and Monday's action in strengthening in prices was seen by observers as a sign of a reversal in the market.

One dealer commented that when Ottawa raised bank rate to seven per cent a couple of years ago all-edge Canada securities never went above 6½ per cent. While the cases are not parallel he thought that might indicate the Canadian yield would stop around 5½ per cent.

The central bank rate in Canada is generally recognized as having less direct effect on interest rates, the basis rate in other countries. Accordingly the new six per cent is interpreted as being important as a "signal" of how the bank is feeling and for its psychological effect.

It is also noted that the Bank of Canada, in announcing the new rate, said it is prepared to enter into purchase and resale agreements with money market dealers at a rate of interest ¼ per cent above average rate on three-month treasury bills at the preceding weekly tender, or at the bank rate, whichever is lower.

This, presumably means that such agreements can be entered into this week at 5.17 per cent, last Thursday's floating bank rate figure, which was up from the previous week's rate of 4.58 per cent. Next Thursday's bid on treasury bills presumably will go a long way towards clarifying the present situation.

The Canadian dollar picked up strength on international money markets.

In New York it closed at 17-32 higher at 9-5/8 cents in the U.S. compared with a low since the 92½-cent peg of 91 47-64. Under the peg the price may range from 91.375 to 92.625 U.S.

In Montreal the U.S. dollar closed at a premium of 8 5-16, down 21-32 from Friday's close. The pound sterling closed at $3.04, down 2 1-16 cents.

The heifer showing was interpreted as a sign of increased interest in the national conference, although it is not known whether it also signals support from Canada's foreign exchange fund was a factor.

ASSAIL LIQUOR HIKE

Effect of the austerity program on prices has already become a subject of controversy in British Columbia, where spokesmen for distillers assailed a 25-per-cent boost in prices of imported liquors announced Monday by the B.C. government.

In making the announcement Attorney-General Robert Bonner placed the blame on the change in tariff structure in the case of liquor is 15 per cent.

However the distillery spokesmen, who asked that their names not be used, said the price increase was far beyond what was necessary to compensate the government for the tariff increase and the increased cost of imports as a result of dollar devaluation.

"It seems to be a regular pattern in this province," said one spokesman, "Whenever there's any price increase anywhere along the line, the government takes that plus some more."

FORD PRICE INCREASE

In Toronto, Ford of Canada announced an increase in the wholesale price to dealers of its Lincoln and Thunderbird models by the exact amount of the tariff increase. Both cars are imported from the United States and as such are subject to a 10-per-cent surcharge.

In Saint John, Belleville, president of Simca of Canada Limited, said the surcharge will cause little immediate effect in the price of Simcas. The firm had "sufficient inventory to supply dealers "regularly."

F. S. Blake, deputy treasurer of Metropolitan Toronto, said raising interest costs may force Metro to delay planned capital works projects.

Other reactions:

W. E. Williams, president and general manager of Procter and Gamble Company of Canada Limited was "delighted to see some signs" the government was taking steps "to match the income to outgo."

Gordon Cole, president of Aluminum Limited, said the 25-per-cent surcharge on rugs will "make it almost impossible for the average Canadian wage earner to purchase an imported broadloom or oriental rug."

AF P. Gleave, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, said Canada's primary producers "must not be permitted to increase their costs simply because imported goods have gone up."

And the Canadian Labor Congress gave reluctant approval to the program, urging the borrowing of foreign funds to bolster the exchange reserves, and the reduction of "non-productive" provisions for tourist purchases abroad.

However, the "return to a more monetary policy and tight money" was viewed with "grave apprehension" and the congress was also disturbed at the announced cuts in government expenditures.

The statement by congress secretary - treasurer Donald MacDonald said it is only too clear that "not restrictive measures will only aggravate the unemployment problem and hasten the recession."

Lawyer Chosen By Liberal to Contest Seat

CORNWALL (CP) — John Turner, newly-elected Liberal leader in Quebec, was named Monday as Liberal candidate in Montreal St. Lawrence - St. George's, said Monday night Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who mailed Canadian electors.

Turner will seek a Liberal nomination in Stormont riding, Mr. Diefenbaker said the financial steps taken by the federal government Sunday "led Canada down the road to ruin."

Referring to strong support given by Progressive Conservatives by Quebec voters in the June 18 federal election, Mr. Turner asked: "How long can the farm economy be geared to famine in China?"

The meeting chose lawyer Lucien Lamoureux, 41, to contest the federal riding in a July 16 election forced by the death during the general election campaign of Liberal candidate, Albert Lavigne.

At least 122 Canadians will win money in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes Saturday when 26 horses break from the barrier at The Curragh, 20 miles southeast of Dublin.

Four already are out of the running for their top prizes—$132,000 goes to those with tickets on the winning horse; $60,000 is the payoff on the second place and $30,400 goes to those with tickets on the third-place finisher.

There have tickets on Clandermagor and one on Solfisher—both non-runners. They will pick up about $2,000—the prize for holding a ticket on a horse that doesn't make it to the starting line or which failed to finish in the money.

However the ticket-buyers spokesmen, who asked that their names not be used, said the larger increase was necessary to compensate the government for the tariff increase and the increased cost of imports as a result of dollar devaluation.

"It seems to be a regular pattern in this province," said one spokesman, "Whenever there's any price increase anywhere along the line, the government takes that plus some more."

FORD PRICE INCREASE

In Toronto, Ford of Canada announced an increase in the wholesale price to dealers of its Lincoln and Thunderbird models by the exact amount of the tariff increase. Both cars are imported from the United States and as such are subject to a 10-per-cent surcharge.

In Saint John, Belleville, president of Simca of Canada Limited, said the surcharge will cause little immediate effect in the price of Simcas. The firm had "sufficient inventory to supply dealers "regularly."

F. S. Blake, deputy treasurer of Metropolitan Toronto, said raising interest costs may force Metro to delay planned capital works projects.

Other reactions:

W. E. Williams, president and general manager of Procter and Gamble Company of Canada Limited was "delighted to see some signs" the government was taking steps "to match the income to outgo."

Gordon Cole, president of Aluminum Limited, said the 25-per-cent surcharge on rugs will "make it almost impossible for the average Canadian wage earner to purchase an imported broadloom or oriental rug."

AF P. Gleave, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, said Canada's primary producers "must not be permitted to increase their costs simply because imported goods have gone up."

And the Canadian Labor Congress gave reluctant approval to the program, urging the borrowing of foreign funds to bolster the exchange reserves, and the reduction of "non-productive" provisions for tourist purchases abroad.

However, the "return to a more monetary policy and tight money" was viewed with "grave apprehension" and the congress was also disturbed at the announced cuts in government expenditures.

The statement by congress secretary - treasurer Donald MacDonald said it is only too clear that "not restrictive measures will only aggravate the unemployment problem and hasten the recession."

Rusk and Home Think Reds Try To Quiet Chiang

LONDON (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Lord Home, British foreign secretary, said they tend to believe Communist China's military buildup in Fukien province does not foreshadow an attempt on the Nationalist-held offshore island of Quemoy but it may be meant to silence Chiang Kai-shek's threats to invade the mainland.

Spokesmen said Rusk and Home reached that conclusion Monday in talks that paid much attention to the Communist buildup opposite the Nationalist islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Rusk, the new Foreign Minister Chen Yi said the Nationalists are preparing with U.S. help for a large-scale invasion of the southeast China coast.

The talks followed Rusk's visit to Paris for President de Gaulle in Paris and Chancellor Adenauer in Bonn.

CALL FOR TALKS

The three Western allies sent notes to Moscow Monday calling on the Soviet Union to join in talks on Berlin to end violence along the Berlin wall and try to bring peace to the divided city.

Rusk and Home agreed to attend a meeting next month of a 16-power group being written at Geneva to guarantee the neutrality of Laos. Britain's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also attended. He would provide an opportunity to confer again on Berlin, disarmament, nuclear tests and other East-West problems.

Rusk told Home de Gaulle and Adenauer had assured him Britain's bid for entry into the European Common Market would not be velved by political reasons. U.S. diplomats feel Britain's entry into the European Economic Community would provide the basis for setting up an American-backed nuclear strike force within the framework of the NATO alliance.

PLAN ENERGY POOL

STRASBOURG, France (Reuters)—A working part of the Six European Community executives—the Common Market, Euratom and the Coal and Steel Pool — agreed Monday night on a European energy pool to be created by 1970. The pool would represent a common market of all energy resources other than coal but a separate pool for petroleum products would be formed by then, sources said.

Four African Countries Heading for Independence In United Nations This Year

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Four African countries are headed for independence in the United Nations before the end of this year. Others are waiting with no fixed date set.

The biggest of the four is Algeria, where thousands have died since Algerian Moslems launched their rebellion in November, 1954.

A self-determination referendum will be held in French North African territory Sunday but the vote is a mere formality as it is predominantly Moslem population will no doubt vote for independence.

On that same day two new states—small, poverty-stricken countries will make their debut in Africa — Rwanda and Burundi. They are now the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi.

Independence day for British-ruled Uganda has been set for Oct. 9.

WILL SWELL RANKS

Admission of the four will swell the ranks of Afro-Asian countries at the UN to 55—giving them a majority in the General Assembly, now made up of 104 nations.

It will bring to 29 the number of countries that have gained independence in Africa since 1946. Then Egypt, Ethiopia, Liberia and South Africa were the only independent nations on the continent.

No independence dates have yet been set for Kenya and Zanzibar, both under British rule, but there is steady clamor for such a step.

Political factions in Kenya agreed last April to join in a coalition and accept a constitutional framework suggested by British looking toward independence.

Britain has told independence seekers in Zanzibar there are no grounds for setting an independence date, or even for establishing full self-government.

DEMAND DISSOLUTION

The political future of Southern Rhodesia, described by the British as a self-governing colony, is currently under debate at the United Nations. Communist nations are demanding that the assembly call for independence by the end of the year and dissolution of the federation of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

But the immediate concern of African countries is not independence, but a British - approved constitution for Southern Rhodesia which the Afro-Asians feel is aimed at perpetuating rule there by the white minority.

The UN General Assembly has set up a special 17-nation committee to push it—1960 declaration on colonialism calling for independence of all colonial and dependent territories as soon as possible.

High on the list are the British protectorates of Bechuanaland, Basuloland and Swaziland; Portuguese - ruled Angola and Mozambique; Southwest Africa, which is under rule of South Africa.

Liquor Laws Antiquated Says Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's liquor laws are blocking a scientific approach to legal curbs on excessive drinking, an Ontario Supreme Court judge Monday told a summer course on alcohol problems.

Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly said the laws are supposed to promote temperance, but in actual fact tend to bearing on temperance at all.

The laws were originally based on the belief that only the strict control of the liquor supply could avert alcoholism, but they failed in their goal of forcing moderation, he said.

"One law that shocks everyone that confronts it," he said, "is the fact that the presumption is always against the person charged with a breach of the liquor law. Under our laws he is presumed guilty until proven innocent."

Dr. Ward Smith of the attorney general's department said it might be wise to investigate the possible benefits of making liquor more readily available. Relieving liquor of its glamour was surely as effective as other laws that made liquor harder to get, he said.

Premier Lloyd, Who Shuns Glare of Publicity, Has Fight on Hands With Doctors

REGINA (CP) — Woodrow Stanley Lloyd, 46-year-old Saskatchewan premier, is a man who normally shuns the glare of publicity.

But since his elevation to the premiership last Nov. 7 and his involvement with doctors over his government's decision to implement a compulsory medical care insurance plan, July 1 has placed him squarely before the eyes of the public.

Mr. Lloyd, a native of Webb, Sask., does not command the colorful oratory of his predecessor as premier—T. C. Douglas, now leader of the New Democratic Party — but he speaks evenly, sometimes pronounced and almost always in a straight-forward manner.

A handsome man, with a clipped moustache, and thinning hair, he obtained most of his education during the depression years of the 1930s. He won his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Saskatchewan in 1936 and was a school teacher and school principal prior to his election in 1944 in the rural constituency of Biggar, when Mr. Douglas led the CCF to power for the first time.

HAS SERVED LONG

Mr. Lloyd, one of the original supporters of the CCF in Saskatchewan, has been in the provincial cabinet since 1944—16 years as minister of education, one year as provincial treasurer and since last winter as premier.

He succeeded Mr. Douglas when the latter resigned to accept the leadership of the NDP, the federal offspring of the CCF.

His provincial government then was in the midst of the provincial medical care insurance battle with the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The battle now has reached its final stages with full-blood meetings now being held between the cabinet and the college.

The college says its 904 members, about 600 of them in practising physicians, will not work with the plan if it goes into effect July 1 without changes. It demands that the legislation be substantially rewritten.

The government says it is willing to smooth sections where the college can show there are valid reasons for their objections, but insists the basic principle — universal, compulsory hospital and medical insurance — must stand.

WARN OF MONOPOLY

The doctors claim the legislation oversteps these aims and add that as now written will give the government a virtual monopoly over medicine in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Lloyd, the father of four children, said prior to the start of the meetings with doctors, that if the impasse is not broken the scheme will begin as scheduled.

Mr. Lloyd, described by his political associates as a "competent administrator," has seized a series of problems since Nov. 7.

The first was piloting the medical care bill through a special session last November and then a series of amendments through the House last spring.

There were cabinet changes to be made, the province in 1961 suffered its worst drought since the 1930s and its basic industry—the production of wheat—was hard hit.

The government lost a byelection in Weyburn, a seat held since 1944 by the late Douglas, its only federal member. Stanley Argue, then NDP-CCF house leader, won for the Liberal party.

In the middle of the spring session veteran cabinet minister Mr. Mcintosh of Prince Albert died. Works Minister Walter Erb quit the party May 1 and then his reason the failure of the medical care insurance plan to meet the doctors' demands and the labor domination of the NDP.

Mr. Lloyd has kept the premier away from the house most of the time and when he does go home confines his activity into the sight organizing his office for the next day.

"When any man steps into this office for the first time, he will have ample opportunity of establishing his right to the position," Mr. Lloyd said. "In my own mind, I feel it has gone all right so far."

Railway Trains No Longer Stop At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Before the automobile changed American travel habits, trains rolled into the Niagara Falls station every half-hour and discharged thousands of fun-seeking, lunch-bearing visitors.

Many others journeyed here for a honeymoon week, a month or the entire summer, to relax and see the sights by day and join the social whirl by night.

Passenger trains no longer stop at Niagara Falls. Service was discontinued two years ago when traffic dwindled to a few passengers daily. After 60 years of wishful thinking, city officials are looking forward to eliminating the soon of downtown grade-crossings.

Now, descendants of the ex-curiosity-train crowd climb into the family automobile for a few hours at the falls. The relaxed pace is a thing of the past.

The state reservation has been expanded in recent years in conjunction with redevelopment of the Niagara hydroelectric power potential. New parks have been added. A network of superhighways and international routes have accelerated traffic movement.

The most eyes-catching tourist lures, including observation towers, have appeared in the last 18 months.

Most spectacular of the new tourist facilities is the 320-foot steel, aluminum and glass projection tower. It provides a view of few feet north of the American Falls. It has an open deck 115 feet below the brink of the cataract. Elevators carry visitors into the gorge, where they may board Maid of the Mist boats at the river edge or view the falls from its base.

Across the international bridge in Ontario, private developers have built another new tower on the escarpment west of the Horseshoe Falls.

NOISE KILLS MICE

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP) — Hordes of field mice around Waggum Airfield long have plagued neighboring farmers and field officials. Soon after four French-built jet helicopters were stationed at the small field recently, the rodents died off in droves. Scientists gave the puzzled but pleased residents the answer: The jets' engine noise is of an unusually high frequency fatal to the rodents.

Cities May Not Be Hit If Nuclear War Breaks Out

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

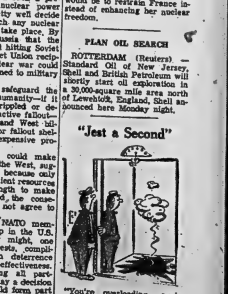
The United States government, having failed to find an acceptable location for the civil defence crisis shelters it considers necessary in a nuclear war, now seems to be suggesting possibility of an accord with Russia not to hit cities if a nuclear war breaks out.

This comforting idea, first voiced by Defence Minister Hellyer, is primarily is aimed at deterring French nuclear ambitions from building an independent and possibly striking force of his own.

That idea of a "no-cities" truce de Gaulle has been ridiculed as the first step in the destruction of the holocaust he could invite through development of an independent striking force which, by comparison with those of the U.S. and Russia, would be rather small. However, he is reported to be told Nuak Prance will be prepared to co-operate with the U.S. and Europe once the French nuclear force has been developed.

Britain's nuclear strategy already is tied to that of the U.S., the argument going that through American guarantees if that if France cannot be, perhaps she can be wedded to Europe's nuclear defence. A new line of U.S. diplomatic argument now is heard that perhaps the U.S. should not have a complete monopoly of Western use of nuclear weapons and that Europe should have an atomic force of its own.

POWER TO PERSUADE



The original McNamara argument was based on the theory that the U.S. had such a preponderance of nuclear power that it could penalty well decide the area in which any nuclear exchange would take place by indicating to Russia that the U.S. would avoid hitting Soviet cities if the Soviet Union reciprocated. The nuclear war could in effect be confined to military targets.

The would safeguard the mass of world humanity—if it could be stopped or destroyed by radioactive fallout—and save East and West millions of dollars in the cost of bombers and other expensive protective devices.

Only the U.S. could make such an offer in the West, suggests Monday because only the U.S. has sufficient resources and weapons capable to make Russia understand, the consequences if it did not agree to avoid city attacks.

Giving all the NATO members a partnership in the U.S. nuclear monopoly might, one U.S. expert suggests, compliment the Western governments, and reduce its effectiveness. Consultation among partners could delay a decision and a delay could form part of the enemy's strategy.

Willie On Way To Top

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe Willie Mays is a more affective hitter when he doesn't shoot for home runs.

San Francisco Giants' slugger, who has 21 homers, hasn't hit one out of the park in 14 games. Since his last circuit blow June 9, Mays has collected 23 hits in 56 tries, a .464 pace, including nine doubles.

The surge has enabled Willie to increase his batting average from .286 to .325, lifting him into a deadlock for fifth place in the National League with teammate Felipe Alou.

Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves also have gained considerable ground. In last week's games, Musial climbed 19 points and took over the lead with a .344 average. Aaron advanced from sixth to third on the strength of a 16 point pickup to .330. The records include Sunday's games.

Tommy Davis of Los Angeles Dodgers moved into second place at .331, gaining one point.

Many Pioneers of Kansas City Athletics regained the American League lead from Minnesota's Richie Rollins although he lost five points to .343. Rollins slumped 27 points to a third-place .328. Pete Runnels of Boston Red Sox climbed into the runner-up spot despite a 16-point loss to .331.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The women took the court today in the Wimbledon tennis championships, which may be remembered as the tournament of the backless top.

Not since Gussie Moran's lace panties startled the Wimbledon throngs in 1949 has there been so much advance excitement about the female form.

Gussie's finery was designed by Teddy Tinling. The same man is behind the latest revolution in fashion, which will drop backs revealingly, exposing much more of the female figure than can safely be remembered in these parts.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, twice the women's titleholder, has a dress plunging at the rear to within an inch of her tiny waist. South Africa's Valerie Forbes has a creation sending on the waistline.

HEARS NO COMPLAINTS

It's all completely different from last year and thoroughly in line with contemporary fashion, Tinling said Monday, "I have no with to give the models pimples, but I've had no complaints yet from those who are trying it."

Tinling has dressed the last 10 winners of the women's singles title. As designer for seven of this year's eight seeded players — Karen Hantze Susman of the United States is the only holdout — he has a better than even chance of doing it again.

The second day of the Wimbledon championships is traditional ladies day, when fashion plays almost as important a part as tennis.

Hemlines, Tinling said, will be about six inches above the floor, about five inches higher than in Gussie's day. Pleats are out, ruffled ribbons are in.

With unfavorable weather conditions, only six of 17 birds completed the race from Hillsport in the allotted time. Jack Salmon was first and second spots, Walt Wardhaugh and son took third, fourth and fifth while Alex Berry had the sixth-place finisher.

In a 600-mile race from Nakina, only four of 21 birds were clocked in race time. Alex Berry took first with Tom Woodcock taking the second, third and fourth positions.

Canada Outdoors

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has formed a five-man squad of wildlife crime - busters to work in uniform and undercover among Canada's waterfowl hunters.

The squad, first in the history of the force, will fan out this fall in search of the big game among offenders.

They will concentrate on the rapidly growing and lucrative practice of hunting waterfowl on a commercial basis—a practice strictly forbidden by federal law.

The Mounties, who will wear inconspicuous hunting jackets more often than their red coats, will be in the tradition of the force's long - established anti-narcotics squads — expert in their field and concentrating full time on the one type of law-breaking.

The five Mounties, handpicked from a pool of volunteers, have completed a three-week course conducted by the Canadian Wildlife Service.

WITHHOLD NAMES

Wildlife biologists gave them pointers on identifying migratory birds—protected by federal law in both Canada and the United States—and regulations governing their protection, game management and methods used by law-breakers.

The RCMP declined to name the five men, presumably to avoid making them known to hunters. All have had at least four years' experience in the regular force and the oldest is 28.

They will be stationed in key hunting areas of Canada—these also were not disclosed—working individually and as a team. Each of the officers will be able to call on other members of the force if he needs help. The five will be brought together as a special flying squad under trouble breaks out in a given area.

The squad will supplement, not replace, enforcement now carried out by provincial and federal game wardens.

They will concentrate on major offences, such as the commercial hunting of migratory birds, the use of bait and live decoys, hunting of game outside the periods prescribed by law, and large-scale infractions of regulations on bag limits.

PREVENTIVE - ACTION

An RCMP spokesman said one of the main reasons for formation of the squad was the growing problem of commercial hunting in the United States.

The force wants "to get on top of it before it becomes a problem here."

Canadian wildlife officials say it isn't known yet whether commercial hunting has reached dangerous proportions in Canada.

They do say, though, that it is a problem here and that if allowed to get out of hand it could lead to destruction of migratory birds.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, with 130 full - time game management enforcement agents now, will add 17 this year and has a target of 255 agents by 1965.

Last year they made arrests and prosecutions in 5,000 cases.

One undercover agent working across the U.S. since 1954 is a string of four major operations uncovering 280 cases of illegal commercial hunting of game involving 30,000 birds.

Hauls In 10-Pound Speckle

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto businessman has landed a 10-pound, two-ounce speckled trout while fishing in the Lac La Croix reserve of northern Quebec.

The reported weight of the trout is heavier than the North American record of nine pounds, 10 ounces set last year. However, James Guffie, Toronto, managing dirctor of M and T Products of Canada Limited, Hamilton, said Monday his fish was not weighed on a registered scale.

Guffie said he caught the fish June 3 after a battle lasting about 30 minutes, using a 10-pound nylon braided line with a silver spinner ahead of the hook. He used club minnow as bait.

Guffie's fish was 36½ inches long with a 16-inch girth. He said the weather was clear.

World record for a speckled trout is 14½ pounds.

Handgun Results

The Belleville Handgun Club's (Northern Electric) team of Dick Charlton, Bob Burke, Jim Reid and David Duffus, won the top honors in a Redeserville shoot last night.

The foursome shot high individual scores on slow-fire target and a specialty target.

Charlton, Burke and Reid scored in the 90-50 and 25 yards slow fire, with Duffus tops on the specialty.

The club's rifle section shoots tonight at 6.30. Interclub competition starts next week.

Argos will send Britton and Roy Jokanovich, 27 - year - old tackle who has played two years for Argos, to Calgary for end Bruce Claridge.

ASL EXPANDS

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore was awarded a franchise in the American Hockey League for the 1962-63 season Monday at the annual league meeting, bringing the AHL to nine teams. A 72-game tentative schedule was proposed. But it still is incomplete and must be approved by a vote.

'So Solly Mr. Newk Now Dragon

NAGOYA, Japan (AP)—"Newcombe may be just the spark the Dragons need," wrote a baseball reporter.

"Newk may well be considered as playing the role of a stimulant for his team," said a radio commentator.

"Newk already has had a good effect on my team's pitching and batting," declared Dragon manager Takami Nonin.

This is sweet music for Don Newcombe, former Brooklyn Dodger pitching star, making an auspicious start for Chunichi Dragons of Japan's Central League.

"I'm 200 per cent satisfied," he said today. "The club has done more than we anticipated. My wife has been provided with everything from diaper pins to an electric washer-dryer combination."

In three games Newcombe has hit a homer (he says it was at least 450 feet), a double and two singles in 11 official at-bats. He's played errorless ball at first base, an unfamiliar position.

He is particularly happy over not coming here as a pitcher, although he may be used as one later in the season.

Japanese pitchers, if they're good, work nearly every day. Newcombe knows about too much work. He won 27 and lost 7 in 1956 and was the National League's most valuable player. But that was his last effective season.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

That four-man revolution, the Whispering Tolee Brothers, Whipper Watson and "Mr. Kleen" will go to the mat in Memorial Arena come Friday evening in a return engagement of the ring pyrotechnics that marked their debut here last fish day.

It is not known if "Barney" Dunlop, the portly arbiter whose pro-Grecian sympathies last week raised the Walsonian hackles no end at times, will be the third and fifth man in the squared circle. The Whipper may have sworn out an injunction restraining "Richie" from sitting as judge and jury on the case.

The pair glared and stared at each other like a pair of hungry wolves over a plump rabbit and after the 45th Barney had headed down judgment in favor of the Greek plaintiffs, the Whip nudged him into the pile of Tolee arms and legs that were scmaphoring in a corner of the ring.

"Mr. Kleen" had blessed the Tolee clocks in no uncertain manner, but their ultimate skullduggery prevailed and they were given the nod after catching the Whip will his back on the mat.

It looked like old times as the frail crowd milled about pingside, eventually following the foursome to the dressing room corridors where, I am informed, the battle was rejoined for some five minutes.

A silly rumor was going the rounds that one of the Tolee boys had used a fire extinguisher on the Whip and sent him to hospital. I checked with the B.G.H. and of course, there was nothing to it.

However, Friday night's resumption of hostilities should be a thriller-diller. They may have to call out the Hasty Pees if the going gets too rough.

The blonde Stanlee Brothers, Bob and Stan, are back but in single acts. Bob takes on Gina Marello, while brother Stan will attempt to deflate the popular "Haystack" Muldoon.

Rugged Wooded Course

Western Open Tough Test

CHICAGO (AP) — Golf's big dealers began practices today for the Western Open over the off timbered acres of the Medinah No. 3 course and none was expected to do much bragging about his scores.

Those who faced the expanse of traps and broad greens at Oakmoor in the United States open now are bucking a wooded ing 7,110 yards cut through enough forest land to make a dozen lumberjack dooks.

Yet 36-36—71 on the rugged layout isn't going to take much out of a beating and many would settle for something like 281 to take the championship when the meeting from the tees to set up 72 hole meet ends Sunday.

The last big tournament on the so-called "monster course" was the 1949 U.S. Open won by Cary Middlecoff with 286 on rounds of 73-67-69-77. The 67 guys in there left over from still remains the course record. 1949."

Although Jack Nicklaus and the man he defeated in a playoff for the U.S. Open June 17, Middlecoff, Arnold Palmer, shara the Medinah role, some of the less powerful hitters may find the course more to their liking.

"Manoeuvrability off the tees is more important than distance," says Medinah pro Jack Burke. "And the most important shots will be down on the green. I don't see this tournament as a putting contest.

"A player must manoeuvre the ball from right to left, or left to right. There are eight doglegs that demand precision the greens from the tees to set up second shots."

One practising pro cracked: "The trees are so thick you need a guide to find your way around. I'll bet there are seven guys in there left over from 1949."

McDaniel Iron Man

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lindy McDaniel, a right-hander reaffirming his position as a leader of baseball's Relief Pitchers Union, may be just about ready to campaign for a short work week.

Continuing his comeback, the St. Louis Cardinals' relief ace trudged out of the bullpen Monday for his third National League appearance in four days, blanked Chicago Cubs on two singles for the final 2 2-3 innings and preserved a 6-4 victory over the Cubs.

The "fireman of the year" in 1960 with a 12-4 record and a 2.09 earned run average in 62 games, McDaniel, 26, slipped to 10-6 last year as his E.R.A. ballooned to 4.86. He got off to a slow start this season, but in his last 10 outings has been virtually unscorched.

During that stretch, McDaniel has brought his total appearances to 27 in the Cards' 70 games. He has allowed only nine hits and has not yielded a walk, keeping the opposition from scoring for 23 1-3 innings and lowering his earned run average to an outstanding 2.37.

CARDS INCH AHEAD

The triumph was the fifth in seven games for the fourth-place Cards, who inched closer to within 6½ games of the league - leading Los Angeles Dodgers, beaten 6-5 at Milwaukee Braves.

San Francisco Giants crept to within a half-game of the Dodgers by defeating Cincinnati Reds 3-1 behind Billy O'Dell's five - hitter. The third-place Pittsburgh Pirates downed New York Mets 13-3 to pull within 8½ games of the top. Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston Colts 4-3.

The Cubs moved ahead of the Cards in the third inning when Ernie Banks batted for the league home run lead with the Giants' Willie Mays, by tagging his 21st, one with two on and

St. Louis battled back, finally tying it 3-3 in the sixth inning with two runs on a double by Ken Boyer, Carl Sawatski's triple and a wild pitch by loser Glen Hobbie (1-6). The Cubs put men on first and third in the bottom half of the sixth but McDaniel came on to get Lou Brock and Ken Hubbs on force plays to end the threat and gave the triumph for Ray Washburn (5-3).

Hank Aaron hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning for Braves before his seventh-inning single capped a three-run uprising and drove in the run that sent the Dodgers down to their fourth loss in the last five games.

HITS 3-YOR-5

Tommy Davis went 5-for-5 at the plate for Los Angeles with a double and four singles, tying the league batting lead with Stan Musial of the Cards at .342. The triumph went to Carl Willey (1-3), Ron Perranoski (3-2) lost.

O'Dell (8-6) allowed the Reds only singles, and an unearned run in the third inning when Marty Keough singled after Harvey Haddix dropped Wally Post's fly for a two-base error.

Willie Mays of the Giants broke a 1-1 tie in the third, reaching base on a fielder's choice, taking second on Willie McCovey's single, stealing third despite a pickoff and scoring on Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly off Jim Maloney (2-2).

Smoky Burgess pounded Met hurlers for a triple, double and single, driving in four runs as the Pirates lashed 15 hits in support of Vern Law (5-3).

Roberto Clemente, with three singles, and Don Hoak each knocked in three runs as Law scattered eight hits and struck out 11 men. The loser was Craig Anderson (3-7).

Tony Taylor singled in the last of the ninth inning, sending Bob Wine home with the winning run for the Phillies. Dallas Green (2-2) won with one-hit relief over the last four innings. He retired 11 Colts in order at one stretch, Hal Woodeshick (2-5) lost. Ruman Mejias hit home run No. 13 of the season for Houston.

EXTERNAL TRADE

Canada's exports in January, 1962, at $446,000,000 were nine per cent larger than the same month the previous year.

Rain Stops Game

Juniors Edge Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Rollins Juniors shoved across two runs in the sixth inning here last night to best the rain by one inning and the Bobcats by one run. Plate umpire Herb Pointer called the game after a half-hour wait, with Rollins leading 7-6. That's the way the game will go into the record books.

Joyce Real Estate will host RCAF Flyers in tonight's game at the Fairgrounds at eight o'clock. RCAF is the only club to have beaten Joyces this season, by a 9-0 count, in their only meeting to date.

The Juniors' win last night was their third straight over the Bobcats and boosted them over .500 for the final playoff spot with the Tabbies.

First baseman Gary Duggan slammed a bases-empty homer for Rollins in the first inning.

Bobcats came back to grab a 4-1 lead in the second on three walks, hits by St. Louis, Lapp and Cole, an error and two wild pitches. Rollins cut the lead to 4-3 in their half of the frame on a pair of walks and hits by Mackinnon, followed by Locke's infield hit that scored two runs.

Earl Clapp's circuit blast gave Bobcats a 5-3 lead in the third but the Juniors battled back to tie it in the fifth on hits by Locke and Duggan plus three walks.

Another base-on-balls, Duggan's two-bagger and Zaker's single gave Rollins a 7-5 edge in the sixth. Bobcats got one back with the aid of an error and passed ball in the top of the seventh.

Bob Ethier pitched the win, allowing six hits, fanning seven and walking five. Bob Green lost in relief, taking over from Roger Cote in the fifth. They gave up nine hits in all, Cote fanning three and Green four while walking six between them.

Gary Duggan had a pair of singles, a homer and double, while Ricky Locke singled twice. Paul Zaker, Pete Weston and Cliff McGrimmon also hit safely.

Earl Clapp's homer and singles by Gord St. Louis, Jackie Hughes, Doug Murray, Bob Green and Roger Cote accounted for the Cat safeties.

Catcher "Shiner" Murray of the Bobcats and coach Frank Cris of the Juniors were ejected from the game by Pointer in the second inning.

ASKS RECONSIDER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association accused the Civil Aeronautics Board Sunday of ignoring air traffic control and other factors in blaming one plane's crew for a 1960 airliner collision. The ALPA said it will ask the C.A.B. to reconsider its determination of the cause of history's worst plane disaster which killed 134. The pilots' union called the C.A.B. report a whitewash of the federal aviation agency at the expense of the plane crew, all killed in the crash.

GARY SCHRIEDER

OTTAWA (CP)—Read coach Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders said Monday night there is a 50-50 chance that halfback Ron Stewart or defensive expert Gary Schreider, or both, will be traded.

He said on a television program that the question should be finally settled in the next few days.

Stewart and Schreider, both Canadians, plant to attend law school in Toronto this fall and Clair has said he is opposed to commuting, as Stewart did last season.

The two stars apparently are opposed to playing just the first half of the season before their law courses begin.

Clair didn't mention whom he might pick up in a trade for Stewart and Schreider. Previously he had said any replacement would have to be a Canadian of Stewart's or Schreider's ability and the only player he has mentioned publicly has been Bobby Kuntz of Toronto Argonauts.

EXPECT DIVORCE

LONDON (AP)—The 22-year marriage of British movie star James Mason and his wife, Pamela Kellino, today was reported on the rocks. "It's quite true a divorce is in the cards," Mason told reporters. "The trouble is that my wife and myself have a completely different aspect on life. She has become American—I am still fundamentally English and our tastes and ways of life differ so much."

Jets Edge Leafs 4-3, Suns Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

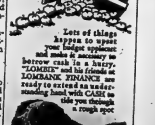
The Jury is still out on whether two bonus-baby pitchers with the pull Syracuse Chiefs from the lower depths of the International League race.

Larry Resnersch of New York has made two starts. In the first he bamboozled Atlanta Crackers for 6 1-3 innings and got credit for an 8-2 victory. But in his second start, he was pulled for eight hits by Jacksonville Suns in 2 2-3 innings.

It was righthander Tom Bettcher's turn Monday night. Until he stepped on the mound against the high-flying Suns, the University of Texas product never had made an appearance in organized baseball.

He was great for eight innings, scattering five hits and allowing only one unearned run. But in the ninth the Suns went on a four-run spree to win the game, Bud Barker opened with a single, went to second on an infield out and scored the tying run on Duke Carmel's single. Then Tony Curry singled and that was all for Bettcher. Bob Miller relieved him and was no help. Fleischhutter Don Morejon blasted a triple to score Carmel and Curry. That was all the Suns needed to keep Syracuse buried in a last-place tie with Richmond Virginians.

In other action Rochester Red Wings downed the Crackers 7-1, Columbus Jets edged Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 and Buffalo Bisons whipped Richmond 3-1.



The Wings completed a four-game sweep over the Crackers and cemented fourth place behind Buster Narum, who pushed his won-lost record to 7-2. Nino Escarela, Sam Bowens and Bobby Saverine hit homers for the Wings.

Larry Elliott's homer accounted for two Jet runs against the Leafs, but the tie-breaker in the eighth inning came the hard way. Willie Stargell walked with one out and went to second when Carl Greenwood hit. Bob Bailey then John Powers singled, scoring Stargell with the winning run.

John Boozer crashed the Virginia lineup with five for the Bisons to collect his sixth victory against one defeat. He lost his shutout bid in the sixth inning when Bob Hale doubled home Don Cater. Boozer then scored once for the Bisons in the first frame after leading off with a double, then hit a homer in the sixth.

WIMBLEDON (Reuters) — Rod Laver of Australia opened the defence of his men's singles title at the All-England lawn tennis championships here Monday with a 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Indian Davis Cup player Naresh Kumar.

Laver, an odds-on favorite to retain his title, appeared nervous in the opening set and dropped his first service game to the Indian. But the Australian left-hander regained his touch as the match developed.

Whitney Reed, top ranked U.S. player, defeated Jaime Ballo of Austria, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Francois Godinot of Watertoo, Que., bowed to J. M. Coudert of Spain in a hard-fought match 8-7, 7-5, 6-2.

Chris Crawford of the United States won his match with Antonio Arilla of Spain, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

The veteran U.S. player Gardner Malloy bowed to fellow American Malcolm Fox, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Bobby Wilson of Britain beat American Jack Frost 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Young Russian star Tomas Lejus scored a 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 12-10 win over Belgian David Cupper. Jackie Pritchett.

Chuck McKinley of the United States, who lost to Laver in last year's final, outran and outhit Owen French of Australia, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2. McKinley is seeded fifth.

In what was perhaps the best match of the day, second-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia had to pull out all the stops to defeat Jon Douglas of the U.S., 6-3, 6-4, 8-6.

Godbout, a bespectacled left-hander, played some fine passing shots against Coudert but lacked the Spaniard's consistency.

"I never realized grass was so different from clay," said Godbout, who has played nearly all his tennis on the latter. "It was so slippery I thought I'd break my neck once or twice."

Godbout, only 21, probably will play in the All-England Plate, a tournament for those defeated in the early rounds of the championships.

Third-seeded Merle Fraser of Australia, the 1950 Wimbledon champion, showed he was back in form after a leg injury as he pounded out a 6-0, 6-4, 6-3 win over Red Neely of the U.S.

Racehorse 'Stymie' Dies at 21

The chestnut thoroughbred handicap horse of the year in 1946, suffered a heart attack at the farm of Col. E. R. Bradley, where he had been in stud for two years.

Stymie, a great stretch runner, captured 35 races during his career, most of them stakes races. He retired to stud in 1950 after seven years of racing.

Owned by the Hasty House Stables, Stymie was trained by Horace A. Eads. The horse started 131 times and earned a total of $918,485.

As a two-year-old in 1943, Stymie raced three times for Jacobs claimed him the third time out for $1,500, and Stymie did the rest of his racing in the salmon pink and emerald green silks of Col. Edgar D. Bradley of New York, wife of the trainer.

8 Clubs 'Want in' Grid League

BOSTON (AP) — American Football League club owners disclosed Monday that eight cities are seeking franchises in the young circuit.

Three cities, New Orleans, Atlanta, and Kansas City have been mentioned.

New Orleans and Atlanta backers have posted "earnest money" of $25,000 each with the league.

Warren Lockwood of Silver Springs, Md., who has Kansas City business interests, said he is prepared to post $25,000 to land a Kansas City membership.

Other cities mentioned included Seattle, Cincinnati, Columbus, Ohio.

The owners and backers from the other two cities preferred to remain anonymous for the present.

The league is considering expanding in 1953.

Even with super-star Mickey Mantle still hobbled by a gimpy knee, ace lefthander Whitey Ford suffering from another sore arm and slugger Roger Maris battling a horrible slump, New York Yankees probably consider themselves in good shape.

For the first time in more than two weeks they have a winning streak going — two games in a row.

The Yankees bunted their way to a 2-0 victory at Detroit Tigers Monday in the American League's second game, following up their 9-7 triumph over the Tigers in Sunday's seven-hour, 22-inning marathon.

But even in winning, all was not rosy for the defending world champions.

FORD LEAVES

Ford, just coming back from a bout with shoulder trouble, failed to finish a magnificent performance. Complaining of pain in the upper part of his pitching arm, the stocky southpaw left the field with one out in the ninth inning after limiting the Tigers to two hits. Marshall Bridges finished, giving up one more hit before nailing down the shutout.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk presented a right handed batting order against Detroit lefty Paul Mossi and benched Maris. When Houk ran Irv Noren instead the move was made to test Maris, not because of his .243 batting average and low homer production. Houk inserted Maris as a defensive replacement for Mantle in right field in the ninth inning.

The righthanded swingers did the job against Mossi—utilizing the Bunt and Run manoeuvre. Phil Linz squeeze bunt brought in the game's first run in the fifth and Bill Skowron deliberated the other with a bunt single in the sixth. The Yanks got 10 hits off Mossi and Ron Kline, four of them bunts.

ALLOWS A DOUBLE

Ford, a 25-game winner last year, was above the .500 mark for the season at 3-2. He allowed a double to leadoff man Jake Wood in the first inning and a bunt single to Norm Cash in the fifth. He walked three men and struck out four.

Ford, 31, shrugged off his latest injury as "tiredness." He held Baltimore Orioles to three hits last Thursday but needed Bridges to get the final two outs.

Mantle, put out of action for four weeks by a torn thigh muscle and knee injury, started in the outfield for the fifth straight game. Houk was optimistic about Mantle's progress. He singled once in four trips to the plate, giving him one hit in each of the five games at Detroit.

BEHEMOTH FROM THE RIVER NILE

During the appearance of Wallace Bros. 3-Ring Circus in Belleville on July 5th, circus lovers from eight to eighty will have the opportunity to witness the most unique animal act ever presented. Never before in circus history has an animal trainer successfully trained a blood sweating behemoth from the River Nile.

To prove his theory could be met through many hours of painstaking gentleness and kind handling, Harry Eagles, Wallace Bros. chief animal trainer, while on an animal safari in the River Nile area, captured a baby hippopotamus that had been orphaned by the spears of native hunters. It was then that Col. Eagles decided to fulfill a life-long ambition to produce this unique act.

Naming his newly acquired charge "Little Eva," who at the time was a baby weighing only 70 pounds, Col. Eagles started her education by first making her a camp pet. From her kindergarten start Little Eva learned while she grew from her 70 pound baby weight to the mammoth size of two tons. She sports a six inch set of tusks is gentle enough for children to ride, she responds to the commands of Col. Eagles, can be easily loaded into her mobile home, and paraded into and out of the ring with the aid of nothing more than a large bamboo pole.

Little Eva will appear in the Wallace Bros. Circus big top as one of the many wild animal features.

Mae West's Latest Record Banned From Radio Station

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It gives Mae West a warm feeling, being banned again.

"Just like old times," said Mae, her remarkable chassis rotating in the familiar manner.

She had received word that her record, Am I Too Young, had been banned by the San Francisco radio station.

Her list extends from being pinched for the New York play Sex to having her Person to Person segment dropped by CBS because her mirrored bedroom and nude portraits were deemed too racy for the home screen.

I dropped out to Mae's home to learn about these and other matters. As usual, she was in the pink: negligee and surrounded by portraits of herself with and without costuming.

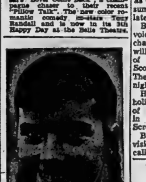
"Very interesting," was the comment on the record ban. "I guess they thought it was a little too suggestive, Can't understand that."

ON SOUND AGAIN SOON

She indicated that she would get her career going again, what with the record and a forthcoming album, Feel Me a Grape. She may sing the new songs on a night club tour. Also a possible picture in Rome and a television series.

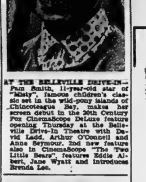
Mae had some observations about the current Hollywood situation, in which stars are said to be sabotaging the film industry by their high demands and low work habits.

"I think the answer might be to give them a percentage of the profits rather than big salaries," she observed.



For herself, Mae had spy problems. I was always on time, and tried to save money, I learned that early because my mother put up the money for my first shows.

"I never got a percentage of the profits on my pictures because Paramount was in bankruptcy litigation and couldn't give it to me. I got the studio out of trouble. I made She Done Him Wrong three weeks when most pictures were taking 12 and 15. It made a fortune.



"Even though I didn't get a piece of the action, they paid me handsomely—I got $200,000 for acting in the picture and another $100,000 for writing it."

AT THE BELLE — Tight Trousers star Frankie Avalon and Deb Paul finish in session in Universal-International's "Ski Party," a champagne chaser to their recent "Pajama Tops," the new romantic comedy co-stars Tony Randall and is now in its 3th Happy Day at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Patti Smith, 7-year-old star of "Misty", famous children's classic set in the wild pony islands of Chincoteague Bay, makes her movie debut in the Eastman Color production, Belleville Drive-In Theatre with David Ladd, Arthur O'Connell and Anne Wyman. 2nd hit feature also in CinemaScope "The Two Little Bears" features Eddie Albert, Jean Hagen, Jack Weyatt and introduces Brenda Lee.

AT THE PARK — Ron Foster and Kerry Jordan share the spotlight as Queen's Quarterback Jerry Wald conducts ball control attack in air-conditioned Park Theatre, through United Artists release. Barry Kelly also stars. On the same program Hilton Wyner's "The Children's Hour", starring Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine and James Garner.

Scouting activities

By J. F. MORNAN

Twenty-six boys of the 18th Belleville Parkdale Cub Pack enjoyed a rousing camp-out at the Y.M.C.A. Cub Lake Camp, Foxboro, Ontario, as advance party reached the campsite on Friday evening, June 22, to prepare for the arrival of the main body on Saturday morning.

Cubmaster Harrie Drennan, assisted by volunteers Harry Brooks, Earl Moon, and Bill Rae made up this group. Wo-Peter Moon, president Agnes Hyatt and members Eileen Brooks, Babs Drennan and Mrs. Moon, the volunteer cooks for the camp, also attended with the advance party.

At 8.00 a.m. on Saturday morning, the main Cub body met at the Parkdale Community Centre, under direction of Cubmaster Harrie Drennan, Akela Nickel, Sea Scouts Bob and Don Doyle, working for their Scouting leader's badge, acted as assistant supervisors for the weekend.

Transport to Oak Lake, organized by Mr. Warren Carson was supplied by R. Senn, E. Conley, L. Weagant, Mrs. G. White, J. Rae, W. Richmond, E. Blute, H. Hodgson and Alex Glover.

The raising at 8.30 a.m. heralded the official opening of camp and the flag was raised. Then it was quickly into camp duties and activities for the Saturday was ball games, hikes, swimming, test work, and rehearsals for the evening Campfire when visitors would be entertained.

The boys enjoyed an unusual thrill in watching the flights of Cubmaster Drennan's homing pigeons, which he brought along for additional interest.

In the early evening, the camp was honored by a visit from Mr. J. Irish, Scouting District Commissioner for the Prince Edward Valley who attended from Stirling.

At the Saturday evening Campfire ceremony, Cubmaster Drennan welcomed a large number of attending parents. The guests saw Cub Larry Thompson receive his first star; Brian Hodgson receive his first star and collector's badge, and Larry Jones the reading of cyclist and team player badges.

Cub Cub "Sik" presented a skit for entertainment, which the guests thoroughly enjoyed. Jimmy Ross and Tommy Hyatt sang a duet, Mrs. Drennan then took solo, to represent the Women's Auxiliary. Billy Andrews told a story and Akela was followed by a film showing.

Sunday morning saw more sports activities, then into uniform for "Cubs Own" sacred service, conducted by Mrs. Alice Glover for the Protestant members. Rosary, Catholic members proceeded to Stirling where they attend morning Mass.

Following lunch, the camp broke up and a happy group of Cubs returned to their Belleville homes. The 18th Belleville Cub Pack is sponsored by the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association of Belleville.

'You Can't Protect Yourself By Trying to Hide From Life' - - Lancaster

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "You can't protect yourself by trying to hide from life," said Burt Lancaster.

"Life is movement. Life is something to be used. That's what it is there for. I agree with Bernard Shaw who said, 'Waste—throw—but use it wisely.'"

Burt has lived by his own credo that a man should throw himself into the deep water young—and swim hard.

He left college as a sophomore to become a 52-a-week circus acrobat. Before becoming a movie star he spent two years in the U.S. Army and worked as a floor walker in the lingerie section of a department store, a haberdashery salesman, and firemen in a Chicago meat packing plant.

Lancaster, who recently completed the filming of Birdman of Alcatraz, is a cheerful, rugged aggressive man with the stubborn "take-charge" instinct of a natural athlete in any situation.

BOUNCED TO STARDOM

He didn't join the theatre. He bounced there from the impact of one brief Broadway play and two Hal Wallis movies, "The Rainmaker" and "The Kentuckian."

The latter his mere appearance in a three scene part in a million-dollar edge at the box office didn't satisfy Burt. He wanted more. He has produced a big end also, and he intends to go right on producing.

"The actor today practically has to become a businessman to be successful. He's not really wants to," he remarked. "Actors are the worst people in the producing end, but he was always very careful to point out what he does well.

"Some very fine actors — Jimmy Stewart, for example — don't want the extra involvement that goes with producing. "I do. It's a big challenge, exercise control from the start. There's always advantages, of course. Some actors take a hand in producing for financial security, I guess, reason. But there's more to it than that. It's like owning a baseball team. You do it for more than the money.

"What I make something. I want it to have the stamp of my personality all the way. That is the exciting thing—to be in on something creative from its birth."

flekers on both teams were having trouble keeping on their feet with the ball taking some funny bounces.

Jim Backus to Head Up Summer Replacement Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—One of Hollywood's brightest and most outrageous spirits has taken up 13 weeks residence in New York, delighted at an opportunity to head up a summer replacement show.

That attitude, alone, marks Jim Backus as a nonconformist; and is still seen.

"People in Hollywood reacted as if I planned to spend the summer in Rangoon," he related.

Backus, who is famous as the voice of a near-sighted cartoon character named Mr. Magoo, will take over next week as host of a revival of CBS' Talent Scout program. It will replace The Garry Moore Show Tuesday nights starting July 3.

He just finished making a holiday special, an adaptation of Dickens' Christmas Carol in which Mr. Magoo plays Scrooge.

Backus' first plunge into television consisted of 117 shows called I Married Joan, in which he played the dignified judge married to comedienne Joan Davis, who has since died. The last program was made in 1955 —and the series is still playing.

Later Backus was in a contentment series called Deadline Press," which was syndicated and is still seen.

The stocky performer and his sculptress wife live in a converted house in Beverly Hills, Calif.

"Our house fascinates people —it's like any house in Shaker Heights, outside Cleveland," he will take overnment week as host of a revival of CBS' Talent Scout program. It will replace The Garry Moore Show Tuesday nights starting July 3.

Astrological Forecast

For June 27

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Money matters may be surface highlights of day. But what you feel "inside" really dominates. So, strive for truth. If not true to yourself you feel ill-at-ease no matter what temporary gains accrue.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle up, but unless you take initiative, opportunity slips by. Choice is between "resting" and moving with vigor. Take latter course. Otherwise you may have regrets.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Moon in section of chart associated with "planted areas." Means today you should check on past obligations and fulfill them. Otherwise, you invite trouble, especially in connection with past due bills.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): No matter how much others praise you, your reward comes from self-fulfillment. Take initiative and be true to yourself. In other words, follow your own constant lodestar.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): One who is close to you may mean well but today you must be leader. Set the pace. Do what you must do. Build up strength and worry later about "consequences."

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Favorable lunar aspect . . . today means financial matters can be settled in your favor. But speak up. Let others know you have allies. Or business associate might "push."

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Strength of your convictions "pays off." Let no one tell you how to live your own life. Once and for all state position, and stick to it! You gain admiration in long run.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Cycle not high, but you can make most of day by striving for greater independence. Take time to "look around," to scout for benefit of your future.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Emphasis on understanding desires of loved ones. No matter how much success you have outside your home, real happiness results only from harmony and love.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Favorable lunar aspect today means long-range view best. If you look "too close," actions are apt to be petty. Give loved one benefit of the doubt.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Trusting judgment of others could cause you to change your mind at critical point. Better have self-confidence and make your own decisions!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be versatile today and see all sides of a dispute. There are some persons who would like nothing better than to have you make mistakes. So, watch your step.

If today is your birthday . . . You are sympathetic individual who is concerned with a "fair break" for underdog. Never give up this quality. Much detail work to be attended to next month. So, start preparing by checking facts, figures.

* * *

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Aries, Taurus, Gemini. Day when persons are concerned with improvement . . . and with safety, security. This applies to natives as well as persons. Not day to try to force your way. Key word is diplomacy.

Death Accident Verdict of Coroner's Jury

PICTON — A verdict of accidental death by misadventure was returned by a coroner's jury here yesterday after evidence had been heard into the death of Mrs. Connie Woofenden of Milford district on May 26. Body of the woman was found in a well at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dean. Evidence presented revealed that a pail and six feet of rope were found in the well into which she had fallen. The verdict also included the observation that immediate action taken to revive the victim of an accident be not liable to punishment.

Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond presided. Members of the jury were Keith Walker, Gilbert Whiteford, Milton Fennell, Douglas Moore and Maurice Clapp.

ATTEND CEREMONY

PICTON — Nearly three hundred Girl Guides and Brownies attended a ceremony at Quinte Guide Camp, Waupoos, Sunday afternoon. A feature was a "thank you" to Mrs. D. McArthur, who is retiring as Commissioner of the District for the past four years. Previously she served four years as District Commissioner. A radio and other gifts were presented as a mark of appreciation.

The new Division Commissioner is Mrs. Arthur Hablin who has been District Commissioner, while Mrs. George Wright becomes District Commissioner, in a colorful march-past. Mrs. McArthur took the salute. The camp is to open in a few days for the season with Girl Guides and Brownies of the district to camp there.

SAIL PAST HELD

PICTON — Prince Edward Yacht Club officially opened the season with a colorful sail past Sunday afternoon. The long procession of sloops, ketches, dinghies, cruisers, yachts, inboards and outboards, circled the harbor with the salute being taken by Commodore J. M. Hartwick.

Perfect summer weather helped attract a huge crowd to the event, held for the first time here.

The club is now completing plans for the outboard regatta on civic holiday when leading outboards from many parts of North America will take part.

HELD IN OLD CHURCH

PICTON — The 130th anniversary of the Anglican Parish of Picton was marked on Sunday when service was held in the old church of St. Mary Magdalene on Union Street. This service is an annual event. The church was filled to capacity for the service conducted by the rector, Rev. R. B. Wright. He stated that it is hoped that before the next service is held that the church will have been officially recognized and marked as an historic site by the Ontario government. This, he felt, would be a tribute to the first rector, Rev. William Macauley, who had played such an important role in the early life of the town. He also gave Picton its name after a relative, Sir Thomas Picton, Quartermaster General with the Duke of Wellington, and a Welsh hero.

Armed Forces Get Bad News, Must Retrench

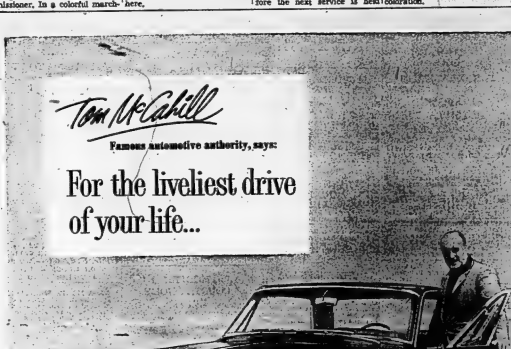
OTTAWA (CP)—The armed forces Sunday presented bad news to the government: A service vote of 6.5 per cent in favor of the opposition Liberals.

Monday the government gave the armed forces the bad news: Retrench.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Sunday that government expenditures will be cut by $250,000,000 in a full year.

Though three months of the current 1962-63 fiscal year have already elapsed, officials said the government hopes to cut spending by $500,000,000 by March 31, 1963, the end of the fiscal year.

Monday orders went out to each department to put its planned expenditures on the chopping block. The defence department accounts for 28 per cent of all federal spending.



The order follows the heavy anti - government service vote which knocked out two Conservative MPs—Solicitor - General Stevens in St. John's West and C. A. Best in Halton.

Officials said they believed the $262,000,000 weapons procurement program would not be seriously affected because of its direct relationship with employment.

Thus the cuts will fall mainly on the operations and maintenance sector of the defence budget.

The army has not yet recruited some 8,000 men of the additional 11,000 authorized by the government last fall during NATO's response to the Berlin crisis. It is expected this extra recruiting may be cancelled.

Constable Says Big Gamblers Were 'Appeased'

Attorney-General Dept. Is Raked Over Coals

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario legislature member's name has been linked to a now-missing letter vouching for the character of a reputed gambler, and the MLA may be called before the royal commission on crime.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson said Tuesday night he was considering subpoenaing Ellis P. Morningstar, Progressive Conservative member for Welland, while provincial police conducted an overnight search for the reported letter of reference on behalf of Bert Nero of the Niagara Falls area.

The member's name came into the commission's evidence Thursday when a sitting MLA has been so mentioned—when OPP sgt. - gambling squad Const. George Scott told Tuesday of voicing "displeasure" about politics touching the force when he was asked last year by Commissioner W. H. Clark whether he had confidence in the attorney-general's department.

FOUND IN CORNWALL

The 39-year-old Scott — who said he voiced confidence then but not now—also testified Tuesday he does not support the department—said he had discovered the letter in Morningstar's file during a letter from a man he identified as a former municipal member of Parliament in a gambling house raided at Cornwall in 1959.

Scott said the letter had been written on legislature municipal department and vouched for the character of Nero, whom he described as a producer and bookie, in connection with the establishment in Cornwall of a branch of the Port Colborne Social Club. The writer was quoted as saying Nero had been of help in his campaign.

Liberal party researcher D. J. MacKinnon pointed out that Ellis Morningstar has been MPP for Welland since 1955, but Scott could not identify the writer because of the surname.

SEARCH FOR LETTER

The constable said he had looked for the letter in OPP files but has been unable to find it, and Mr. Wilson said later he considered the MLA's name irrelevant unless Morningstar could be called to testify in the inquiry.

The evidence ranging over many fields as the commission headed towards an expected Friday adjournment for the summer, there were also these developments:

1. Const. Scott, who in 1960 conducted a one-man expose of the gambling activities in the OPP, raked the attorney-general's department over the coals for its policies on gambling and pinball machines, accusing it of "appeasement" of big gambling interests.

2. Court, John W. Moore of the gambling squad testified he had been confronted with an issue ultimately to declare confidential a 1959 memorandum he drew but had refused. He also described the strife of departmental politics as gamblers.

3. OPP Commissioner W. H. Clark said the reaction of the new squad members, as related to him by Sgt. John M. Anderson,

GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT UP 1.8 PER CENT

Sharp Increase in Consumer Spending

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's national output, pushed mainly by sharp increases in consumer spending and labor income, rose to an annual rate of $36,616,000,000 in the first quarter of the year, up 1.8 per cent from the last quarter of 1961.

This estimate of the gross national product, made today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, compares with an annual rate of $37,500,000,000 for October-December of last year.

The bureau noted, however, that about half of the increase resulted from the statistical assumption that there will be a normal harvest in 1962, which would mean some $360,000,000 more than last year when there was a poor grain crop.

Ruling out farm output, the rest of the economy chalked up a gain from the fourth quarter of just under two per cent in gross national product in the real value of goods and services produced.

Higher prices, mainly for capital goods, accounted for about one-quarter of the gain in total output, leaving a gain in volume of 1.4 per cent. Expressed in constant 1957 dollars, the GNP was estimated at $35,961,000,000 compared with $35,472,000,000 in the last quarter of 1961.

RISES 8.4 PER CENT

The first - quarter GNP, adjusted to discount seasonal fluctuations, was 6.6 per cent higher than the $35,200,000,000 rate in the first quarter of last year — low point of the business recession.

In his April 19 budget, Finance Minister Fleming forecast an overall rise of seven per cent in GNP for 1962, which would push national output for the year as a whole to $39,- 253,000,000 from last year's $36,- 844,000,000.

The report said the major factor behind the first-quarter expansion was consumer spending, which rose to an annual rate of $25,212,000,000 in the first quarter from $24,600,000,000 in the previous quarter, the 2.5-per-cent rise was "one of the largest quarterly gains in recent years." There were "only fractional price changes" in the things consumers bought.

Behind the spending rise was an increase of about four per cent in labor income to $19,- 682,000,000 from the previous quarter's rate of $19,325,000,000.

SAVINGS DECLINE

Total personal income — including unearned items and farmers' income — advanced from a rate of $29,464,000,000 from $28,762,000,000. But with direct taxes as well as consumer spending higher, the rate of personal savings declined.

Government expenditures and home building provided the only other elements of support behind the first-quarter expansion in the economy.

Spending by all governments advanced 1.5 per cent to an annual rate of $7,486,000,00o, and residential construction rose a

SASK. DOCTORS NOT GOING TO CHANGE STAND

Flatly Reject Govt. Proposals

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons' governing council says it cannot recommend to its members that they make any change in plans to provide only emergency medical services after July 1.

The council said in a press release the government should withdraw the July 1 starting date for the act setting up the province's compulsory medical care insurance program.

The statement appeared to be a flat rejection of proposals and concessions made by the government during a series of three-cornered meetings Friday, Saturday and Monday. .

Commenting in a telephone interview on the college's statement, Premier Woodrow Lloyd said the government will not consider delaying the plan or calling a special session of the legislature to meet its proposals into legislation.

He said the concessions the government had made were "beyond any which could have been expected from us. The concessions were difficult to make."

The college has opposed the medical care plan since it first was proposed three years ago. They oppose what they call government control of medicine.

Austerity Plan to Cancel Many Government Projects

OTTAWA (CP) — A large number of planned construction projects by federal government departments will be cancelled because of the austerity program announced by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, public works department officials said today.

The officials said orders have been given to all departments to hold up work on all projects on which contracts have not been awarded.

All such projects will be reviewed to determine whether they should proceed. Sources said they expect it will be forecast how long it would take to complete the review.

The officials said there is "no likelihood" of cancellation of projects where contracts have already been awarded. They said this would apply even if work on such a project had not started.

Contracts which have been awarded after approval of treasury board will not be affected by the retrenchment program, the officials said.

However, they said all other projects will be reviewed "and a large number will have to be cut out as a result of the decision of the prime minister to cut government spending by $250,000,000 in a full year."

The government moves followed a meeting Tuesday of the treasury board chaired by Works Minister Walker, delegated in Toronto Rosedale constituency in last week's federal election.

'Scorched Earth' Campaign In Oran Is Halted by OAS

ALGIERS (Reuters) — The European terrorist Secret Army Organization has called off its last - ditch "scorched earth" destruction campaign in Oran and terrorist leader Jean-Jacques Paul Gardy has fled that city, it was disclosed today.

The decision to end came only four days before a self-determination vote is certain to call for the independence of Algeria.

Ending of the "scorched earth" campaign in the western port city of Oran was first disclosed in an announcement from the administrative centre of Algeria at Rocher Noir, near Algiers.

It said the order came in a public broadcast by Gardy on Monday night by the local branch of the Secret Army.

Official sources said Gardy, former head of the Secret Army in Oran, had left the city for an unknown destination.

Christian Pouchet, French high commissioner in Algeria, and Gen. Michel Fourquet, French military commander and chief, left Algiers by air for Oran this morning.

The Secret Army in Oran has been the most uncompromising of the European terrorist bands in Algeria. It had refused to call a cease-fire agreed upon June 17 by Secret Army in Algiers and Moslem nationalists.

The text of the pirate broadcast which reached Rocher Noir on Monday quoted Secret Army leader Paul Dufour, as saying:

"I give you the order to interrupt the destructions which have been prepared and which could aggravate the Calvary of those who are awaiting with anguish the moment to embark."

The "moment to embark" referred to the current mass exodus of Europeans from Algeria in the face of the independence vote.

"The scorched earth" campaign in Oran reached a climax during the weekend when the Secret Army set fire to the port's oil installations.

Almost every European in the city seemed ready to leave for France as the campaign for

In an effort to stem the exodus, the provisional executive, comprised of both Moslems and Europeans, named a coalition cabinet to organize the Oran and Algiers administrations with the aim of ensuring that Europeans or Moslems will head city districts where they are in a majority.

The exodus forced authorities to declare a state of emergency in Oran's airport and seaport facilities pending the departure of a big portion of the thousands passengers from the western Algerian city.

Call Meeting Of Truckers, Management

TORONTO (CP)—In another attempt to end the province-wide highway truckers' strike, now in its sixth week, conciliation officers have called a union-management meeting for today, first since the companies reverted to their original 15 cent-an-hour offer Friday.

The Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing some 600 strike-bound transport companies, said Friday the companies could no longer afford an earlier offer to comply with a conciliation board's recommended 24½ cents.

Local 938 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) confirmed Tuesday it will continue to hold out for 30 cents.

TRADE DEFICIT SOARS DUE TO DOLLAR DECLINE

Four-Month Total 20 Times Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The dollar's one-year move from premium to discount was reflected today in figures showing a sharp upturn in Canadian import values in the first four months of 1962.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported a January-April import volume of $1,986,100,000, a rise of 14.5 per cent from a year earlier. Export values grew at a similar 8.4 per cent to $1,858,700,000.

Thus Canada had a $111,400,- 000 trade deficit at the end of April—nearly 20 times higher than the $5,600,000 excess of imports over exports after April, 1961. For the whole of 1961 there was a surplus for the first time in nine years.

In April alone Canadian imports showed a year-to-year advance of 12.6 per cent to $460,- 700,000 while exports were up 2.7 per cent to $460,300,000. As result, last year's April surplus of $11,800,000 became a $31,400,000 deficit this year.

DOLLAR LOST MORE

The bureau did not estimate how much the dollar premium played in the higher import values, but from the first half of 1961 it required only 99 Canadian cents to purchase $1 American. This April it took $1.01 to get $1.05.

Many trade figures probably will reveal the government's May 2 decision to peg the dollar at 92½ cents in terms of United States funds.

Today's trade figures contained no information on what commodities contributed to the change.

The trade figures by major areas for the January - April period, with June and last, in millions of dollars:

	1962	1961
Exports
United States	$1,142.2	$917.2
United Kingdom	229.7	226.4
Other Cnwlth	92.8	113.4
All others	393.9	301.2
Total	1,858.7	1,558.2
Imports
United States	1,415.2	1,197.2
United Kingdom	178.9	184.4
Other Cnwlth	78.8	76.0
All others	295.3	267.8
Total	1,968.1	1,718.8
Trade balance
United States	-272.9	-279.9
Other Cnwlth	-14.1	+37.4
All others	+98.6	+33.4
Total	-111.4	-160.3

Exports to the United States were up sharply. They rose in April by $47.2 million to $286,- 200,000 and were higher in the four-month period by 24.5 per cent.

Imports from the U.S. increased at a slightly lower rate. They were up 18.4 per cent in April and 18.2 per cent in the four-month period. The four-month trade deficit with the U.S. thus was reduced to $273,000,000 from $280,000,000.

REDUCE LICENCE FEES

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP)— Palm readers and fortune tellers received a surprise Tuesday night from the city fathers of Glendale, a Phoenix suburb. The council reduced the licence fee for palm readers and fortune tellers to $15 every three months. Before the action there was no indication the action had been prebidied by the seers.

School Grants To Be Increased Says Premier

Special Maintenance Aid Also to Be Given

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Premier Robarts Tuesday night announced plans for upward revision of per-pupil grants to Ontario schools and introduction of special maintenance grants for technical and vocational schools.

He made the announcement at the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves. A $40-a-pupil annual grant to technical and vocational schools would constitute the first special grants from the province to vocational schools.

The province will also increase per-pupil grants for academic students at secondary schools to $30 a year from the present $5. Grants for elementary schools will go up $20 a pupil from $15.

The premier also announced that a formula has been evolved for the province, after 1963, to pay 25 per cent of the cost of constructing vocational training facilities.

Under an agreement reached in December, 1960, the federal government agreed to pay 75 per cent of the cost of constructing vocational schools in the period ending March 31, 1963. After that, the federal contribution is to drop to 50 per cent for the next three years.

Mr. Robarts said that after March, 1963, local school boards will pay 25 per cent of the cost of vocational schools, with the province paying the balance and being reimbursed by Ottawa.

URGES TAX STUDY

The premier called for an immediate study of the Canadian tax structure to produce "the basic principles of good government" in this field. He said the province should bear the responsibility of collecting.

Mr. Robarts suggested municipal tax demands might be kept to a reasonable limit by first educating the taxpayer to the fact municipalities cannot provide free services, then assuring that an efficient municipal administration is by no means a services on an economical basis.

In business sessions Tuesday the association proposed institution of a poll tax for voters of a $25-a-year maximum. They also agreed that the maximum poll tax for men should be raised to $25 from $10.

The poll tax, provided under the Statute Labor Act, applies to persons not listed on the municipal assessment roll.

Association solicitor Palmer Neal said there is no ceiling on poll tax by doing a certain amount of road work "but what kind of road work can't be done?"

A poll among the delegates showed at least 30 Ontario municipalities already have a poll tax.

The association received a Windsor proposal that store closing hours be a provincial rather than municipal responsibility, but representations to effort toward establishing province-wide closing hours.

RCAF DIVISION MAY NOT ASSUME NUCLEAR ROLE

No Final Decision Has Been Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — In light of recent United States defence policy statements, some doubt has arisen here whether the RCAF air division in Europe will assume the nuclear role for which it is being equipped.

Officials stressed that no final decision or agreements have been reached on the issue of the supply of American nuclear warheads to Canadian and other NATO forces in Europe.

They said recent U.S. emphasis has been on tighter American control of nuclear weapons. This was evident at the NATO meeting in Athens last month. But whether NATO would accept this U.S. position remains to be seen.

Eight squadrons of the RCAF division will be re-equipped next year with the CF-104 strike reconnaissance plane, designed specifically as a carrier of a nuclear bomb.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, proposed this nuclear strike force for the air division and the Canadian government announced three years ago. The eight squadrons will get 200 CF-104s, the remaining four will keep their CF-100 night fighters.

Air Force public relations staff at Ain Arbor, Mich., earlier this month, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said independent national nuclear forces are "dangerous, expensive, prone to obsolescence and

One view here is that it would be politically impossible for Canada to accept an offensive nuclear role in Europe (the CF-104) while rejecting a defensive nuclear role at home (nuclear warheads for the Voodoo to intercept Russian bombers and air-craft missile).

The new promise—there is no indication yet that it will—Canada likely would find itself in opposition to the rest of the European partners in NATO.

Kiwanians Taken on Trip To Ghana by Movie Film

Kiwanians were taken on a trip to Ghana via movie film at their regular dinner meeting held at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday.

Mr. Harvey Putman, one of the many members of the "Crossroader" working in Ghana showed a film of Ghana and explained the way of life and the problems which have to be accomplished there.

With him, Mr. Putman brought Kofi Amaquya, a Ghanian, who came to Canada under a special scholarship. He will be working at the Belleville General Hospital during the summer months and is employed in the theatre and delivery room of the hospital. He was offered a scholarship from Moscow but preferred to study in North America.

Mr. Putman met Kofi while in Ghana. Mr. Putman said it was quite a different situation sitting in Africa looking at North America than it was sitting in North America looking at Africa.

He outlined the many problems of Africa, living conditions, working conditions and the education field. He remarked on the advancement of great importance there, having more schools per capita than ever though religion is also important to them, the churches are also usually located along the coast lines.

KNOWN AS SHOWCASE

Mr. Putman said Ghana became independent in 1957 and is known as the showcase of Africa.

He went on to say that there was a great necessity for doctors there. Hospitals are jammed and people are unable to get proper medical attention. He said he knew of one instance where a doctor and his small boy home with his parents in the betsime he did not have the time to look after him.

"In Africa," he said, "the women work in the fields and the men do the house work and most of the cooking is done by the men.

An African man is allowed as many wives as he wants and Mr. Putman said he knew of one man who had 36 wives and 116 children.

Many children in Ghana are suffering from malnutrition. Food cannot be kept over long periods of time due to the intense heat and there is no refrigeration as we have. Water is also a great problem there and young children carry it from the supply reservoir located usually in a low spot in the village.

Mr. Putman said you have to first meet the chief of the village before you can be accepted by them, and noted they had a democracy as they chiefly everywhere they went.

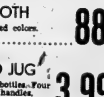
CANNOT BUY LAND

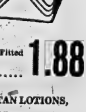
A graphic slide which was beloved upon him he said, was the fact that you cannot buy land by the chief in a village which he visited. Over there you cannot buy land as you can here. And before you are given the land you must be accepted into the community.

He went on to say that the people of Ghana were just wonderful. "I don't think we in Canada realize the great role we can play in the world today because we are accepted in so many places".

The speaker was introduced by president George Hamilton and thanked by Friedal Bellefeuil.

About 30 members were present at attendance. A tour of the Moira water shed has been scheduled by Dick Lomberg and the Agricultural and Conservation committee for Wednesday afternoon. The tour will cover about 100 miles and will be personally guided by Clarke Chubb of the conservation authority.





A support at the Wanderwaker Conservation Area will conclude the tour.

Fire Rating
Tweed Forest District

Cloudless skies with a warm sun flood lighting the timbered areas makes the Tweed Forest district a summer picture these late June days.

But with the warm suns and soft breezes comes the drying out activities raising the fire hazard from low to medium.

The humidity has sharply decreased the past two days.

Departmental forest rangers are ready for the long July 1st holiday weekend. They expect a large influx to the lake and wooded areas of the fire districts.

Visitors, particularly those from the urban centres, have shown an increase in care and caution the past year, says a department official said today. "But there is bound to be some who do not exercise the proper care."

Vacation time at summer camps and cottages brings with it every year the danger of forest fires caused by careless people unfamiliar with the woods.

The Department of Lands and Forests has issued a guide to everyone to help preserve these beautiful recreation areas by using every precaution with fire.

A lighted cigaret or cigar tossed thoughtlessly from a car window or on the ground is a walking or slow burning forest fire. A lunch fire left smouldering or not quite out is a source of common fire hazard.

Let the camp and lunch fires are dead out — soak with water, stir the ashes and soak again to be sure.

Make sure to put cigarets and matches dead out while travelling in wooded areas. Use the car ash tray and you will be helping to prevent forest fires.

Remember — a dead camp fire helps keep the forest alive.

City Approves Sale of Street To School Bd.

Sale of an unopened section of Coleman Street north of the C.N.R. double tracks to the Bay of Quinte High School Board was approved by city council Monday night.

The unopened street property was required by the school board for the construction of its proposed new technical school addition at Quinte Secondary School.

Speaking to the motion requesting the sale, Alderman Ross Bailey said he trusted that the school board would be as co-operative in the future as the city wanted some school board property when it widened College Street.

There was a suggestion that acquisition of the property needed for widening of College Street be a condition of the sale of the unopened street property, but Ald. Bailey remarked the matter was urgent for the school board. He said the new school addition had to be completed by a certain date for the board to be assured of government grants being offered.

Hillcrest Area To Have Water Problems Solved

Residents along West Street in the Hillcrest area of the city in the near future could have their water problems solved.

Monday city council approved construction of a water main on the above street from Vice Crescent to McFarland Street.

At the same time, however, council voted to rescind By-law 7263 which previously authorized construction of a watermain on Centre Street in the same general area.

Petitions for both watermains were brought before council some time ago but construction was held up pending a report from the Department of Health as to whether the ground was suitable for septic tank operation.

The health department report was that the ground on West Street was suitable for septic tanks, while on Centre Street, the reverse was the case, and therefore the watermain construction was not recommended.

services and the medical profession.

During the series of meetings, Premier Lloyd said the government will be open to doctors to discuss outside the plan if they have any. Mr. Lloyd also agreed to delete or repeal sections of the act which the doctors objected.

PROPOSALS NOT ENOUGH

The doctors statement said a proposal by Mr. Lloyd that a public statement on his proposals would be submitted to allow doctors to practise privately on this the act is not enough.

The college said it is obvious that it is virtually impossible for doctors to practise outside the present act. This has been the consensus of our legal advisers and their opinions were confirmed last evening by the cabinet."

The college said recent meetings with the cabinet were "frustrating." It said the cabinet "rejected out of hand every suggestion which the college made."

If this compulsory, prepaid plan goes into effect, Saskatchewan doctors have said offices will be closed and emergency medical service will be provided for the province's 925,000 residents at 29 hospitals in Saskatchewan.

The service will cover prenatal and maternity care and treatment of all children. Doctors have said they do not know how long they will be able to continue the service.

OBJECT TO CONTROL

The doctors object to what they term government control of the medical profession, which have urged extension of said government contributions to existing private and limited medical insurance plans.

At a press conference the next day night Dr. Beatty Wells of Prince Albert, a member of the college's governing council, said the premier and the doctors could not reach common ground on the issue of practising outside the act.

"He (the premier) has not indicated that our meaning of practising outside the act is abased and practised, say citizens could get medical care.

The college statement said any regulation which would permit doctors to practise outside the act "would be contrary to the existing legislation." It said the regulation could be changed overnight by an order-in-council or disappear if there is a change in court.

The future of the medical profession would rest "on the whim of the Saskatchewan people."

The college urged immediate action to remove "a bad act" from the statute books or alternation "to make it a just act."

A 25-member executive committee members approved resolutions and proposals made by Premier Lloyd.

Meanwhile, the town council of Nipawin, Sask., decided to ask the Saskatchewan Civil Defence Organization to consider a plan for evacuating some expectant mothers and others requiring medical treatment.

The council said Alberta will be asked to take evacuees on an emergency basis. Nipawin will have only fire-aid service under he emergency service plan.

Parks Board Will Build New Mountain Road Section

TRENTON—In response to a request from the Trenton Traffic Committee, that some sort of action be taken about the dangerous situation on the mountain road, the members of the Trenton Board of Parks Management, decided last night to go ahead with the second section of the road this year. As it is now, the road is paved from the west side of the mountain up to a paved parking area on the "plateau", in the vicinity of the water tower. Cars may proceed up this road but must then descend in the parking area and return down the mountain the same way they came up. When the road is finished, cars may go up one side and down the other, in a west-east direction, presumably. At the moment, upgoing and downgoing cars must vie for space on the narrow road with bicycles, tricycles and wagons, propelled by the younger city. Parks' board member Clyde Mason, who was absent from last night's meeting, will be given Bart Boers.

Mr. Ireland, whose responsibility is Hanna Park, was directed to get prices on the construction of a rest room there. The building will be along the lines of an Alpine cottage and will make a picturesque addition to the park.

Mr. Boyden queried a quarter bill for this park amounting to $33, for one month's use. Although the board has no alternative but to pay the bill, tests for leaks will be made.

The entire board queried a bill for $878 for the spraying of weeds in the park.

MORE SHRUBS DESTROYED

In addition to the sizeable bill for the spraying, the board members are faced with complaints from people living in the vicinity of the parks. On the day the weeds were sprayed, the wind was blowing, and the spray blew over grass, shrubs and rose bushes, destroying some.

Two persons living in the near vicinity of McNichol Park in West Trenton have complained because children "run" across their lawns and gardens on the way to the playground. A fence will be built along two sides of the park, to keep the playground activities confined.

Mr. Ireland reported that all swings in the town park are up, up and in use. The trouble is, the swings are too low for the children. By next week, will be raised.

WATERFRONT PLANS

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry put in a brief appearance at the meeting, to tell the members that council and the planning board had asked the town planner to have plans for waterfront development area, south of the community gardens. Suggestions have been made that such things as bowling greens, a tennis court and a baseball diamond could be built there, possibly by community groups, but the real planning need is for additional parking space around the community gardens. The planners will keep parking space in mind when they carry out the replanning.

Another suggestion has been made by Sergeant Hobbins, a bandshell where various groups could carry out evening entertainment, but it is under consideration.

Councillor C. V. Graham is anxious to have a baseball diamond made in this area, so that the present diamond, west of the Legion hall in West Trenton, may be used for football purposes.

Board members were interested in the plans for the waterfront park, but pointed out in hope that council would do something constructive about the area. The parks' board has asked that the area, which is the former sanitary landfill area, be turned over to the board, but to date, council has not seen its way clear to doing this. It is thought that private enterprise might be induced to take part in the development under strict supervision by council and the parks' board.

ARMY MAY HELP

The services of an army mine detector may be called in to locate underground sprinkler valves in the Trenton Armory area. Ever since town workmen damaged underground water lines leading to the valves, say the board members, the sprinkler system has been operating in an ineffectual manner. Experts called in to locate the leaks, have failed. Now, the board members feel that the offered assistance from the army may prove to be the answer.

Firefighters' Field Day Won By Frankford

TRENTON — Frankford volunteer firefighters, under the direction of Fire Chief Melvin Dafoe, have moved to the forefront in several respects during the past few weeks. Earlier this month, the new fire hall at Frankford was opened, and last week, at Bancroft, they walked away with the top honors in the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Firefighters' field day. Entries came from Tweed, Bancroft, Frankford, Deseronto and Belleville, and the Frankford team eclipsed all others in such events as hose reeling, bucket brigade and ladder raising.

Standings were: Frankford, 12; Belleville, 11; Tweed, 10; Deseronto, 7 and Bancroft, 6. The events were held on the main street at Bancroft and created wide public interest. Fire Chief McAdam of Bancroft, Dafoe of Frankford, Aquino of Batawa and McVicker of Deseronto were high in their praise of the work done by the competing teams.

Official presentations of trophies will be made at a mutual aid meeting in Trenton, by chief co-ordinator Gerald Vance of Belleville. Among the trophies will be the now-famous Oyster Memorial Trophy, which honors the late Clarence Oyster, a Trenton fire chief who died after 40 years of a fire, several years ago.

King Whyte Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

QUEBEC (CP)—King Whyte, 52, noted Toronto television wildlife commentator, died Tuesday night of a heart attack at his home here. He was Quebec's Laurentide Park.

Mr. Whyte, a baseball and Quebec City radio station CJLR said he and Louis - Philippe Gagnon, deputy Liberal leader, had gone to Laurentide Park with Whyte to help him prepare a film for Whyte's television show.

Whyte was a Toronto advertising man before becoming a full-time wildlife writer with a hobby of fishing. He began to write outdoors columns for the Toronto Star.

He spent a month in Ontario's northland fishing, hunting and recording his experiences.

He maintained the best fishing was dry fly for trout and bucktail streamers for speckled duck shooting. The greatest treasure to fishing was the camera — He scorned those who caught a long string of fish just to have a picture taken.

Youth Jailed For Gas Theft

TRENTON—In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Leon Vincent Quinlan, 20, of Cobourg, was sentenced to two weeks in jail by Magistrate James Garvin of Kingston, on a charge of attempted theft of gasoline from a truck owned by the Allore Lumber Company of Trenton. The incident leading up to the charge, occurred on May 31. Constable Gary Davis testified that he had found evidence that Quinlan and a companion had tried to remove gasoline from the Allore truck, before they were apprehended.

Thomas James Callaghan, 16, also of Cobourg, charged with the same offence, was given a year's suspended sentence and ordered to report to the probation officer in Cobourg.

Magistrate Gervin warned Quinlan that offences along this line could lead to more serious offences and, eventually, to penitentiary terms. The magistrate made it clear that he was letting Callaghan off with a lighter sentence because of his age and lack of record and also because Quinlan had been the owner of the car which was used by the two youths in committing the offence.

Earl William Mandel, 18, charged with driving a car in a manner dangerous to the public, was sentenced to two months in jail and prohibited from getting a driver's licence for one year. Evidence showed that Mandel had been driving in an erratic manner on Front street and Highway 33, on the night of June 20, when he was apprehended by the police. He had no driver's licence. The accused did not appear to have been drinking, police said.

FRAUD CHARGED

TRENTON — Some time ago, in answer to enquiries from housewives in the Trenton district, the Trenton Chamber of Commerce undertook an investigation of certain advertisement placed in daily and weekly newspapers, offering a bargain in towels.

This week Chamber secretary Nostrand Sprague was notified by the police department in the western Ontario city that the two men at the head of the towel firm had been charged with fraud, and had received 12 sentences of three months in the one case and six months in the other.

PEA VINERS HUMMING

Pea viners in the Quinte district are humming this week as the annual pea canning harvest swings into high gear. Above scene is at the Canadian Canners plant at Trenton in Thurlow township, east of Cannifton, where a battery of ten viners is being kept busy almost round the clock. Picture shows farmer's truck dumping load while women folk pea straw into viner conveyors. Other picture shows workers Bill Lang and Doug Dafoe watching shelled peas roll into container. The threshed pea straw is stacked for winter feeding by farmers, while peas are weighed and trucked to factory at Foxboro for canning.

Council Decides To Buy Three Parcels of Land

City council has decided to purchase three small parcels of land south of the Canadian Pacific Railway and north of Zwick's Island at a cost of $4,175.

Cost of the property will be taken from the five per cent park reserve funds.

The matter was before council about a month ago but was referred back to allow the city manager, J. R. Reynolds, to check further into the cost.

At Monday's meeting of the council Mr. Reynolds reported that in the opinion of the city solicitor, the city had the authority to purchase the property and that it was not necessary to obtain appraisals.

The properties in question have already been used for sanitary land fill purposes and in the words of one councillor last month the purchase was necessary to "get the city off the hook."

Three Local Rinks Win Tourney Prizes

Rinks from the women's section of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club won all the prizes at the trebles tournament held at the local greens on Tuesday afternoon. There were ten rinks in competition, five from Belleville, two from Trenton and Campbellford and one from Stirling. The greens were fast and the teams enjoyed a good luck supper at the end of the second game.

The three-game winner was a rink of Mrs. Millie Wright, Mrs. Millie Smith and Mrs. Anne Watkin as skip. Ted is a grade 13 student at Quinte and intends to enter university in the fall to take a course and degree in engineering physics.

Police Warned To Be Alert This Weekend

Provincial Police in the Belleville district have been warned to be on their toes this weekend with an influx of visitors expected to aggravate the Dominion Day holiday traffic problem.

Staff Sgt. H. S. Gall at Belleville O.P.P. headquarters said Thursday, headquarters had ordered that every available officer and piece of equipment be placed on patrol in a solid effort to control traffic and prevent accidents, thereby making the highways safe for all users.

Police were particularly warned to be on the lookout for drivers violations which might lead to accidents.

A special train which left the quays at Canada National Railways station in Belleville, at 9.30 Tuesday morning, carried 777 grade seven and eight pupils, representing seventeen of Sir Winston Churchill, Queen Elizabeth, Prince of Wales, King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Harry J. Clarke and the Douglas Attkins School to Upper Canada Village.

The party was escorted by Stanley Willson, passenger sales representative for the Canadian National Railways.

The special train was made up of 13 coaches, with teachers and parents accompanying the students. Upon arrival at the main gate of the village, maps were given to each group to guide them through the village, accompanied by an interpreter, who explained points of interest to them.

The pupils were divided into groups of 19 and proceeded into the village at five-minute intervals to avoid congestion.

The party travelled by train to Morrisburg and continued to Upper Canada Village by bus. At the conclusion of the tour, the group boarded the buses for Morrisburg where the train was waiting to return them to Belleville, arriving here about 7.30 p.m.

The idea of the tour was to acquaint the children with the way of life in those days, compared to the way of living today. This will be discussed later in history classes.

"Austerity" Not Very Severe

Measures have now been taken by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his Cabinet to meet the financial crisis created by the instability of Canada's dollar, and by the economic factors which have caused this instability.

Generally speaking, these measures have met with a wide measure of approval, not merely in financial circles but also, by inference from the lack of harsh criticism, from leaders of opposing political parties.

Under circumstances such as these, laymen can only hope that the measures prove effective. While the mere fact that the government has acted should have some prompt initial effect on the situation, by creating confidence in our intentions to follow sound policies, it will require some time before the full effects of these measures are felt in our economy.

The reaction of much of the public may well be surprise that anything as serious as a crisis of the proportions painted by post-election newspaper reports could be cured by steps which appear far from drastic. So far, at least, there has been nothing that the belt-tightening program will include higher taxes, except on imports. True, these increased customs levies will raise the price of imported goods, already increased by the decline in the value of the dollar. This will affect a wide variety of goods and we shall certainly see the fact reflected in a rising cost-of-living index. But, if this were the limit of the effects on us of our so-called "austerity" program, we should consider ourselves lucky. Our austerity would still be more bountiful than most lands' affluence.

Unfortunately, the effects of the program are apt to be felt in another manner. These steps, necessary as they may be, are precisely the reverse of those required to accelerate our economic expansion. Unemployment is likely to increase, just at a time when statistics seemed to indicate that this problem was well on the way to being solved, at least to the more prosperous regions of Canada. (The level of unemployment in the Maritimes, remaining distressingly high, has made it evident to all that some special measures will be needed if Canadians in these provinces are to share equally with those of the central provinces, the Prairies and the West Coast in the country's prosperity. But this is a different problem entirely from that of the dollar crisis.)

From what we can understand of the opinions of economists, the "austerity" program on which the government has launched may be likened to the "choking" of a car engine on a cold morning. It is necessary to get the engine, or the economy, to "catch," but once this has been achieved it is necessary to push the choke in, to lift the austerity measures, at precisely the right moment, in order to get the engine, or the economy, turning over and running freely.

It is not too difficult to grasp why this should be true. The increase in import duties will discourage imports and make it easier for us to balance our trade figures, but if this discouragement of imports is carried on for too long, some countries will be reduced to inability to buy our exports. This situation may not take long to develop with such countries as Japan, which already has a large adverse balance of trade with Canada. What we need to do is to approach a point of balance in our trade with the U.S. and this will be far from easy to accomplish. One measure designed to cut the amount of money Canadians spend in the U.S. is the reduction in the amount of goods a Canadian visitor to the U.S. is permitted to bring home without paying duty. A more drastic measure would have been to restore the foreign exchange controls in effect during the war and the immediate post-war period, limiting the amount a Canadian could spend south of the border. We think, though, that the government does well to avoid such arbitrary regulations unless they become absolutely necessary.

If the Soviet Union were to disappear with out trace tomorrow, the problem of civil defence would not disappear.

In the years ahead, other nations potentially dangerous to us will acquire the (nuclear) weapons of this new age.—McGeorge Bundy, U.S. presidential advisor on security.

Let me caution persons grown old in active business, not lightly, nor without weighing their own resources, to forego their customary employment all at once, for there may be danger in it.—Charles Lamb.

It is said that Mrs. Marx observed at the end of a long and rather bleak life how much better it would have been if dear Karl had made some capital instead of writing so much about it.—British Prime Minister Macmillan.

Compromise Enemy of True Creative Mind

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Perhaps the most famous illustrated figures in the world are the characters from "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking-Glass." Nobody can imagine the Lewis Carroll books without seeing in his mind the pictures of the Mad Hatter, the White Knight, the Red Queen and the rest of that immortal crew.

Yet, when the books were being published, Carroll objected violently to the marvelous sketches that had been drawn by Tenniel: he felt that the pictures were contrary to the spirit of the book.

Tenniel produced 92 drawings, of which Carroll liked only one. The author and the artist agreed on Humpty Dumpty, and that was all. Fortunately, for us, the publisher insisted on keeping Tenniel over the author's objections.

In the same way, Dickens and Cruikshank disagreed bitterly about the illustrations for the former's novels. After "Sketches by Twist," Cruikshank refused to do another picture for Dickens. And of the frontispiece pictures for "Dombey and Son," Dickens wrote:

"I cannot say what pain and vexation it has given me to utterly misrepresented. I would cheerfully have given two hundred pounds to have kept this illustration out of the book."

Likewise, the collaboration between Gilbert and Sullivan was a mutually unhappy one, worsening through the years, Sullivan felt that his music deserved more lofty lyrics, and Gilbert felt that his wit and humor were cramped by Sullivan's melodies.

Eventually, each found another collaborator more to his taste — but not to anyone else's. Without each other, Gilbert and Sullivan were dismal failures in the operetta field. Only together could they achieve the unity still played and remembered.

Insurance Is Hazard

Sarnia Observer

The plot is getting so threadbare it wouldn't even do for a television re-run. A businessman gets into debt through financial trouble, and decides the only way out is to take his own life and let his wife cash in on the insurance policies. Sometimes there is a complot about a couple of star-crossed lovers who decide to end it all and pay off their bills at the same time. Another variation is the vanity type who decides this is the way to get rich and get rid of the wife — mother-in-law, old girl friend or take a pot at the same time.

In any case, it always winds up the same way. An aircraft mysteriously explodes in mid-air, usually with spiralling loss of life. The investigators a spectacular fraud like burning persons for one place when one of these crashes occur. They check the cargo, the pilot and the crew.

The FBI says that's a mixture of human error and carelessness was the reason for the mid-air explosion of a Continental Airlines 707 jetliner on May 22. Their investigation had shown that a fire broke out before explosion in the luggage compartment of the plane. They began to check on the trip insurance slubs, and sure enough there it was — a policies naive. A young businessman, perhaps. She was married to her and his creditors, had loaded up with $300,000 worth of trip insurance policies before he had bought some dynamite.

This same scenario has been run through at least a half-dozen times, it is hard to conceive of the mind the pieces of a man who would take innocent people to their deaths with him, but obviously the type exists.

The one common factor in all these tragic tales is the cheap insurance, bought through an automatic vending machine. Unless the companies can think of a way to stop the travelling public from suicide-beat-crackpots, the machines should be outlawed. True enough, many thousands of persons have died in aircraft bagpeps. But once is twice too many.

Jet Engine 25 Years Old

BBC London Letter

The world's first jet engine was successfully tested at Rugby in England twenty-five years ago — on April 12, 1937. The inventor of this revolutionary development in aviation was a young officer in Britain's Royal Air Force, Frank Whittle, now Air Commodore Sir Frank Whittle. In a broadcast talk on the BBC General Overseas Service program "The World Today", Sir Frank recalled some of the nerve-wracking moments while the experimental engine was being tested. On some four occasions in the first two weeks, he said, the engine accelerated out of control, resulting in a notable acceleration of the speed with which the pioneers dashed for safety. On one occasion a compressor seizure in the casing resulted in the engine racing to test from 12,000 revolutions per minute in about one and a half seconds with a terrifying shriek. "One of my colleagues was there for the first time and he turned to run; but before he had taken a couple of steps the engine was at rest, and it was all over," he said. "The superintendent put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'You're not use running, sir. It will soon catch you if it wants'!"

Of course, the idea of work had gone into the first stages of experimental work in Canada, a successful testing. Sir Frank recalled his first patent in January 1930, but received little interest either in the Air Ministry or the engineering firms. Even after April 1937, he said, it still needed two more years of very hard work. The limited resources to make the engine were found by persuading the Directorate of Scientific Research that it had the makings of a practical power unit, and was not simply a line for the Schneider Trophy. After the summer of 1939 the attitude of the Air Ministry changed. Ex — to the Gloster Aircraft Company, which, surprisingly, said Sir Frank, "was prepared for this peculiar bunch of scoundrels as they call my friends and I."

In the last stages of the war and the years immediately following the jet was rapidly developed. Michael Donaldson, who writes on civil aviation for the magazine "Flight," went on to speak of the world's first jet passenger services, introduced by the Overseas Aviation Engineering Corporation on May 2, 1952, with the Havilland Comet airliners, powered by Ghost engines, directly developed from the first Whittle jets. Sir Frank Whittle, he said, that the early Comet jet was practical, "this visionary British design", it was conceived by Sir Geoffry de Havilland in 1943. He was a pioneer of a revolution which had already carried nearly 300 miles an hour to the world of air travel and achieved the remarkable feat of transport described by him.

"Today, of about 1,400 jet and prop-jet airliners in service throughout the world, variously manufactured in Britain, France, Italy, France, Holland and Canada, only two-thirds are powered by British jet engines, and virtually all of these by British Rolls-Royce. Competition is intense, particularly in the field of pure jets."

Mr. A. A. Lombard, Director of Engineering in the Aero Engine Division of Rolls-Royce, expressed the view that there was a much scope for further progress of the jet engine in the next twenty-five years as there had been in the past twenty-five. "Jets are now the most powerful of supersonic fighters and vertical take-off transport aircraft, but in applications in power stations for meeting the peak load generation, and for providing booster power in ships.

To Your Good Health

To Cure Asthma, You Must First Cure the Allergy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our 5-year-old son has asthma. Does climate have anything to do with this? We live where the humidity is high most of the time.

How much does climate have to do with asthma? Are there many people who have abdominal cramps when they have an attack? — Mrs. D.W.

A dry climate may — may, I repeat — help an asthmatic case, but it is by no means certain and I would not think of moving without doing two things first: try the known methods of easing it; and try a different climate on a temporary basis before doing anything as drastic as uprooting a family — job, friends and all.

Options vary on the importance of emotions in asthma. I doubt that a general rule is possible. However, there is no question in my mind that emotional tensions are a strong factor in triggering many attacks. But I am not convinced that they are important in all cases. Each must be judged by his own characteristics.

I have never observed an asthma case in a child in which allergy was not a factor.

After all, what is asthma? A spasmodic tightening of the air tubes. Allergy, one of the commonest of all human ailments, has various manifestations: rash, itching, sneezing, swelling, cramps, vomiting, diarrhea, eye, nose, digestion, respiratory passages. And on and on.

Asthma is one of the several serious consequences. The air passages swell and constrict, the unhappy victim wheezes and gasps for breath.

Too often people still think some single medicine will "cure" asthma. Well, it sometimes does — well, you don't "cure" it but you may control it — is the better way.

It can be something breathhouse cleaning, pollen, animal dander and many other things. Skin tests are helpful in identifying the cause.

Foods can do it — and skin tests are not helpful in this regard. Eggs, wheat and milk are relatively common offenders, but there are many others — less common — and the list is long.

Sometimes, infection, cramps along with asthma attacks are a strong hint that food allergy may be present. Not all asthma sufferers have such cramps.

It is possible for a germ (as from chronically infected tonsils or sinuses) to be the "original offence" that touches off allergy in the first place.

It is notable that some youngsters, asthmatic at first, outgrow the trouble, but it is more severe the case, the less chance of being completely cured. For a rule of thumb, the case that is outgrown by about age 12 is for the asthma that will continues later is something that they also needed to keep him from getting writing materials and carrying on his ministry through his pen. Peo-PIE have been reading "Pilgrim's Progress" for centuries and finding inspiration therein, and aiming its literary shafts at it and reflecting upon the spirit of a book for whom John Bunyan was as if they did not exist.

He was a truly tolerant of other people's religion. The pages of history are marred by accounts of the persecution of bigotted men tried to silence those with whom they differed. The perfon whose ideas we consider fantastic may indeed be one who has a great deal to say if we will but listen.

Tolerance is a rare and precious virtue.

Fat! My leaflet, "The Lost Art of Reducing" tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of this Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 4390, Chicago 54, Ill., enclosing a long self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 coin to cover handling and postage.

Bee Deadlier Than Rattler

Sarnia Observer

Laurence Klauber, a retired California industrial executive, is trying to pull the rug out from under the fears of the old beliefs in America. Snakes and snake bites, which have brought the fear of God into most of the purveyors of potables, are pedounced by the gentleman who is now honorary curator of reptiles at the San Diego Zoo as being not the fault of the world's foremost authority on rattlesnakes.

Rattlesnakes are vastly overrated as lethal instruments in Mr. Klauber's opinion. According to his statistics only about 20 persons a year in the United States in a year from snake bites, which is something like 1/9 of one per cent a number who are stabbed by the rattlers and other deadly snakes. It is causes of death snakes rate among the insignificant. The snake authority believes more people are fatally bitten by the many little bees by all the snakes in the country.

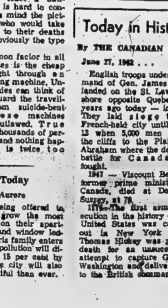
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS



TRUE TOLERANCE

John Bunyan, who wrote "Pilgrim's Progress," spent a great many years in prison. He was put in prison for preaching the gospel — or rather a variety of the gospel which did not meet the approval of the church leaders of his day. It was while he was in prison that Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress." It would be hard to find in the whole range of English literature more effective an beautiful prose than this book tedgered man wrote while in bonds.

Bunyan's life teaches us that difficulties make no real difficulties to the valiant in spirit. They could put Bunyan in jail, give him a job so that he could not speak, but the idea appealed not to have occurred to them

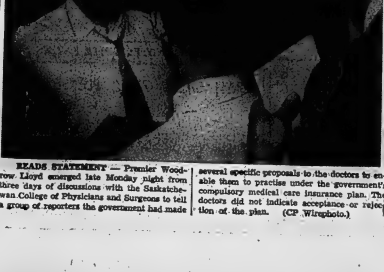
Lingham Lake Dam Benefits Being Realized



Though it is not yet July the benefits of the Lingham Lake storage dam on the upper reaches of the Moira watershed are already beginning to be realized, according to conservation authority officials.

With the level of the river beginning to drop with the approach of the summer season, the gate valve at the bottom of the storage dam was opened three inches about a week ago, allowing a discharge of approximately 15 cubic feet per second.

The increased flow has benefitted mill operation at Queensboro, a few miles down the Black River from the dam.

As of the above date the water level ab the reservoir dam stood at 17.5 feet with 13,600 usable acre feet of water storage, or 91.5 percent of water volume, left in the lake.

Operation of the Lingham Lake dam, 20 miles north of Madoc, was taken over by the Moira River Conservation Authority several years ago and since that time the dam has been repaired and a gate valve installed to allow more efficient control of water discharge.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Stocks of creamery butter in Canada's nine major cities at June 21 totalled 62,126,000 pounds, down 10 per cent from the corresponding period a year ago.

The bureau of statistics reported today that stocks were down in all centres except Quebec City, Toronto and Vancouver. The largest decrease was in Montreal, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary.

Stocks were biggest at Montreal, where supplies totalled 16,541,000, down from 32,555,000 a year ago.

Canadians cashed a record $302,741,000,000 worth of cheques against individual accounts in 32 clearing centres in 1961. This compared with $277,210,000,000 in 1960.

Steel Orders Show Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — New order for steel, long dragging at low ebb, have taken an upturn but encouraging upturn, the trade reported today.

The U.S. metalworking weekly said the improvement was confined to a relatively few companies, and probably won't be translated to any broad, all-over-all industry production.

"It could be due to local conditions, product mix and/or trend toward a spurt of new orders late in the month," the magazine said.

The publication said the mood will mean any pickup in production in July. Plant vacations, preparations for automotive changeovers and other seasonal factors have washed out July as anything but a month of doldrums.

The magazine foresaw a likely substantial improvement in production late in August, and a "good recovery" in September.

Russian Wins Right to Seek Chess Crown

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (AP)—Soviet grandmaster Tigran Petrosian won the 1962 Curacao round international Candidates chess tournament Tuesday and the right to challenge Russian world champion Mikhail Botvinnik.

Petrosian captured first-place when fellow countryman Paul Keres was held to a draw by American Bobby Fischer in 30 moves of a queen's gambit declined.

If Keres had beaten the American, he and Petrosian would have been deadlocked for the lead.

In his own match Tuesday, Petrosian drew with Czechoslovakia's Miroslav Filip. Their game was tied after 14 moves in a Tartakower variation of a queen's gambit declined.

During short of the Keres-Fischer match, Keres held the initiative, but Fischer defended tenaciously, steering for a rook and pawn ending by bringing about exchanges of major pieces.

MISSES AGAIN

With a draw ending in sight, Keres saw a chance for victory and accepted when Fischer proposed a draw. Keres, 46, appeared disappointed, having been trying for a shot at the title for more than 20 years.

Petrosian, asked how he felt, said:

"It's a funny thing, but we both live in the same city and the same district, but very rarely play together. I last played him seven years ago, and I think he plays better today than ever, since he beat Vassily Smyslov and Mikhail Tal in their world championship matches with him."

Petrosian was the only undefeated player in the tournament, drawing 19 games and winning eight.

Charge Against Liberal Agent Is Withdrawn

Clifford Etheridge, Mr. Hutchinson's counterpart, laid the charge of two days before the June 18 election. He claimed an advertisement in the Woodstock-Sentinel Review did not bear the name and address of its printer and publisher.

The advertisement, appearing over the signature "The Citizens Committee for Better Government, D. Brown, Secretary," criticized PC candidate Wallace Nesbitt for not attending a meeting to which he was invited.

Weddings

MOXON — SMITH

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle was the scene of a lovely wedding at high noon on Saturday, June 9, 1962, when the Rev. Robert Donman, of Stirling, united in marriage Carolyn Lee Smith, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, of Stirling, Ontario, to William George Moxon, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Howard Bullis, Lewiston, N.Y., and the late Mr. Reuben Moxon, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Morris, of Belleville.

The church was decorated with baskets of pink and white peonies and orange blossoms, white satin bows with pink rosebuds marking the guest pews.

The bone decorations were baskets of spires, peonies and iris.

The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Robert Donman of Stirling, and the soloist, Mrs. Keith Holland of Oshawa, sang "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a cocktail-length bridal gown of lovely silk organza, the skirt enhanced with elegant Alencon lace embroidery, studded with sequins and seed pearls, charming scoop neckline and bouffant sleeves with scalloped hem. Her dimensional embroidered floor-length veil was held by a matching Juliet cap. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a dainty butterfly queen's crown of lace of openwork and pearls with an exquisite pearl-beading of glittering accents. Her only jewellery was a jewelled cross, the gift of her bridegroom. She carried a cascade of Sweetheart roses and white carnations.

The maid-of-honor was Miss Dorothy Taylor, of Belleville, who wore a street length gown of yellow chiffon over taffeta with draped neckline, shirred bodice, self-edged ruffles, and carried a nosegay of white carnations and yellow roses.

The bridesmaid was Miss Barbara McMillan, of Belleville, who wore a street-length gown of lime chiffon over taffeta, round neckline, set in cummerbund, semi-shirred skirt, self-piped waistline. She carried a nosegay of white and lime-tinted 'mums.

The junior bridesmaid was Miss Bonnie Jean Smith, of Stirling, sister of the bride, wearing a street-length gown of mauve chiffon over taffeta, rounded neckline, shirred cummerbund and floating panel at back. She carried a nosegay of white and mauve tinted 'mums.

The bride's table was decorated with a white linen cloth, centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with doves and wedding rings? Candelabra with pink and white candles and pink and white streamers added the nuptial accent.

The bride's mother received in a street-length dress of delectable candy colors in floating organza over taffeta, with matching taffeta, white accessories, and wore a corsage of mauve tinted 'mums.

The bridegroom's aunt assisted, wearing a navy jacketed sheath of embossed rayon beigaline with white accessories and corsage of red tinted 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the Thousand Islands and Watertown, N.Y., and points south, the bride chose a blue sheath with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

BOULTER — CALNAN

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting for a lovely summer wedding on Saturday, June 23rd, at 2.00 p.m., when the Reverend Everett Smith, assistant rector of the church, united in marriage Allison Elizabeth Faye Calnan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Calnan, Belleville, to Bernard Douglas Boulter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Boulter, Picton.

Baskets of white, yellow and mauve 'mums adorned the sanctuary, while white satin bows marked the pews.

Organ music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. John Withers, who played traditional wedding music, including Lohengrin's "Bridal of Artistocrats," and accompanied the six choir boys who sang the "Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length Queen Anne gown of shimmering over tulle and satin, featuring a bateau neckline and a fitted bodice with seed pearl and sequin interest. The back of the skirt fell in the true vein of Alencon lace and nylon net, and the front fell gracefully to floor length, a fingertip veil was held in place by a sparkling tiara, shaped of miniature leaves. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. James Calnan, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a gown of yellow sparkle organza over yellow taffeta, featuring bracelet length sleeves, enhanced by a full skirt. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and mauve 'mums with yellow streamers.

Mrs. Rod Calnan, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of white sparkle organza over green taffeta. She carried a cascade bouquet of white 'mums with green ribbon. Both bridesmaids dresses were identical in style to that of the matron-of-honor.

Mr. Robert Thompson, of Rossmore, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. John A. Calnan, brother of the bride, Belleville, and Mr. Jack Scantlebury, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, at Quinte Cabins, overlooking the Bay of Quinte, site of the 1961 Harmsworth Trophy races, with Miss Cathryn Finlayson and Miss Doris Aman serving.

The bride's table was appointed with white linen cloth and centred with a three-tier wedding cake misted about the base with organza and rose petals, and flanked by tall, white candles in silver candelabra. The bridal bouquets added lovely nuptial accent.

The bride's mother, dressed in powder blue embroidered organza over taffeta sheath, with white accessories and a pink carnation corsage, received the guests, assisted by the mother of the bridegroom, who was attired in rose tailored sheath of summer silk with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Wimbledon 'Backline' Doesn't 'Plunge' Deeply

WIMBLEDON (AP) — The Wimbledon fashion line slumped sharply down the female back Tuesday but didn't reach its promised depths.

Ladies day at the tennis championships was played under overcast skies. Most of the tournament's lovelies covered up.

On an outer court, South Africa's fourth - seeded Renee Schuurman performed prodigious feats in a white dress with pale blue trimmings of ruffled ribbons. But the sharp V at the back of her dress dropped to only nine inches below the shoulders.

Where then are the rear cleavages supposed to staunch in a hail just before the point of no return?

THREE INCHES SHY

South Africa's Val Forbes monotonally held out promise. Her attractive white creation had green lace trimmings and deep cleavage at the back. But Mrs. Forbes gave up the effort three inches shy of the slender waist — despite advance word that the view would be unobstructed down to the middle.

"I think I went quite far enough," the graceful South African deep-dish reporters. "Take a look at Maria Bueno of Brazil). I hear she goes all the way."

But when Miss Bueno arrived on court an hour later, she too had surrendered to custom.

She wore an all - white dress without any trim. Her back of course was no deeper than nine inches.

Lt. - Col. Teddy Tinling, designer of Wimbledon fashion and responsible for most of the dresses, nevertheless hailed the whole thing as a triumph.

ALL STATS ON

"Nothing has dropped off," he said. "Nobody has had to retire.

"What about the waist line plunge I promised? Well let's not be pedantic. A girl must have some support."

The tennis dresses this year are notable for their gay trimmings in blues, greens, pinks and yellows. Yet the custom of the sport dictates that tennis be played in white.

"Nobody here takes exception to these variations, though the white dress carefully," said a spokesman for the tournament organizers. "We're happy just so long as nobody irises gold lame panties again."

Karol Fagerous of the United States appeared in a gold set of tennis bloomers some years back — but was never allowed to take them on Wimbledon's hallowed centre court.

Shannonville Couple Live In Same House 50 Years, Celebrate Anniversary

Fifty years of marriage was celebrated yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Elliott, R.R. 6 Belleville, popular Shannonville district couple as they were "at home" to friends and neighbors.

Scores of cards and anniversary gifts were received by the couple, as well as congratulations from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Ontario Premier John P. Robarts, Provincial Secretary John Yaremko, Lee E. Grills, M.P. and Carter V. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

A son of the soil Mr. Elliott was born on the farm where he still lives. His bride of 50 years is the former Dinah Carter of Roslin.

The couple met at a party and were married in the Presbyterian Manse at Roslin by Rev. H. G. Steere."

The only honeymoon they had was a buggy ride to Belleville and then home to the farm where they have since lived.

Saturday evening the couple were guests at a dinner party at the Shannonville United Church Hall. About 100 guests attended.

REMAINED HOME

Now 79 and 76 respectively, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott were forced to give up the farm two years ago when Mr. Elliott suffered a slight heart attack.

He placed an advertisement in The Ontario Intelligencer offering his farm for sale and it was sold within eight hours to a neighbor. He still retains the house and keeps a few chickens.

Asked what the second initial "S" in his name stood for, Mr. Elliott said it was merely for the purpose of signature.

He recalled that when he was a young man there were several Elliott families in the district and his bank manager advised him to add another initial to his name to distinguish himself from others with the same name.

"So we made it another "S", Mr. Elliott said.

Rowena Boyce Music Pupils Give Recital at Albert College

By GLADYS WARD

At Albert College Memorial chapel on Tuesday evening the pupils of Rowena Boyce, A.T.C.M., were heard in a piano recital. The platform was tastefully decorated with two bouquets of spring flowers. The two pianos, a grand and and upright, served the students for the varied program of solos, duets, trios and quartets.

To open the program the Headmaster of the school, the Rev. J. Alistair Hair, expressed to all a warm Albert College welcome, stating it was an occasion to which all had looked forward and was the result of careful teaching on the part of Mrs. Boyce and diligent practice on the part of the students. The Principal said he was proud he spoke for the parents in expressing appreciation to Mrs. Boyce for her fine work. Mrs. Boyce and her husband, the late Egerton Boyce had given the people of Belleville many years of musical enjoyment. Mr. Boyce was greatly missed, but Mrs. Boyce deserved admiration for the way she had carried on with her teaching.

The program started with the little ones, whose feet could not reach the pedals, but who nevertheless managed to produce some shading in their musical cadences, without the use of the pedals. They performed well, without using their printed music.

Even the fact that the pupils had probably learned the numbers as in infinite number of times did not dampen their enthusiasm and each performer was heartily applauded.

The program which proceeded from the beginners to the more advanced pupils without further introduction, follows:

"God Save the Queen," Douglas Miles, John McKillican, and Mary Lynne Miles; "Marching Trumpets," Berlin— Lynn Williamson; "The Cuckoo Clock," Erb — Cynthia Welbanks; "The Princess and the Pirates" Campbell—Susan Leslie.

"The Pied Piper," Nobles — Nancy Reidel; "Bourree," Bach — Nancy McFarlane; "Betty's Wooden Shoe Dance," Light — Linda and William Simpson; "Grandmother's Dance," Saint Jean — Elizabeth Edwards.

C.G.I.T. Hold Surprise Party For Leaders

WELLINGTON — The CGIT held a surprise party on June 20th in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dart, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

At about 7.30 that evening 18 girls assembled at the United Church and from there proceeded to the home of the honored couple on Lakeview Ave.

Upon their arrival at the house they were all invited in by the much surprised Mr. and Mrs. Dart. Brenda Adcock brought a large box which contained a white church with a miniature bride and bridegroom in proper attire, coming through a gate with the inscription "Happy Anniversary."

Miss Connie Allison presented the honored couple with a beautiful hammered aluminum "Lazy Susan," on behalf of the CGIT, and Sharon McFaull presented the other leader, Mrs. Adams, with a lovely cake plate.

Both ladies thanked the girls for their kindness.

Refreshments were served and this was followed by a lively singsong.

The girls closed a pleasant evening with "Taps."

Lakeside Ch. Holds Past Officers' Night

Daughter Demands Big Wedding

BORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Now that we have given our daughter an education and she has started working as a teacher, she wants to be married. To a boy of a different faith.

Not only that, but she wants a big wedding, in five months' time. This is all a big shock to me, as we have a boy at college and two others coming along. And I need an operation I was planning on this summer, which will cost a lot.

I have tried to tell her we'll have to wait, but she sulks and is set on it. I have definite opinions about marriages and finances and religious differences.

Her father wants to do what is right, but is very worried too. We both love her but I don't want to make it too easy for her to make a mess of her future.—WORRIED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER—Well, Mother, you're running the show. That's apparent. And I'm afraid that's the trouble, too.

The old adage that "Mother knows best" cuts no ice with a girl in love. Unless mother really knows what her girl is feeling, she can't help. Comes a time when your daughter starts to make her own decisions.

In all kindness you have educated her. Now you count on her to support herself. And here she is hoisting a big wedding on you. You find her ungrateful and unrealistic; she finds you unkind.

Catch up on things by granting she is adult. Have a family discussion about finances. Let her see just how far the money has to stretch. A teacher can do arithmetic.

Then leave the decision to her as to whether she has a smaller wedding or waits and saves up for a big one.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I have a wonderful girl, but she cheated on me when I was away, then she said she hadn't. I got mad and called her a few nasty names and made her cry.

The next morning her mother called me and bawled me out. I didn't tell her what her daughter had done, but just took it. They are nice people and I feel awful about it.

I want to know if I have the right to ask her forgiveness, or should I forget her? She did lie to me, and I'm sure she was guilty of something from the look on her face.

I don't hold it against her. We're all human. How could I get her parents to think well of me again?—NORMAN—NINETEEN.

DEAR NORMAN:—Nasty names hurt. Apologize.

If she forgives you, you must both clear the air. Deceptions must not pile up or there's no hanging them.

It's in her interest to have her parents think well of you—even if this hasn't occurred to her. Get her to see she is the one who must tell them the truth of the matter.

If she doesn't measure up, she's not the girl you think she is.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Could you please tell me where I could get some information on what color jewellery you could wear with different colored dresses?

I am now selling jewellery and this, I think, would be a big help to me.—AMBITIOUS.

DEAR AMBITIOUS—Blessing on your inquiring mind. You'll get along!

The Canadian Jewellers' Association has a fine library on all kinds of jewellery and fashions. Write to them, at 800 Bay Street, Toronto, for helpful hints and literature. And study the fashion magazines too.

• • •

(Ask Doris for the answer to your problem. There's a resourge or an idea whioh can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

89-Year-Old Nurse Tells Of Old Hospital Days

MONTREAL (CP) — A visit to Montreal General Hospital stirred mixed emotions in Mrs. George Coubrough, a graduate of the School of Nursing in 1903.

Wrapped in a white hospital smock and propped up on pillows, the 89-year-old R.N. recalled a time when hospitals weren't very cheerful places to work in, much less to be a patient in.

For example, she said, nurses at the turn of the century were never allowed to address a doctor or an intern unless they had been spoken to first, and they were not allowed to smile on duty because this was thought to indicate an unprofessional attitude.

Nurses often started work at seven o'clock one morning and worked straight through until two the following morning. Days off were rare and then only by special request.

Public wards were much different from those today, and Mrs. Coubrough recalled that the smallest ward was the women's surgical with 40 beds.

Minor operations were performed in the ward itself and the only privacy a patient had was when a screen was put around the bed.

PATIENT-WATCHERS

"Beds then had no sides to them and if there was a difficult patient or a particularly restless one, they had to be watched day and night. The hospital employed a number of men for just this purpose. They were known as watchmen and spent their time sitting on hard wooden chairs at the foot of the patient's bed."

Mrs. Coubrough married a Boer War veteran while doing public health nursing. She was widowed in the First World War and, anxious for a change of scene, moved to Toronto to live and work in slum areas for the Victorian Order of Nurses.

"I thought I was rich in those days as I earned $2 a day and was getting the odd cup of tea when I attended a case.

"My goodness, some of these cases were terrible. I tended men who were fighting out of the throngs of the depression and I delivered babies in rooms so filthy that I would have feared for the life of a litter of kittens. Yet, somehow, these children all seemed to survive."

Mrs. Coubrough recalled Sunday's in Toronto when "street cars didn't run and I had to walk home some two miles down a long road lined on either side with trees. Sometimes I wondered what I would do if someone leapt out at me. I used to practice swinging my heavy black bag just in case.

"Come to think of it, its no wonder no one ever bothered us. We must have looked sights in our black outfits and bonnets."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

CHARM DIPS WHEN POSTURE SAGS

Good posture may not be an indication of good manners, But it does give the effect of poise and breeding.

It's possible to have the most highly polished manners this side of Timbuktu, but the gloss is slightly tarnished when the figure that's exuding what's supposed to be charm is sitting curled up like a pretzel or standing as if she's just slipped her last disc.

Sitting with legs crossed well above the knees may be just what the photographer ordered if you're sitting for cheesecake. But under more mundane circumstances, such as sitting on a plain old sofa in an ordinary living room, it hardly strikes a restful pose.

Aside from the aesthetics, though, such a contorted position doesn't do a thing for the legs, and actually is rather uncomfortable. When the legs are crossed at the knee, the thigh-line takes on a bumpy look while the calf flattens out to twice its size because it is being jammed against a kneecap. If you hold this position for any length of time the circulation can get snarled up, and then there's an awkward period of stamping the foot to get the vessels working again. As a result, the overall effect is hardly one of charm and complete serenity.

Actually, a more flattering and gracious appearance is achieved simply by sitting erect, with feet planted firmly on the floor. For variation feet may be crossed at the ankles without distorting the legs or hitting pressure points. Or the legs may be kept close together and gracefully arched to the side, again in a relaxed, genteel manner.

The same holds true for standing. Crooking a hip out of line is unsightly — and tiring. You'll never find women who have wide reputations for charm, poise, breeding and manners standing or sitting in a slouchet position. They have a standing to uphold, and it's usually done on the balls of their feet.

The next time you're thumbing through a magazine or your daily paper, look closely at pictures of women accustomed to being in the public eye and see how they bear up under pressure. You'll find photos of them in various aspects of public life — standing on receiving lines, presiding at meetings, conversing at dinner parties, or simply at ease in a chair.

The manner usually is warm and gracious and the posture straightforward and fair. Analyze their stance and demeanor and you'll find that it's really a simple matter to follow in their well-bred footsteps.

BABY'S SCHEDULE

A regular daily time-table for the baby—for sleeping, bathing, feeding, exercise and airing outdoors—is easier both for the baby and the mother.

Mother's Helper

WHEN YOU really want your child to do something, it's not a good idea to put your request in the form of "Would you like to . . ?" If you do ask in this way, be prepared (and willing) to accept "No!" for an answer.

Vacations Afoot

By TRACY ADRIAN

Casual shoes and casual clothes add to the comfort and fashion of a vacation wardrobe, no matter where you are bound.

Here flats in a textured gray cotton have yellow insets at the throat and a yellow tab at the vamp. They are perfect for a day of sight-seeing or relaxing and as chic as they are easy on the feet.

Turkey and Butter

by Mary Moore

With deceptive calm I shall tell you about the weekend Marianne and Herbie came to fetch Davey.

At midnight five Pitts arrived all bright as dollars — Sue and Gary heading for Davey's room after they kissed Grandma. Davey slept through it all.

Previously, for Saturday evening's dinner, guests from England had been invited, whom luckily Marianne and Herbie knew. Without the children we had nine for dinner. My pewter turkey platter Ellen fed the young fry and kept them at a distance during our dinner time.

TURKEY

That dinner is worthy of a few remarks. I bought an 11-lb. frozen turkey. Early Saturday morning I stuffed it and at 6:30 p.m. put it in to roast at 185 deg. Fahr. and left it there until 8.30 p.m. when I served dinner. It was not basted. It was on a trivet. For the last 8 hours it was covered loosely with foil. Between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. I raised the temperature to 300 deg. Fahr. It was perfect — moist, tender but not falling apart at all — a joy to the carver and diners. This turkey had many virtues. It required almost no attention. After generous servings and some seconds there was plenty left over for thick sandwiches for Marianne's and Herbie's return trip and for cold supper for our boys on Sunday.

I served with it buttered poppy seed noodles and Frenched green bean with mushroom (see notes below). Fruit Tortes were our desserts - one topped with glazed strawberries, the other with glazed mandarin oranges which were sensational. You will read about these today); Coffee.

BUTTER

Because they pay homage to scientific research and want lovely unclogged arteries, my son's family and my daughter's family eat margarine. At my age I should be cholesterol-shy too, but I'm a butter-addict. So when my young people visit me they wallow in it and particularly enjoyed the vegetables I served.

I cooked 1 package of fine noodles in plenty of salted water until they were tender and drained them. I had ready about ½ cup melted butter in which 2 tablespoons poppy seeds were soaking. I stirred this gently into the noodles.

The green beans and mushrooms consisted of 1½ lbs. washed, shredded green beans cooked in salted water barely tender, then drained. I added them to 8 oz. sliced mushrooms gently sauteed in ¼ cup butter. This is highly recommended.

If you feel you can afford butter now that it is reduced to 58 cents per lb. the following recipe will please you.

WEDNESDAY (Guests)

Dinner Menu

Oven-Fried Chicken Breasts; Whole Cranberry Sauce; Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce; Mashed Potatoes; Lettuce and Tomato Salad with Salad Dressing; Fruit Cup; Brown Sugar Refrigerator Cookies (see Tuesday); Coffee.

PARSLEYED LEMON BUTTER (32 butter pats): One-half lb. soft butter, grated rind of 1 lemon, juice of ½ lemon, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Line a freezer tray with waxed paper, extending it up sides and ends. Cream butter; beat in lemon rind and juice. Mix in parsley. Spread mixture in tray. Cut into 32 squares. Remove squares from tray and wrap in foil or plan in freezing carton. Refrigerate until needed, or freeze if desired.

11-YEAR-OLD HAS BABY

SAN LUIS, MEXICO (AP)— An 11-year-old Mexican girl gave birth last week to a seven-pound boy, the Ernesto Rendon - Alduenda, the attending physician said. Delivery was routine and both mother and son are healthy. He said the mother is unmarried.

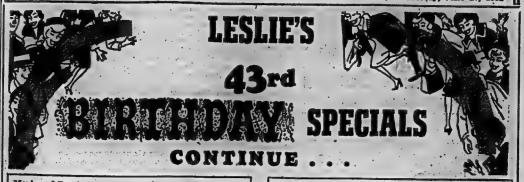
THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Beulah M. — She's squandering her funds on pleasure trips.

Lucy P. — I'd rather have memories than a big back account.

Beulah M. — My sister Lucy is a retired school teacher. As her next of kin, my husband and I are appalled at the way her reserve funds are dwindling, due to the luxury cruises she's been taking.

We are in better financial circumstances than she and we'd never indulge in the splurges she does. For instance, we accompanied her on a short trip to Nassau and Haiti. It was she, not we, who took every side trip offered.



And it's not just travel. Lucy sees every foreign movie shown here, regardless of the reviews. I urge her to be more provident and more restricted.

Lucy P. — I wish Beulah would stop preaching to me. I'm 66, in excellent health and having the time of my life.

I never married and I have no dependents. Why shouldn't I spend my money on myself? My retirement benefits take care of the humdrum essentials. My hospitalization insurance is ready for emergencies. So, what better use for my savings than to go places and do things?

Beulah and Hal should do the same. They don't have to leave it all to their children. My way, when I'm old and decrepit, at least I'll have no regrets. I'll have things to remember.

The Council: It may help Beulah and her husband to understand Lucy to hear of the woman who skips her dinner whenever a fat, juicy letter arrives from her Navy-boy son. "Who can eat after such a lout.

The Experts Say

Problem of Raising Large Family Solved

By PATRICIA RUSAK

HALIFAX (CP)—The problem of raising a large family while remaining relaxed and lovely has been solved by Mrs. Louis Moir.

Organization is the secret, says the blonde, blue-eyed and personable mother of eight children ranging from four months to 20 years.

Not only that, but she says she doesn't even work hard.

Mrs. Moir says it's all possible because her husband, a general insurance agent, is an organizer and won't stand for disorder.

"From the first day we were married (12 years ago) he started teaching me to be organized."

The result is a smooth and efficient daily routine that leaves Mrs. Moir plenty of time for such activities as home and school work, membership in the Halifax Recreation Commission.

Shortly after the first of the children awakens at seven, Mrs. Moir starts breakfast while Mrs. Moir dresses the four school-age children.

LUNCH IN SHIFTS

She then takes over breakfast feeds the four "little ones" and puts them out to play so she can get on with her housework.

The smaller children eat lunch at 11:30 and the second shift, the school children and parents, goes on at 12:30.

To save time Mrs. Moir often prepares supper while making lunch. "Then my afternoons are easy and by three o'clock I'm free to relax with the children."

All eight children eat at five; then Mrs. Moir gets them ready for bed while Mr. Moir does dishes. By eight the parents are able to sit down and enjoy a quiet meal together.

Mr. Moir does all the shopping for groceries.

When planning an evening out the Moirs must make preparations in advance. No baby sitter will look after eight at once, so two are sent to grandmother, one to grandfather and another to an aunt.

SPANKING

Getting a maid when Mrs. Moir takes one of her trips to hospital—a year and a half the longest she has gone without having a baby—is a slight problem.

"As soon as I mention eight children over the phone, people picture utter confusion and just hang up."

The Moirs try to teach their children respect for authority and regard discipline itself as a source of security.

"Father lays down the law but we actually spank them only when they sneak out of bed."

She doesn't believe you can spoil a baby. "When they cry for attention and affection they must need it and I don't think going to have. Mrs. Moir answered: "Heaven only knows."

Friends Hold Cup and Saucer Shower

FRANKFORD — A cup and saucer shower was held at the home of Miss Kathleen Gunter on Saturday evening, in honor of Miss Margaret Sine, a July bride-to-be.

The house was decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells for the happy occasion. Two lovely bouquets of mixed summer flowers added to the decorations.

Games were enjoyed. The Misses Lois Twiddy and Anne Morrow conducted two quizzes.

A singsong followed.

Margaret opened her gifts and expressed appreciation.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Kathleen Gunter, assisted by Miss Lois Twiddy and Miss Anne Morrow.

BIG FEED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Service club members here are big operators. The Rotary club used a ton of beef, nearly 1,000 ears of corn and 200 gallons of coffee serving about 1,800 persons at their second annual barbecue in aid of crippled children.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE W.I.

The June meeting of the Ivanhoe W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. K. Tuinman with a good attendance of members and visitors.

The president, Mrs. Ted Pollock, opened the meeting in the usual manner and welcomed all present.

After the business part of the meeting was finished, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. John Wallace, convener of "Historical Research and Current Events."

Mrs. John McInroy gave a well prepared paper on the motto, "Age is not a matter of years, but the state of mind."

Nancy Fargey and Gina Tuinman sang "Elizabeth the Queen."

The History of the Coat-of-Arms was the topic with Mrs. A. Revoy giving a paper on "How the Flag was Made."

Mrs. Foster Wilson and Mrs. D. Haggerty gave readings on "The Flag."

Mrs. Tuinman, Mrs. Roopers, Gina Tuinman and Mrs. Hassal sang the Dutch National Anthem most acceptably.

The president announced the July meeting would be in the form of a picnic dinner at P. M. Wood's cottage, Moira Lake.

Mrs. Tuinman and her assistant hostesses served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

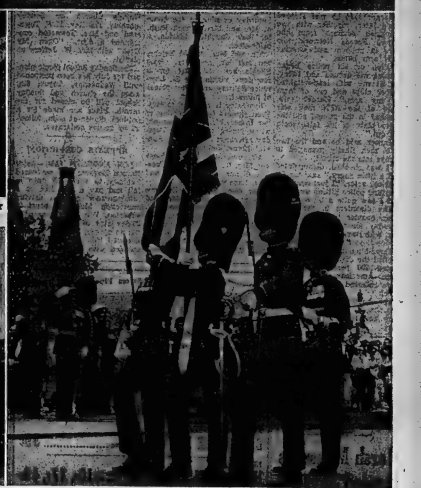
Dominion Day Ceremony Heralds Summer Pageantry

They're Changing Guard on Parliament Hill

Dominion Day 1962—Canada's 95th birthday — and holiday - makers throng Parliament Hill's vivid green. Softly, then louder, staccato double-beats of drums and clear, piercing notes of military brass are heard high above the capital city's traffic. To the wailing vacationers from across Canada, U.S.A. and overseas they herald the approach of the Canadian Guards. Headed by drum major with ornate mace comes the massed regimental band, pipes and drums, ranks of scarlet-coated, bearskinned guardsmen—now upon now-marching at a measured tread of one hundred and nineteen 30-inch paces per minute. Wheeling through the main gate the full blaze of martial music rings back from grey-stone government blocks—makes even the Peace Tower seem more ramrod stiff at attention. The Dominion Day Troop of the Queen's Colour before the Governor General prelude two months of daily Changing the Guard — a spectacle of colour for three quarters of a million visitors to Ottawa, a reminder to Canadians of their proud national heritage.



Ottawa's Peace Tower surmounts ceremonial splendour as Drum Major D. D. Beasley leads pipes and drums.

CONSTABLE SAYS

was of confidence in the department.

4. The commission revealed under questioning that Attorney-General Kelso Roberts last year ordered an investigation by Scotland Yard into Eric Scott, who had been a special prosecutor at a previous trial of two gamblers and an OPP officer on police bribery charges. Reason for the inquiry appeared obscure, but Mr. Scott had been found to be "above reproach."

5. Former gambling squad Sgt. John Cronin, who dug up some $50,000 buried in glass jars when he quit the OPP in 1954, admitted that in 1955 he approached Cpl. W. J. Shrubb about providing police protection for a gambling club at Cookaville but, in a confusing series of explanations, denied he was actually trying to establish a "fix." Shrubb, who turned down the proposition now is police chief at Peterborough.

6. Moore testified that in May of 1955 he and Scott were ordered to delay the subsequently successful prosecution of several pinball operators in Essex County "until after the election" —apparently the provincial election of June, 1955. The direct order came from Shrubb, but he did not know where it originated.

TELLS OF OFFER

Prosperous motel owner Cronin, who was on the stand when the inquiry recessed until today, was confronted by earlier evidence by Shrubb that the former sergeant in 1950 had made a proposition while representing himself as part-owner of a club at Cookaville under control of gambling kingpins Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley.

Cronin, who previously had denied dealings with the pair while on the force, said he did not represent himself as a Cookaville partner but did ask if Shrubb was interested in "looking after" the club.

"I didn't have an interest in the club—I certainly was representing nobody," Cronin said.

"Then why did you make the statement?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"Because I had made up my mind to determine if the club was still operating," Cronin replied.

As he explained it in one version, Insp. H. S. Tomlinson of the anti-gambling squad had been driving around the Kingston motel "bothering" him. This put him in mind of the Cookaville club because, before his resignation, he had been removed as Tomlinson's predecessor as squad chief because this and other clubs were still operating. He apparently expected to learn from Shrubb whether the club was still in business.

GAVE OTHER VERSIONS

Later, he said he wanted to determine if Shrubb was protecting the club, so he had asked if the officer would be "interested in helping get the boys—they can always use a hand."

Still later, pushed by Commissioner Mr. Justice W. D. Roach to be more explicit, he said he wanted to "let Shrubb question me."

Asked what he would have done if Shrubb had not rejected his suggestion, he replied:

"I don't know . . . I'd possibly have gone to the attorney-general . . . I'm not suggesting I would have turned him in then . . . Maybe nothing."

"Isn't it a fact that you told him there would be a considerable amount of money in helping three clubs?" Mr. Wilson asked. (McDermott and Feeley were preparing to open others at Fort Erie and Windsor.)

"No," the witness insisted. "It never got that far. Believe me."

Shrubb had "rambled on" in conversation, eventually telling Cronin he was not interested, and the former sergeant said he had congratulated the officer on his honesty.

CONSTABLE 'DISTURBED'

Crown Scott told the commissioner he had become "disturbed" at some statements he had heard touching on personnel of the attorney-general's department while he was active as undercover agent in 1960.

All in all, he said: "I think I didn't have confidence."

Asked for reasons, he said he had listened to Moore recount difficulties in going ahead with prosecution of pinball operators and he also did not feel the right attitude was taken towards major gambling clubs in Cookaville, Fort Erie, Windsor and Peterborough.

It had been wrong to issue provincial charters to the Cookaville, Fort Erie and Windsor clubs in 1957.

Moore, too, said the granting of these charters had been demoralising to the anti-gambling squad, coming at a time when they seemed to be in a shaky position with respect to their federal charters with the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association of Canada.

All of the clubs have closed at various times since 1957, but Moore said the provincial charters were of no help in this respect.

HELPED GET CHARTERS

He said he had known that the attorney-general or his department had intervened to get charters for the three clubs. Asked how New Democratic Party counsel Andrew Brewin if he had told the clubs he had special protection, he said, "I knew we didn't raid them."

Commissioner Clerk took issue with the expressed view of Moore that the confidence request had been placed before him in the way of a virtual ultimatum.

"That's absolutely false," he said. "There was no ultimatum at all."

Also, he had at no time conveyed the idea that the request came from anyone in the attorney-general's department.

Court Moore recounted a number of instances where he suspected there had been tipoffs to gamblers on prospective police actions.

At the time of Wright's arrest in 1960, he believed Feeley had been tipped about the issuance of a warrant for inspecting the gambler's long distance telephone records.

He thought the operators of the Ramsey club at Niagara Falls had received advance notice of a raid April 29, 1960. The door had been opened in 15 seconds and "they seemed to be expecting us." Those present were playing cards and pool, watching TV or playing checkers.

On a raid next month at the same club, the circumstances also indicated a tipoff. There were three lookouts posted outside, but when the police got in all they found was a group watching a movie on fishing.

Lawyer John B. Hopkins and Albert Russell, a club principal, had arrived in five minutes and became "hostile."

German Police Bullied Him Claims Actor

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — American actor James Garner said Tuesday he was clubbed and pushed by police in weekend rioting in the Bohemian quarter of Schwabing.

Garner, featured in the American television western Maverick, is making a movie here. He said he was walking in Schwabing Saturday night when police threw him.

"I found myself in the middle of a crowd," Garner said, "suddenly a group of police pushed me. I told them I was American but they pushed me to one side and one of them grabbed my wallet, which was sticking out of the back pocket of my slacks.

"My passport and about $400 were in it and he was just about to throw it in the gutter when I snatched it out of his hand."

Garner said he was stopped again, later, together with two American soldiers now in the Armed Forces Network who were in uniform and wearing AFN arm bands.

"Five or six police began pushing me around and swinging at me with lead-weighted rubber clubs. One of them hit my arm," Garner said.

"One of the AFN men was knocked to the ground and the lower plate of his false teeth fell out."

Garner said he and the two AFN men finally managed to escape into the crowd.

"I was shocked, disappointed and a little angry," said the 35-year-old actor. "I just don't understand police hitting women—and I saw quite a bit of that."

The disorders in the Bohemian quarter broke out early Tuesday for the fifth straight day, with Bavarian beatniks and Teddy Boys fighting with police.

Three-hundred policemen quelled the disturbance and arrested 200 persons, three of them Americans. All but 34 were released after an identity check.

The hooting youths set off firecrackers, attacked parked cars and tried to stop streetcars.

Police charged on foot and horseback, swinging rubber truncheons.

Angry residents, nerves strained after five nights of interrupted sleep, poured buckets of water on the battlers.

The rioting began last Thursday when police tried to break up an impromptu concert by three young guitarists after residents had complained.

Harsh Measures Needed Says New York Times

NEW YORK (CP) — "Harsh and humiliating measures" to defend the Canadian dollar were inevitable, the New York Times says in an editorial.

The steps taken "are proof that Canada is determined to bring about a restoration of foreign confidence in its currency," The Times adds.

"The weakness of the Canadian dollar does illustrate the grave risks a nation runs when it persists in living beyond its means," says The Times in discussing the lesson to be learned by the United States. The editorial concludes that there is no need for U.S. panic or cutting down programs vital to growth.

"Our (U.S.) problem is not a question of living beyond our means but of ensuring that we utilize all the resources in men and machines that are now lying idle."

The Washington Post, a strong supporter of the Kennedy administration, blames part of Canada's dollar troubles on the "short-sighted" policy of the Diefenbaker government in discouraging imports of U.S. capital.

"At the same time it was appealing to Canadian nationalism and its irrational fears of 'American domination'," the Post says.

PARIS (Reuters) — French novelist Francois Sagan, 27, gave birth to her first child, a son, in a Paris clinic early today. The hospital said the mother and child—named Denis —were doing well. Miss Sagan is married to American artist Robert Westhoff, her second husband.

APPEALS CONVICTION

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Ramon Novarro was sentenced Tuesday to serve 15 days in jail and pay a $250 fine on a misdemeanor drunken driving conviction. Municipal court in suburban Van Nuys granted a 30-day stay of execution pending an appeal. Novarro, 63, was arrested Feb. 20 after his car collided with another.

Lumber Producers in B.C. Keep Anxious Eye on U.S.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Lumber producers in the northern British Columbia interior are keeping an anxious watch on efforts by some groups in the United States to erect barriers against B.C. softwoods.

The reason is that the rugged area around Prince George is heavily and helplessly dependent on lumber, particularly spruce, for its livelihood.

An estimated $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 a year is earned for the area from lumber sales, about 70 cents of every dollar in circulation. Of this, 80 per cent comes from spruce.

Early in June the U.S. federal housing agency announced plans to downgrade B.C. spruce in setting its standard for lumber specifications, in effect restricting its use for house-building.

B.C. forestry officials say it is a backdoor attempt to blacklist B.C. spruce in a growing war against the Canadian softwoods, now cutting deeply into the U.S. market and hurting domestic lumber producers in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

At both the state and federal levels, politicians are lobbying for some form of quota, voluntary or otherwise, on Canadian lumber.

The B.C. Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association hopes the protectionist campaign will fall in Congress or that President Kennedy or Interior Secretary Stewart Udall will block it.

The group has launched its own campaign, declaring that the downgrading disregards all established facts and figures on the strength and quality of B.C. spruce.

Few of the mills in the Prince George region boast the size and facilities of the B.C. giants spotted near water and easy deep sea transportation.

A typical bush mill lies along highway 16, the narrow twisting road that winds to Prince Rupert on the Pacific coast 500 miles away. It cuts about enough lumber daily for an average house—10,000 board feet.

Logs are dragged by a single horse to a clearing and carriage in the open air. They are cut with hand-operated lumber, stacked on a truck and carted away, leaving behind piles of waste.

No one seems to know how many logging and milling operations exist in the area. Estimates run between 300 and 500. One places the total output at 800,000,000 board feet a year.

There are some large mechanized mills. One produces about 150,000 board feet daily on the banks of the Fraser River 20 miles southeast of Prince George.

Modern methods keep the volume of its waste to less than 30 per cent, well below the 36 to 54 per cent range one study estimates for the region.

Several companies have expressed interest in building a pulp mill at Prince George. One has made a formal proposal to build a $30,000,000 kraft mill.

A major pulp industry would give a needed new direction to the area's economy. Some producers fear, however, it cannot come soon enough to offset the threatened restrictions in the U.S. market.

Never Thought Of Unused Frig As Hazard

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. James Brown of suburban Etobicoke told a coroner's inquest Tuesday night she never thought of the unused refrigerator in which her daughters Wendy, 4 and Donna, 5 died June 11 as a hazard.

The jury called for removal of locks or handles from unused refrigerators, freezers and announcements in the press of refrigerator death figures—22 in North America this year to June 15—and suggested service organizations see that precautions are taken.

Inside door releases were also suggested.

Industrialists in Britain Sympathetic, Apprehensive About Canadian Austerity

LONDON (CP)—A mixture of sympathy, apprehension and resentment greeted Canada's new austerity measures designed to improve her financial position.

British exporters tended to be slightly apprehensive that a surcharge the Canadian government is to levy on roughly half the country's imports.

The Financial Times says in a front-page story that British industrialists are "confused and slightly apprehensive" about the Canadian developments.

The newspaper says much of the confusion and some of the apprehension can be attributed to the lack of detailed information about how the surcharges will be applied.

"Canadian government officials in London received several calls from U.K. concerns but were unable to give much assistance," the story adds.

SEES AS SHORT-TERM

The Federation of British Industries expressed the hope that the surcharges would be a short-term measure and not a prelude to increased protection.

The Financial Times says in an editorial the drastic measures were no surprise. The sharp drop in currency reserves necessitated "massive assistance if the exchange rate was going to be held."

The paper feels the emergency operation will succeed but adds that what are far less certain are the long-term prospects of economic health.

The editorial says Diefenbaker gave no hint of any long-term measures in announcing his emergency steps.

"The prospect is still further darkened by Mr. Diefenbaker's minority position in the new Parliament and his dependence for survival on the support of the 30 Social Credit members," it adds.

The Manchester Guardian advances the view that Diefenbaker's government had "no choice but to accept the stiff terms set by the world's bankers as the price of international support for the Canadian dollar."

"Without this lifebelt it is hard to believe that the dollar could have been kept afloat for long at the rate to which it was artificially pegged last month," the paper comments.

IMPERIL

The Guardian feels the degree of financial austerity may imperil Canada's chances of resuming economic growth in the near future.

The Daily Telegraph says that although new economic measures are "not half-hearted, their timing in relation to the recent election is bound to be criticized."

"The government may also find it difficult to escape the charge that the governor of the Bank of Canada, Mr. (James) Coyne, was forced to resign a year ago apparently for proposing very similar measures," the Conservative newspaper says.

"If Canada is to have any success in reducing her reliance on inflows of foreign capital—a reliance which has already proved dangerous—and improving her balance of payments permanently, her manufacturing industries will have to be developed with new vigor."

The Times says in an editorial Diefenbaker's measures reflect a return to the policies of austerity and tight money the Progressive Conservatives criticized in the past.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1962

Frank Taylor measures a fish caught by Jack Twigg of Trenton, while Colin Wykes takes a scale sample, to be sealed in an envelope for analysis at Glenora. Mr. Twigg, holding his boat to the dock, looks on.

Careful notes are the most important part of the job. Everything that happens on the day's run is listed on special forms. John Davis, an OAC student, notes the results of an interview.

College Students Enjoy Life Riding in Smart Motorboat Taking Creel Census in Bay

Speaking of summer jobs, this one's a dilly for people who like boats. Five college students are employed by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to ride around in motorboats all summer.

They are doing a "creel census," that is, finding out who's catching what fish, and why. Two boats are involved, each with a two-man crew. They work seven days a week, each man taking his days off every second week. One boat, based at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station, covers the area from Glenora to Deseronto. The other, based at Belleville, (but manned by a crew coming up from Glenora by truck), operates from Deseronto to Trenton and up to the first dam on the Trent river. By starting in the morning some days, and at noon on alternate days, they cover 12 hours of the fishing day with their survey.

If you fish in the Bay of Quinte, you've probably met them. They cruise up slowly, to avoid scaring the fish and ask some questions. They want to know where you're from, how long you've been fishing, whether you fish there often, what bait you're using and whether you've been catching anything.

This is all noted on a form, along with a note about how many of you are fishing from the boat, and what the weather is like. They also take water temperatures in each area.

TAKE SAMPLES

If you've caught any fish, they'll ask to see them. They want to measure them, (for records, not to see if they're legal), and they'll take a couple of scales as a sample. The scales are inspected back at Glenora, to find out how old the fish was.

At their base in Glenora, the five live in a common cook house and cook their own meals. They're pretty well on their own there, to fix the place up as they like. Recently, for example, they've bought a full sized zeppha stove to replace footplates they were cooking on.

A plot is afoot to talk some local girls into providing free meals for the crew: Glenora girls take warning.

This is all part of a ten-year test, being run by the department, to see what's happening to the fishing in the bay. There are other checks throughout the province, but this is the most intensive. Since 1957 the patrols have been out every day between May 1st and Sept. 15, checking the sport fishermen. Commercial fishermen's catches are counted too, but since a condition of issuing a commercial fishing licence is that the fishermen report his catches, they don't have to interview the fishermen at work. In addition, there's a tag operating from the Glenora station, fishing in the lake. The tag is mostly interested in experimenting with different fishing methods.

COMPETITION KEEN

Competition for the summer jobs on the patrol boats is keen. Applications are taken after Christmas, at the Lands and Forests head office, in Maple, Ont. There's a general preference for boys with fishing experience and an interest in biology, but after that, it's first come first served. The Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph supplies more students to the job than any other, probably because of that school's fish and wildlife course.

During the summer, the work is just about perfect: a quiet cruise in a good motorboat, with afternoons all over bay to speak to. But during the day, while it's early May, it's not so pleasant. The average last day of freezing weather in May tends to be the end of May, and open boats are unbearable for a night and day in weather a lot warmer than freezing. Even during the summer, rainy days are less than pleasant.

But the fish have to be counted and the fish don't look at the weather before they get caught. Even less understandable, fishermen don't look at the weather before they catch fish. That's about the only thing that's less than perfect about this job.

Frank Taylor, of Peterborough, a UNB science student notes the water temperature as read out by Colin Wykes, of St. Catharines, a student at OAC. Water temperatures are taken and recorded in all areas covered by the patrol boats.

B. C., Quebec Increase Price Of Liquors

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians may be in for higher liquor prices right across the country.

British Columbia increased its prices 25 per cent Monday and the following day Quebec announced increases ranging from four to eight per cent.

The increases came swiftly in the wake of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's announcement Sunday of an additional 15 per cent federal tariff in imported stocks. Other provincial liquor boards are studying the situation.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of B.C. said the increase covers the 15 per cent and the higher import prices brought about by the recent pegging of the Canadian dollar at 92.5 cents in relation to United States funds.

Pierre G. Power, Quebec Liquor Board administrator, said the increases in his province will go into effect next Monday.

Allan Grossman, chief Ontario liquor commissioner, said his department will advise the cabinet within two weeks whether the price of foreign liquors should be increased.

Socred Leaders Deny Policy Differences in Interviews

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The two heads of Social Credit in Canada speak at once.

That, in effect, is what Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, said Tuesday night in Moncton, N.B.

And that, in effect, is what Real Caouette, deputy national Social Credit leader said in Ottawa about the same time.

They seemed to agree that their party — which gained 30 seats in the next Parliament — will co - operate with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority government at 116 MPs — as long as it acts in the best interests of the Canadian people. But . . .

Mr. Thompson said his party would not support a move to perpetuate any policies contrary to Social Credit doctrine. And Mr. Caouette said his Quebec group—26 of the 30 Social Creditors elected June 18—would fight the "tight money" aspects of the government's austerity action, announced last Sunday to meet an exchange emergency.

Mr. Caouette, appearing on a national public television show, said suggestions that he and Mr. Thompson are at odds were entirely wrong."

Mr. Thompson is only one Social Credit philosophy — and we do not have different versions."

The Caouette victory in Quebec — 26 seats where Social Credit had never won previously in a general election — "makes me stronger," said Mr. Thompson.

He spoke about himself and Mr. Caouette as a team. Thompson, the administrator; and Caouette, the strong orator and leader.

Mr. Thompson said if he had been prime minister he would have introduced a similar program of austerity measures but it would have attained its purpose in a "year or two." A Social Credit program would have stopped government debt and balanced the budget.

Mr. Caouette said the government should not have to go to the United States "and beg for money or credit" to take the pressure off the devalued dollar.

Instead, he said, the government should have used the Bank of Canada to create the credit needed to bolster the economy.

British Commercial TV Criticized, Want Third Channel Run by BBC

LONDON (Reuters)—A government committee report today criticized commercial television and urged the British Broadcasting Corporation be allowed to set up Britain's third television channel "as soon as possible."

The report to the government expected to end up considerable controversy, criticized British commercial television, alleging poor broadcasting and declaring it should be reorganized to keep less advertising-conscious lines.

The committee — headed by Conservative Parliamentarian Sir Harry Pilkington — said that if the commercial TV "proved its capacity to realize the purposes of broadcasting" under the present organization, it also should be permitted to get an instrument to provide another channel.

Committee members said they reached their main conclusion for the quality of broadcasting were public service and entertainment, with the accent on the former.

With London and provincial stations, the advertising - free BBC and commercial Independent Television Authority put out all the "quality" they can. Their channels compete in most areas.

Both BBC and ITA have government - named ruling bodies but operate as independent organizations.

OPPOSE PRIVATE RADIO

Today's report, not binding on the government, also contained bad news for advocates of setting up local commercial radio stations. The BBC has a radio broadcasting monopoly in Britain.

The report declared that one service—and one only—of local radio broadcasting should be planned and provided by the BBC with the revenue it gets from governmental licensing of sets.

The report also called for broadening the combined radio-TV annual licence fee to £8 from £4.

Other key recommendations included:

1. Rejection of plans for "pay-as-you-view" TV.

2. Color TV should be introduced as soon as possible.

3. Britain should switch from its present 405-line TV definition system to 625-line, the internationally agreed standard in general use throughout Europe.

NDP Members Vote to Allow Resignation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Burnaby-Coquitlam New Democratic Party members voted 165-11 to Tuesday night in favor of allowing their member of Parliament, Erhart Regier, to resign his seat to allow defeated national NDP Leader T. C. Douglas to stand for election in the riding.

The vote from less than a quarter of the constituency association's 900 members gave Mr. Regier authority to resign his seat "at such time as he thinks it necessary."

The meeting was called after Mr. Regier offered to stand down to allow Mr. Douglas to seek a seat in a by-election following his defeat in Regina City in the June 18 federal election.

"If I can help it, I promise (Mr. Douglas) will be in the House when Parliament opens on the next session," Mr. Regier told the meeting at nearby Port Moody. The next session is expected in September.

He told reporters his next move would be to go to Ottawa today to discuss his resignation with NDP officials.

Mr. Douglas so far has taken a wait-and-see position on the offer from the 46 -year - old school teacher, first elected in Saskatchewan in 1953 and re-elected in 1957, 1958 and at the last election.

Mr. Douglas said last week party members in Burnaby-Coquitlam would have to be the most unanimous support to the move before he would consider it.

Mr. Regier told a reporter he hoped to seek election in another riding soon. He expects to find a good job with the NDP at the national level until he is sent back into Parliament.

He said Mr. Douglas would probably be elected by acclamation. Mr. Douglas's opponents in the constituency in the June 18 election lost their deposits, the same fate as befell Mr. Regier by 10,000 votes.

Mrs. L. Frost Against Hubby Going to Cabinet

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — "I won't let him," Mrs. Leslie Frost, wife of Ontario former premier, said Tuesday night.

Mrs. Frost was commenting on speculation that her husband might figure in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet reorganization plans.

The former wife of Mr. Frost, who will be 67 Sept. 20, has been asked by some to speculate with the federal finance portfolio, now held by Donald Fleming.

Mrs. Frost, commenting on the report said:

"I won't let him. I haven't heard anything about this cabinet post and I'm sure he hasn't either. But he has retired. He's had his share of politics."

Mr. Frost laughed when told of his wife's comments.

"Well, she's the boss and I'd better listen to her," he said. "Whatever she says, that's official."

At Toronto International Airport, on his way home from the Winnipeg business trip, the former premier said he had not heard of his candidacy for a federal cabinet post.

Charge Youth With Murder After Beating

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Paul David Franks, 16, a farmhand, was charged Tuesday night with capital murder in the death of Allan Carter, 39, a Glandeboye area farmer who was fatally beaten and robbed Tuesday.

Mr. Carter was found unconscious beside a forage harvester machine by his wife. He died later in hospital in London, 20 miles south of Glandeboye.

Mrs. Carter drove a half-mile to another farm to call police when the discovered he was unconscious. Police said they have seized a gun they would not divulge details. They said Mr. Carter's wallet, containing about $150, was missing when he was found but it was recovered later.

Prayer Ruling Will Have Far-Reaching Effect on School Religious Practices

By AL COLLETTI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The U.S. Supreme Court's outlawing of a 22-word prayer recited daily in a New York state school is bound to have far-reaching implications on religion in general as practised in public or in state-supported schools across the United States.

The decision Monday declaring the prayer unconstitutional clears the way for some minority groups to challenge the constitutionality of many religious practices commonplace in schools today.

These include recital of The Lord's Prayer, Bible reading, teaching "about religion" and holiday observances such as Christmas and Easter in the Christian faith, and Hanukkah in the Jewish faith.

The prayer the supreme court ruled unconstitutional by a vote of 6 to 1—two justices did not take part—was simple and non-denominational.

It reads:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

It was drafted in 1951 by the Board of Regents, a governmental body which sets up supervisory, legislative and executive powers over public schools in New York state.

The prayer was adopted in 1958 by the Union Free School District of New Hyde Park, a Long Island community about 20 miles from New York City.

The decision declared that the establishment of religion by government is "as much forbidden by the U.S. Constitution.

The first amendment, ratified in 1791, specifically guarantees freedom of religion. It forbade the congress to pass any law "respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

In 1868, the 14th amendment made freedom of religion applicable to the states, prohibiting them from making or enforcing any law abridging "the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

Justice Hugo L. Black, born in Alabama and once denounced as a racist after the disclosure he had belonged to the Ku Khar Klan, delivered the majority opinion.

He was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1937 by the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In his majority opinion, Black wrote:

"In this country, it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers for any group of the American people to recite."

Millions of Pounds Hang In Balance in Irish Sweeps

LONDON (CP) — Millions of pounds hang in the balance on Saturday's Irish Sweeps Derby, but few who buy tickets understand how the prize-money is distributed.

The draw that will determine the destination of prize money to be shared round the world is being completed in a big, cream-painted building known as Sweepstakes Hall in Baldoyle, Dublin. Here's how it works:

Counterfoils of all sweepstakes tickets sold are placed in a large cylindrical drum, about 25 feet long by six feet in diameter. The drum contains all "portholes," arranged in rows.

At zero hour, Irish nurses stand on a platform in front of the drum's portholes. Behind the drum slope, the portholes open and the six nurses place their hands inside a tube to the counterfoil.

The counterfoils are collected by a police official who clips them together, perforates them with a "secret" mark and passes them to a scrutineer.

The winning counterfoils are then photographed as the nurses draw out of a glass drum the names of horses in the order of race—in this case the derby to be run Saturday afternoon at the Curragh, a course about 30 miles southeast of Dublin. The names are then added to the counterfoils.

There are 26 prizes of £50,000 each for the winning horse, 26 of £20,000 for the second and 26 of £10,000 for third. Holders of tickets on unplaced horses receive £200.

Of the money collected in the sweep, £1,386,451 goes to Irish charities.

Twenty-six horses are listed as probable starters in this year's running of the Derby, worth some £40,000 to the winning owner. Total value of the runs close to £70,000 making it the richest race ever run in Europe.

The favorite is the Irish horse Larkspur, winner of the June 6 Epsom Derby for American owner Raymond Guest.

Bennett Cerf Says TV Not Modern Villain

OTTAWA (CP) — Bennett Cerf, an American publisher equally at home in the world of books or television, says TV is not the villain of the modern world's literary piece.

The president of Random House publishing company said Tuesday publishers have" always complained that every innovation interferes with book buying—whether it be trolley-cars, bicycles, jalopies, movies, radio and now TV.

"TV is not the monster some of us would like to believe. If we learned to enjoy books, nothing will stop us from reading them."

Mr. Cerf, panellist on the American TV show What's My Line? spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the library-publishers relations committee of the Canadian Library Association.

He said if librarians, teachers and publishers do their job properly children will go on to read books for the rest of their lives.

When they turned their TV sets off, they turned to books to further their knowledge.

Princess Royal Visits Quebec On Way Home

OTTAWA (CP) — After two fairly quiet days in Ottawa, the Princess Royal was to leave by air at 3:15 p.m. EDT today for Quebec City, the last stop on her Canadian visit.

She sails from Quebec Thursday on her return to Britain.

Her Ottawa visit, which began Monday, was climaxed by a flow in from Toronto, included her daughter and grandson, two of them Monday night when she attended a glittering state dinner and a reception at Government House.

She was the guest of honor at a civic garden party Tuesday after she had lunched with Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker and 15 guests.

Today the Princess Royal appeared to enjoy most during her Ottawa visit was a 45-minute tour around the Central Experimental Farm.

A cattle grower, she asked a lot of questions about the animals on the farm, and she also displayed more than a passing knowledge of flowers.

Earl of Sandwich Will Not Enter House of Lords

WEYMOUTH, England (Reuter)—The new Earl of Sandwich—better known as Viscount Hinchingbrooke, a Conservative member of parliament since 1950—Tuesday night he has no intention of entering the House of Lords.

Earlier this month he succeeded to the earldom of Sandwich and a United Kingdom peerage on the death of his father, Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Edward Wodehouse Bennt, a former Labor MP and Britain's smallest peer. Hinchingbrooke no longer is qualified to remain in the House of Commons.

Following a meeting with the executive committee of his South Dorset constituency at which he said goodbye as its MP, Viscount Hinchingbrooke said:

"I have no intention of doing a Wedgwood Benn, but I am not going to sit in the House of Lords."

Wedgwood Benn won a by-election after becoming a peer but subsequently was ruled ineligible to take his seat in the Commons.

At present a committee of MPs is considering House of Lords reform, including the question of whether a United Kingdom peer should be allowed to run for election to the Commons.

Alcoholism Tragic Sickness But Progress Being Made

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A tragic sickness touches perhaps a million families across the United States.

The sickness — alcoholism, the seemingly uncontrollable drinking by nearly 5,000,000 Americans.

It is the fourth greatest U.S. health problem, it is estimated, one in every 15 teen-agers is likely to become an alcoholic.

Doctors long have recognized alcoholism as a sickness. The alcoholic drinks for complex emotional and physical reasons. He's enslaved by alcohol, unless he abandons it completely.

Society's methods of control have been jail, ostracism, scorn, nagging and the accusation it's all due to moral weakness. Prohibition missed the mark.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS

Now there are encouraging signs of real progress.

1. Alcoholics Anonymous has helped thousands stop drinking completely.

2. Allied groups are helping wives, husbands, children and friends understand the complexities of alcoholism and render effective help.

3. Alcoholics now are seeking treatment at an earlier age, many in their late 20s or 30s, compared with an average age in the 40s and 50s a few years back. Earlier treatment improves chances of success.

4. Physicians have a few more helpful techniques of treatment and more understanding.

5. Hidden alcoholics are seeking help.

6. Industry and unions are increasingly and successfully dealing with alcoholism as a sickness, not moral degeneracy.

RATE DOESN'T INCREASE

7. The number of alcoholics per 100,000 population possibly is not increasing, says Mark Keller, editor of the authoritative quarterly Journal for Studies of Alcohol.

8. And, says Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the national council, "alcoholism is not a hopeless disease." Hundreds of thousands of former alcoholics now live useful, normal, and often highly successful lives—without alcohol.

Out of the 70,000,000 to 75,000,000 Americans who drink occasionally, or even daily, 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 have become compulsive drinkers — although an accurate count is hard to come by. The alcoholic is defined by Mrs. Mann as "anyone whose drinking causes a continuing problem in any department of life."

The public image of alcoholics concentrated on Skid Road is erroneous. Actually, says the council, only three per cent are found there among the homeless and the chronically unemployed.

Today's alcoholic may be a businessman, lawyer, government official, doctor, bus driver, factory worker, baker housewife — anyone, including some teen-agers.

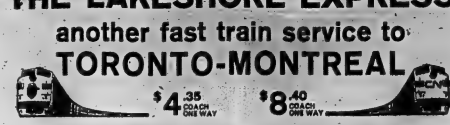
May Turn Skin Into Armor Against Insects

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army medical scientists are on the track of chemicals which may convert a soldier's skin into armor against disease-bearing insects and sunburn.



The research is important for military operations in tropical areas where soldiers are vulnerable to certain types of fever and strong sunlight

Dr. Marion Sulzberger of the army's Medical Research and Development Command said an effort is being made to discover special substances which would enter the skin after being swallowed or applied on the outside.

These substances, he said in a paper, would make the skin's surface and its secretions repellent to insects, flies, mosquitoes and ticks, which carry many diseases.

For greater protection against sunburn, Sulzberger said "our goal is a chemical which will become incorporated in the . . . skin's surface and enhance its capacity to filter out the burning rays."

Undercover Man 'Shocked' When Investigation Stopped

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — A police undercover man who dug up evidence of a liaison between police and gamblers was "shocked" when superiors terminated the investigation in 1960, the royal commission on crime was told today.

Const. John W. Moore, of the Ontario Provincial Police, gave this evidence at one of the sessions why he expressed lack of confidence in the attorney general department's administration of gambling laws when asked for his views last year.

Const. Moore said the expression of shock had come from Const. George Scott, of the OPP, who had been acting as a double agent for the police in efforts to plug leakages of information from police headquarters to gamblers.

GIVES REASONS

Const. Moore gave several reasons why he refused in 1961 to accede to what he described as a request by Crown counsel that he express confidence in the department following a request to this effect from Attorney General Kelso Roberts.

The reasons he gave included:

1. Over a period of years he had wondered why large gambling clubs could continue to operate in Ontario and when he asked his superiors on occasion why they were not closed up, he had been told "we've had orders from the attorney general not to raid them."

2. The department had not been tough enough in enforcing the law against illegal pinball machines.

On one occasion in 1955, he said, he and Scott had obtained evidence against some pinball operators in Essex County, but had to follow instructions not to lay charges "until after the election."

He could not specify what election was referred to. He said that successful prosecutions were undertaken after the election.

ASKED TO ANSWER

He said he had been "dumbfounded and shocked" when his superior, Sergeant John M. Ansemon, told him last year that he was to answer this question at the request of the attorney general:

"Do I have confidence in the department of the Attorney General of Ontario, or else?"

(Sergeant Anderson testified Monday that he himself answered the confidence question affirmatively, but reluctantly, in a belief that he would be transferred out of the OPP anti-gambling squad if he refused.)

Const. Moore said he asked Anderson what was meant by "or else" and Anderson had said in effect that the wrong reply would bring about Moore's "downfall" or at least "something bad for me, for me."

Const. Moore, who joined the force in 1954, said his reply had been:

"Restricting my answers to gambling applicable to the department of the attorney general as a whole, taking into consideration all the facts available to me over the last seven years, I would say I do not have confidence in the department of the attorney general."

Asked his reason for lack of confidence, Const. Moore indicated that the main one was the fact that three large clubs that had been operated by gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley — which now are closed—had been operating openly with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charlesworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wright of Belleville were Saturday afternoon visitors with Mrs. Mary Patrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Williams and son, of Belleville, have taken up residence in Frankford.

Mrs. Ada Bush underwent surgery in Trenton Memorial Hospital, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Charlesworth of Smithfield, Mr. Robert Charlesworth of Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lane and family of Wellington and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Anderson called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charlesworth Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Pringle and daughter of Napanee; Mr. Jack Rose and son Gerry of Sudbury; Mrs. F. Rose, and Miss Elsie Rose of Trenton, were recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. W. Rose.

Two 18-Year-Olds Taking Dead Aim on Bisley Range

EDMONTON (CP) — Eagle-eyed, and rifles at the ready, two Edmonton youths are toting their shooting irons on a summer junket to England and Europe.

But 18-year-olds Lorne McAllister and Raymond Scott plan to take dead aim only at the targets on the famed rifle range at Bisley, England.

With scores of other young marksmen from throughout the Commonwealth, they will compete in the cadet class of the Bisley shoot July 9-14, sponsored by the National Rifle Association.

The Edmonton marksmen are part of a 12-youth contingent sponsored by the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association. They were chosen from about 120 of Canada's top cadet riflemen at Ottawa last summer.

Edmonton and Montreal were the only centres to place two members each on the Canadian cadet team.

The Canadian contingent is to leave Montreal July 2, flying to Marville, France, then go by air to Gatwick, England, and by Bisley by bus.

TOURS ARRANGED

Between days of the rifle competition, they are to be given guided tours of London, where they will meet military and civic officials.

After the competition, they will spend a day in Paris and then visit the Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany.

Lorne McAllister is at home on the ranch. At the age of seven he was taught by his father how to use a pistol. He's been training his sights on targets ever since.

Lorne's father holds the classification of expert in pistol shooting, awarded by the DCRA and his mother holds prizes for proficiency in pistol shooting and also has competed in small-bore rifle competitions.

Lorne said he hasn't used a pistol in years.

"It's too expensive. With the rifle, the army supplies the ammunition and all I have to do is get a ride to the armories in Edmonton for an afternoon's practice."

He owns his own Lee Enfield 303-calibre rifle but for the Bisley competition rifles are issued to the cadets by the army at Montreal.

WON LAST SPOT

Lorne's aggregate score of 804 of a possible 875 in the Ottawa qualifying rounds gained him 12th spot on the team. Edmon-

ton's other competitor, Ray Scott, had a 818, three points off the top score, and won second place.

Marksman McAllister is a member of the 130th Artillery Army Cadet Corps, which he joined after he came to Edmonton from Victoria in 1960.

For Ray Scott, the ranges at Sisler are something he never dreamed of when he first began "plinking away" at random targets outside Edmonton six years ago.

He graduated to .303s from 22-calibre rifles four years ago but still uses the smaller bore on indoor ranges during the winter. Prize to his big win last summer, he had won trophies for .22-calibre competitions.

Other members of the Canadian contingent:

Robert Binette and Pierre Benina, both of Montreal; Claude Leroux, Granby, Que.; Guy Lefebvre, LaTuque, Que.; A. Herbert Fiddes, St. Bruno, Que.; Irving Rohn, Sarnia, Ont.; Norman Eedon, Cornwall, Ont.; Robert Isaacs, Winnipeg; Ian McMurchy, Humboldt, Sask., and Ronald Butler, Victoria.

Must Plug Gaps In Air Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — The chief of North American Air Defence Command says there are five big gaps in the air defence system and they must be filled.

U.S. Air Force Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, boss of the joint Canada-U.S. command, listed these needs in a speech, the text of which has just been made available here:

1. A new supersonic long-range fighter capable of intercepting hostile bombers which now can loose air-to-surface missiles outside the present range of interceptors and anti-aircraft missiles. Cost — more than $2,000,000,000.

2. Construction of the U.S. Army's Nike-Zeus counter-missile system to intercept intercontinental rockets. Cost—about $2,000,000,000.

3. Extension of the ballistic missile warning system and space detection and tracking system with an orbiting missile detection system.

4. A defence against Russian submarine-launched missiles.

5. "Not too far distant," a defence against possible hostile satellites.

We cannot tolerate unfilled gaps between the threat and our defensive capabilities," Gen. Kuter said in a speech before the U.S. Air Force Association at Colorado Springs, Colo., site of NORAD headquarters.

Newfoundland Firefighters Worry About Summertime

By JACK PICKETTS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Although better equipped than when raging forest fires broke out last summer, Newfoundland firefighters are still worried about what will happen in the woods this year.

Eastern Newfoundland is considered drier than a year ago—a situation that has been getting steadily worse the last three years with subnormal rainfall.

Stuart Peters, the province's deputy minister of mines, agriculture and resources, says this low rainfall is the biggest natural aid to forest fires. With no moisture in the ground, the fire gets a big assist in blowing into a full-scale inferno.

Western Newfoundland, says the forestry department, is in better shape. There a normal rainfall was recorded during the winter and underground water tables are normal. In central Newfoundland there was a lack of moisture during the winter but rain in recent weeks improved conditions.

However, no fires have got completely out of control although this spring there were more than 60, most of them in eastern Newfoundland.

Most burned only a few acres, largely in brush or young growth. Little heavy timber was destroyed.

A large part of the credit for that fact control of these fires goes to the forestry department. With a central firefighting headquarters set up at Gander, in central Newfoundland, planes, men and equipment are dispatched to the blaze much more quickly than at the start of last years fire season.

A big help are spotter planes which already have picked up several fires and directed equipment to the scene before they could get out of control.

The province now has two spotter planes and on the most hazardous days — the bright sunny ones—keeps them continuously in the air.

Ready to take off if needed are two Canso water-bombing planes capable of carrying 800 gallons of water. After the water is dumped the Canso reload through a snorkel tube by skimming the surface of a lake.

Also an integral part of the firefighting air arm is a helicopter used to ferry men and equipment to the fire area and for spotting.

The two paper companies in the province also maintain fire-fighting crews and have a water bomber. But unlike last year they now operate under central direction.

The forestry department says its biggest headache is human carelessness which has been blamed for most of the fires so far this year. One juvenile had been convicted for deliberately starting a fire.

Stable Prices For Electrical Goods Likely

HAMILTON (CP)—Prices of consumer electrical goods in Canada should remain stable under the emergency steps taken by the Canadian government to ease the pressure on the dollar, John D. Campbell, president of Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited, said Tuesday.

Higher prices for electrical apparatus products used by industry and the power generating companies "will inevitably be reflected in higher prices," due to the impact of the surcharge on some components and materials not obtainable in Canada, he said.

"The temporary surcharges on imports, insofar as the electrical goods manufacturers are concerned, provides the prospect of some temporary increase in output and employment," he said.

For the last nine years, imports of electrical products have amounted to between 20 and 40 per cent of Canadian output.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Retailers had sales in April estimated at $1,430,363,000, an increase of 5.2 per cent from year-earlier totals, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

Sales in the January-April period were estimated to be 5.5 per cent ahead of the same period in 1961. All provinces showed gains with Quebec reporting the biggest boost, 9.4 per cent.

In the breakdown by types of business, motor dealers were up 17.8 per cent in April alone. But there were scattered declines, including 5.5 per cent for drug stores, 4.9 per cent for fuel dealers and 3.4 per cent for grocers.

Department store sales in the week ended June 16 were at practically the same levels as in the same week of 1961. There was considerable fluctuation in provincial figures, however, with British Columbia 7.6 per cent higher and Saskatchewan down 8.5 per cent.

Receipts of crude oil, liquefied petroleum gases and petroleum products by pipelines jumped by 17.8 per cent in January to 36,086,000 barrels from 30,658,307 a year earlier.

Grid League Will Appeal Big Suit

BOSTON (AP)—The American Football League will appeal its $19,000,000 anti - trust suit against the rival National League.

AFL commissioner Joe Foss made the announcement Tuesday at the league's meeting.

U.S. District Court Judge Roszel Thomsen ruled in Baltimore June 12 that the NFL had no monopoly. The judge said the older league had the power to exclude the AFL from virtually any city it desired. But he added that despite this power the NFL did not have a monopoly since he did not feel the NFL could exclude the AFL from every city.

The appeal will be heard next fall.

The only other order of business in the closed session Tuesday was presentation of new franchise bids by syndicates representing New Orleans, Kansas City and Atlanta. No decision was made whether to accept any of the bids.

Pitching — Earl Wilson, Red Sox, hurled second no - hitter of the season, becoming the first Negro in American League history to pitch a no-hit game, and hit a home run in Boston's 2-0 victory over Los Angeles Angels.

Batting—Rich Rollins, Twins, stroked four consecutive hits, starting with pair of two-run homers, pacing Minnesota to 5-0 triumph over New York Yankees.

FIGHT ARRANGED

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Canadian middleweight boxing champion Wilf Greaves of Edmonton has signed to defend his title against Blair Richardson of South Bar, N.S., in a mid-summer bout. Promoter Gus Macfellan of Sydney said Tuesday the bout will be either July 28 or Aug. 3. He was still negotiating for the site but it would be either Glace Bay, N.S., or Sydney.

Earl Wilson Swaps Nicknames

'Wild Man' To 'No-Hit'

By BOB SALMON

BOSTON (AP) — Big Earl Wilson traded in a nickname today.

Until Tuesday night it was Wild Man Wilson. Now it's No-Hit Wilson.

The hulking, unassuming Wilson became the first Negro to pitch an American League no-hitter as he fast-balled Bucky Red Sox to a 2-0 victory over Los Angeles Angels at Fenway Park.

The 25 - year - old right-hander gave up four walks but only two Los Angeles runners got as far as second base. He faced 31 batters.

Wilson, who packs 220 pounds on a muscular 6-foot-5 frame, finally was rewarding manager Mike Higgins and others who never lost faith in his great speed and pitching ability.

Wilson's had always been Earl's downfall. After a while he began aiming the ball, being too careful not to walk batters and got progressively worse this season he has gone back to his main weapon, a blazing fast ball and compiled a 6-2 record.

STUCK TO FAST BALL

"I just threw as hard as I could all the way," he grinned after the game. "I stayed with my fast ball all the way but mixed in a few sliders. I still don't think it's true. I can't believe it."

The only other Negro to hurl a major league no-hitter was Sam Jones, who beat Pittsburgh Pirates May 12, 1955, while with Chicago Cubs.

Asked if the tremendous cheering of the crowd of 14,002 tended to disconcert him in the last innings, Earl laughed:

"No, not a bit. But I'll tell you what did bother me. That was (Leon) Wagner and (Lee) Thomas in the ninth inning. If Thomas on a low screwball that went a lot deeper than it should have. But when Gary Geiger hauled it in in centre for the last out I could relax all the way."

It was the second no-hitter of the season and the guy Wilson beat was left-hander Bo Belinsky who spun a no-hitter in Los Angeles against Baltimore Orioles May 5.

Belinsky marched into the raucous Red Sox dressing room after the game and heartily congratulated Wilson.

"You were great, Earl, just great," he said. "I'll betcha anybody ever saw that before—one no-hit pitcher being beaten by another."

Another dressing room fan was Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, who announced Wilson's contract is being torn up and another — with a salary hike — will be given him today.

The Angels never got closer to a hit. The nearest attempt came at the start of the ninth inning. Billy Moran lifted a pop fly into short left field. It was too close for outfielder Carl Yastrzemski, but shortstop Eddie Bressoud back-pedaled in time to haul it down.

Wilson, turning in his first complete game of the season and his first big league shutout, got stronger as the game went on. He had given himself enough breathing room—as it turned out—in the third inning by belting a long home run off Belinsky.

Eagles Get Villanova Sprinter

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—For- aining another shot at the Olympics for "my first love, football," Frank Budd, Villanova's great sprinter, has signed with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Vince McNally, general manager of the Eagles, said Tuesday Budd signed a standard NFL contract with no promises — at least publicly—that he'll be retained unless he makes the squad.

A reliable source said, however, that the former all-New Jersey high school tailback received a bonus and assurance he'll be kept around for at least a season if he shows any signs of being pro football material.

The Eagles weren't exactly buying a "pig in a poke" in making Budd their seventh draft choice this year and signing the world record-holder of the 100-yard dash. Although he didn't play college football, Budd scored 98 points as a collegiate wing tailback in his senior year at Asbury Park, N.J., high school.

Bailey Grand-Slams Giants To Top

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Al Dark's a genius.

Or so it seemed Tuesday night as events unfolded at San Francisco, where the Giants' manager came up with a series of manoeuvres resulting in a 6-5, 10-inning victory over Cincinnati Reds that sent the Giants back into first place in the National League.

Dark made his first move in the seventh inning when the Giants, trailing 4-0, loaded the bases with pitcher Jack Sanford due to bat. Dark looked down his bench for a pinch hitter selected Ed Bailey, hitless in his last 17 trips.

Bailey hit a grand - slam homer — the first by a pinch hitter this season.

In the 10th, Willie McCovey, inserted in the lineup against right-hander Joey Jay, opened with a single. Going to his reserves again, Dark sent previously benched Felipe Alou in to run for him.

Alou broke from first as Orlando Cepeda lifted a single daringly rounded third as Vada Pinson fired the ball into the infield and was waved on. He beat Chico Ellistagame's relay, sliding under the tag with the winning run.

GIANTS TAKE LEAD

The triumph pushed the Giants back on top for the first time since June 8, a half - game ahead of Los Angeles Dodgers, who were limited to five hits by Lew Burdette in a 3-1 Milwaukee victory.

The third - place Pittsburgh Pirates whipped New York Mets 5-2, the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals walloped Chicago Cubs 15-3 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Houston Colts twice, 3-0 on Jack Hamilton's two-hitter and 6-4.

After Bailey's grand slam tied it in the seventh, the reds went back in front in the top of the eighth on a triple by Johnny Edwards and a pinch single by Jerry Lynch. Edwards earlier had hit a two-run homer as the Reds built their 4-0 edge. In the last of the eight, Orlando Cepeda port again knotted the score with a homer and got it up for the 10th inning fireworks that gave Stu Miller (4-3) the victory and Dave Sisler (3-3) the loss.

Burdette, who lost his first four decisions, won his sixth in a row with his fourth complete game. The Braves they pushed across what proved to be the clincher in the sixth when Hank Aaron reached base on Maury Wills' error, moved to third on Lee May's single and came across on a sacrifice fly to Del Crandall.

ROOKIE FACES BUCS

Rookie Dons Clendenon and Don Hoak each knocked in two runs and the Pirates won their seventh in eight games with the Mets. Clendenon got into a pair with a triple and homer while Hoak used a first inning double for his two runs batted in.

Four homers — by Gene Oliver, Billy White, Charlie James and Ken Boyer — paced a 15-hit offensive that subdued the Cubs and enabled Ernie Broglio (3-3) to go the distance despite allowing 10 hits. Dick Ellsworth (4-11) absorbed the defeat.

Hamilton (5-5) got all the support he needed in the opener when the Phils scored a pair in the second on Clay Dalrymple's double, singles by Don Demeter and Frank Torre, a force out and a wild pitch by Colts' starter Dick Farrell (5-8). Art Mahaffey (9-8) stopped the colts on the nightcap's seven hits, and drove in what proved to be the deciding run with a single in a three-run fourth.

Quinte Soccer

The league-leading Trenton Ambers defeated No. 5 R.D. 4-0 in a Bay of Quinte football league game last night.

Ailsworth scored three for the winners with Brown scoring the other.

The game was played on the air station field.

He Looked After He Leaped

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) Anthony Lieberman of Philadelphia leaped before he looked and was promptly disqualified from the Eastern clay tennis championships.

Lieberman, 24, hit a hard cross-court volley at match point Monday and, thinking he had won, hurdled the net to shake his opponent's hand.

But "loser" Sidney Schwartz of Brooklyn, N.Y., lunged for the ball, got his racket on it and sent back a lob.

Lieberman, on the wrong side of the net, watched helplessly as the ball sailed over his head and landed in court.

Schwartz won 6-1, 0-6, 9-7.

SUSPENDED 26 DATE

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Catcher Valmy Thomas of Rochester Red Wings' muzz drew a 30-day suspension until July 17 for his attack on International League umpire Ted Lepart during a game June 16 at Jacksonville.

The suspension, announced Tuesday by George Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Leagues, means Thomas's indefinite suspension made last week.

The daily double paid a run-pricing $184.60 when two long-priced horses won the first two races. Leo or Ingo, which won the first race, paid $15.50. Doll's Son in the second paid $36.80.

Sport Snapshots

By KEITH KINCAID

HALIFAX (CP) — If Blair Richardson can't win the Canadian middleweight boxing title this summer it won't be for lack of support.

Thousands of Maritimers feel he is the best fighter to come out of the area since Halifax's Kid Howard retired as lightweight champ two years ago.

Richardson, a friendly, blond, crewcut 21-year-old, feels he is ready for a chance to Willie Greaves of Edmonton who now fights out of Detroit.

In case there are any doubts about the Eastern Canadian champion's credentials for a crack at the crown, it should be noted that his last bout was a unanimous decision over Theo Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., Canadian light-heavyweight champion.

It was the third time the South Esk, N.S., native has tangled with the heavier Emery and his second straight win. Camp was solid evidence of the progress he has made since they first met last summer when Emery flattened the Cape Breton Sportsmen. They fought the last fall and Richardson won a badly criticized split decision.

28 KOs

The third Emery match gave him 36 wins — 28 KOs — two losses and a draw. He has been knocked out only once.

Greaves, a one - time world contender who has not defended his title since he fought Bobo Fiddler in Calgary two years ago, will have a hard time passing up a match against Richardson. Greaves, who has proven Canadian fights hard to come by lately because there are very few good middleweights, said a year ago he was going to fight Richardson or any other challenger.

Greaves is still a rough, tough customer who has mixed it with varying degrees of success with such men as Sugar Ray Robinson, Carmen Basilio, Ralph (Tiger) Jones, Gene Fullmer, Spider Webb and Joey Giardello.

LESSONS FROM LACEY

This summer would seem to be the chance for Richardson to prove himself a boxer of more than regional reputation. If he comes through as his fans feel he will, it will be the result of a well - planned campaign that has seen him set himself when he left college after two years to devote all his energies to the fight game.

He feels the steady improvement in his performances against Emery speaks for the way he has been brought along.

Most of his fights are in Halifax, but after each match he returns to Boston and boxing lessons from Al Lacey, who also trains Paul Pender.

A bout with Greaves, probably could be arranged later this year, but injuries and Blair's own feeling that he wasn't ready for the match have put it off.

Regardless of what happens, Richardson is unlikely to settle for the penniless obscurity of a boxing bum. If he can't reach the top it's unlikely he will ever have to go begging for a job, as did Yvon Durelle, the Marichette hero who now has his old job as a longshoreman.

Richardson is also interested in becoming a referee and has already officiated at a few bouts in the Halifax area.

INJURES EASILY

The personable and articulate Richardson gave Halifax TV viewers a glimpse of his other talents a few hours before the third Emery fight when he showed up on a panel discussion and held his own in conversation with a college professor and two professional performers.

Although he comes from a family of steel workers, Richardson's fine features give him an almost fragile appearance to street - corner toughies who, however, is belied by the artistry he carries in his right arm.

This leads to the most frustrating aspect of his career. His ring injuries include four fractured hands and a badly broken jaw. As a result there is some suspicion that he is brittle, but his backers insist the broken hands were only that so far he hasn't learned how to land his punches properly.

Senator of New Frontier, Fess Parker Now Ivy League

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fess Parker is on the prowl for a new image and he's going back to Washington to get it.

No more the buckskin of Davy Crockett, king of the wild frontier.

Now it's ivy league duds of Mr. Smith, senator of the new frontier.

Fess is leaping into Washington with a new television series, Mr. Smith Goes to Washington. Some will recall the movie of the same name that starred young James Stewart in 1939. It has been updated for a series to star Fess.

Fess has no quarrel with much of what Davy Crockett did for him.

"No, indeed," he affirmed. "If it hadn't been for Davy, I might still be hauling my guitar around town and hunting for jobs.

Because of Davy — and what came after—Fess and friends are not putting up a $1,500,000 trailer park in Santa Barbara, Calif.

His problem?

"The image," he explained "I've been working for several years now to get out of coonskin caps. Maybe this series will do it. Maybe I'll be able to join the 20th Century.

"At least I'm going to try. With the help of Sy Devore (Hollywood's ace haberdasher) and a barber I've placed on retainer, I might make it."

There is no doubt that the image has been a bear for a setter, he admitted. "That's why I want to play Mr. Smith in a different style — crisper, sharper and more contemporary than I have before.

"I've had some dispute with the series producer about this: He thinks in terms of Tennessee Ernie Ford and Andy Griffith. I don't want to get that regional."

Carol Lawrence Says TV Turned Her Into Actress

By CYNTHIA LOWE T

NEW YORK (AP) — Carol Lawrence, who became a singing and dancing star on Broadway, says television turned her into an actress.

"Nowadays in show business, television exposure is absolutely essential," she remarked, "it can be death if you don't get it. It helps so much."

Carol, particularly after her smash success in Broadway's West Side Story, was in great demand for the popular television variety shows—where she had a chance to act in sketches with the stars.

"And if I had not had a chance with Garry Moore, Perry Como and the others, the producers would never have given me a chance to do a straight acting role in The Dybbuk.

And The Dybbuk, one play in a half-hour broadcast series called Play of the Week, led directly to meaty acting parts in motion pictures, including A View From the Bridge.

Now, Miss Lawrence is a triple-threat performer.

Jerry Lewis, whose press agents are fond of such labels as "zany" and "madcap," seems to be conducting this week's output of Tonight as if he were presiding at a senior citizens' meeting.

Actually, he seems more interested in matching (and mispronouncing) long words with Hugh Downs than in clowning. Maybe he's trying to prove something. Anyway, to date, it has been a long, relaxed yawn.

Red Sox Hurler Fashions No-Hitter

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The high-flying Belleville Kenmers mark another "Baseball Night in Belleville" here tonight when they clash with the second-place Kingston club. Thus far the Kenmers have had the Indian sign on the Limestone City crew, defeating them both times the clubs have met.

The Forrier-coached youngsters have made a fine showing in their senior baseball debut, dodging their last five outings after dropping the league opener to Peterborough. They recovered quickly from the first-game shakes and have defeated Kingston twice, Peterborough twice and Port Hope once.

One of the outstanding features of the Kenmers thus far has been the consistency of the pitching and the individual ability of members of the mound corps.

Stan "Lefty" Reid, the South Hastings southpaw hurled a two-hitter against Peterborough here, coming up with a polished performance in his first outing as a senior hurler.

In Peterborough last Saturday night, Bill Letchford fashioned a mound masterpiece in holding the Petes to three hits in a thirteen-inning duel with two Pete hurlers. The game could have gone either way and was settled with a hit, two stolen bases and a dropped fly in the thirteenth, an unlucky inning for the homesters.

On Sunday in Kingston Larry Soden spiked the guns of the Kingston artillery with a neat five-hitter while his mates were unleashing a twelve-hit assault on Chauncey Foster, a former pro with the Number One Boy in athletics around Mike Rodden's ballwick.

Their fielding has been up to par, the infield pulling off some neat double plays and the outer gardeners holding up their end. The hitting has been sporadic, mainly because they have been up against better hurling in the Lakeshore senior division than they met in their tenure in Ontario junior "A" activities.

However, they have proved they have the potential. Any club that can rap flingers like Foster for a dozen clouts are not exactly in the minor baseball batting categories.

And it is quite possible the Limestone mentors will toss Mr. Foster right back at the Kenmers here tonight. Bill Letchford will likely get the starting assignment for the Kenmen and if Bill is at the same peak form that marked his performance in Peterborough Saturday night, it should be quite a flinging duel.

The game gets under way at the Fair Grounds at 8.15 and baseball buffs hereabouts should turn out to see what should be a tight, hard-fought battle between the two top teams of the Lakeshore senior division.

And speaking of baseball, Ontario Baseball Association president Jack Carson said today that wearing helmets at the plate is now a "must." The OBA ruling to make the wearing of helmets compulsory has been included in the new constitution of the association recently issued. It includes every classification from "tyke" to senior, Mr. Carson said.

And of interest to minor baseball authorities everywhere is another new clause in the constitution that recently was okayed and under which players must wear rubber cleats, not steel ones, on their "spikes."

President Carson also announced that the Metropolitan Toronto Baseball League will not be permitted to play in OBA tournaments this year with the exception of the CNE Peewee Exhibition Tourney, an independently-operated affair.

Failure of Metro League officials and an OBA special committee to reach an agreement resulted in the banning of the Metropolitan association.

And here's a belated announcement. This is "Minor Baseball Week" in Ontario with a number of communities marking the occasion with a series of special events.

Wilson Also Clouts Homer

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With thunderbolt northpaw matching the speed of his fastball, Earl Wilson has zoomed to stardom from the ranks of baseball's lesser known performers.

At Boston's Fenway Park Tuesday night the Red Sox right-hander pitched the second no - hitter of the American League season — a 2-0 triumph over Los Angeles Angels. Ironically, his defeated opponent was the year's other no - hit pitcher, fun - loving southpaw Bo Belinsky, who produced his masterpiece against Baltimore Orioles May 3.

Wilson, a strong - armed ex-catcher from Ponchatoula, La., allowed four men to reach base on walks and struck out five as he "just threw as hard as I could all the way."

He also gave himself all the support he needed with his record home run of the year.

Although his record in seven previous seasons as a professional has been most notable for a succession of wildness, Wilson has been regarded as a potential star by the Red Sox brass.

OTHER PITCHERS SHINE

Pitching sharply elsewhere in the league, Cleveland Indians salvaged a one game lead in the standings by pasting Detroit Tigers 3-1 on a combined four-hitter by Jack Harshman and Gary Bell and Al Lopez's 11th - inning homer after being blanked for six hits by Jim Bunning in the opener of the doubleheader.

Camilo Pascual struck out 12 and Rich Rollins did some heavy slugging as Minnesota Twins trimmed New York Yankees 4-2. Milt Pappas of Baltimore fired a four-hit, 1-0 victory over Chicago White Sox and Chuck Hinton's single in the 11th inning gave Washington Senators 2-1 with a six-hit performance.

All told, just 21 runs in six games—and four shutouts.

Like Belinsky, Wilson was an unlikely candidate for pitching stardom at the season's start. He had been unimpressive in only two previous short stays with the Red Sox—in 1958 and '60—and was no better than 9-16 with the Triple-A Pacific Coast League last year.

FAILED TO GO DISTANCE

This season the strapping, 25-year-old Louisianan had failed to go the distance in his nine previous starts although he had done well enough to win five of seven decisions.

Belinsky allowed just three hits in his seven innings but all three cost him. Wilson slugged his homer in the third, then singles by Pete Runnels and Carroll Hardy after an error gave Boston its second run.

Harmon Killebrew in first appearance for Cleveland since being brought up from the minors and held Detroit to three hits — including a homer and single by Bubba Morton — through 10 innings. Then Bell went 4-for-4 with only a harmless single over the last two. Sam Jones was the hard-luck loser, lasting until the 12th when he gave way to Ron Nischwitz after a single by Tito Francona. Luplow promptly broke the tie with his fourth hit of the game and fifth of the night—his two-run homer.

Bunning had a duel with Pedro Ramos in the first game until the seventh, when Dick McAuliffe teamed with one on for the second hit off the lefthander. Rocky Colavito made it a Tiger rout with a grand slam against Ramos in the eighth.

ROLLINS SPARKLES

Rollins, whose average had skidded from .360 to .328 with only three hits in his eight previous games, got rich against Yankee starter Roland Sheldon. The Minnesota third baseman smashed homers in his first and fifth times at bat, with Jimmy Green on base, then had a single off Sheldon and another off Bob Turley.

Pascual, winning his 11th against four losses, spaced nine hits, walked none, and was at his curveballing best when it counted. He struck out Roger Maris three times and pinch-hitter Mickey Mantle with the bases filled and one out in the ninth.

Baltimore won in the last of the ninth against the White Sox and John Buzhardt when John Powers's single and two bunts loaded the bases and Charley Lau's 30-foot dribbled went for a hit.

Pfister turned in a neat six-hitter for Detroit's loss and the lone Washington run was uncarned. Manny Jimenez, the league's top batter at .346, drove in the deciding run with a third-inning double.

Crackers Trim Leafs, Suns Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most baseball clubs can't wait to get the confines of their home parks but not Jacksonville Suns.

The Suns, riding high atop the International League today with a six-game lead, have won 25 of their 31 games on the road. If they could keep up that rate at home, they'd be so far in front that no other team would have a chance of catching them.

At home, they have won only 12 of their 31 starts, a pace that would just about hold down third place for them.

At Buffalo Tuesday night the Suns struck for four runs in the seventh inning to edge the Bisons 6-5 and run their current winning streak to six.

Mike Lee, Hoz and Harry Chiti each crashed a home run in the big inning as Bell won 25 on pitcher Ted Abernathy who drove home what proved to be the winning run when he sledged home Larry Brown, who had doubled.

LEAFS BEATEN

In other action, Columbus Jets downed Rochester Red Wings 7-3, Atlanta Crackers downed Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3 and Syracuse Chiefs edged Richmond Virginians 5-4.

Ken Brandt drove in Pritchard each had three RBI in Columbus' victory over Rochester. Tom Parsons went all the way for the Jets for the first time in 13 starts this season.

Johnny Kucks stopped the Leafs with five hits and enabled Atlanta to snap a four-game losing streak. The victory ran his season record to 8-2. Jerry Buchek and Jim Beauchamp had two-run homers for the Crackers.

The Syracuse decision over Richmond pushed the Chiefs out of a tie with the losers for the league cellar. Joe Hutcheon got credit for the victory and helped his own cause by driving in two runs.

WINS WORLD TITLE

POOLE, England (AP)—Dr. Britton Chance of Philadelphia won the world championship for 5.5-metre yachts in Complex III on Poole Bay Tuesday's second the sixth and last race of the series Tuesday. The Bahamas entry, John B, sailed by R. H. Symonette, won Tuesday's event.

Wimbledon Tennis

California Girl Pulls 'Shocker'

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., who dances the twist to keep her weight down, may not play her Wimbledon women's tennis championship—but she'll still have a place in the tournament's record books.

The bespectacled Billie Jean pulled off one of the biggest shockers in the history of the women's division Tuesday when she eliminated top-seeded Margaret Smith of Australia 1-6, 6-3, 7-5. It was the first time the top-seeded woman was even eliminated on opening day.

"Sometimes my weight gets up to 135 pounds," Billie said. "Then I've got to do something about it. The twist is a pretty good way to keep it down."

Miss Smith, 19, practically blasted Billie Jean off the court in the first set, but the 18-year-old American came back with an inspired spell which took her to a 5-0 lead in the second. Having closed it out, she promptly ran into trouble.

Miss Smith raised her service power and won the first game of the third set in deuce. She raced to a 3-0 lead and then led 5-3 and 30-15 on her service.

BACKHAND SAVES HER

It seemed to be all over, but at this point with the Australian rushing the net, Billie Jean, unseeded in this event and third - ranked in the United States, pulled out an incredible backhand winner which scorched its sidelines and changed the course of the match.

She took the game, held her service for 5-5 and then reeled off two more games for the upset.

Miss Moffitt's triumph came in the second round after she got a first-round bye. Seconded Darlene Hard of the U.S., who also had a bye in the first round, beat Mrs. D. K. Ilingworth of Britain 6-0, 6-2.

Third-seeded Maria Bueno of Brazil, Wimbledon champion in 1959 and 1960, defeated Margaret Varner of the U.S. 6-3, 6-4 in the first round. Fourth-seeded Renee Schuurman of South Africa beat Miss F. S. MacLennan of Britain 6-0, 8-6.

Lightfoot Construction snapped out of a slump in no uncertain terms last night when they buried Reide's Excavating by a 23-2 score at the CNRA Park.

The winners had two big innings, the first when they scored nine runs, and the fifth, when they added eight more.

Don Smith gave up five hits while pitching the victory. He struck out six and walked three.

Pauls and Embury were pounded for 19 assisted hits on the Reide's rubber. They fanned nine and walked nine.

Don Smith hit a grand-slam home run, two doubles and a single while batter-mate Don Wood clubbed a two-run homer, a double and a single to lead the Lightfoot onslaught. Doug Morcau had a double and two singles while other base hits went to Jack Caddick with three; Jack Canning and Ken Brooks, with two apiece.

Joyces Turn Back Flyers

By GAREY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Joyce Real Estate opened up a six-point lead at the top of the B. and D. Softball league standing last night when they nursed back the second-place ROAF Flyers 5-3 before the largest softball crowd of the season at the Fairgrounds.

Despite a total of eight errors five by the losers, last night's game was a crowd pleaser. Joyces built a 4-0 lead with single runs in the first and fourth and two in the fifth.

The Flyers scored all of their runs in the sixth to cut the lead to 4-3 and it stayed that way until Joyces added an insurance marker in the eighth.

Doug Ellis evened the score for an earlier 5-0 defeat by setting the Flyers down with five hits in a neat pitching chore for the winners. He nipped ten on third strikes and walked a pair.

Mike Batchelor was also in a battle all the way on the Flyer hilltop. He gave up half a dozen hits, struck out five and did not walk a batter.

Claude Carr gave Joyces a 1-0 lead in the first when he singled to centre and scored on two RCAF errors.

Jackie Elliott boomed a long triple and scored later on Faulkner's ground ball to make it 2-0.

Ellis was safe on a bobble in the fifth and scored on a wild base error. Elliott singled Carr home to make it 4-0.

Alexander started the RCAF rally in the sixth when base umpire Tom Hulme ruled that Batchelor had trapped his linter to left. Mitts followed with a double. A run scored on Boomer's ground ball and the other runners advanced on the following error. Mowatt's squeeze bunt made it 4-2. Kennedy's fly to centre was turned into an inning-ending double play but Boomer scored that meantime to cut the Joyce lead to one run.

Ellis threw hitless ball thereafter and the winners' final marker came on Carr's hit, an error and Faulkner's fly ball.

Mowatt picked Ellis' sinking liner off his shoetops, Elliott made a beautiful play to rob Kennedy and Coracsaden pulled in several foul flys back of first in a game that featured a number of fine fielding plays.

Jackie Elliott with a triple and single, Claude Carr, with two singles, Stu Muirhead, with a double, and Ted Batchelor with a single had the Joyce hits.

Bill Mitts, ejected for arguing a called third strike in the eighth, led the Flyers with a double. Singles went to Ratushniak, Len Wenzel to Roger Drake and Doug Alexander.

REJOINS ORIOLES

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, in need of right-handed hitting strength, have reactivated catcher Gus Triandos.

To make room, the Orioles got waivers Tuesday on outfielder Earl Robinson and sent him to Rochester of the International League. Robinson had been troubled by a sore right elbow and has been used sparingly since mid - May, hitting .286 in 21 times at bat.

Triandos was put on the disabled list when he broke his right index finger May 22 in Cleveland. It was his fourth serious injury in four seasons.

Conservative Will Seek Ballot Recount

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP — Alexander Best, former Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Halton, said Tuesday he will seek a recount of ballots cast in the riding in the June 18 federal election.

Mr. Best won the seat by 66 votes in the civilian count but lost by 32 votes on the basis of a strong service vote for Liberal Dr. Harry Harley.

Mr. Best said there were discrepancies in the returning officer's figures.

Manslaughter Appeal Upheld

TORONTO (CP)—A Fort William mother of five children won an appeal against a manslaughter conviction Tuesday when she appeared before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Mrs. Maria Gutta, 29, was convicted last February in the death of Cord Cosimo. She was sentenced to one day in jail and two years' probation.

During the trial Mrs. Gutta testified that Cosimo came to her home during her husband's absence and threatened to kill her unless she submitted to his advances.

Mrs. Gutta said she attempted to push Cosimo away with a rifle but the man laughed at her and tried to take the gun away.

Cosimo was shot dead and Mrs. Gutta wounded in a scuffle.

MONTREAL — Operating revenues of Canadian National Railways for the month of May, 1962, amounted to $63,302,000. Expenses, taxes and rents totalled $62,530,000, resulting in a net operating income for the month of $363,000.

In May, 1961, operating revenues were $61,007,000; expenses, rents and taxes, $60,633,000 and the net operating income was $374,000.

Unlikely to Approve Moves To Amend U.S. Constitution So School Prayers Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress, firing salvos of criticism at the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling against public school prayers, have introduced amendments to the constitution to override the decision.

But congressional leaders cast doubt on the move's success.

While amendments to legalize classroom praying were introduced in both the House of Representatives and the Senate, there were also demands for amendments to require Supreme Court justices to stand for election and to give Congress the power to overrule the court's decisions.

The possibility was seen as remote that any of the suggested constitutional changes could win the needed two-thirds majority in both houses and ratification by three - fourths of the states.

Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois said he didn't think the proposals to put classroom prayers in the constitution could be passed. Said Dirksen:

"The proposition of Separation of church and state is so ingrained into our people that I doubt that such an amendment would be adopted."

HOUSE LEADER AGREES

A similar view was expressed in the House by Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.), chairman of the judiciary committee.

Celler said:

"The First Amendment is well grounded in history and has served to save the United States from civil religious strife."

The court held 6 to 1 Monday that a prayer drafted by New York's board of regents and recommended for recital at the beginning of each school day was "an establishment of religion" forbidden by the First Amendment.

Pupils whose parents objected to the prayer could be excused from reciting it, it ruled.

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers, and our country."

Justice Hugo Black, who wrote the majority opinion, said placing "the power, prestige and financial support of government" behind a particular form of religious observance tends to coerce religious minorities to conform.

The decision reversed rulings by New York State courts on a suit started by five parents who objected to the prayer.

Liquor Serving In Hotel Rooms Now Legal

TORONTO (CP)—The serving of beer and liquor in Ontario hotel rooms became legal Tuesday but waits—put down that telephone.

The hotels won't be pouring in the boudoir until Friday at the earliest.

The Liquor Licence Board announced that liquor by the drink will be permitted in the rooms only of hotels that already offer complete room service. Even then, the hotels will have to meet "certain strict and high standards."

Board Chairman Judge W. T. Robb said he has had about 35 applications for room service of drinks. The board will begin considering them Thursday.

Pilot Killed Testing Plane

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—John P. Temple, 29, of Downsview, Ont., was killed when the plane he was piloting crashed in front of an airport office building here.

Temple was testing a single-engine, high - wing plane designed for bush flying by Found Brothers, a Malton, Ont., manufacturer.

He began initial tests Tuesday morning and was taking off again shortly after noon when the plane's engine froze and began to go down near a school yard. Witnesses said he swerved the plane to avoid children in the playing area, crashing in an open field near Brampton Flying Club offices, about 600 feet from the school, 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

New Blue Cross Plan to Cover Cost of Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Association announced a pilot project of a new Ontario Blue Cross plan to provide coverage against the cost of prescription drugs.

The new scheme, believed the first of its kind in Canada to cover drug costs, would pay almost the total cost of non-patent or brand name medications prescribed by doctors. The deductible factor would require members to pay the first $25 or $50 depending on the premium.

Rates of 36 cents for an individual or $1.35 for a family a month would be paid for the $25 deductible plan and 61 cents an individual or $2.05 a family for the $50 deductible plan.

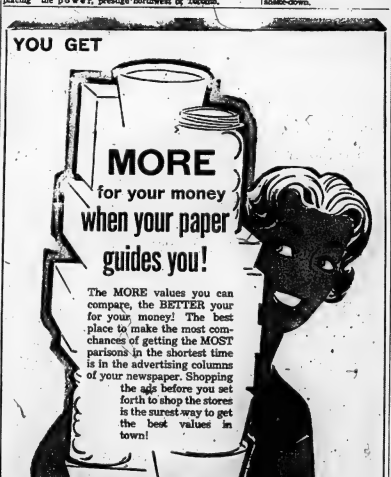
Stanley W. Martin, association secretary-treasurer said Theory costs exceeding the deductible limit would be paid without any ceiling.

Before the scheme is offered generally it will be tested with about 600 selected groups of subscribers.

Chinese Reds And Americans Trade Warnings

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has told Communist China the U.S. will not support any attempt by the Chinese nationalists to invade the mainland.

At the same time, the Chinese were warned at a Geneva ambassadorial meeting last Saturday that the U.S. is pledged to support the nationalists against any invasion of Formosa.



In return, the Chinese made clear to the U.S. that they have a military alliance with the Soviet Union and could call on Russian help if Chiang Kai-shek attempted a Chinese nationalist invasion.

The exchange took place between the U.S. ambassador to Poland, John Moore Cabot, and China's ambassador, Wang Ping-Nan.

Former Attorney 'Appalled' At Interference

Former Mines Minister, J. Maloney, Mentioned

TORONTO (CP) — A retired Crown attorney has told the Ontario royal commission on crime he was "appalled" at interference by former mines minister James A. Maloney in court cases in his home county of Renfrew.

The commission also heard from an Ontario Provincial Police inspector that Mr. Maloney once died last year — once threatened to get him transferred for prosecuting Renfrew truck drivers for overloading and blocked the proposed transfer of a Renfrew constable who owned around $5,000 in gambling debts.

The former Renfrew Crown Attorney, H. Graham Walsh, said that Mr. Maloney, in 1956-61 Progressive Conservative member for Renfrew South in the legislature, "always had something to say" about Renfrew cases and sometimes asked the impossible.

Mr. John Whitty, head of the OPP district that includes Renfrew, told of collisions with Mr. Maloney that began during the latter's unsuccessful attempts during the 1959 provincial election to have retired Ashbaugh machines returned to a campaign headquarters and to stop prosecution of highway offences in Renfrew South until after election day.

HAS BEEN MINISTER

Mr. Maloney has been mentioned frequently in commission evidence as having had dealings with gambling bosses Jack Leigh, McDermott and Vincent Feeley, and investigators recently unearthed letters he wrote in behalf of

Britain Moving Slowly Toward Nuclear Concept

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Like a man walking backwards against his will, Britain seems to be moving slowly and uncertainly toward the concept of a European nuclear deterrent.

Although this has always clouded NATO planners as a practical realization, Prime Minister Macmillan's latest statement is major in that it is partially be inevitable. In the Commons Tuesday, he stressed the possibilities of a joint European deterrent, saying that the ultimate future of what might be a European defence system must be addressed to the "changing situation."

The latest impetus toward some European nuclear effort stems from the recent debate over whether Britain's so - called "independent" deterrent is really, in fact, independent.

U.S. RELUCTANT

The United States, worried about its relations with Europe, clear forces, reluctantly accepts Britain as an atomic power because it considers deterrent is co-ordinated with the American force.

Nevertheless, few American leaders would accept Britain's claim that its deterrent is "independent." They would probably say it is more or less irrelevant. It constitutes only about three per cent of the Western world's explosive power; the U.S. has more than enough when it comes to destructive potential.

Understandably, there is a strong temptation for Britons to cling to the idea of an independent nuclear capacity. To a country whose imperial power has all but evaporated, it is the last word among status symbols, the final noble raiment in a diminishing wardrobe.

To experts it may be a joke, and a rubber one at that, since it lends credence and color to similar pretensions by France.

There the Western nuclear stalemate rests. Ultimately, the way out may lie in a truly European deterrent system. One London newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, says this is by no means an unrealistic aim; and the Manchester Guardian says Britain's approach to Europe "involves the full effort to create a genuine, political and military power."

Thirst Drives 2 Convicts off Water Tower

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Holding out against hunger and thirst, two convicts spent a third day perched precariously on a water tower at Western State Penitentiary, apparently determined to show how long they can keep up their protest demonstration.

Two gave in Wednesday. One was carried to the hospital because of his weak condition.

Prison officials waited for the next to come down. It was just a matter of time, they said.

The latest pair of penitentiary inmates to climb the tower Monday afternoon.

Twelve others joined Payne on the tower Tuesday evening in a disturbance related to the illegal prison brutality.

The first man down on Wednesday climbed down from the 100-foot high catwalk within a circular tank around dinner-time. It was felt the sight of cooking might lure the mess hall was a factor.

One convict shouted to reporters below that he and his tower prisoners were protesting the use of gas on prisoners in the "hole" (solitary confinement). He said gas was used on prisoners per fighting and other minor infractions.

At a press conference, Warden James Maroney admitted "prepared" ammonia gas is used to subdue a violent act up but denied that any are treated cruelly.

Only 30 Members Show Up And Ratepayers Association Fails to Elect Executive

TRENTON — Thirty of the 91 paid-up members of the Trenton Ratepayers' Association showed up at what was to be an organizational meeting of the recently-formed citizens' group, in the Queen Elizabeth School last night. Alfred Vaughan, charter president, announced that because of the lack of a quorum, election of executive officers would be postponed until next meeting when, it was hoped, more members would come out. East-side Trenton residents were very much in the majority last night, but Mr. Vaughan answered a query, "Is this an east-side organization?" by assuring those present that the association was "for all Trenton; all taxpayers, big and small."

Mr. Vaughan read off the bylaws of the association, which include the determination of the organization to promote a greater interest in local affairs, also to it that there is "efficiency and economy in civic administration," and that throughout the town there is "just and equitable assessment on all properties."

A letter will be sent to the mayor asking for council representation at "all association meetings," and two association members will be appointed each meeting to attend the following council meeting, take notes, and report back to the association.

Asked how issues from the floor (the association is dedicated to presenting legitimate "beefs" from taxpayers to council) the members present came back with the answer that "a $10 tax be put on big dogs", that zoning laws be changed to allow residents to keep chickens in their back yards if other residents are permitted to operate car repairs on town streets, and that either town council or railroad authorities be asked to do something about trains, which stand on the Main Street crossing for ten minutes and delay traffic.

EGRESS SHUT OFF

In reference to the trains, one association member said that now that Sidney Street is shut off while a trunk sewer installation is being carried out, if trains stand on the crossing for several minutes, all egress from the area is shut off. Another member expressed his concern about this situation should a fire break out north of the stopped-up crossing. It was suggested that since there are two railroad men on council (Councillors Todd and McGuire), they would be the ones to approach, but it was finally decided to go to the railway agent about it.

As to the big dog question — a woman in the audience said that big dogs ran at large through carefully tended gardens. A man in the audience, evidently a dog fancier, seemed to think that the charge was leveled at big dogs and sprang to their defence, with the observation that children were allowed to run at large too, and that anyone who kept dogs should tie up all the time should be sent to prison.

Douglas Hyde, of Kitchener Ave., asked that a letter be sent to council, requesting that an existing by-law, which forbids citizens to carry out car repairs on town streets, be enforced.

Mr. Hyde said that his children would like to raise chickens and that he thought that he should be allowed to build a chicken coop in his back yard if the street car repair was to go on. He said that three cars, in various stages of repair, were parked, day and night, near his residence.

WANTS LAWN RESTORED

A request that the town restore W. Lemoire's lawn on Bay Street to its original state, will be forwarded to town council, Lemoire said today, when the land surrounding the community gardens was raised, three years ago, water poured down into his property, destroying grass, fruit bushes and fruit trees. He said that the town had filled in his lawn, and had recently spread top soil; but that the town workmen had indicated that this was as far as the town meant to go. Mr. Lemoire said that he would now have to seed or sod the land at his own expense.

Mr. Vaughan deplored the fact that the issues presented were of minor importance. He said that the east-side residents with more important complaints to put before the association, had failed to show up at the meeting. Although "well, after all, we elected council," another ratepayer observed.

"That's the tragedy," came from another quarter.

"Well, most important men on council, but they need to be helped," was another back-up.

Mr. Vaughan pointed out that from now on, two association members would be present at all council meetings to represent the ratepayers. He said that anyone who can spare noon sense ought to be able to attend the following day's council meeting, take notes, and report back to the association.

Invading Ants Take Over Ten Lower Egypt Villages

CAIRO (Reuters) — The terrifying march of the giant white ants continues to wreak havoc in lower Egypt, it was reported today.

At least 10 villages in a remote area of Behelra province in the lush Nile delta region must be abandoned due to the remorseless invasion of hordes of the ants, it was learned.

Complaints are being sent from the area to the ministry of agriculture here.

But so far the ants are almost an inch long and are of the vicious "soldier" type. About 25 villages in the area are infested with the ants. They dig huge colonies to a depth of six feet below the ground and come out at night in the millions to devastate buildings.

An agriculture ministry expert said today that in 10 of the villages infestation had reached the stage where nothing could be done but abandon them and have the people rebuild their homes elsewhere.

He said "millions and millions" of ants had established colonies under their villages and were eating all material containing cellulose — the organic structure' contained in vegetable matter.

Houses are burned because the ants had eaten the straw-wattle foundations. Roy Hotaran, Al Hagedorn.

City Workers Still at Odds With Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Discussion on wage demands and working conditions between the city and board of works employees today ceased again after nearly three months of intermittent talks.

Agreement with city representatives on appointment of a conciliation officer is sought by Local 3, National Union of Public Service Employees (CLC).

The city has asked employees to work on a six-day-a-week shift with double time for work during overtime on Sunday.

The union wants a shift arrangement for five days a week with time-and-a half for overtime Saturday and double time for Sunday.

The union also wants a wage increase of 10 cents an hour. The city has offered a two-cent raise.

Should Make Bookies Legal Says Mayor

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Mayor Robert Simpson of Fort Arthur says bookmaking should be legal in Ontario to raise revenue for the municipalities.

He told the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves Tuesday legal off - track gambling would produce millions of dollars of revenue over a 10-year period. He spoke at the closing session of the Association's annual convention.

Mr. Simpson, past president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities and the Ontario Association said a heavy provincial tax, shared by municipalities, could be attached to any legislation enacted. Provincial revenues could also be increased, he said, if toll charges were applied to major highways and bridges.

Iroquois Falls Mayor Heads Association

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Mayor Percy Burton of Iroquois Falls Wednesday was elected president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

Mayor Angus Campbell of Pembroke was elected first vice-president.

Mr. Burton succeeds Reeve Ivor Barnett of Thorold Township.

Andrew Jarvis Will Resign From Council

PICTON — Town councillor Andrew Jarvis stated yesterday that he proposes to present his resignation to council at the July 5 meeting. "I will then present my full reasons for taking this action," he said, "I propose to resign as I don't find myself in accord with the conditions as they exist in Picton."

Councillor Jarvis was the only member of council who did not vote against the recent dismissal "with cause" of engineer Herbert Gray, at the June 15 council meeting.

Yesterday Jarvis was contro-versy was an extension to Spencer Street to accommodate a new industry. This was proceeded with by Mayor McFarland's company without prior consultation with council, but viewed by all councillors, except Jarvis, as justified.

Further the circumstances the matter of government grants is still pending.

Councillor Jarvis also objects to the town uniting with the county in letting tenders for paving. Formerly the town called its own tenders. The double contract was this week awarded to the McFarland Co. as lowest bidder.

Enumerators Admit Giving False Addresses

TORONTO (CP)—Two Trinity riding enumerators have admitted giving false addresses so they could get the jobs.

The two, Fred Gaviller, 24, a student, and Mrs. Reg Teslis, said Wednesday they lived outside Trinity. Although the Canada Elections Act says an enumerator must live within the riding.

They were testifying at an inquiry conducted by Ernest Wright into alleged irregularities in the riding in the June 18 federal election.

A third enumerator, Mrs. Violet Anderton, who also lives outside Trinity, said she took the job because the "Liberal party office asked her to.

Paul Hellyer, MP, won the riding for the Liberals, previously held by Ellen Fairclough. He can prove the office made a natural mistake.

Commissioner Wright told Mr. Hellyer he will have a chance to testify before the inquiry.

Trinity Returning Officer Henry McKague told the inquiry earlier that Mrs. Norman Johnston, who does not live in the riding, was hired by election clerk because "the lady who was to do the job became ill."

The inquiry was ordered early in May by Prime Minister Diefenbaker after chief electoral officer, Mr. Thomas Perlin, New Democratic Party candidate, complained of irregularities in the enumerating in the riding.

Commissioner Wright is to determine whether Mr. McKague by wrongly or negligently appointed an unqualified clerk or enumerators and whether such clerk or the enumerators made a false oath.

Doug Pettigrew Best Student, Given Plaque

PICTON—Some years ago the Students' Council of Prince Edward Collegiate initiated a policy of awarding trophies to students whose work during the year had been outstanding. The plaque for the most scholarly student in each grade was provided by the Board, while the other trophies are financed by the Council itself. Winners for various awards this year are listed below.

Best All Round Student — Douglas Pettigrew, XIIIX.

Most Scholarly Student — grade IX: David McLellan, IXA, and Janna Wennekamp, IXG; grade X: Bill Cunningham, XIB; grade XI: John Coenraads, XIIF; grade XII: Douglas Pettigrew, XIIIX; grad XIII: Kerry MacGrimmon, XIIIB.

Staff of the Earth — Gary Burr, XIIIB; Doug Knight, XIIIA; Barbara McKee, XIIIE; Peter McLean, XIID; Carol Parker, XIIIE.

Best Athletes — girls: Lana Gallagher; boys: Don MacNaughton.

Selection of the award winners is done by committees made up of both students and staff members. The best all-around student award goes to the one who has combined outstanding achievement in three fields — studies, athletics, and some other field of extra-curricular activity. This year's winner, Doug Pettigrew, had an average of 86%. He was co-winner of the senior track and field championship, and a nominee for president of the students' council, who was also singled as a representative of the school to attend the United Nations seminar at Queen's university at the end of this month.

The most scholarly student award is meant to recognize those students who demonstrated a pursuit of learning for beyond the amount needed for promotion. As in the case of all awards, those students were nominated under receive letters of commendation whether or not they were selected as the recipient of the award.

The last all of the earth award is an unusual one that is meant to give recognition to those students whose initiative and persistence have been the key to the success of some major extra-curricular endeavour.

A Backward Step

July is just around the corner. If we face it with something less than our customary enthusiasm, it is because the City Council's public works committee has unseasonably spanked us in the backside with a snow shovel, just as we were bowing low to the approaching holiday season. We now find ourselves in the unenviable predicament of wishing for a blizzard in September time. Nothing short of a good three-foot snowfall some summer weekend will reassure us that all members of City Council have a vivid and realistic memory of what it is like to wield a snow shovel for hours. And, unless Council members have lost their vision of coming snowstorms when they conclude their summer recess, citizens of Belleville may find themselves back in the horse-and-buggy days, shoveling their own sidewalks. The public works committee has recommended that sidewalk snowplowing be discontinued and that the provisions of by-law 1126 be enforced. By-law 1126 was passed back in 1903—which shows pretty clearly just how far behind the times the public works committee is with respect to the proper handling of snow.

On a couple of occasions in the past we have availed ourselves of the opportunity of complimenting municipal authorities on the fact that, unlike some cities, Belleville has not left each individual property owner to struggle with snow removal. We have pointed out all the advantages of our system of sidewalk plowing —that it is the only method by which sidewalks can be cleared uniformly, with no dangerous hills and hollows, snowbanks and puddles; that it has unquestionably prolonged the lives of many of our elder citizens who otherwise would have been added to the tragic list of those who suffer heart attacks while snow-shoveling; that it is doubtful whether it takes many more man-hours of municipal employees to remove the snow than would be required to enforce a by-law requiring each property owner to look after his own stretch of sidewalk; and that all these advantages are gained at a cost which is moderate and certainly less than would be the expenditure involved if every taxpayer was to hire his own snow shovelers.

We certainly hope that the majority of City Council members will see to it that we are not denied the privilege of reprinting such an editorial praising sidewalk snowplowing during the coming winter.

To be on the safe side, though, we are starting now to pray for a really early snow storm—and to plead that the works committee members leave for the beach on their summer vacations.

Denouncement

In the Occident, talk of the inscrutable Oriental is commonplace. It is largely nonsense. But Orientals often differ from people in the West in one distinctive point. Their philosophies and religions tend to place a high value on what one might term quietude—on introspection, meditation and the absence of desires and passions. Of course, something of the same kind is taught by many Western religions and philosophies—but not to the same degree. And, anyway, the Westerner does not really pay much heed to these teachings.

These insights were brought to mind by a book review in UNESCO Features, of a novel by an Indian, Mirza Mohammad Hadi Ruswa. His heroine is quoted as saying: "All my wishes have been fulfilled and I ask for nothing more, although there is a devil that will not be exorcised till the last breath is out of the body." To her, desires are an evil, from which death will free her. The devil many Westerners fear is the disappearance of desires before death—that they will be left "with nothing to live for."

This seemed like a striking contrast of the Occidental and Oriental mind—until we read that Ruswa himself was "virile, hedonistic, much-married," that he was insatiably curious, that he tried his hand at teaching, engineering, chemistry and astronomy, that he wrote a twenty-volume commentary on one sect of Islamism but earned his living by publishing salacious thrillers—and that he "lived boisterously to the age of 74," dying of typhoid.

It seems that the inscrutable Oriental does not always practise what he preaches—even as you and I.

It took a long time to get established. But in the beginning, we were often dealing with the rawest kinds of frauds, and in a sense, we were true vigilance committees even after the name began to disappear.—Allan Bachman, the executive Vice President of the Better Business Bureaus on their 50th anniversary.

Oratory An Active Art Physical Stamina Required

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Say what you will about the election campaign, it was long often boring, always exhausting and finally indecisive . . . but it did produce a revival of the fine old-fashioned art of political oratory that now may survive even the deadening influence of the House of Commons.

Up until the politicians hit the hustings, the technique of talking off the top of the head from the public platform had very nearly been lost.

Years of leaning on the artificial stimulant, long and authority that a microphone gave even the weakest and more uncertain voice, seemed to have ruined the vocal chords of most of the political performers.

But those eight weeks of stumping up and down the land, frequently in places where electronics were not always either available or entirely dependable, have given the orators new lung-power.

They have developed muscles on their larynx and when they move back into the House of Commons, the amplifiers of the public address system will have to be tuned down to prevent a whisper or they'll blast the roof off Parliament Hill's sturdy old stone Centre Block.

THE STARS

Most generational of the political platform performers, of course, is the way out political maverick, Real Caouette, leader of the Social Credit Leader, who single-handedly packed them 25 Social MP's in the moose pastures and mountains of Quebec and now seems to be operating completely independent of party boss Robert Thompson. Caouette has three other "Funny Money Men" half a continent away in Alberta, but Caouette himself, Thompson, himself is a spellbinder in the finest medicine show tradition. He can and did hold a microphone for Caouette who goes in for a rather head-back spinning emotional binge every time he rounds out.

But the records have no monopoly on oratorical talent . . . only audio-visually well accomplished . . . but the platform stars have individual styles all their own.

The Liberals have Hazen Argue, the "Silver Fox" of oratorical contests in the Commons.

Argue's bag of tricks include a bewildering variety of gestures such as the spreading hands shick out as though he were selling purses and indicating the size of game fish.

Then he has "the crouch" and looks for all the world like a big league ball catcher, ramming his fist into an imaginary mitt and tossing the ball out to the mound . . . all this to pound home his points.

TOOT TOOT

Argue uses plenty of "body English" but Hazen, at just 90 degrees sometimes, in as good an imitation of a Canadian folk hero, likely to see of somebody doing the jack-knife dive straight off the floor. When he does it, he can have either his hustings audience or the Commons laughing or even swinging with him.

Finance Minister Fleming, except perhaps for Prime Minister Diefenbaker, is the Conservatives' most impressive performer.

He is the "engineer" of the House. When he gets wound along full steam, he will reach up with his right hand for what seems to be an invisible whistle cord, and yanks down on it, giving four or five mighty blasts on the imaginary diesel horn.

The Prime Minister's platform performance has become almost a Canadian folk lore. He leans, confiding "confidentially" in his audience in a strangely conspiratorial tone-of-voice-and-see way . . . he points, stabbing Liberals-who-are-not-there with an angry index finger . . . he chuckles and cackles, snorts and snarls, and when he's getting at his best clip, he can provide a positively fascinating performance.

Among the Quebeckers, no one can pound the podium in the same league as associate Defence Minister Sevigny. He

New home grown potatoes and fresh locally-grown cherries and garden peas were offered on the Belleville market for the first time this season; the produce being several weeks in advance of the usual date usually offered. Potatoes were offered by two vendors at 30 cents the berry box, while early cherries were being sold at 10-cents the berry box. Peas were 60 cents per quart.

Strictly Personal

Many Are Foibles of Human Race

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Some people warn us of their insincerity in their attempts at candor; such phrases as "to tell you the truth," or "I'll be honest with you," or "to be perfectly frank," indicate that the speaker is not normally truthful, honest or frank.

Those who are fond of quoting Alice's little formula that "a dangerous thing" don't even have enough knowledge to realize that they are misquoting (and thus misunderstanding) Pope's line.

After men finish fighting furiously for freedom, they begin hurt as they usually are by how to take it away from themselves.

Love is a kind of homeopathic disease: the only cure is to go over the ill effects of an unsuccessful love affair is by finding another.

The obstinate person thinks of himself as "firm," while the weak one thinks of himself as "flexible"; perhaps the most prevalent trait in the human race is turning our vices inside out so that they are only a subtle virtues for our moments of self-inspection.

Political groups ought to be moderate in their claims; for, as Dwight Morrow once observed pungently, "Any party which takes credit for the rain must not be surprised if its opponents blame it for the drought."

When a man occupies a place he cannot fill, he creates a vacuum once simply by striking out at the empty air around him.

A writer is a man of valor that she doesn't feel she is "good enough" for him by giving him a compliment — she is exercising feminine tact in informing him that she does not care for him, and is obliquely calling him a prig.

Those who resent the social order as confining or oppressive should keep in mind Hegel's definition: "Human society is like an arch held up by gravity by the mutual pressure of its parts."

For the majority, truth cannot be ingested in its pure form any more than undiluted wine; it must be flavored and watered down to be palatable; and it takes so long for truth to permeate precisely because its curative powers are so diluted in general consumption.

The most harmful thing a parent can do for a child is to set him up as a good example for the other children in the family.

The gods are more or less just in their dispensation of bounties — for instance, beautiful women are rarely endowed with a sense of humor, and thus make botches of their lives by their inability to handle men lightly and effectively.

THE PACKSACK

Passing the buck is a technique familiar to almost every field of human endeavor. The buck is always passed down.

The captain passes the buck to the lieutenant; the lieutenant to the sergeant; and the sergeant to the private. What might happen to our pretty social and business setup if we passed the buck the other way? Up!

I make arrangements to pick up an important item at the office of a large corporation. I took the trouble to confirm the fact that I was calling at a certain time. When I arrived, nobody knew anything about the matter.

It seems some careless person low down in the ranks had the impossibility must have failed to forward the order. When I fought my way into the presence of the manager, he regretted that some insignificant person had failed in his duty.

"What is your duty, I enquired, "have you to employ people capable of hiring incompetent help. He told the directors had demanded retrenchment. I should have carried the matter up to the board of directors; but they were too busy playing golf or having tea on their patios. Yet they were the actual culprits who had let me down. The buck should more than occasionally be passed up, not down.

Good Worker Hates Work

Jamaica Daily Gleaner

One of our columnists, a non-worker, has been writing with the bark off trees, proposing to put something on the bark which makes do not like.

"But just exactly what tastes nasty to a mule?" he asks plaintively.

He suspects that animals have their likes and dislikes; whatever he tries may be a special delicacy for mules.

We feel that "Mark Tree" is making a simple problem into a needlessly complicated one.

Taste is not the sense through which the mule should be appealed to — try sight, we say.

Put something that looks like work on the tree, and the mule will shy away from it and quit the locality.

The mule is one of the world's most strenuous workers, and he will not tolerate being made to work.

If you love work, you cannot find it in your heart to get rid of the thing: you keep looking for it to you can get around to doing it.

Start saddling a mule, and the animal, whose intelligence is really of the first order, begins to lay plans for relieving himself of the expected burden of work.

He inflates his belly, and when you have finished girthing him in the saddle, he lets out a girth loose.

When you turn a corner on his back, a single adroit jolt will send the load tottering round, and you come off.

A well - directed backhander with a kick at the animal will save you from riding mules in the future.

In steep slopes the mule develops asthma. He wheezes pitifully and looks round for someone with a camera to send a cable to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Fortunately, mules and photographers are seldom in the same locality.

Dislocated Shoulder Joint Is Remedied by Surgery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 15, has trouble with his right shoulder. Every so often when he makes a wrong move, it pops out of its socket, and until he can get it back in place, it is quite uncomfortable. What causes this, and should anything be done? — Mrs. R.U.

This is called a "chronic dislocation of the shoulder joint." It is especially common in young people, and I wouldn't be surprised if "quite uncomfortable" might be a rather mild term. It can be distressingly painful sometimes.

Anyway, young arms are more likely than old ones to make some of the unusual movements that can throw the shoulder out of its socket.

Due to this, there has to be some other cause, as well: a loose joint capsule; tendon structure that does not properly hold the joint in place; changes or damage in cartilage.

Many times some previous injury is responsible — in this same type of injury is fairly common among athletes.

I must decline to answer whether something "should" be done about the shoulder, except for this: have the boy examined by an orthopedic surgeon. You will get a report from him, on the basis of the particular case.

Most of the faults causing these "chronic shoulders" can be effectively and permanently corrected by surgery. On the other hand, ligaments, dressings, taping, and the like, are not necessary relief but rarely bring permanent correction about. The shoulder is on the way to curing itself anyway, which doesn't often happen if the damage is severe.

If the orthopedist finds that surgery is wise, he will say so, and I'd then go ahead with it.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the cause for a "tingling sensation" lying on the tongue? — F.H.

Excessive smoking is the commonest one, but there are others which permit yeasts and some organisms to flourish. Sharp the crannies of the tongue's rough surface and give this collored coating — especially after antibiotics, mouth breathing, dental cavities, infected gums or tonsils.

Dear Dr. Molner: I'm "interested" in a woman, age 27, who has had diabetes since she was 12 years. How does this affect her potential as a wife and mother? My friends tell me she should not be a candidate for marriage. — J.R.S.

Diabetic women make excellent wives and mothers. There may be special problems in pregnancy — miscarriage and other complications — but they are way more frequent — but suitable methods are known to help avoid or minimize many of these. Likewise, many factors are involved, but the suggestion would be that you pour ahead with ease by letting your girl's physician, with her prior consent, of course.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 7-year-old very active nephew complains daily of stomach cramps. His mother thinks it may be due to eating candy. He eats two a day. When visiting I have noticed that when he isn't satisfied closely he pours salt on his food. I tend to believe this may be the cause. — Mrs. R.H.

But I'd doubt it, since there must be days when he doesn't get a chance to pour on the salt but still has cramps. It would be easy to test the egg theory. Just don't serve him eggs for 10 days and see what happens. If the cramps continue, I would have him checked to see if any intestinal disorder exists — disease of the appendix, partial intestinal infection, faulty bowel action, or even an ulcer.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in Bookler "Ringing in the Ears — Their Causes and Cures", in care of The Ontario Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 75, Station D, Toronto. Include a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

Laughter On Wings

New York Times

"For sheer poetry of flight the following lines unquestionably deserve the laurel. Their mastery of the air is absolute and there isn't a wasted motion in the wings and long, forked tail that doesn't contribute. Or is it the kind of lyric flight that makes you understand the meaning of exquisite grace, beauty and ultimate meaning to the feathered?

But for laughter in the air, for lilting bits of motion that make the heart rejoice and make the swallows' cousins, the chimney swifts, the words are "Giggs on wings," and they are a kind that nobody has ever failed to meet brown in the air. Their tails are short and rounded, their wings long and pointed. But they fairly twinkle in flight, and their delicate shape and swift, impromptu from moment to moment as though to encourage them to be confused by patterns. They make up their flight-songs as they go along, exultant, practically jubilant at being alive and loving. They celebrate the miracle of flight.

GOD OF THE HILLS AND VALLEYS

We speak of a person "called" to the ministry. Usually, however, we do not speak of a person being called to the law, or to any of the other professions, or to business, or farming, or to house work. Yet we should.

All of God guides some men into the ministry, He guides others into all types of work in which they are particularly suited. The matter of chosing one's life work often appears to be only a matter of responding to the call of a certain type of job by accident. Yet if we look more deeply we see that the hand of God is in everything. Can a woman be called to be just a housewife and nothing more? Do you mean to say that there is providence in those circumstances? Can a man be called to a washing machine, or a bridge, or a typewriter? It is a disposition to divide life off into areas, to say that God rules here, or to house work. Yet we should.

N.S. Scots Will Not Pay To Drive Out Sassenachs

HALIFAX (CP)—An advertisement in Monday's Halifax newspapers, seeking funds for a plebiscite to determine whether Scotians want to separate from England, got short shrift from Scottish-descended people there.

Dr. C. M. Nicholson, principal of Pine Hill Divinity Hall in Halifax, said "Scotland is doing quite well running the British Isles as it is—so why change the present constitution?"

Dr. A. W. R. MacKenzie, director of the Gaelic college at St. Anne in Cape Breton, called the appeal "foolish."

He conceded a provincial-type of government on Canadian lines might be an answer for Scottish nationalists, "but not separation."

D. K. McDermaid of Halifax, who handled the ad for the Scottish group, said Scots have been bowling over the islanders perpetrated by the people to the south ever since they were joined to England by one government in 1707.

The advertisement to determine "sweet and fair play" how the Scot feels about independence seeks $300,000 to finance the plebiscite. It said the Bank of Nova Scotia "has kindly agreed to act" the banker in connection with this very important matter."

In Halifax, meanwhile, an emergency executive meeting of the North British Society has been called to study the situation.

Quebec Court Hears Petition Against Banks

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Superior Court continued hearings today on a petition asking that Harold J. Banks, president of the Seafarers International Union find.) be declared in contempt of court.

The petition of the Upper Lakes Shipping Limited claims that Banks conspired with SIU members to violate a court ban on picketing of company ships last month at Trois - Rivieres, Que.

One of the key witnesses Wednesday was Michael J. Sheehan, president of the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC), rival of the SIU in a fight for control of crews working ships on the Great Lakes system.

The SIU lost at contract with Upper Lake shipping more than a year ago to the CMU. Sheehan broke with the SIU to set up the CMU.

Sheehan said that during his days as a patrolman for the SIU during strikes orders "always came from the top," usually from Banks.

Justice Roach Not Worried About Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, Ontario's royal commissioner on crime, laughed heartily Tuesday when a witness confronted him with evidence that was supposed to embarrass him personally.

Former Sgt. John Cronin, who quit the Ontario Provincial Police in 1954 with $30,000 savings was explaining how he had met with gamblers Joseph McDermott and Ernest Seeley in a hotel here after he was subpoenaed to testify.

In the middle of a rambling account, he asked whether he could testify secretly because what he had to say would be "very unfair to someone in the court . . . It involves you, sir."

The commissioner told him to go ahead in open court. Cronin wrote some of it down and, with prodding from the judge, eventually came up with the best-sustained information that another man at the meeting had come up with something like this:

He knew the commissioner and his family, the commissioner was "mad at the world" because a son had got into trouble at Windsor, "went through business losses or something"—the man certainly was drinking.

DOESN'T KNOW HIM

"Well," chuckled the commissioner, "it certainly has the advantage of mine—I don't know him."

As for his son, he had been about two years old when Mr. Justice Roach left Windsor, where he practised law.

With the help of commission counsel Roland F. Wilson, the man was identified as John McDermott, a lawyer of suburban Don Mills, and Mr. Justice Roach said he will be called today to tell about the episode.

There was no indication of the connection between the two McDermotts.

Sneaky Salmon Fox Experts In Royal River

ABOYNE, Scotland (AP)—Two of the world's top anglers fished the Royal River Dee for the fourth straight day today in a contest to prove whose system is best.

As luck would have it, neither has snagged a fish.

The competitors are Lee Wulff, of Hicksville, N.H., said to be North America's leading authority on salmon fishing, and Donald Rudd, 66, of Edinburgh, king of the salmon anglers in Britain.

The American is convinced that the best way to catch salmon is with a six-foot rod and a dry fly.

Rudd is just as sure that the traditional Scottish 12-14-foot rod is best. He's inclined to favor live bait.

Both men have been writing magazine articles on salmon fishing. Recently, both have been written in the Atlantic Salmon Journal.

Rudd writes under the name of Jack Scott and the American recently challenged him to a salmon duel, Rudd accepted.

They agreed on the Dee as the battleground.

The Dee is called royal because it flows past Balmoral Castle, summer home of Britain's Royal Family.

Yvonne Dionne Leaves Convent In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Yvonne Dionne, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets, who entered a convent in January, 1961, to become a nun, has left the nunnery, it was learned today.

The superior of the little Franciscan sisters' convent at Baie St. Paul, 55 miles northeast of here, said Yvonne, 28, left for health reasons.

She declined to give any details, but indicated that the quint left the convent about three weeks ago.

At the time, Yvonne, was a novice in nuns' order and was called Sister Marie-Therry.

The three other surviving quints are married. They are Cecile, Mrs. Philippe Langlois, Annette, Mrs. Germain Allard, and Marie, Mrs. Florian Houde.

The 18th, Emilie, died Aug. 20, 1954, in Ste. Agathe, Que., of suffocation during an epileptic seizure.

Before entering the convent Yvonne had been a nurse in Montreal.

It is not known where she is at present.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There can be neither law nor order in our communities if we do not apply these to our own human experience. Often, our highest ethical ambitions fall down because of an inability to translate them into personal and human values. Regrettably, we let our "selves" get in the way.

"Righteousness is the natural goal of the good society. Beware, however, the trap of self-righteousness.

"Confidence is a necessary and valuable attribute of the hopeful society. Avoid, nevertheless, the arrogance of over-indulgent self-confidence.

"Happiness has been written into state constitutions as a desirable, worthwhile, unselfish ambition. Steer clear, however, from pursuing it so ardently that you become smugly obsessed with you own private satisfactions.

Righteousness, confidence and happiness, when too liberally sprinkled with ego, lead to unhappy conclusions: self-righteousness, false pride and self-fishness.

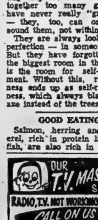
Consider the problem of righteousness and self-right counsess. We have a moral right to approve or disapprove of certain behavior. We must follow the standards we have been taught or have discovered. Yet, no man may arrogate unto himself the right to judge others as if he were the Final Judge.

This is a necessary lesson for those who seek to reform the world according to their own personal standards of behavior — who suspect that no one else is quite as good as they. They would deny others the privilege of living according to standards of their own choosing.

We need moral standards; but they must be linked to an awareness that we, too, are fallible. Too often, we do what we do, only because we feel that what others are doing is bad. If this happens, we succeed only in destroying our own personality, as we undermine the integrity of others. No matter how good we think we are, we have not the right to trumpet our own "goodness" — this does no one any "good."

In a word, this is the problem of self-righteousness. We see it at work in small children. They label their efforts right, and are vindictive of those who differ; "they" are always "obviously" wrong! And the sound of self-righteous syllables makes sweet music in their ears, until it mounts to something little short of frenzy. Unless I show them how right I am, they seem to say, "they" will never learn how wrong "they" are!

The trees began to weep when they heard the woodmen coming to cut them down. A voice was heard: "Had you not supplied them with handles, they could do you no harm now with their axes!"



In the long run, we were better off juging ourselves, not others. In the false belief that we are capable of no wrong — only the other fellow is base — we deny ourselves the power that could truly bring rightness to the world. We need to train our sights on improving ourselves, instead of puffing up our egos by attacking others.

Children are incapable of deep introspection — they can only see out, not in. That is why they are children. But altogether too many grown-ups have never really "grown-in," — they, too, can only look around them, not within them.

They are always looking for perfection — in someone else. But they have forgotten that the biggest room in the world, is the room for self-improvement. Without this, righteousness ends up as self-righteousness, which always blames the axe instead of the trees.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

MARSH HILL — The June meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Grace Bartindale, with 13 members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Alex Tanner, the president, called the meeting to order, welcoming everyone, especially the visitors.

The correspondence was read which included a letter from the Canadian Association of Consumers.

The convenors of standing committees reported. Miss Lucy Gay reported on the meeting of the Historical Society which had been held recently in Belleville, Current events were given by each member.

Mrs. Charles Ross convened the following program, which included the Women's Institute Carol, Mrs. Bartindale read, "Blessed Are the Meek" and Gary Mayell favored with two guitar selections.

Mrs. Ross introduced Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Stirling, district president of West Hastings Women's Institute, who was there on her second visit to Pine Grove W.I. She thanked all members for attending the district annual, the officers' conference and the forum.

Mrs. MacMullen spoke on "Institute Procedure." She said that the membership fee should be paid at the annual meeting or as soon after as possible.

The auditors are important officers and they should make sure that everything tallies. Attendance at the meetings is important and should be able to go to a meeting at a minute's notice.

"Are we responding public relations? Are we giving time and thought to this phase of the work? The public expects the officer should keep the branch in touch with the DVHD and ACCW. We should be interested in our own business. Public relations begins with you and me and we should do all we can to promote them."

Mrs. MacMullen also spoke of the Adelaide Hoodless Home and said that it had been furnished to correspond with the time of Adelaide Hoodless.

The "Pennies of Friendship" is a worthwhile project and will be carried on from year to year. A wonderful work is being done in the Northwest Territories.

Mrs. MacMullen closed her address with the reading of "An Anniversary Prayer."

Mrs. Leslie Finkle gave the report of the district annual. Mrs. Charles Ross read "the names of the district officers.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Miss Jane Gay. Mrs. Charles Ross presented Mrs. David Little, a former member, with an aluminum tray.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. Gary Dunzyer and Mrs. Harry Coulter.

SEEK FISHERMEN

TRIVANDRUM, India (Reuter)—Two Indian Navy planes and a frigate carried out a search Tuesday for 27 fishermen missing after a gale which swept the Kerla Coast Monday night.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Monica B. — I want her to stop calling me a slacker.

Ruby G. — Try to get her to serve on any community committee.

Monica B. — Ruby is a neighbor who spearheads the local fund raising drives, and she's a big wheel in school affairs and district politics. She's been spreading rumors that I'm snobbish, indifferent and rude because I've consistently turned down her calls for me to serve on good causes actively. Now I want to have it out openly with her and present my side fairly. With the aid of the Council, maybe she'll stop hounding me. I'm a serious artist. I'm trying to complete sufficient paintings for an exhibition. As a housewife, I must juggle my hours so as to have a block of uninterrupted time for real progress. Once I start to dart hither and yon, I might as well give up. My work will have to be my form of community service for the present.

Ruby G. — That's nice smooth talk, but Monica has no right to sit back and leave the hard spade work to others, especially when what we're struggling for are things she wants and needs for herself and her family.

Why, when we try to sign her for action in behalf of a worthwhile cause, she won't even answer the 'phone or the doorbell! And letters get thrown in her wastebasket. We're lucky to get a dollar bill or two, stuck in an envelope, for a few of her favorite causes.

I don't care how busy a woman is, she can't indulge in temperament at a time like this. We need all hands on deck. Monica's Blue Hero. She's fiddling, too, I guess, while the world toppled.

The Council: Every mature woman has an idea of what's most important to her and what pursuits are essential to her peace of mind. In our society no one has the right to play the one-chord Sonata, viz.,

"Do as I do because you should." Just as Ruby tells Monica she should join in the door-to-door bell-ringing labors, so Monica can insist Ruby should stay home and paint still lifes.

Here we have a head-on collision between two familiar works — that of the creative artist zooming along the crowded and competitive path of Career, and that of the shy, contributing citizen responsive to every community call. But there's no need to collide. The mutual (and ideal) course brings Ruby's and Monica's orbits into a productive overlap.

Of courses women with jobs can, must and should do their bit, too, as volunteers in worthy group endeavors. And that busiest of all women, the full-time "housewife" represented by Ruby, is traditionally the mainstay of all campaigns for social betterment. Computing the value of her selfless diligence, both in and out of the home, would blow the fuse on most wage-and-hour machines.

But a woman with a special talent can serve those a m causes indirectly, too, we hasten to remind Ruby. If she is gifted, she has a duty to that gift. Through it, she can inspire others. And through it, be it ever so she can eventually earn money to donate. As an immediate expression of participation, Monica can offer one of her paintings as a raffle prize.

We urge Monica, however, to be more courteous toward her dogged neighbor. While we agree that she'd get little work done if she let her hours get splintered with interruptions, we suggest that she set aside some time in which she's approachable; also, that she look through her mail! What if there's a cheque in what looks like an "appeal" envelope?

Family Honors Mother's 80th Birthday

Mrs. Hawley was the recipient of several lovely and useful gifts.

Weddings

FERGUSON — JEFFS

RAWDON — Mount-Pleasant-Rawdon United Church was decorated with baskets of pink and white peonies and the guest pews were designated with white satin bows for a pretty double-ring ceremony on June 16th at 3 p.m. when Gaelyn Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffs, Stirling R.R. 3 became the bride of Laverne Jack Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ferguson, Picton.

The Rev. W. G Fletcher B.A. officiated. Mrs. Kenneth Weaver played traditional organ music and accompanied the soloist Miss Mary Ellen David who rendered "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The winsome bride given in marriage by her father was radiant in a cocktail-length dress of embroidered pale blue silk organza over blue silk taffeta and net ,with many crinolines. The dress featured a shirred cummerbund and high neckline, tiny sleeves with tie bows. The shoulders dipped to a V shape at the back. Her matching blue veil was fastened to a rhinestone studded crown. She wore shoulder-length white satin gloves and matching pumps and carried a semi-cascade of white roses.

Miss Raye David was maid of honor attired in a cocktail length dress of blue sheer over figured taffeta., Her headpiece was an arrangement of white flowers and net. She wore white gloves and matching leather pumps and carried a large nosegay of blue and white carnations.

Mr. Jack Stoddart of Hamilton attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the Jeffs home to view the gifts and extend best wishes. The bride's mother received in a dress of figured nylon sheer over blue silk with matching white accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a frock of blue linen with pleated skirt and beige accessories. Both mothers were corsages of white baby 'mums.

A reception followed at the Tops Motor Motel, Belleville, for the immediate family and a few friends. Dr. Wallace Lobb of Toronto proposed a toast to the newlyweds and the bridegroom responded.

The bride chose for travelling to the New England States and Portland, Maine, U.S.A. a candy striped yellow and white sleeveless full cotton dress with embroidered waistband of roses on white nylon. She wore a large brimmed white hat with matching accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

On their return the young couple will reside in Picton.

United Church Women Hold Presbyterial Meet in Trenton

The Belleville Presbyterial Executive of the United Church Women met on the spacious lawn of the president's home, Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, of Trenton, on Tuesday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Smithrim's gracious welcome and nature's beauty provided a most suitable environment in which to conduct the important affairs of United Church Women in this area. Six vice-presidents were in attendance: Mrs. Leslie Finkle, Foxboro; Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Stirling; Mrs. V. A. McMurray, Gilmour; Mrs. Morgan Sills, Ameliasburg; Mrs. J. Wells, Picton, Mrs. Frank Smith, Newburg.

Other members of the executive included Mrs. Andrew Bennie, Picton, recording secretary; Mrs. W. G. Smith, Napanee, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clifford Smith, Belleville, treasurer; Mrs. R. G. Coulter, Belleville, chairman of finance; Mrs. George Carlisle, Stirling, membership development; Mrs. Frank Davidson, Belleville, organization and promotion; Mrs. C. W. Sine, Harold, literature and communications; Mrs. Gerald Vincent, Picton, program.

SPIRITUAL LIFE

Mrs. Smithrim opened the meeting with a brief worship reading from the Book of Romans and a meditation from "Strengthening the Spiritual Life" by Nels. F. S. Ferre. "Only as we worship God can we work for Him to the fullest advantage, guided and constrained by His inclusive concern. Only as we "work" for the common good can we feel the need for worship. Only as we "wait" can we learn that growth does not depend upon us, but upon Him, who gives the increase. Pray we must, study we must, give we must, but above all we must find our lives bathed in the rality of God's faithfulness.

As we worship, work, and wait, we shall become surprised that, as God becomes more and more real, we may come to feel ourselves less and less worthy and able. But others will find strength and help from us and tell how great and strength increasingly characterize our spiritual life.

LIFE'S VALUES CHANGED

"All of life's values will become steadily changed. Though we cannot ourselves understand why and how the fever of life is over, and we experience a healing and well-being beyond our deserts."

A review of the recent regional rallies indicated that all regions have invitations for rallies again next year. Picton U.C.W. also invited the annual meeting to their Church in October.

Mrs. C. W. Sine reported excellent sales of literature at the rallies and announced that next year's study will be on the "Rim of East Asia" by Boyd.

Mrs. W. G. Smith was asked to do considerable correspondence, and express gratitude to Miss Millicent Howse, who was guest speaker at the regional rallies. She also asked the executive to accept a shared responsibility in the manse cottage on the historical Hay Bay Church property.

PROGRAMS GIVEN OUT

The programs for School for United Church Women were given the Regional presidents to forward to their local organizations. The School will be held at the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, August 20-24th. Three members of the executive anticipate attending as no delegates were appointed except that Mrs. Frank Smith, Newburg, will represent Mrs. Smithrim at the Conference executive meeting to be held at the School.

Mr. R. H. Smithrim, Clare Catherine and Ross barbecued chicken and served a most delicious supper on the lawn.

Mrs. George Carlisle, Stirling, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the president for her undivided attention to the matters of the United Church Women Belleville Presbyterial and to her husband and family for all their generous and gracious hospitality.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

Whats Your E.Q.?

When an invitation has to be refused it should be handled as graciously as an acceptance. Are you correct as well as tactful? Check here and see:

1. How soon after receiving an invitation should a refusal be given?

A. When turning down an invitation, must an excuse be given?

3. Should all refusals be in writing?

4. If there is no R.S.V.P. on the invitation, must a refusal be sent?

5. How should a refusal be given over the telephone?

6. What form is used in replying to a formal invitation?

7. To whom should a written refusal be addressed?

8. May a visiting card correctly be used to send regrets?

9. May an invitation be refused tentatively, with the option of accepting at a later date, if possible?

10. Is it necessary to follow up refusal of an invitation with a note of apology?

ANSWERS:

1. If there's no question about it, refuse immediately. If you need time to think it over, an answer should be delayed no more than a day or two at most.

2. Yes, and this applies both to formal and informal invitations.

3. Only if the invitation was extended in writing. However, an informal written acceptance may be refused over the phone.

4. Not necessarily, but it shows consideration for the hostess if it is.

5. It is preferable to give a refusal directly to the hostess. But if she's not at home, a message may be left with a responsible member of the household — certainly not with a child — and an explanation given.

6. Regrets are expressed formally in the third person, to correspond with the wording of the invitation. Regrets should be written on plain white stationery in dark blue or black ink.

7. To the hostess.

8. Yes, if the invitation is informal. The name is crossed off and the message written on the face of the card. No salutation is used but the note is signed with the sender's first name.

9. This is awkward, and still leaves the hostess up in the air in making her plans. If there's doubt about whether an invitation can be accepted, it's more considerate to refuse from the start.

10. No. Regrets are expressed when the invitation is refused, so an additional note is unnecessary.

Weddings

McQUIGGE—HULSMANS

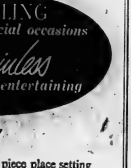
MARMORA — A pretty wedding took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, when the Rev. F. F. Downing united in marriage Margaret Lorraine, daughter of Mrs. Louis Hulsmans of Marmora and the late Mr. Hulsmans to Ronald Wayne McQuigge, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McQuigge of Shartot Lake.

Mrs. G. Gowling was organist for the occasion.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Fred Hulsmans of Toronto, was gowned in a floor-length dress of white French lace and sat trimmed with a square neckline studded with imported seed pearls and appliques and having long, slip-point sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was caught with a princess tiara, and she carried a bouquet of red and white summer flowers and maiden hair ferns.

Miss Shirley Schouits of Thetford was maid of honor and wore a pale blue nylon street-length dress with matching headdress of nylon roses.

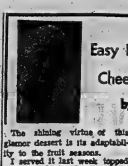
The flower girl, Barbara Ann Hulsmans, Toronto, was dainty in a bright yellow dress of nylon with matching headdress. They both carried bouquets of red and white peony buds and maiden hair ferns.



Mr. Robert McQuigge of Queensboro, brother of the bridegroom was groomsman, and the ushers were Ross McQuigge and Ronald Tokely, also of Queensboro.

The reception was held in the Anglican white hall where a buffet lunch was served.

Guests were present from Bannockburn, Belleville, Deloro, Georgetown, Madoc, Scarborough, Shartot Lake, Peterborough and Toronto.



For their wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride chose a green and white arnel dress with white accessories. On their return they will reside on North Hastings Avenue, Skaimore.

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. McQuigge was the recipient of a miscellaneous shower by employees of Joe's Lunch at Shartot Lake and a linen shower by former high school mates of Marmora, when Mrs. Franklin Smith was hostess.

Easy Elegant Excellence

Cheesecake-Type Pie

by Mary Moore

The shining virtue of this glamor dessert is its adaptability to the fruit seasons.

I served it last week topped with glazed strawberries while they were plentiful accompanied by a companion pie topped with glazed Mandarin oranges.

This glazed fruit topping may be used for nearly all of the fruits coming into season from now on: sweet cherries, raspberries, loganberries, early and late peaches, apricots, and plums.

Today I will give you the strawberry and the Mandarin orange or version and because this is exceptionally good will try it as their seasons begin, with the other fruits I've mentioned and pass on the methods to you. Hostesses take heed — this is a beauty.

Dinner Menus

CHEESECAKE PIE (3 colorful versions — Strawberry and Mandarin Orange):

2 cups finely rolled Graham wafer crumbs (half of one 12½-oz. box), 3 tablespoons melted butter, ¼ cup white cream cheese (room temperature. Buy one ½-lb. package and one 3-oz. package), 2 eggs, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla or rum flavoring (or ½ tablespoon rum), 1½ cups dairy sour cream, 1-3 cup sugar.

Mix together the graham wafer crumbs and melted butter and pack firmly and neatly into a 9" glass pie plate, bringing crumbs well up on sides and pressing edge with finger tip to make it smooth. Beat white cream cheese (preferably in electric mixer) until smooth, then add whole eggs and beat. Cool briefly. Then chill in refrigerator. Top with either of the following Glazed Fruit Toppings: 1) Strawberry: Wash and hull 1 qt. perfect strawberries. Dry them. Arrange them closely, pointed end up, on top of chilled pie. Cover with Transparent Red Glaze: Cook together until sugar dissolves. One cup crushed berries, ¾ cup sugar, ¾ cup water. Strain. (Should yield 1½ cups of juice.) Mix together 1 2-3 tablespoons arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) and 2 tablespoons cold water. Stir this into hot juice in top of double boiler. Cook, stirring until clear and thick. Flavor with rum or almond extract if desired. Add plenty of red color. Drizzle over berries and between berries. Chill and serve cold. 2) Mandarin Orange: Drain 2 cans Mandarin oranges well. Dry and arrange in pretty concentric circles on chilled pie. Pour over Transparent Orange Glaze: Cook together until sugar dissolves ¾ cup canned orange juice (from canned Mandarin oranges) and ½ cup sugar. Stir in paste, made of 1 2-3 tablespoons arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) and 2 tablespoons cold water, in top of double boiler until thick and clear. Add enough orange food coloring to make this bright orange. Drizzle over orange sections on pie and chill.

U.C.W. Meetings

SCOTTS U.C.W.

THE SUNNEY — Scott's United Church Women met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard on the evening of June 21st with 12 ladies present.

The president, Mrs. Carman Frost, gave the call to worship, Mrs. Allan Sine accompanied the hymns on her harp.

Mrs. Edison Sine read the 39th Psalm, Mr. Cooper remarked that women are the backbone of the church, and read a message from moderator, Dr. McLeod: "As a result of the population explosion, when our number of Christians increase the percentage of Christians has decreased." He brought his message from Matthew 28:18-20. The M. and M. fund of the church is used for overseas work and also at home. He spoke of the scarcity of ministers, stating that 225 ministers are needed this year alone, to fill vacancies in this conference. He suggested that M. and M. money be paid in regularly and use be made of the duplex envelopes.

The roll call showed 31 calls and been made and 32 cards sent during the past month. Mrs. Cooper presented a record by Rev. Robert Morris, prayer said at the Conference for the Board of Men at Elgin House, Keswick, entitled, "Man You're Sick!" This certainly presents a challenge to all church members.

Mrs. J. Cooper and Mrs. M. Sine presented a few highlights from the UCW regional meeting held recently at Mount Pleasant Church in Rawdon.

After the meeting closed the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Mr., Mrs. Alex Rattray Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

CONSECON — Many gifts together with messages of congratulations and good wishes from distinguished citizens and friends were showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Alex Rattray, Consecon on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary. Included were messages from Her Majesty, the Queen; Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Ontario Premier, John Robarts.

Evidence of the place Mr. and Mrs. Rattray held in the community was shown by the lovely flowers and gifts which were presented at the reception held in Kingerly Hall. Hillier Women's Institute came in a body and presented a bouquet of carnations in a crystal bowl, Mrs. Rattray being a charter member.

Quinte Chapter No. 59 O.E.S., of which Mrs. Rattray has been a member for 25 years, also presented a crystal bowl.

Mrs. Irene Alyea and Mrs. Verna Young made this presentation.

ADDRESSES GIVEN

The address stated in part, it is indeed a pleasure for members of O.E.S. of Quinte chapter to share in this happy occasion:

We have travelled the road together
That leads to our eastern star
The service and friendship you've given
Have made our members richer by far.
You have graced our order as chaplain
Your Scotch readings have delighted us too
The years have fled by all too quickly
Having shared them with someone like you."

The Rev. D. Pipe gave a short "This Is Your Life" address and Nancy Carnrike presented Mr. and Mrs. Rattray with a sunburst clock and Jane Carnrike presented the card of congratulations from the community.

During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Rattray welcomed their friends at their home and in the evening at the hall. Many took the opportunity to come and felicitate the popular couple.

Mrs. William Rattray, wife of their youngest son, welcomed the guests at the door.

PRETTY TEA TABLE

The tea table was centred with the anniversary cake and flanked by silver candelabra and bouquets of pink roses and carnations.

Mrs. Rattray received, wearing a lilac flowered jersey dress with white orchid corsage and Mrs. Rattray a dark suit with white carnation boutonniere.

The guests of honor were seated in antique red plush chairs flanked by favourites filled with white mums.

Serving refreshments were Vera Southorn, Hilda Alyea, Marian Carnrike, Sally Cuyler, Irene Alyea, Cheryl Rattray, Nancy and Jane Carnrike, Marllyn Clark, Mrs. A. Rattray, Mrs. Charles Rattray and Mabel Rattray.

A lace tablecloth was presented to Mrs. Rattray as a birthday gift on June 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Rattray were married in Lochee, Scotland, by the Rev. William May on June 6, 1902. Their attendants were Mary Fleming and William Laing, who later moved to New Zealand. Mrs. Rattray, nee Jane Eyre, daughter of Agnes and Thomas Eyre, was born on June 9, 1882. Mr. Rattray was born on April 6, 1883. He was the son of Mary and Alexander Rattray.

Her early life was spent at Port Glasgow, while his native heath was Kirrmuir. They lived at Lochee before coming to Canada. Mr. Rattray came to Canada in 1906 and worked on a farm at Croydon, later bringing out his family and moving to Hillier where he engaged in coopp.

railroading, and then to Consecon.

JOINED ARMY

Mr. Rattray joined the army for service in 1914-18, serving overseas. He was awarded the Military Medal. He is a past Master of Consecon Lodge A.F. and AM No. 50. He was also employed with the RCAF and continued after his retirement as a commissionnaire for five years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rattray are members of Consecon United Church. She is a life member of the UCW and, for 40 years, a member of the choir. They have proven ideal citizens in every respect.

The family consists of three sons, Alex of St. Clair Shores, Michigan; Charles of Wisconsin and Bert of Consecon.

Mrs. David Steen, Wellington, is a sister of Mr. Rattray, while Mrs. Rattray also has a sister, Mrs. Ina Coulter, in Lochee, Scotland. There are ten grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren.

In addition to members of their family, who were present from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Guthrie, of Elgin; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Wood, of Brighton; Mrs. William Steenburg and Mr. and Mrs. F. French, of Trenton.

INTERESTING FEATURE

An interesting feature at the lunch hour saw Mrs. Rattray wearing a bonnet belonging to Maggie Holmes, of Hillier, and Mr. Rattray wearing a tall silk hat as all sang "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnett".

Mr. and Mrs. Rattray gracefully expressed their appreciation for the gifts.

Before the guests departed everyone sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again".

Dreams of Becoming Actress

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have sat in solitary meditation for hours, thinking over how to become an actress. How does one get one's hopes off the ground?

It's not the money or glamor, but for the reason that I would like to add something to my country through this field. I would like to act in a play which is basically the story of a teen-ager who is trying to go straight but is caught in the clutches of wrong and faces the world in a rebellious way.

I saw this happen to a girl and I would like to try to show people the harm they can do when they turn against someone like that. They make them worse than they ever would be with a little understanding.

I would like to receive all possible information about acting in Canada.—HOPEFUL ACTRESS.

DEAR HOPEFUL—Well, a girl can dream. The theme is certainly one which needs a champion. The girl gone wrong suffers the tortures of the damned.

But your ambition is just about unattainable. First somebody has to write the play, which means research, consultation and social workers, skill in drama writing.

Then a play producer has to take to it. He has to find other actors and actresses who can dramatize it. And an audience to look at it.

One little theatre member I know says an actor can't make a living in Canada. There are no legitimate theatres except in our largest cities. As for TV or radio, the actors who have made good in this country can be counted on one hand. You need unlimited money to even begin to break into the market.

Get your education. Take up acting as a hobby. And don't be disappointed if you have to settle for social work as a way of championing social outcasts.

TO MRS. J.—Relatives of the bride do not give showers for her. Your best plan would be to give a reception.

Since these are intimate friends and relatives, write out a friendly, informal invitation something like this: "As you know, Mary was married a few weeks ago to John Jones. I am having a dinner for our newlyweds at our home on July 14th. Could you come and help us celebrate?

tion member Leslie Frost on jail charges.

4. OPP Const. John W. Moore of the anti-gambling squad admitted that during the years spied members had played the "numbers" and "nabs" game openly in their office here. though he not officially suggested, that the banker had been Robert J. Wright, convicted this year of Mr. Merrett and Feeley of conspiring to obtain police information illegally.

5. Moore also said he had been a member of former Const. Cecil Jones, Frank Armstrong, now with the anti-highgrade squad at Kleinlaud Lake, who testified Monday that Mr. Merrett failed to get him to "join the ball team" as a lookout on gambling raids.

6. Commission counsel Roland E. Wilson said after Wadeson's motion that it now appears McDermott and Feeley will not testify before the commission adjourns Friday for a summer recess until late August or early September.

EVIDENCE MOUNTS

A huge volume of the 3,000-page transcript of evidence to date has been building up for the examination of the two Hamilton gamblers, and Feeley made a brief appearance recently only to have his testimony cut off when he objected to giving evidence that might incriminate him.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled last week that he must testify, but he has not been called since as the counsels for the Merrett-Feeley Social Club.

Liberal party counsel H. J. McCordick was the optimistic lawyer who has had the unpleasant task of trying to have some connection with the Mafia, widespread crime syndicate.

The Morningstar letter, found in OPP files overnight after it had been mentioned in testimony Tuesday of Chief Inspector Scott, said Nero had worked for the Welland member in electrics and described him as industrious, intelligent, honest and talented, adding he would be a "benefit to your community."

AS A FOUND-IN

But Chief Insp. Harold Graham, head of the OPP criminal investigation branch, testified before the date of the letter Nero had been convicted as a found-in a gaming house and since then had been convicted as bookie in the Niagara area and was a fugitive from a 1958 indictment at Newark, N.J., on charge of possessing smuggled platinum.

The OPP know of his whereabouts, but the offence is not an extraditable one. It was not indicated whether he will be called at the inquiry, but Mr. Justice Roach, the commissioner, said more evidence will be brought in as to his activities.

Nero was charged with Alfred Rose, a former steward of the Ramsey Gambling Club at Niagara Falls, Ont., when both skipped bail.

Mr. Morningstar is the first sitting legislator to be called in under such circumstances Earlier another peninsula man, former Conservative legislature member Arthur G. Jolley of Niagara Falls—was asked for an explanation of McDermott-Feeley testimonials he had written while in office, and he said he had just signed some routine "brie phrases," perhaps at the request of his friend James Maloney.

References to the late Mr. Maloney Wednesday pictured the former minister—a lawyer —as interfering energetically in law enforcement in his home constituency before and after he became minister in 1958.

DOESN'T RECALL

Former Crown attorney Welsh said he had tried to use his "influence" in a number of cases. But he did not recall telling reporter Ruth Worth of the Toronto Globe and Mail, as suggested by Mr. MacKinnon, that for quite a time "because you had a conscience and wanted to be able to sleep nights."

"I didn't care for the Crown attorney's work particularly," was his non-committal answer.

Mr. MacKinnon asked whether the witness had not told Miss Worth last summer that Mr. Maloney had threatened to have Magistrate W. K. McGregor —before whom Mr. Maloney as a defence lawyer had won 23 of 24 cases—removed if he "did not do as he was told."

Mr. Welsh did not recall this but said he often felt that the magistrate did not "discipline" Mr. Maloney enough.

"He was frightened of Mr. Maloney" the Liberal counsel suggested.

"I don't know—you'll have to ask Mr. McGregor."

CITES CASES

Mr. Welsh cited these cases while he was Crown attorney:

1. After Mr. Maloney became a member of the legislature an indecent assault case in which he was defending Garnet Weckworth was adjourned for 18 months. When a hearing date finally was set, Mr. Maloney and Eric Silk, assistant deputy attorney - general, telephoned him from Toronto for an adjournment, the latter saying Premier Frost wanted Mr. Maloney in Toronto for a legislature committee meeting. The adjournment was granted. The accused eventually was convicted.

2. A Roman Catholic priest, who was not named, was charged with impaired driving, and Mr. Maloney, then minister, wanted the charge withdrawn. The case was prosecuted and a conviction entered. Mr. Welsh was "expelled" at the minister's action.

3. A doctor charged with impaired driving failed twice to turn up in court, and a bench warrant was issued for him. Mr. Maloney had talked of "exposing" the prosecutor for picking on the doctor serving the community.

4. When the Crown appealed an acquittal on a drunk driving charge in which Mr. Maloney had been trial counsel, Mr. Welsh was told by the attorney-general's department not to bring in new evidence at the retrial. Later, Deputy Attorney-General A. B. Common told the prosecutor Mr. Maloney had spoken to him.

LANGUAGE BOOST

Insp. Whitty, stationed at Perth, said Mr. Maloney had used rough language in 1959 when he refused to declare a new election moratorium on Highway Traffic Act charges and return seized pinball machines to Samuel Cooper, his political associate, until election day.

The minister had described his force as "a lot of ——— eager beavers."

Following six convictions, despite the six machines were ordered but subsequently held up by OPP headquarters after three had been destroyed. About a year later, the remaining three were destroyed.

Prosecutions were not pressed in the other cases—for which Mr. Welsh took responsibility—and some 23 machines were returned to owners with a magistrate's warning they were not to be used in Renfrew.

Mr. Justice Roach expressed some doubt as to whether the jury had this power.

About two years ago, Insp. Whitty said, Mr. Maloney had threatened to have his district inspectorship "terminated" because he would not ease up on Renfrew truck drivers overloading on provincial government work, but had quickly told him to forget it.

His recommendation for the transfer of the debt-ridden constable—whose lenders included a former convict—had been blocked after Mr. Maloney spoke on his behalf, but he said he had the man moved after the minister's death last year.

RESERVE MEMO

During the day, the commission received a copy of a memorandum written last year by lawyer Scott after he had helped prosecute in the McDermott-Feeley-Wright police corruption trial, stating the attorney-general's department was preventing "real action" against the subsequently-closed McDargon-Feeley gaming club at nearby Cooksville.

It was this memo—contained information then secret but since made public before the commission—which Mr. Scott had been trying unsuccessfully to get before the then premier, and which led indirectly to his being investigated by Scotland Yard.

Mr. Scott had sent a copy to Charles Lloyd Leader of Westernmeyer and, when its return was delayed in the mails, he had asked the OPP to investigate the possibility it had been tampered with by gamblers.

Chief Insp. Graham testified he found there had been no tampering but he reported the matter to Attorney - General Wishart Spence, who subsequently told him in a complaint to Metropolitan Toronto police, the lawyer had said he was making a private investigation of "corruption" in Mr. Roberts' department.

GETS CLEAN BILL

The attorney - general promptly set Scotland Yard looking into Welsh-born Mr. Scott's own background in the United Kingdom. He got a clean bill.

Former Sgt. Cronin's return to the stand after an interval of miscellaneous other testimony was marked by denials of a string of allegations by Shrubb, in testimony several weeks ago, that the one-time head of the gambling squad tried to get him to work for McDermott and Feeley.

"Absolutely fictitious," was his general designation of the testimony respecting a series of overtures to Shrubb, now chief of police at Peterborough, who had quoted Cronin as saying Shrubb could amass the down payment on a good-sized motel in a year.

"It would be impossible to get down payment on a motel in one year," Cronin said.

"I had the secret of how to save money and get into the motel business," observed commission counsel Wilson, in reference to his buying into a motel after retirement at the age of 45.

"That was done over 30 years," Cronin replied. "What I did, any honest, sincere person could do."

Electeurs, the founding movement of Social Credit in Quebec that broke away when Mr. Caouette formed his Ralliement des Creditistes in 1958.

The circular said the winner of the election was "not Caouette, who is not Social Credit" and urged members to demand a 325 monthly government dividend for citizens.

It also advised them that the union will hold its general convention here July 1 and invited all to attend.

Mr. Caouette was not amused.

"The white berets have spat in our face with vulgar effrontery," he said of the circular. "Our movement has never been seen with the berets of Gilberte Cote-Mercier and we don't wish to have this jealous person within our ranks."

Mrs. Cote-Mercier is leader of l'Union des Electeurs, whose members are distinguished by their white berets and the white flag of the movement.

Future of Monorail Travel Bright Result of Success At Seattle World's Fair

By JIM PEACOCK

SEATTLE (CP) — The sleek blue and red trains of the Alweg monorail whisk thousands of passengers daily between downtown Seattle and the World's Fair, a 1.2 - mile trip that takes 96 seconds.

Fair - goers, thrill - seekers and just plain curious are paying a merry tune of profits at the system's ticket windows, the operators say, making a $4,500,000 experiment highly successful financially.

There is success, too, in relieving traffic congestion near the fair grounds — as parking-lot operators, their lots half empty much of the time, will tersify.

Interest in the monorail system is high and almost daily someone is studying it with the critical eye of a man responsible for rapid public transit.

Whether monorail is the solution to rapid - transit problems of North America's metropolitan areas remains to be seen. That it will be tried in at least a few regions seems almost certain.

SOON PAID FOR

Alweg Rapid Transit Systems of Washington State, which built the system here, says monorail is the best and most economical means of providing rapid public transit today.

Some transit authorities from North American cities agree, and others say it definitely is not.

In any case, it may be stated positively that the gamble here in the heart of Seattle's Skid Row the World's Fair because the cost will be paid in full by the time the fair ends in October and the fair will take possession of the Seattle Center site for the operators, because it will have been built and demonstrate for transit authorities showing interest."

The experimental nature of the system here gives it the aspects of a hand-made project. Alweg spokesman Bill Tanier says many of its details would not apply or be comparable to those in a working, full - scale rapid - transit system.

Wegematic Corporation of New York, parent firm of Alweg of Washington State and North American patent - rights holder, wanted a working model to provide the first practical test of monorail potential in the United States.

COST $4,500,000

Century 21 Incorporated, organizing the World's Fair, wanted means to lessen traffic problems.

Alweg agreed to construct the two - train system at cost of $4,000,000. The fair agreed to set aside 35 cents from each $20 fair admission toward recovering the cost, the balance to be paid from fares — 75 cents round trip, 30 cents one way. When it is paid off, Century 21 takes possession.

The trains carried 179,000 passengers before anyone could get off inside the fair grounds. In the first month of the fair, 1,000,000 one - way fares were carried.

Quick cost recovery here results in large part because of the special nature of the Seattle area. A metropolitan area installing monorail could not expect to pay for itself within six months.

"But we believe it is the least expensive rapid-transit system now available," said Mr. Tanier.

Engineers estimate, he said, that on a full-scale monorail system serving the public in a metropolitan area, the cost would average between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 a mile, including construction of the overhead beamway and acquisition of all running stock.

SIDEWAYS COST MORE

This estimate does not include cost of obtaining right-of-way, but Alweg says little expense should be involved in this aspect since the monorail can use existing street systems without interfering in any degree with motor vehicle traffic.

Some estimates of comparable subway costs run to $25,000,000 a mile. Toronto's 4½ - mile Yonge Street subway cost $35,500,000, including running stock, when it was built in 1954.

In Los Angeles, estimated cost of a 12.5-mile subway is a minimum of $200,000,000, not including running equipment.

Los Angeles is one of the many cities studying the Seattle monorail. The California city, Anaheim and Tel Aviv have requested firm proposals from Alweg and Boston is giving the system serious consideration.

Mr. Tanier said men from Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver also have been inquiring about the monorail operation.

"Most reaction has been favorable. Some have been lukewarm about it and some have been hostile. But we believe it is the best available answer to rapid transit. It is the most economical and the fastest to build. It takes longer to put the trains together than to build the right-of-way."

WON AWARD

The Seattle system was completed in 10 months, using three-foot-wide and five-foot-high prestressed and precast concrete beamways set atop T-shaped pylons of reinforced concrete four feet square at the base. Street traffic moves freely beneath the pylons and beams, 15 and 18 feet, respectively, above ground.

The two two-section cars in each train are 10 feet wide and 122 feet long, with seating capacity of 124 and maximum capacity of 450 each. Running at 40 to 45 miles an hour—the trains can go 70—the system can carry 10,000 passengers an hour.

Transit experts from many large American and Canadian cities have visited Seattle to study the experimental operation. (CP from AP).

MONORAIL STUDIED — This monorail carries passengers between downtown Seattle and the World's Fair, a distance of 1.3 miles, in 96 seconds and is capable of travelling 70 miles an hour.

Mark Storie suffered a stroke on Tuesday at his home. He was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital for tests, then allowed to return home, where his condition has improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Wally Jackson, Allison and Valerie, Oshawa, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pethrick. Mrs. Jackson and her daughters remained for a week with her mother.

William Morton and Bob were Sunday guests of his son, Jack, his wife and family at Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby, Springbrook, visited their niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Jones on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Estella Gibson, Campbellford is spending a few days with her daughters, Mrs. Ralph Heath and Mrs. Walter Reid, their husbands and families and visiting other relatives and friends, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Eckert, Toronto were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart and Cathy.

The Junior High School grades from Stirling High School are away to school this morning to hear their verdicts. All hope the verdict is "not guilty."

Mrs. Bob Bonnalla, Harold and her daughter, Mrs. Dick Moore were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barton on Wednesday.

Polls Reveal More Britons Oppose 'Market'

LONDON (Reuters) — The Daily Express said today public opinion polls have revealed an increasing number of British people are against this country joining the European Common Market.

Lord Beaverbrook's independent right-wing paper said in an editorial:

"In the national opinion poll published in The Daily Mail (A Conservative London news paper) 43.2 per cent of those who were questioned are against Britain joining the Common Market, and only 28.2 per cent are in favor of it.

"This is a complete reversal of the position as it was in April. And it bears out the findings of The Daily Express poll of public opinion published in June 16. This showed that support for the Common Market had slumped sharply since February."

"Public opinion polls are of course, subject to error," The Express added. "But taken as a guide to the way people are thinking, they show that more and more of the public are against Britain being tied up with Europe."

The Express has consistently opposed British entry in the six-member European trade group.

FEAR HAZARD

WINCHESTER, England (CP) — The government plans to store gas in a subterranean area at this city and residents don't like the idea. Part of the underground storage, to hold natural gas imported from the Sahara, runs below some of Winchester's historical buildings and many feel they might be damaged.

Chartered Banks to Introduce high-speed electronic cheque handling:

0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 : ⑈ ⑈ ⑈

These odd-looking digits and symbols will soon become quite common in many parts of Canada.

When imprinted on the bottom of a bank cheque in magnetic ink, they form a language that an electronic machine will read as it performs various sorting operations in the cheque-clearing process.

This new method, called MICR—Magnetic Ink Character Recognition—is still another step in the long evolution of banking from the days of the quill pen and hand-posted ledgers. It makes possible a faster, more accurate service to customers. It will not replace people; it will assist them, freeing them for more interesting tasks in banking.

You will make out and use cheques as you do now. Corporation and other bank customers who print their own cheques will, however, need to be sure these conform to the new sizes and specifications required for electronic processing.

The new electronic cheque sorters will be located at first in centres handling large volumes of cheques.

Some of the new-style cheques are in use now—you may have seen them. Within the next few months, the volume of these encoded cheques will increase, some printed by the banks, others by bank customers.

When MICR is in full operation the chartered banks will be better equipped than ever to perform the series of operations needed to clear each of the one billion cheques that Canadians write each year.

Things You'll Want to Know About Seattle World's Fair

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you are among the 14 out of every 1,000 people who suffer from pogic idocy, it may be a sign you are too conscientious.

The ailment strikes often among worried persons who have a high sense of duty.

The surprise is far smarter than a monkey, dog or cat . . . One reason for his intelligence: He has a larger brain than a Harvard sophomore.

Thought for today: If you had a billion bucks in one - dollar bills, it would make a stack 69 miles high . . . But probably not for very long.

Pastidious: Even in captivity the raccoon usually won't eat meat until he has first washed it in water . . . That's why this animal always lives near a stream or pond . . . Its name comes from an Indian word meaning "he washes."

If you don't have enough personal troubles to worry about, here is something you can brood over: Scientists believe that gravity is the force that holds the world together, is gradually getting weaker.

Good excuse: Pregnant women aren't merely being temperamental when they complain of being tired . . . To care for their unborn baby's needs, their heart pumps a third more blood than before.

The three things people fib about most are: (1) Their age; (2) The number of times they go to church, and (3) How often they brush their teeth.

Unusual philanthropist: Art C. Moth, general manager of Freedomland Amusement Park here, makes a habit of dropping a coin in the street every day . . . His explanation: "Whoever finds it will be happy all day long."

History lesson: The revulsion against monarchy was so widespread after the American Revolution that playing card manufacturers banned the four kings from their decks, and replaced them with portraits of George Washington.

Science has found a new use for wild deer . . . Their antlers serve as effective fallout lures that gravitate to them in the presence of poisonous strontium 90.

Jargon Sample Of Language Used on Road

TORONTO (CP)—When the rumor in the sick parade picks up the loot and goes south it's as bad as having a boomer in your midst.

Need a translation? So did delegates to a summer course on alcohol, sponsored by the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario.

Prof. P. J. Giffen, University of Toronto department of sociology, supplied the terminology and the translation. He explained that the jargon is a sampling of the language used by Toronto's Skid Road denizens.

Rummer: The man chosen by his drinking buddies to get the bottle, towards which all have contributed; sick parade: The lineup waiting for the liquor store to open; goes south: Skipped with the money, and boomer: A drinker who guzzles more than he pays for.

Prof. Giffen also spoke of a code of ethics within the drinking population, whereby a sick man — one suffering from the lack of alcohol—was always offered the first drink.

Television Seen in Britain 'Trivial, Vapid, Puerile and Cheaply Sensational' Report

LONDON (CP) — An official investigating body says much of the television seen in Britain is "trivial, vapid, puerile and cheaply sensational," and says something should be done about it.

The Pilkington commission, which sat to work 15 months ago, said Wednesday that viewers were fed up with the "second, unsavory and repetitive programs" offered. It also found out commercial television for most blame.

The publicly-owned BBC is doing a pretty good job, the commission said in its 356-page report. But the 13 companies involved in the commercial independent network were growing fat on the "excessive" profits of an inferior service.

One cause of criticism was the amount of TV time occupied by programs produced in the United States. The report condemned the poor quality of the product and the values depicted by U.S.-made shows.

It said U.S. material accounted for about 10 per cent of the BBC's total TV output. Foreign material totalled about 24 per cent.

ASKS THIRD CHANNEL

The report recommended a third channel, to be operated by the BBC, and said work on establishing it should begin as soon as possible. There now are two channels, one BBC and one commercial. Both cover almost all of Britain, except for a fringe in England and the Scottish Highlands.

The report fell like a bombshell on the entertainment and financial worlds — the latest streamer headlines in evening newspapers.

By the end of the day £5,500,000 ($15,995,000) was wiped off the market value of shares in the leading commercial television companies.

The 11-man committee headed by wealthy glass manufacturer Sir Harry Pilkington in its condemnation of commercial TV suggested that its present structure should be dismantled.

WILL CAUSE HOWL

The committee's theory about how this should be done will cause the greatest howl among the pro-commercial lobby and backbench Conservatives who already have charged that the plan would amount to "nationalization" of private TV.

The report is not binding on the government but will be the cornerstone of a white paper on the subject to be issued in the House of Commons within the next few months.

The committee studied broadcasting in both Canada and the United States during the 18 months it took to prepare its report.

Judging from the report, the group was not impressed with developments on the other side of the Atlantic. It said:

"Experience in the United Wass that competition resulted in a concentration on those kinds of programs which produced the largest audiences—in imitation rather than diversity."

FACES A BATTLE

Prime Minister Macmillan's government faces a full-scale battle as a result of the publication of the report.

Macmillan and his colleagues are expected to announce acceptance of a number of the technical recommendations in the report within the next couple of weeks.

But the consensus is the government will not be prepared to announce its reactions to proposals that commercial television be revamped.

Britain's national newspapers give some indication of the nature of the battle ahead. Most of columns aimed barbs at the government - sponsored commission.

"Pilkington tells the public to go to hell," read the banner headline in the Tabloid Daily Mirror.

IS CRITICAL

The story under it was sharply critical of the Pilkington recommendation that a regional broadcasting and television authority should take over the task of planning programs and selling advertising from commercial companies.

"You can't have the TV programs which a two-thirds majority of you prefer," the story adds. "You must have a different setup controlled by the government."

The Daily Herald's front-page headline reads: "Hell for ITV (Commercial Television), halo for the BBC."

In an editorial, the newspaper defends the existence of commercial television.

"If the independent television has done nothing else, it has livened up the BBC," the editorial contends. "This competition must not be endangered.

Supervisors of Playgrounds Are Receiving Instruction At Camp at Quin-Mo-Lac

With primary school classes ended for the summer holiday on Friday over 1,500 Belleville youngsters will trek to city playgrounds on Tuesday, July 3rd.

That is the day when the 31 playgrounds operated by the Belleville Recreation Committee will open and 24 playground leaders will be wearying hard to keep the kiddies interested and out of mommy's hair for the next eight weeks.

But before the city playgrounds open, the playground leaders themselves are getting in a little instruction at the Earl Central Ontario playground supervisors' camp being held this week at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac on the south shore of Moira Lake, near Madoc.

There are 138 playground leaders from centres ranging from Oshawa to Cornwall at the Moira Lake Camp. They went into camp last Sunday afternoon and will spend their bonne towns Friday afternoon, when they return to their playground duties next week.

At Camp Quin-Mo-Lac the playground leaders are getting instruction from a staff of 30 recreational directors and their assistants in the art of keeping townsfeet from six to 16 years old interested from nine until five, five days a week.

And that is quite a job!

DORAN IN CHARGE

This year's playground leaders' camp is under the direction of Lloyd "Red" Doran, recreational director for the city of Belleville. Playground leaders from this part of Ontario have been going to Camp Quin-Mo-Lac since 1952, with last year's quota of approximately 170 being the highest number in the 10-year history of the camp.

Oshawa has the largest group in the camp this year with 28 leaders. Peterborough is next in line with well over 20, Belleville has 24 leaders but only 16, all first-year leaders, went to the Moira Lake camp.

Leaders are given instruction in the different phases of playground activities. Simple arts and crafts easily understood by the kiddies, are taught, while instruction is also given in active and individual games and contests and in singing games.

EXCEPT 1500 HERE!

Camp director Lloyd Doran feels that an average of 1,500 kiddies in Belleville will start trekking to the city playgrounds next week, while throughout the district represented by the 138 playground leaders now at camp, anywhere up to 15,000 youngsters may be involved in playground activities, this summer.

Mr. Doran noted that playground activities in this part of Ontario were filling an important role in summer activities for the kiddies.

"This year he has plans for expanding the playground activities role to include track and field competition for the older children, who have a tendency to tire of regular playground activities.

"School children get track and field activities only during the month of May at school and I have hopes of continuing this on through the summer," noted Mr. Doran.

The track and field activities would possibly be held at the fair grounds and another central location and would be in charge of the male members of the playground leaders' staff.

Vietnamese Govt. Units Show Little Power Against Guerrillas in Delta Region

Editor's note: AP Correspondent Conrad Fink accompanied Vietnamese government units on their two-day offensive against guerrilla units in South Viet Nam's delta region.

By CONRAD FINK

SAIGON (AP) — A four-day major land-air-water offensive against pro-Communist guerrilla jungle strongholds ended Wednesday in exhaustion and fruit rich for government troops. They claimed little concrete military success.

The government reported 43 Viet Cong rebels were killed and 26 captured by the 2,300-man South Viet Nam task force that struck at three areas suspected in the Mekong River delta region 50 miles south of Saigon. There were no official estimates of government losses.

Government forces were backed up by U.S. helicopters, naval units and 40 U.S. military advisers.

The elusive rebels managed to keep one jump ahead of Vietnamese troops and sought only delaying battles.

U.S. advisers said one objective of the offensive was to clear the area of guerrillas. Although this failed, American aid brought the controversial U.S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing public school prayers, said he has been bombarded with phone calls and letters.

The calls, he said, went something like this:

"Watch out for your children ... We're going to blow up your car ... Don't have your house ... something is going to happen to it ... We'll get you."

Letters, starting to pour in since the court ruling Monday, take a more personal note, he said, and contain such phrases as:

"You dirty Jew b——. You Communist kike ... why don't you go back to Russia?"

Roth, a vice-president in a plastic manufacturing firm, was born in the Jewish faith but does not practice Judaism. He is married and has two children, 14 and 16.

Rolh says he is not opposed to prayer or to religion even though he does not attend church or a synagogue.

"I would classify myself as a very religious person, but not a church-goer," he added. "I have prayed myself, many times. Not in a beseeching manner, but more in seeking guidance."

Reverse 'Freedom Riders' Find Life in North Difficult

NEW YORK (CP) — Destitute southern Negroes, given one-way tickets north by segregationists, have found that life can be difficult in the northern United States too.

Some have found jobs. Others have not. Some have returned to the south.

They number only a few hundred compared with the millions of Negroes who have left the south on their own initiative since the end of the Second World War, settling primarily in big northern cities such as New York, Chicago and Detroit.

The movement to pay the fares of Negroes and send them to the so-called underprivileged states started in Louisiana last April.

Arch - segregationists labelled it the Reverse freedom bus riders movement and claimed it was the south's answer to the "Freedom Riders" who invaded the Deep South to test segregated facilities in interstate travel.

Many of the reverse freedom riders have been accompanied by children, some with no means of support except through benefactors at their northern destinations.

LACK JOB SKILLS

Some of the men have not had jobs in years. Many are unskilled.

Their reception generally has been cordial, but always there is the question of finding work, particularly for the unskilled.

The segregationist movement soured migration began with the arrival in New York of Louis Boyd's family of 10 on April 21.

The hospitality accorded them by New York, where about 1,000,000 Negroes live in the Harlem section alone, was unique.

Welfare agencies were on hand to give the family aid. Employers offered jobs and landlords housing.

This perhaps encouraged other Negroes to leave their southern homes and the white Citizens Council to keep the reverse freedom rides alive.

But Boyd's sunny start soon became overcast. The firm that had hired him as a $1.65-a-week handyman ran into financial difficulties, failed to meet a payroll and finally turned him out of work again.

Many of the reverse freedom riders were sent to Hyannis Port, Mass., where President Kennedy has a summer home. Only a few jobs were available in the area and some 40 persons—33 of them children—had to be placed in a college dormitory.

Several went to Boston, where job opportunities were better.

Rt. Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes Episcopal (Anglican) Bishop of Massachusetts, bitterly criticized the shipping of unskilled Negroes to northern communities, saying it is cruelty to allow the standards of a civilized nation.

Some Negroes said they had been given $5 each by the Citizens Council to pay for their food on the trip north.

A white Little Rock clothier, James Karam, who heads a group known as "We Who Care," made a bid to entice Negroes shipped from Arkansas to return from Massachusetts, but the Negroes replied they preferred to remain in the north.

Of the handful of reverse freedom riders known to have returned to Chicago, all are employed and one has returned to New Orleans.

To receive general public assistance in Illinois a person must be a resident of the state for at least one year.

Complaints emanating from the list of cities, where the segregationist buses directed their Negroes is Washington. This fact has led to speculation that most southern congressmen do not approve of the action and would be embarrassed by it.

Fight Leader Vilified in Phone Calls

ROSLYN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP)—The man who led the successful fight against official prayers in New York state public schools said Wednesday he has been vilified and threatened.

Lawrence Roth, head of the group of five parents whose suit brought the controversial U.S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing public school prayers, said he has been bombarded with phone calls and letters.

The calls, he said, went something like this:

"Watch out for your children ... We're going to blow up your car ... Don't have your house ... something is going to happen to it ... We'll get you."

Imported Wines, Liquors Prices May Go Up

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liquor Commissioner Allan Grossman said Wednesday night an increase is the retail price of imported wines and liquors is probable in Ontario as the result of the new 15-per-cent federal surcharge on luxury imports.

Mr. Grossman said, however, that he does not know how much the price increase will be. He said the provincial liquor control board will resist any corresponding increase in the price of domestic wine and liquor.

"If the price increase is not made," he said, "then we won't be accomplishing what the federal government wants in boosting domestic production."

Member Having Hard Time to Resign Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — A fourth-term socialist member of Parliament has created a legal tangle by apparently wanting to resign from the Commons—and not knowing how to go about it.

His problem is: How do you resign from the Commons when there isn't a fully-constituted House to resign from?

Erhart Regier, first elected in 1953 and returned last week with a sweeping majority in British Columbia's Burnaby-Coquitlam constituency, wants to give up his seat to make room for T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, who was defeated June 18 in Regina City.

The NDP constituency association for the Vancouver-area seat voted 165 to 11 Tuesday night to allow Mr. Regier to resign to pave the way for Mr. Douglas to stand in a by-election there.

Mr. Regier, who is coming here to bone up on the legal technicalities of the situation, says the final decision will be made at an NDP caucus meeting July 12 in Winnipeg.

After being given instruction in the various phases of playground activities, the playground leaders, themselves do a bit of instructing. Above, leaders are seen giving instruction in arts and crafts to a group of Tweed public school children visiting the camp for the day.

Some Experts Estimate There Are Million Women In U.S. Who Are Alcoholics

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — She is rich, respected, a patron of the arts.

But don't try to reach Clarissa in the afternoon because she stays in her bedroom with formidable "headaches." Her grown children and devoted husband urge her to see a doctor. She refuses.

Mary lives in a conventional split-level house in the suburbs with three small children and a husband who doesn't like to come home anymore. Unkempt house, children running wild, humiliating scenes—he's thinking about divorce.

Karri is a smart career girl. She downs a stinging shot of whisky every morning to face getting up, and switches periodic pickups during the day. "I can always cut it out if I think it's getting the upper hand," she insists.

These three women — who might be your friends, your neighbors, even your wife—are alcoholics.

Three out of how many? Some experts estimated there are 1,000,000 U.S. women alcoholics. Others say perhaps 2,500,000, about the same as men.

Dr. Marvin Block, chairman of the American Medical Association committee on alcoholism, thinks the ratio between men and women could be about 50-50.

A spokesman for Alcoholics Anonymous, which does not break down its attendance figures according to sex, says more and more women are attending its meetings.

The medical view that alcoholism is a disease and should be treated as a disease hasn't overcome the mass opinion that problem drinking in women can be spread by vice and moral surpitude.

Yet a recent study showed only three per cent of all alcoholics are derelicts. Alcoholism in women cuts across social, age and economic strata, with the average woman alcoholic of better than average intelligence and income.

Drinking has been moved to the home from the saloon.

EVENING RITUAL

Cocktails often are an evening ritual in which the wife joins. At parties the good hostess is one who keeps each glass filled with doubles, her own included.

As times goes by, alcohol becomes her comfort, a way to pass the time and, finally, a necessity.

She knows by now, but she can't give it up. Her life has one aim, drinking. Her time is devoted to outwitting the enemy —usually her family—which is trying to keep her from it.

Housewives sometimes can hide their secret sickness from their husbands a long time. But eventually the day comes when the husband finds her drunk. He is disgusted. If she fails in her promises to give it up—and unless she seeks outside help failure is almost inevitable—he is likely to pack up and leave.

Men are usually less patient than women about alcoholic mates, Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the U.S. National Council on Alcoholism, has found. And there are the children to consider.

Says Dr. Fox: "Because of the closeness of children to the mother, they are apt to suffer irreparable damage. The seemingly sudden withdrawal of love may lead to deep and lasting feelings of rejection, isolation and abandonment."

Alcoholism in women can start on the business scene.

Dr. Giorgio Lolli, former director of the Yale Plan Clinic for Alcoholics, says women often drink to escape the tensions resulting from their entrance into the man's world of business — tensions unknown when their place was only in the home.

The multi-martini lunch is no longer a stag affair. Women who work with men and share the same professional drives and pressures go right along for the lengthy liquid lunch.

Usually they hold their liquor well in public. It's when they get home that they polish off the bottle.

Most women could be helped if they'd admit their addiction and accept treatment for it, says Dr. Sedgewick Mead of the California Rehabilitation Centre of Vallejo.

New Detergents Would Lessen Water Pollution

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP)—Household detergents of a type which would lessen water pollution could be put on the market immediately, but "this would involve appreciable increases in detergent prices," the ninth Ontario industrial waste conference was told Wednesday.

H. Lomas a scientist of the Ontario Research Foundation, told the last session of the three-day conference sponsored by the Ontario water resources commission there is still "much research to be done" in the field of chemical answers to pollution problems but "there is no shortage of ideas."

In describing new synthetics—the active organic agent used in making detergents — lested for their value in reducing water pollution, Mr. Lomas said many household detergents now on the market produce varying amounts of stable foam, have some effect on the growth of waste-destroying bacteria and oxidize slowly in water supplies.

CHARTS ARCTIC WATERS — Electronic equipment built and designed in Montreal will enable the hydrographic ship Baffin to plot automatically her position and depth of water beneath her when she sails for the Arctic this summer. The 2,450-ton ship is flagship of Canada's fleet of seven charting vessels. This photo of the Baffin was taken from one of its two helicopters which lands on the wireless area on deck. (CP Photo).

Baffin First Ship in World Able to Plot Automatically Position Depth of Water

By IRA DEYDALE

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian hydrographic ship Baffin will become the first ship in the world able to plot automatically her position and the depth of water under her.

The 2,450 - ton flagship of Canada's seven - vessel water-charting fleet is expected to have the equipment aboard when she leaves here in mid-July for summer job of charting Arctic waters.

The apparatus can chart on one graph the depth and the ship's position in relation to electronically fixed stations. Existing methods require that the information be gathered separately aboard the vessel, then transposed manually to a field chart.

The equipment was built by Canadian Aviation Electronics Limited of Montreal.

It marks the latest in a series of developments in Canada's water-charting program. The first Canadian charting was in 1883 by the 72-foot Amy Long. Early charts of coastal waters were done mostly by the Royal Navy. Some, of the Nova Scotia coast, done 100 years ago are still in use, though reprinted and kept up to date by Canada.

Canada began systematic charting about 1900 but the most concentrated effort did not come until after the Second World War with increasing demands from shipping and fishing interests and for mineral and defence projects in the north.

Now there are three hydrographic ships on the west coast, four on the east coast and a new ship, the Hudson, under construction in Saint John, N.B. In addition the mines and technical surveys department charters idle sealing ships in summer for work on the east coast and in the north.

Until the 1930s charting was done by hand with measuring lines weighted with lead. The development of echo-sounders—measuring the time it takes a sound to reach the bottom and return — meant scraping the lead lines for most off-shore work and much of the coastal charting.

A good man could do 40 to 50 miles of soundings a day by the old method. The Baffin does about 200 miles a day.

Lead lining could be done only in good weather because the ship's position had to be reckoned visually. The Baffin and other modern hydrographic ships now sound in fog or darkness with electronic position-fixing gear.

Most ships today tune in on conventional electronic Decca stations. The Baffin carries her own positioning gear, or slave stations, and can set them up where she likes in remote areas.

The Baffin, built in 1958 by the Vickers Montreal yards for $4,500,000, is likely to be replaced as flagship next year by the Hudson, about 1,000 tons larger and likely to cost about $7,000,000.

The Baffin has gone north each summer since launching and this year did her first major winter job. She carried oceanography men into the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the central and southern Atlantic Ocean.

Recently she has been charting a section of water off eastern Nova Scotia where in some cases the only charts available date back to 1864. Next winter she joins a Royal Navy ship in charting waters in the Caribbean.

Mr. Edinborough said if the syndicate's offer to purchase does not go through he has no interest in working for Canadian Saturday Night, as the product of the merger of the two magazines, is to be known.

Ferguss owner Percy W. Bishop, who publishes the Canadian, said he has received offers to buy Saturday Night, but declined to say which, if any, he was considering.

World Wheat Sales Large

WASHINGTON (CP)—A combination of factors has produced a record world market for wheat, with Canada, the United States and Australia sharing the largest exporting gains.

The U.S. agriculture department today estimated that in the 12 months ending June 30, world wheat exports climbed to a peak of 1,696,000,000 bushels, compared with the previous high of 1,518,000,000 the previous year.

Canada's share of the market rose to about 365,000,000 bushels from 243,000,000 a year ago. The U.S. share is 710,000,000 from 683,000,000 and Australian exports to 220,000,000 from 185,000,000.

The Canadian and Australian increase, said the department, came mainly in sales to Communist China, hit by poor crops and widespread hunger.

Promises Arena Assistance

Patrick To Help Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP) — Lynn Patrick, general manager of Boston Bruins, said Wednesday night the National Hockey League club will enter a partnership with any group formed to get Oshawa the arena it needs for a return of Junior A hockey.

Patrick made the promise at a dinner for more than 200 Oshawa residents attended by the bulk of the top brass in the hockey organization.

Present besides Patrick were Bruins' president Walter Brown, assistant general manager Milt Schmidt, chief scout Harold Collyon and personnel director Wren Blair, who presided.

Oshawa was recently granted a berth in the OHA Metro Junior A series but the team, sponsored by the Bruins, will play its home games in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Lynn Patrick said organization and management of the Oshawa Junior A franchise will be left in the hands of Blair, an Oshawa native.

"Wren has never been associated with a failure in all his years in hockey," Patrick said, "and he won't be associated with one in Oshawa."

Blair also manages Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional League and Clinton (N.Y.) Comets of the U.S. Eastern League, both Bruin farm clubs.

HAS BIG CHANCE

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—A 20-year-old New Brunswick fisherman who packs power in both hands has a chance at the Canadian lightheavyweight championship. But before Emery Boudreau of Buctouche, N.B., gets his chance he must defeat or at least come up with a reasonable showing against present champ Burke Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., whom he meets here tonight in a 10-round non-title bout.

"Boudreau will get the title shot if he shows anything," said Emery's manager, Al Backman.

Boudreau owns a 12-2-0 pro record, including 10 knockouts. He has never been floored. Emery's record is 38-7-0.

Irish Sweeps Derby

'Larkspur' Ready To Run

BY ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Larkspur, the hard-running little horse that specializes in winning big races between off-color spells has been declared fit and ready for Saturday's £67,000 Irish Sweeps Derby.

The American-owned colt, by Never Say Die out of Skylarking, went through a workout in sensational fashion Wednesday morning and a veterinary pronounced him set for Saturday.

Earlier this week, trainer Vincent O'Brien announced his diminutive but lion-hearted horse was suffering from a slight hock injury.

Larkspur turned up with an identical ailment just before the June 6 Epsom Derby, but was all right on the day—good enough to win by two lengths in a 30-horse field.

The colt was a 5-to-1 favorite for the Irish classic before O'Brien's announcement. Meanwhile an Irish betting man, Malachy Scally, tentatively advertised Arctic Storm Wednesday as favorite at 4 to 1.

Other likely prices included: 5 to 1, Arcor; 7 to 1, Sebring and Vamboureur; 8 to 1, Saint Denys; 12 to 1, Cyrus; 14 to 1, Le Pirate; 16 to 1, London Gazette, March Wind and Sicilian Prince; 20 to 1, Our Guide; 33 to 1, Running Rock, and 40 to 1, Atlantis, Gail Star and T.V.

There still are 26 probable starters for the 1½-mile race to be run at the Curragh, a righthand, circular course 30 miles southeast of Dublin.

The Irish Derby, formerly worth a mere £10,000, moves into a new financial bracket this year with purse money totalling some £67,000, of which £30,000 is donated by the Irish Sweepstakes committee. A sweepstakes is being held on the race for the first time.

REACH FINAL

TORONTO (CP) — David Dibelle, 16, of Toronto and Dave Brown, 17, of Perth, Ont., will meet Friday in the final of the Ontario Junior Davis Cup singles championship, Brown defeated Mike Wilson, 16, of Montreal 6-1, 6-2, and Dibelle defeated Petr Burwash, 17, of Toronto 8-2, 6-2 in Wednesday's semi-finals.

Suns Hot, Up Lead To Seven

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Suns probably don't mind it, they never get home.

The streaking Suns stretched their International League lead to seven games with an 8-1 romp over the second - place Buffalo Bisons Wednesday night. It was Jacksonville's seventh straight victory, eighth in their nine starts on their current swing through New York state and pushed their season road record to a sparkling 26-6.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Rochester shut out Atlanta Crackers 3-0, Columbus Jets beat Rochester Red Wings 6-3 and Richmond Virginians edged Syracuse Chiefs 7-6 in 10 innings.

Joe Schaffernoth (8-4) tossed a seven-hitter for Jacksonville and was supported by a 14-hit attack. He got all the scoring room he needed when the Suns took advantage of a couple of Buffalo errors and some timely hitting for a five-run third inning.

MICKELSEN SHINES

Mickelsen, a six-foot-six right-hander, stopped Atlanta on three hits for his second straight shutout. He has held hitter in is last outing. Mickelsen struck out eight and walked three. Al Lary, Neil Chrisley had two homers and drove in four runs for Toronto, which advanced within a half game of second place.

Columbus pushed in four runs in the second inning and coasted to a fifth victory in six starts. Bonus player Bob Bailey led the attack with a single, double and triple.

Jake Gibbs' triple and Tom Umphlett's sacrifice fly produced the 10th-inning run that brought Richmond the victory over Syracuse.

Irish Sell Franchise To Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — St. Michael's College Wednesday sold its franchise in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series to Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League.

Sale of the franchise will mean the second time in two years the Majors have withdrawn from Junior A hockey.

St. Michael's withdrew at the end of the 1960-61 season after the team won the Memorial Cup but last season it decided to play in a five-team Metropolitan Junior A League.

The sale follows the OHA's refusal to permit St. Michael's to enter the Metro League on condition it might withdraw from competition by March 31 in any year.

The Leafs, who will operate the franchise, have projected the professional rights of all the players from last year's team.

AUCKLAND (AP)—New Zealand runners Murray Halberg and John Davies said on their return here they are considering scholarship offers from several American universities.

"We both got so many offers we decided to speak to a university coach about them and find out all the requirements," Halberg said Wednesday. "At the moment I am not overly interested but if I find it will benefit my job with the company I am with in New Zealand, then I might be."

The offers were reported to be from universities in California and Texas.

Batting—Jim Gentile, Orioles, accounted for all Baltimore runs in 3-1 triumph over Chicago White Sox with bases-empty homer in sixth inning and two-run homer in eighth.

Pitching — Larry Jackson, Cardinals, gained double St. Louis shutout of Chicago Cubs by allowing only four singles in 4-0 first game triumph before Ray Sadecki limited Cubs to five hits in 8-0 nightcap victory.

Above is something new on the yachting scene. Propellers spinning and rear wheels driving, an amphibious car climbs up a boat launching ramp, out of Belleville's yacht basin.

Maybe it's a lawn mower, too? Mike Gosling, CJBQ news editor, takes a look at the twin propellers under the rear of the amphibious car. The propellers are easily visible when the car is on the road, attract a lot of attention.

As one yachtsman to another . . . "What's the use of that?" asked Steve Forester, skipper of the Hieronymous B. "It's so we don't have to walk home," replied Fred Potruff, skipper-driver of "that." Kathy Casey, crewmember on the Hieronymous B, (the boat is named for Hieronymous Bosch, a Flemish surrealist painter), and Mike Gosling, passenger in the car look on.

Palmer Sizes Golf Course In Helicopter

CHICAGO (AP) — Arnold Palmer took to the air to survey his chances to repeat as champion in the 59th Western Open golf tourney starting today.

Palmer arrived at the Medinah Country Club Wednesday morning and immediately sized up the course in a helicopter tour over the par-71, 7,110-yard layout.

Palmer is one of 35 players who will compete in the 72-hole medal play test that carries a $10,000 top prize.

Eleven former champions are entered, including Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who won in 1960.

Pa Kettle in Fine Fettle Now He Has Quit Working

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There Percy Kilbride was, scanning the morning headlines at a newsstand opposite the Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

I had heard for years that Kilbride was often seen walking along Hollywood Boulevard, but this was the first time I had seen him.

"Yes?" he said with the miner annoyance of one whose privacy is often interrupted. I reintroduced myself and the hawk-nosed face brightened with a smile.

"Of 'course," he said. "Still writing those things, huh? My goodness, all these words!"

The memory went back to our last conversation. It was nine years ago and he was filming Ma and Pa Kettle at Home. That was the seventh of the cornfed films he had made with Marjorie Main.

Almost 74, Kilbride looked unchanged. If anything, he looked better."

WARMUP WEEK

"Feel better," he said in his pleasant twang. "You know, on that last Kettle picture, I wasn't feeling well at all. The doctor had to keep giving me injections to keep going."

"I kept falling down. If I was standing up, I'd sit down. If I was sitting down, I'd fall over. I didn't know what was wrong with me. I was afraid I was going to die."

So he quit. He had enough to live on because his needs were slight. A lifetime of acting failed to make him a rich man. He had reached stardom only in his later years and much went to taxes.

His retirement came when he turned 65. I asked if he missed the acting life.

"Oh no, not at all," he said cheerfully. "I find plenty to keep me busy. Now that I'm feeling so well, I might think about going back. But the role would have to be something worth doing."

Purse of $15,000

Colt, Filly In Track Duel

TORONTO (CP)—A two-horse match race with a winner-take-all purse of $15,000 has been set for Woodbine track July 7. It is the first match race in Ontario in 42 years and the fourth in Canadian racing history.

The race, result of a friendly backstretch argument between Jack Stafford of Toronto and Rory Gion of Buffalo, was announced at a press conference Wednesday by John Mooney, general manager of the Jockey Club Limited.

It will bring together a pair of two-year-olds—the filly Cesca owned by Stafford and the colt Aim n Fire owned by Glen Campbell of Buffalo.

Each owner has put up $6,000 and the Jockey Club another $3,000.

It will be a sprint of 5½ furlongs. The Jockey Club has not yet decided whether there will be betting on the race, whether it will be an added attraction to the eight-race card, or whether it will be carded as the eighth race.

Cesca set a Canadian record of 58 seconds for five furlongs in winning the My Dear Stakes at Woodbine a week ago. Aim n Fire equalled the record to $7 3-5 seconds when he won last Saturday's fifth race, also at Woodbine.

Minnesota Boss Happy

Big Deal 'Made Twins'

NEW YORK (AP)—Cal Griffith, a long-time loser at Washington, has found a bright new world in Minnesota.

Owner Griffith's Twins are in second place in the American League only one game behind the pace - setting Cleveland Indians. The club has not finished in the first division since it was fourth in 1946.

"There isn't an outstanding club in the league," said Griffith. "Certainly, we are far better off than we figured. Who expected the race to be this tight? Any one of five or six clubs could win it, including us."

Griffith traced his club's resurgence from a deal he made in 1960 that moved catcher Earl Battey to Washington for Roy Sievers. Battey already had become an outstanding catcher before Griffith moved to Minnesota after the 1960 season.

"That deal with Chicago was the greatest deal I ever made," said Griffith. "We got Battey, Don Mincher and $150,000 for Sievers. Everybody criticized me at the time because Sievers had been a big shot home-run hitter, but it turned out fine."

Griffith rates his big 1962 deal almost on a par with the Battey swap. Just before spring training ended, the Twins traded Pedro Ramos to Cleveland for Vic Power and Dick Stigman. Power "made" the infield and Stigman helped the pitching staff.

"Leadership has made a big difference in this club. When Sam Mele took over (a year ago) he was able to get the boys in a different mood. At Washington it looked like sometimes the players were just passing time, just putting in a day's work."

Ingy Has Tax Trouble In Sweden

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, who had tax troubles in the United States, is finding the tax man tough at home, too.

Boxing promoter Edwin Ahlquist told the newspaper Goteborgs - Posten Wednesday that tax claims resulting from the June 17 fight when Johansson recovered the European heavyweight title by knocking out Dick Richardson of Wales were "tremendous." He said the city wanted $70,000 in entertainment taxes, in addition to rent on the stadium.

At the same time, tax authorities have decided Johansson should declare an income of $100,000 for 1961, the year he took his third title fight to Floyd Patterson.

Taxes on that amount would be $60,000, Ahlquist said.

The promoter said he was investigating Vienna, Austria, as the location for the next Johansson fight, sometime in the fall. He panned no Canadian, but the newspaper says Archie Moore, Zora Folley or Bob Cleroux of Montreal are possibilities.

British Give American Pro The Brushoff

NEW YORK (AP)—Ciesla Harmon, one of America's best-known golf professionals, has been turned down for the British Open next month.

"The only thing I can figure out is that they never heard of me over there," the former Texas champion said Wednesday.

Harmon decided a few weeks ago to play in the British Golf Association.

When word arrived without confirmation, Harmon double-checked with Joe Dey, executive director of the USGA. Dey told Harmon Wednesday his entry report accepted "because it lacked proper identification."

Harmon said, "It's very embarrassing."

Harmon won the Masters tournament in 1946 and played that year in the British Open. This year his 138 was the second lowest qualifying score for the U.S. Open.

PLAN ENTRY

SARNIA (CP)—This city will enter a team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate series this season, it was announced Wednesday. Organizer Lou Harris said he will meet with representatives of London Lasalle Rugby Club, Knights and East York Argos in Oakville to draw up a schedule.

News Program's Anchorman Has Complicated Duties

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—In a game o. variety show, television call the head man the "host." In a news program, he's the "anchorman," and although it often appears that he is not always the very much, anchoring is a complicated, sensitive job.

"There's a lot more to it than meets the eye," explained Frank McGee, who has been NBC's central reporter for everything from space flights to international crisis.

"The anchorman is necessary from a technical point, to allow the program to move in an orderly way from a central point. But he does many other things, too.

"He often decides the editorial content of the show; he is there to provide a lot of general information about the subject which sets up things for the next man to appear—a reporter on the scene, perhaps—who will get down to specifics and the small, interesting detail.

"He also is there to sum up and perhaps offer a broad-out for—for confusion a problem."

McGee, in his early 40s, is one of the few who moved directly into broadcasting from school because he knew exactly what he wanted to do. Most of his colleagues served their apprenticeship in newspaper work.

Trudeaus Win Over Horlocks

Trudeau Motors jumped into an early 5-0 lead and cut short its comeback try by the Horlocks to defeat Woods-Horlock 8-5 at the CNRA Park last night.

Trudeaus scored four times in the first inning, once in the third and three times in the fourth before Woods-Horlock scored a run. The losers started with a bang when they did get going however, plating four in the fourth on Bob Boyle's bases-loaded home run. They added another in the fifth but that was it.

Junior Day pitched the victory, giving up half a dozen hits, shutting seven and walking nary a batter on the Trudeau mound.

Woods-Horlock started and was relieved by Boyle in the third for Woods-Horlock. They gave up eight hits, fanned one and walked four.

Don Wannamaker hit a home run. Lyle Wannamaker had a double and a single and Paul Meraw two singles for the winners. Deacon Whiting had a two-bagger, Larry Potter and Jerry Genereaux singles.

Bob Boyle's homer was the big blow for the Juveniles while Bob Sedlezkie had two singles. Malloy, Hall and Huddleston also hit safely.

Giants Keep Pace, Cards Win Deuce

Drysdale 5-Hits Braves For No 13

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Calm, cool and collected, that's Don Drysdale.

The 25-year-old Los Angeles Dodgers fireballer, whose pitching talents have been diminished in the past by an easily reached boiling point, had learned to curb his temper and seems headed toward his first 20-victory season in the National League.

Drysdale won No. 13 Wednesday night with a five-hitter that whipped Milwaukee Braves 6-2 but had to maintain his composure during a series of incidents that must have given his new-found control its severest test.

Twice he was hit by pitches and twice had to pitch out of jams created by errors. In the sixth, Maury Wills booted a grounder by Hank Aaron, allowing the Braves' first run to score. In the eighth, Ed Mathews got a double when Frank Howard misjudged his fly, and took third on a passed ball.

Drysdale worked out of that spot and set the Braves down in order in the ninth, tying Cincinnati's Bob Purkey for the most victories in the majors and keeping the second-place Dodgers half a game behind San Francisco Giants.

GIANTS WHIP REDS

The Giants remained on top with their fifth consecutive victory, 5-3 over the Reds. The third-place Pittsburgh Pirates edged New York Mets 6-5 in 10 innings and the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals blanked Chicago Cubs twice, 4-0 and 8-0 on shutouts by Larry Jackson and Ray Sadecki. Houston Colts and Philadelphia Phillies were not scheduled.

Drysdale (13-4) got the Dodgers started in the fifth when he was hit by a Bob Shaw (8-4) pitch, Wills forced Jim Gilliam, 2nd. base on Willie Davis' bunt. The Dodgers clinched it with three in the seventh against reliever Hank Fischer on Tommy Davis' two-run single and a double steal that sent Jim Gilliam across the plate. The triumph snapped a three-game losing streak for the Dodgers.

Ed Bailey, who hit a pinch grand-slam homer for the Giants Tuesday, tagged a Ted Wilks pitch for a two-run homer in the sixth inning that snapped a 3-3 tie against his former Cincinnati teammates, Harvey Kuenn and Felipe Alou also homered for the San Francisco ems. Wally Post hit his 12th for the defending NL champs and added two singles for a 3-for-4 performance.

Bill Virdon's fourth single, a walk to Dick Groat and Bob Skinner's third single got the game-winner across for the Pirates against Mets' starter Roger Craig (4-10).

The victory went to 43-year-old Diomedes Olivo (3-0), who hurled one-hit ball for the final three innings. Frank Thomas hit home run No. 14 for the Mets.

Jackson (7-7) checked the Cubs on four singles in the opener and Sadecki (5-4) held the Chicagoans to five hits in the windup as the Cardinals ran their latest winning streak to five games.

Ken Boyer accounted for two runs batted in with three singles in the opener and Charley James drove in the others with a two-run double. Homers got the job done in the second game with Carl Sawatski, who entered the game when Gene Oliver was ejected in the third inning, hitting a pair and Julian Javier and Curt Flood one each.

Score Was 11-4

Flyers Down Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

RCAF Flyers combined Howie Cole's strong pitching effort and a 13-hit attack of their own to stomp Rollins Construction Juniors 11-4 at Trenton Bay Shore Park last night.

Jorgy Real Estate and the Bobcats hook up in an eight o'clock game at the Fairgrounds tonight.

While Cole was stopping the Rollins batters on three hits over the route, the Flyers grabbed an 11-0 lead going into the ninth inning.

Rollins scored their four runs on Billy McGuire's infielder chop single, a walk, two wild pitches and three glaring errors. The only other hits the losers got were a single by Joe Robitaille in the fourth and Paul Zakos' bunt single in the sixth.

Cole worked his change-up to perfection and set ten down on third strikes. He walked six and would have had a shutout except for the last-frame errors.

The Flyers scored three in the first on a walk, Drake's double, the first of six Junior errors, Mitts' single and Boomer's fly ball. Hits by Mitts, Boomer and Mann, plus another bobble, upped the count to 6-0 in the third.

Drake giggled and rode home on Mitt's double in the sixth while a bases-loaded walk, after hits by McDonald and Mann, plus an error, made it 8-0 in the seventh.

Donnie Cole lined a long home run blast to centre field with a mate on via an error in the eighth. Hits by McDonald and Mann and H. Cole's ground ball made it 11-0.

Don Holoway took the loss, relieved by brother Sonny Holoway who got the last two RCAF outs. Holoway struck out two and walked two. Sonny fanned one.

Robin Wing Is Strictly For The Birds

Tosses Fourth Straight Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nearing the end of the ride in his roller-coaster career, Robin Roberts is on a definite upcurve.

The 35-year-old right-hander who hit a dip when he was handed his unconditional release by one American League club this season, won his fourth straight for Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night, beating Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Supported by the resurgent home run power of Jim Gentile, Roberts posted his victory with a neat five-hit effort. Gentile broke out of a slump with a pair of homers, driving in all three Baltimore runs.

Roberts, who was purchased by New York Yankees last fall after 14 seasons with Philadelphia Phillies and then released by the Yanks in late April without ever pitching for them, has put together a 4-2 record since joining the Orioles.

Elsewhere, things tightened up among the league frontrunners. Al Pyburn and Don Drott Tigers trimmed the first-place Cleveland Indians 5-0, the Yankees whipped Minnesota Twins 7-3 and Los Angeles Angels blanked Boston Red Sox 3-0—leaving the Indians one game ahead of the Twins, with the Yanks and Angels two games off the pace. In the AL's other game, Kansas City Athletics scored over Washington Senators 14-1.

SEEMED WASHED UP

Roberts was a 20-game winner six years in a row for the Phils but gradually talled off and last year was a dismal 3-10. The word was the stocky midwesterner's fast ball was gone —and he hadn't developed a delivery to replace it.

Could be. But he's winning somebody with the Orioles. After two effective no-decision stints for Baltimore, he notched two one-run setbacks. Since then Roberts has beaten the Yanks once, Senators, Red Sox and White Sox — giving up nine earned runs during his winning string.

The White Sox drew first blood Wednesday night when Joe Cunningham singled in a sixth-inning run, but Gentile rapped left-hander Juan Pizarro for one homer in the last of the sixth and smacked another with one on in the eight. He had collected only one homer and four runs batted in the previous 14 games.

Foytack won his sixth in seven decisions, six-hitting the Indians while the Tigers dealt Cleveland ace Dick Donovan his third loss against 11 victories. Jake Wood scored Detroit's first run in the opening inning when he singled and eventually came in from second on a throwing error by Donovan. Then the Tigers bunched four hits for two more runs in the second.

YANKS BOMB KAAT

The Yankees went to work early against Jim Kaat, roughing up the Minnesota southpaw for six runs in the first two innings. Tom Tresh led New York's attack with a homer and single, Roger Maris also homered for the Yanks—his 13th of the year.

Ralph Terry gave the Twins eight hits, including a homer by Don Mincher.

The Angels, no-hit by Boston's Earl Wilson Tuesday night, rebounded as Don Lee and Dean Chance collaborated on a five-hitter against the Red Sox. The Los Angeles runs came in on a single by Billy Moran, Leon Wagner's double and Lee Thomas' sacrifice fly.

Kansas City netted a pair of unearned runs in the fourth inning and went on to arm their third in a row as Ed Rakow handcuffed the Senators.

BOMBERS SIGN END

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference Wednesday announced the signing of end Wally Fonteyne. Formerly with the University of Minnesota at Duluth and Minnesota Vikings of the American League, Fonteyne is a 6-foot-2 quarterback who injured his arm while at training camp with the Vikings.

Wimbledon Tennis

Unknown Briton Ousts McKinley

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — The cream of the United Kingdom talent at the all-England tennis championships was skimmed Wednesday by a little known English schoolmaster.

Chuck McKinley, seeded fifth in the tournament, bowed to Mike Sangster 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 in a men's singles second - round match.

McKinley was the only American seeded in the tournament and his defeat left his less highly regarded teammates carrying the American hopes against some of the world's top tennis players.

Hann, 23, was in control all the way as the 21-year-old McKinley was off his usually strong game and committed numerous faults.

The American said after his loss he was bothered with a pulled muscle in his right arm but he shrugged that off. "Mike was too good and that's all there was to it."

Three Americans are left in the field after the first two rounds of singles play: Dennis Ralston, Frank Foehling and Whitney Reed, ranked No. 1 in the U.S. and unseeded in this tournament.

Among the 10 Australians left in the running is Rod Laver, top seed in this tournament. He had no trouble getting past his second round, ousting Tony Pickard of Britain 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

One of today's matches will be a meeting of the top threats of the U.S. and Australia, Reed and Laver.

Women Open Golf Tourney

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Long - hitting Mickey Wright opens her bid today for a fourth U.S. Golf Association women's open championship in five years over a course that should be a paradise for either bombers or tee shots.

The 6,403-yard, par-72 Dunes Golf and Beach Club appears well tailored to the Wright game. The field closed at 70 players.

The 27-year-old California native, who plays out of Dallas, Tex., won the title in 1958, 1959 and 1961.

The pros are shooting for $8,000, the winner taking $1,200 and the runner-up $1,200.

Sixth In A Row

Kenmors Defeat Kingston

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Kingston catcher Tony Petitti may have entered the game with wings aflap but he left it wearing the horns of the "goat" here last night.

Tony, a top receiver, dropped a two-out seventh-innings third strike to fuse a Kenmors five-run explosion that snatched an 8-6 victory out of almost certain defeat.

In fact both ends of the innings were eruptive. Kingston in the top look advantage of two errors, walks and a brace of hits to score four runs and send Kenmor starter Bill Latchford to the showers. Larry Soden took over and gave up four hits for two runs over the rest of the route. He collected the win.

The Kenmors emerged from the hassle-paraded battle with their sixth straight victory and a two-game lead over the second place Kingston team. Their record now is 6-1.

Up to the seventh it was a real pitchers' battle game. Latchford had given up six hits for two runs. Kingston's Doug McIlroy, a fastballing southpaw, had allowed but three, but paid for four runs in the sixth.

From then on the game developed wackiness, weirdness, hassles and some strange strategy.

Petitti's "goof" started it. Tony fouled pop-out. Catcher was on with an error. Goyer singled and Saunders advanced on a passed ball. Hunter struck out and Claude Carr came to the plate.

The Kingston catcher dropped the third strike and the ball rolled away from him scoring Asselstine with Carr safe. Ricky Locke poled out a mighty triple scoring Goyer and Carr and Marvin singled behind Locke. A passed ball scored Locke and Moxon singled. Soden went hit by a pitched ball and Fobrell walked filling the bases but Asselstine grounded out to end the flurry.

McIlroy went the route for Kingston, whiffing 14 and walking five. He developed wildness in the fifth, walking three, one for a run and giving up two hits for the Kenmors' three runs.

Kingston scored singles in the second and fifth and grabbed a 6-3 lead in the seventh with their quarter of runs.

Bill Latchford started for the Kenmors and gave up six hits for four runs in six innings. He whiffed nine and walked three.

Fans stood in their seats at some weird strategy when the Kenmors coach pulled left fielder Duffy Follwell in to a spot three feet from the batter. There were two aboard and an intentional pass had been ordered. Umpire Kelleher objected of this despite a rhubarb.

An umpire's "double play" started another verbal explosion. Tom Petitti who had walked, tried to score on McIlroy's infield clout. Petitti, said Umpire Watson, knocked the ball out of second baseman Garry Goyer's hand who afterwards threw to first in time to get McIlroy. Both were thumbed out and the war started.

Gary Goyer was tops at the plate for the winners, coming up with four singles, Marvety had a pair with Locke smashing out a triple, Moxon and Latchford singled.

Tom Petitti hit two doubles and a single for Kingston. Murphy getting a triple and single, Earl two singles, Tony Petitti and Charlie Foster doubles, Doug Secker had a triple.

Kingston — Earl, batting Tom Petitti, Perter, Murphy, Senior, Quinn, Tom Petitti, D. McIlroy, B. McIlroy.

Kenmors: Fobrell, Asselstine, Goyer, Hunter, Locke, Marvety, Moxon, Latchford, Soden, Soule, Batchelor.

Umpires: Kelleher (P) and Adams and Watkins.

Tennis Mexicans Confident

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Mexico's three top tennis players agree they have never had a better chance than this year of defeating the United States in the Davis Cup.

The two countries are expected to meet in Mexico City Aug. 4-6 in the American zone semi-finals. The United States must first beat Canada, but this is thought to be a formality.

The Mexican trio — Mario Llamas, Antonio Palafox and Rafael Osuna, ranked 1, 2 and 3 respectively in their country — are on hand for the Wimbledon tennis championships and all have impressed the crowds.

DESERONTO

Council Meets Last Time Before Holidays

DESERONTO — The last regular meeting of the council for all before the summer: was held on Tuesday night of last week with all members present except Councillor Houle.

J. W. Sharpe was given permission to install a drain from his property on Brant St. at his own expense to join the town drain. Fred Brant requested permission to open a coffee shop which the council felt they could not grant.

There was some discussion regarding sewers for the town and the Public Utilities were requested to obtain more information regarding the lagoon system of treatment.

A letter from the Department of Municipal Affairs was read concerning pensions for municipal employees.

Council passed the by-law appointing H. L. Browning as police constable and retained P. J. Loos as town solicitor.

Before adjourning there was some discussion regarding the schools. Councillor Detlor said that it was unfortunate that the Board of Education and the council met on the same night and have such a large number of either attending the meeting of the other. He said that there were apparently some points of order ignored at school meetings and there should be some liaison between the two groups.

Some of the matters attending spoke briefly stating that they were glad the school question was settled.

Real Caouette, Que. Socred Leader, Emerges As New Strongman in Federal Politics

By BEN WARD

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — The morning after the close of the federal election telephone and telegraph lines into the northwest-ern Quebec mining centre were jammed with messages for a 46-year-old auto dealer.

Real Caouette had emerged overnight as the new strongman of Quebec federal politics, his single - handed achievement rocking the historic foundations of the province's political makeup.

The day before, Quebec had delivered 28 of its 75 Commons seats to the Social Credit party. Never before had it elected so many as a single Social Credi-tiller in a general election.

It was all the more startling because Social Credit won its 28 seats in the previous Parliament with won only four in the rest of the country.

Nobody doubted that the 28 victories were the personal work of Real Caouette, Social Credit's Quebec chief and the deputy national leader who had bamstormed the province via television for three days and a morning at the theme "You have nothing to lose — why not try Social Credit?"

$100,000 FOR TV

Concentrating on rural ridings, he poured $150,000 of party funds into TV time — weekly 15 - minute TV talks, gesturing and roaring with encouraging effect to the hundreds bottled listeners to toss out the hated Liberals and vote for Social Credit.

It was a performance straight from the book of William (Bible Bill) Aberhart, the Calgary preacher who used the radio station program to bring Social Credit its first election victory 27 years ago in Alberta.

Caouette's message, carried on a string of private TV stations arching eastward from here to Quebec City and the Eastern Townships, stressed the achievements of Social Credit governments of disinterested politicians.

Social Credit and Real Caouette soon became common topics in general stores, taverns, cabine wash houses and parish centres.

"I think you call that a soft-sealing-up process," he says.

When the eight - week election campaign opened he took to the road in a super-human effort that touched every major centre in the populated south. Then, at Ottawa, he flew to Pacific ar trips to Western Canada, his travels covered 75,000 miles.

SHAVES IN CAR

Opponents attacked Social Credit financial policies as impossible to u nd e r s t a n d, but countered with another theme: "You don't have to be educated to vote Social Credit to vote for it."

He rigged up his self - styled lier imperial as a mobile bath-room with electric razor and shoeless racks. Hurtling along at 109 rally appearances in under the skies on the rear seat while waving out of the car drivers.

He made political capital of his luxury car.

"Now if you might say he drives a big car just like the rest," he told audiences. "That is a car to demonstrate that it longs to the finance company, and not to the people. I own only 96 per cent of the cars in Canada."

Soon upwards of 30,000 people were flocking to his major rallies, drawn by the fanaticism of the thundering crusader with the curly brown hair, dark - rimmed glasses and the jutting jaw. He spoke for an hour, sometimes two, without notes.

Friends begged him to slow his pace but he refused. Reporter Peter Regenstreif of the Montreal Star, who went to interview him at a Quebec motel and found him asleep, caught new energy in one descriptive sentence.

"He opened his eyes and his mouth and came instantly alive," he wrote. "He was still talking when I left the room 20 minutes later."

LIKENED TO CASTRO

In Dorchester riding Conservative candidate Jean Drouin called him "a Fidel Castro." Mr. Caouette replied that if he was a Castro, Drouin would be the first man hanged. A Social Credit candidate in Gaspe called him "a Hitler."

During the final days of the campaign Social Credit workers were hanging on his every word.

"I told them what Aberhart told them in Alberta: If you haven't suffered enough, for your God-given privilege to suffer some more.

"If you want to vote Liberal or Conservative. But if you've had enough, vote Social Credit. You've got nothing to lose."

Talking to an interviewer a most a week after the election, he said the reason for the 28 victories was simply that "the people listened to me and believed."

"Next time we'll take 60 seats in Quebec."

That did he expect the party to win in the rest of Canada? "Power," he shaped, shoulder a flicker of a smile in his pierc-

Fugitive Soviet Spy Reported Held in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Fugitive Dr. Robert A. Soblen was reported arrested in Tel Aviv by Israeli police today.

Reporters saw the man convicted of spying for the Soviet Union, who fled from New York on the eve of his scheduled surrender to begin serving a life sentence, being led from a Tel Aviv hotel by a police inspector.

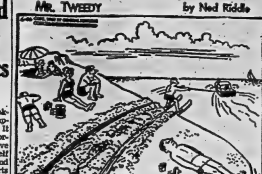
Although there was no official confirmation of the arrest, press photographers took pictures of Soblen being taken away.

Usually reliable sources said Soblen was held in Israel by plane under an assumed name and immediately contacted a Tel Aviv lawyer.

Soblen was free on $100,000 bail.

The 62-year-old Lithuanian-born psychiatrist, said to be dying of cancer of the blood, was convicted in May, 1961, in a New York federal court of spying for Russia over a 20-year period.

The U.S. Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction March 13. Last Monday the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review his case.



He was scheduled to surrender in federal court in New York today to begin serving his life term.

Soblen could have been sentenced to death. Federal Judge William Herlands spared him the electric chair because Soblen's disease, leukemia, was expected to kill him by this summer.

Bonner Denies Interference With Courts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner denies that he interfered with the courts in commenting on a Supreme Court of Canada decision in the B.C. Electric case.

The attorney - general made the denial in a statement read Wednesday to the British Columbia Supreme Court by Crown counsel M. M. McFarlane.

"Look at that! Don't these water skiers do some fancy stuff these days?"

GETS LITTLE SLEEP

He talked for three hours with hardly a break, constantly moving from one office to another, swivel chair, his roughly-lined face alive with emotions.

During the campaign he averaged four hours sleep a night, most of it on the move. "Now it's worse. I'm lucky to get two hours sleep with all the phone calls and visitors."

He hoped for some spare time in the next two months to resume his hobbies of boating and duck-hunting. He has two good-quality motorboats and a 60-horsepower outboard motor. His modest frame cottage on nearby Lake Dufault where he lives with his wife.

A non-drinker, he has a fondness for soft drinks and smokes two packages of cigarettes a day. He also smokes a pipe.

Bilingual since schooldays, he made several speeches in English during the campaign in Quebec and the west but says he is not overly fluent in English.

Two years ago he found his weight affecting from his high blood level it had held for a decade and went to a doctor who prescribed pills and diet-tes, a disease his mother had died from.

"The doctor said I either had to go on a strict diet or take pills. They are very good but I didn't so I asked for inulin. He put me on a special diet."

DISOWNS SEPARATISTS

He now is down to 160 after losing 30 pounds in the election campaign but it still looks bushy on his five-foot-eight frame.

Mr. Caouette, who had rarely been outside his native province before making political history a year ago, denies suggestions that Quebec separatist elements supported him.

"I am not a separatist," he says. "I am a federalist but I am going to be dead."

When the talks turn to provincial political ambition, though he once ran unsuccessfully for the provincial legislature.

The coincidence of two events in 1957 launched him on the Social Credit movement, an angry young man at 32.

A former salesman from Montreal gave him a booklet on Social Credit and the incoming Quebec Liberal government fired his father, a Liberal organizer, with a job. Caouette set to hold on to his job as a provincial agriculture inspector during the 1936-39 Union Nationale administration.

He thought he was a Union Nationale supporter. He was but he did not know it. Later he'd worked for the Liberals for 25 years. And they fired him after 14 years.

The younger Caouette threw himself into Social Credit organizing. The Quebec wing of the party then was called the Ralliement des Creditistes. Its members were white berets and were called Poujo. Simplicity and much curiosity bore fruit.

SIGNED 14,000 MEMBERS

At one point he lost a good deal of support to Union Nationale but it only made him try harder. By 1958 he was in charge of the provincial group. He scrapped the UE label and Social Credit leagued on long-term organization and renamed it Le Ralliement des Creditistes.

In three years he had signed up 14,000 members at $2 for membership and $1 a month dues. The income was poured into TV drive.

Veteran Quebec politicians were worried at first by the Caouette inroads on long-cherished audiences. But they laughed it off as a passing fad. Caouette, white berets and the province's solid tradition of Liberal and Conservative voting.

"I stayed out of Montreal (on TV) so they wouldn't take too much notice," he explained. Not one of Montreal's 21 ridings went Social Credit.

Mr. Caouette's plan for the next election? "I don't expects within a year — are already laid. Time has been reserved for 15-minute talks beginning Sept. 15. This time a Montreal station is included.

"The bill is $50,000 and we don't have a cent right now. But we have faith in God."

A drive has opened to boost party membership to 50,000 and Caouette has set a budget of $600,000 a year, half of it for TV time just before voting day.

HAS LAURIER'S WIT

The man who will again star in the series was born Joseph David Real Caouette on Sept. 26, 1917, in the then-frontier farming centre of Amos, 70 miles northwest of here. He was the fourth of 15 children born to Samuel Caouette and Marie Lemieux Caouette, who raised five boys and three girls—surviving early childhood.

When he was nine, his father took him to his first political meeting, a Liberal rally in the 1926 federal campaign.

"I was just amazed at it. I wondered if I could be an electrician speaker myself some day and decided I would."

He got his primary education at Amos and then was sent to Lipmour College near Sherbrooke, a classical course. Two years later economic problems forced his father to shift him from Lipmour to the less expensive College Commercial de Sacre - Coeur at Victoriaville. There he was a leading contender for oratorical speeches of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Henri Bourrasa and later was to review the fire of Bourrasa and the wit of Laurier in developing his own dynamic platform style.

In 1951, a year after graduating from the three-year business course at Victoriaville, he married Yvette Lemieux, sweetheart, Suzanne Cure of Amos. They have two daughters — Roger, 23, Gillies, 22, and Andree, 12. Roger presented him with a grandson two months ago.

WAS GROCERY SALESMAN

He got his first job on a husband highway project between Senneterre and Val d'Or. Laurier, quitting in late 1936 when his wife became pregnant, worked in a gold mine hospital.

He quickly caught on as a wholesale grocery salesman working the Rouyn - Noranda area. He was doing well around the giant Noranda copper-zinc smelting complex 225 miles northwest of Montreal.

That job ended abruptly in 1942. "The president called me up and said I'd been fired for two reasons: Social Credit and my big mouth. Social Credit?"

With $336 in back pay he bought a failing grocery store in Rouyn. Soon after he owned it was ready to give up the business in disgust. The day after his old firm fired him, he talked it into giving him the line of groceries on credit.

He says that in less than a year the store was doing $6,000 worth of business a month. But he had a heart attack and was told "to get easier hours and be sure to spend more time with her."

Rouyn auto dealer Remi Royal gave him a job selling cars. In 1944 he was sent to Val d'Or to open a branch agency and was made general manager there.

ELECTION ARMY CALL

A year later he got a draft call from the army. "I wrote back and said they weren't needed." A second letter came ordering him to report to the Montreal mashing depot. "I went in same reply."

After two months as pair of army provost corps men walked into his office and ordered him to come with them.

"I said 'them.' You'll have to put on handcuffs and drag me. I won't put one foot in front of the other. When you join as a system of government that has conscription, I'm not living. I'll be the first one in the fighting lines.'

They went away but said they would be back. I haven't heard from them."

He said he still feels no shame or embarrassment over his refusal to go into the army. "This had nothing to do with the fight over conscription. I just decided that I'd never fight for a system which gave us nothing but the misery of depression. I didn't owe Canada anything then."

In 1945 he was a federal candidate in the old Commons seat of Pontiac, losing his deposit when he finished third, 8,000 votes behind the Liberal winner.

The Liberal MP died within a year and Mr. Caouette was the byelection of Sept. 16, 1946, with a 1,413-vote edge over a Liberal. He became the first Social Credit member from Quebec to sit in the Commons.

JAMES DUPLESSIS

He blames the late Premier Duplessis for his defeat in 1949. "Duplessis told his men to 'get rid of Caouette and they went out for the Liberal," Caouette lost by 2,617 votes.

It turned out to be a lucky break. Remi Royal called him back to Rouyn. The older man was ill and wanted him to take over the garage with its lucrative Chrysler — Dodge dealership. "He gave me 20 years to pay for it."

The garage then was doing $300,000 worth of business a year and now is at $1,000,000, he says. A few years later he sold a half-interest to six key employees to allow himself more time for politics.

The organizer of the 1955 election because of business pressure, he ran unsuccessfully in 1953 and 1958. "I was the only Social Creditor in the country to increase my popular vote in 1958," he says.

Two years to the day after that election he met Robert Thompson of Alberta, then national organizer of the party, for the first time, Mr. Thompson came here to talk with him about a revival of Social Credit which had lost all of its 19 Commons seats in the Diefenbaker landslide.

Neither will discuss the details of the pact they made that day, but it led to last July's convention in Ottawa where they were elected to the party's two top posts.

Mr. Caouette was asked in the interview what cabinet post he would prefer, should Social Credit take power in Ottawa.

"I would look in at all the departments . . . I would be the co-prime minister," he replied.

SHRINERS TO MEET

TORONTO (CP)—Take 15,000 shriners, some 300 horses, a few camels and elephants, about 150 bands and it all adds up to one of the biggest parades ever held in Toronto. It all comes off Sunday 1-6. Already accommodation has been booked by 10,000 shriners.

Man Denies Confession In Fire Death

GEORGETOWN, Ont. (CP)—Douglas Jennings, 36, told a coroner's jury Wednesday that he has denied under truth serum a confession he gave police and that his wife initially offered following the May 10 death of Hicks Jakobsen, 23.

Jakobsen died when fire swept through a basement apartment occupied by Jennings in Georgetown. His body was found two days later, wedged between a mattress and the wall. The cause of death was given as carbon monoxide poisoning.

Jennings, who Wednesday admitted to being a teller of tall stories, was charged with capital murder but the charge was withdrawn when he appeared for a preliminary hearing.

In a statement read at the inquest, Jennings said he asked for protection of the Canada Evidence Act, said he and Jakobsen spent the day preceding the fire at a bar drinking beer. Jennings said that altogether he drank about 28 glasses and seven bottles.

The statement said he and Jakobsen returned to his apartment in the early hours of May 10, had two more beers each and got to sleep.

HIT WITH BOTTLE

Then he hit Jakobsen on the head with a beer bottle, the statement said, and Jakobsen fell down. He put Jakobsen on a chesterfield chair and later decided to take him to a bedroom wall and pushed Jakobsen's body between.

Then, the statement said, he lay down and "woke up to find the chair on fire."

However, the statement — which police pointed out the fire marshal by Jennings—had addenda in which Jennings said he started the fire with the "mishap of Jakobsen's body" and blood stains on the chair.

Swede Protests Sex Emphasis In CBC Movie

CALGARY (CP) — Gunnar Sandmeier, Swedish consul for Alberta) says he will protest to the CBC over an "absolutely distasteful" film presentation of the Swedish welfare state.

Mr. Sandmeier, of Searle & Paradise, was carried Wednesday on the CBC program Background.

Mr. Sandmeier said the film was "all over - emphasis on sex throughout, the program was emphasis which is not indicative of the country."

"I don't want anything like it. It was absolutely fantastic. Not one thing was correct in the whole show."

Mr. Swalander said the final insult came when the show was ended with the playing of the Russian national anthem.

In Ottawa, CBC official said: "We will study the excerpt of Mr. Swalander's letter with interest."

Science at Work

By The Associated Press

Topics this week: A world census of shark attacks, a cruise to another ocean for a veteran sailing ship, and a hint that birds can tell time.

DANGEROUS WATERS

So in the last year, sharks made at least 30 attacks on humans — without provocation. Six persons were injured fatally. Four attacks on boats by sharks failed to injure anyone.

So reports the shark research panel of the American Institute of Biological Sciences. It makes an annual census of shark attacks that can be authenticated.

Last year's attacks ranged from U.S. mainland coasts to Hawaii and other Pacific islands, to Bermuda, Australia, Africa, the Mediterranean and seven 150 miles up the Limpopo River of East Africa.

Some 17 species of shark were involved, from a two-foot baby shark to a 2,500-pound white pointer. Most of the unprovoked attacks occurred off Africa and Australia.

As for people who tried to hunt, trap or chase sharks, 14 provoked at least nine shark attacks. Ten persons were injured, but none fatally.

ACRES OF MONEY

Ethnologists, studying the ways of Yap Islanders in the Caroline, have found a problem in economics that can't be solved with piggy banks.

The Yap Islanders have coins ranging up to 14-feet in diameter, size of the coins, seven feet in diameter and six inches thick, is to be displayed at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The coins are cut in a distant quarry and transported to the island on rafts, the difficulty leading to their value.

The trouble is that the coins are too big in many instances to change hands. So they tend to remain in one place, perhaps the store of the original owner, while the title changes hands.

There are some six forms of money on the island, but the big stone coins are the most valuable. They are also the hardest to steal.

ANOTHER OCEAN

The Columbia University research vessel Vema is sailing into another ocean. It is one of some 40 research craft peering into the unknown depths of the Indian Ocean.

The Vema's new purview covers some 28,000,000 square miles — about 14 per cent of the earth's surface. Little is known of the earth's bottom surface and its history.

On an earlier voyage, the Vema discovered that the Indian Ocean connected south of Africa with a 45,000 mile crack in the earth's crust, a crack that follows an earthquake zone extending the entire length of the Atlantic Ocean.

BIRD WATCHING

English scientists are using radar to watch the flight patterns of birds under various conditions. The hope is that the flicks of the radar screens can answer some of the questions about animal behavior.

But immediately the study finds new questions. The radar watchers, for instance, observed one flock of 200,000 starlings take off from its roost in 15 waves—each wave three minutes apart. Question: How does the starling tell when the three minutes is up?

CHILD KILLED

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Ursini, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Ursini, was killed Wednesday night when his bicycle crashed head-on into a car in suburban Etobicoke. The driver of the car was not charged.

JAMAICANS TO CANADA

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—About 250 Jamaicans are scheduled to leave for Canada Sept. 1 after being selected to take up permanent residence in Canada under the new Canadian Immigration Act. The Jamaicans were accepted for entry by a three-man Canadian Immigration team.

RATE DECREASES

TORONTO (CP) — Statistics released by the Ontario public welfare department show that the rate of illegitimate births has declined steadily since 1960. Figures for 1960 show that only 3.2 per cent of the live births in Ontario were illegitimate. The national rate for that year was 4.3 per cent.

Kitchener Man Drowns Children Kills Wife, Self

Used to Worry a Lot About His Position

KITCHENER (CP — Walter Brown, who a friend said "used to worry a lot about his job," killed his wife and three children Thursday, then committed suicide.

Police were trying to determine why the 34-year-old salesman drowned the children and shot his wife Joyce, 30, and himself.

Police broke into the house and found the children, Neil, 4, Steven, 3, and Russell, 9 months, in the bathtub, Brown and his wife were in the living room, shot with a .22-calibre rifle police said was bought here Tuesday.

Two notes — one addressed to police and the other "to whom it may concern"—were found in the house. One contained instructions on how to notify and what to do with the family pet. sessions. Police declined to release contents of the notes.

Deputy Police Chief Ewan Bowman said the deaths apparently occurred shortly after midnight Thursday.

Neighbors said the doughnuts were still outside the front door when police broke in. Carrier Ernest Thyssen, 17, Hans Blinkhorn, a neighbor who knew the Browns and knocked at the front door when the children did not go out to play in the morning as usual.

Blinkhorn said he thought at first the Browns had gone on holidays, but when he saw the car still in the garage he knocked police.

Michael Riddel, a friend of the Browns, described the family as happy.

"It's more than been business pressure," he said, adding that Brown, a salesman for Kimberly-Clark Canada Limited, worried about his job.

The trucker strike has bothered Brown, who said he is filling his orders," he said.

Brown, 34, is believed to have been from Etobicoke, a suburb of Toronto. Mrs. Brown was formerly of Hamilton. They moved here six years ago.

PROBE BAFFLED HOW CRIMON GOT $50,000 CACHE

Former Sergeant Of OPP Grilled

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Crimon gave the Ontario royal commission on crime a lesson on how to bury $50,000 in glass jars Thursday but left it baffled as to how he accumulated the cache.

The former Ontario Provincial Police sergeant's explanation of hot he buried swag roughly as much as he earned in 12 years on the anti-gambling squad left questioners in some awe as they tried to nail down allegations that he was a bagman for organized gambling.

"A modern miracle, commented Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon.

"Through four hours of grilling by four lawyers and the commissioner, he called the prosperous motel operator either evasive or stupid — he maintained inistrinsically that he took no crooked money and made no profit on his wrestling wife's earnings while he looked after chicken preserve jars with currency.

ACCOUNT IS JUMBLED

The ex-policeman's own account could scarcely be described, but counsel calculated he had about $8,500 in the polite salary while buying between $30,000 and $35,000 in his years on the force—he says he already had around $20,000 when he joined.

His wife had earned some $35 a week while Cronin himself did some part-time work selling grass - cutting and grave-digging.

'Deceit' Charged, Frost Complains His Reply To Wintermeyer Suppressed

TORONTO (CP) — Former premier Leslie Frost stirred up a political storm before the royal commission on crime today by alleging the suppression of certain evidence in "deceitful and unfair" manner by the commission.

He made the claim—directed against the Liberal party—in a telegram to the commissioner respecting earlier evidence that last year he refused to see a lawyer with information about alleged "corruption" in the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Frost's telegram touched off a sharp exchange between Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon and commission counsel Roland P. Wilson and a subsequent announcement by the commissioner, Mr. Justice T. D. Roach, that lawyer Eric Scott, the man with the then proposed information, would be called as a witness "if he can contribute anything."

In his telegram, Mr. Frost expressed amazement that letters written to Scott were by Liberal Leader John Whitmeyer were introduced in evidence Wednesday without reply.

"My reply was clearly suppressed, which is misleading to the commission, deceitful and completely unfair," the telegram said.

He complained that the Liberal party has a counsel to enter his case while "a person like myself has to read these activities in the newspapers" and suggested that political parties should not be represented at the inquiry.

The Liberal and New Democratic parties have been represented by counsel since the start of the inquiry, ordered after Mr. Frost relinquished premiership last year.)

Mr. Frost said that if counsel are to be present they should protect the reputation of citizens who could be "maligned by half-truths of this sort" and that should mean making the commission a political sounding board.

Commission counsel Wilson promptly read Mr. Frost's reply of last July 25 to Mr. Wintermeyer's suggestion that he see Mr. Scott who had been a junior prosecutor at the trial of three men on charges of police bribery.

(Mr. Scott during the course of the trial ,gnocked down had come under suspicion of police information, and in a letter he wrote to the premier—the year before—he said he had "strong evidence" of corruption existing in the attorney-general's department.)

Mr. Frost, in his letter, said that he was turning the matter over to Attorney-General Kelso Roberts and added:

"I may say that in prosecutions of gamblers and bawdy houses the police are dealing with blackmailers, same with dropers and people who sell sticks."

He understood that the police had a fairly clear case of marks which had been made by "certain elements" (and which have since been given to the commission) and he was sure

SIR WINSTON IS FLOWN HOME FOR TREATMENT

Further Operation On Thigh Expected

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill arrived here today by jet airliner from the French Riviera for further treatment of the fractured thigh he suffered in Monte Carlo Thursday.

The 87-year-old wartime British leader was expected to undergo an operation in London's Middlesex Hospital on the broken left thigh.

The broken bone was set and Churchill's leg was put in plaster by Dr. Wilfred Shaw, the surgeon-in-charge of Middlesex Hospital said he understood this was to "make it as comfortable as possible for Sir Winston, who is very old."

Superintendent G. P. Hardy-Roberts, said an operation was expected. Mrs. Churchill had been settled into the hospital.

Despite his injury, Churchill was cheerful and rosy-cheeked when he arrived at London's Comet jet plane in Nice, France this morning for the flight home.

GIVES 'V' SIGN

One of his doctors reported that Churchill was in good spirits on the flight to London. Just before he was lifted into the Monte Carlo ambulance for the journey to the airport he was greeted by a classic "V" sign to about 50 photographers clustered around the ambulance.

A team of air force doctors and nurses flew out from London to fly to the French Riviera, accompanied Churchill home aboard the Comet, specially equipped for ambulance service.

Lady Churchill and the Churchills journalist son, Randolph, were at the airport to meet and greet the former prime minister and accompany him to the hospital.

With them was Lord Moran, Churchill's personal physician in London. A team of specialists will examine Churchill and determine whether an operation is necessary.

HOUSE CHEERS

A cheer went up in the House of Commons when a message of sympathy for Sir Winston was read by the Speaker, Sir Harry Hylton-Foster.

The message was in reply to a cable sent by the commons to Monte Carlo expressing sympathy. Here is the statement as read by the speaker:

"The House

Half Student Applicants For Jobs Already Placed

Summer job opportunities for high school and university students are considerably improved over last year, with more than 50 per cent of applicants registering with the Belleville National Employment office having been found jobs.

This was the story reported today by Cecil Hiuser, manager of the local employment office, who said that 123 students, including 15 commercial school graduates, had been found jobs. The 15 commercial graduates were found permanent positions.

Altogether approximately 200 high school and university students applied for summer jobs through the local employment office, it was stated.

The breakdown shows that about 30 male university students mostly from Queen's and 35 male high school students were found summer jobs. Three university girls and one high school girl were placed in summer jobs while another 25 to 30 applications are still pending in the tourist resort areas in the Muskoka district.

Mr. Hiuser reported there had been little difficulty in placing the students in summer jobs.

"We find that summer job opportunities for students are considerably brighter this year, although a certain number of applicants will be unable to find employment," Mr. Hiuser said.

Remanded Week On Two Charges Of Theft

16-year-old Larry Edward Carrol was remanded one week when he appeared in police court in city court here this morning charged with breaking, entering and theft at White's Hardware on Front Street and breaking, entering and theft of the Belle Shirt Ltd.

Represented by Mr. Marsakas, Carrol pleaded guilty to the charges.

City detective Harold Reid told the court that while two city police officers were on duty they observed the accused and a juvenile coming up the ramp from behind Keller's store. He said one youth was carrying a fishing rod and a tackle box and the other boy was carrying a larger box.

The juveniles were apprehended at the scene while Carrol was apprehended by detectives the following day. They were found in possession of a quantity of fishing tackle.

Detective Reid said upon investigation it was found that the two boys had entered the hardware store that afternoon, entering and leaving the store through an unlocked skylight window, letting them into the warehouse.

He said the accused also admitted that he and Carrol had entered the Belle Shirt and taken a number of shirts. Investigation had been brought an unlocked door of a shed at the rear of the building.

TO CEASE PUBLISHING

DUBLIN (AP) — The Evening Mail, Dublin's oldest newspaper, will cease publication because of economic difficulties, it was announced Thursday. The paper collected its last penny dividend in 1956. It became a tabloid last year shortly after the acquisition by the Irish Times, Limited.

Fire Rating

Tweed Forest District

Don't bet on it but the weatherman might throw a damper on holiday activities tomorrow evening.

It may not be anything of a holiday spoiler, merely a few scattered raindrops to help decrease the fire hazard in the wooded areas.

Lands and Forests forestry officer Ken Reid said there is the possibility of scattered thunderstorms with lightning accompaniment in the early evening.

The forestry chaps don't mind the showers, in fact they are on their side, but the lightning that carries fire hazard aplenty.

But don't cancel the holiday on this account. It's merely a tip to take along the raincoats and umbrellas. You may not need them.

And a tip to campers — when you're putting the last guard "out" at night — put the campfire out with them. You may be toasted — but don't get roasted.

Almost 16,000 Cheese Offered This Week

A total of 15,885 cheese, including 2,023 specials, 9,926 first grade white and 1,440 first grade colored, were offered at the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week.

The average price for May white cheese was 34¼ and for June white 34½. Average price for colored, both May and June, was 34¾ cents.

At Stratford there were 2,398 first grade white, 3,156 first grade colored and 4,068 square cheese offered.

Talk of Strike Still Rumor Says Official

Reports that a strike is pending by employees of the Brewers' Warehousing Company was put down as mainly rumor today by an official of the company's Belleville office.

It was stated that negotiations are still going on between employees' union representatives and the company had been going on for some weeks with another meeting being scheduled for Tuesday or Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

The company official at Belleville said little information was being offered by either the company or employees representatives on how negotiations were progressing.

"To the best of my knowledge the talk of a strike is still rumor," said the local company official.

Rumor or not a few local hotels have done a bit of stocking up apparently as a safeguard against strike possibility. In such cases the build up of stock had taken place over a period of several weeks.

Thousands of Children On Loose for Two Months

"School's out!"

That's the joyful cry heard this afternoon as thousands of public and separate school children in Belleville and district bade goodbye to their teachers and classrooms and commenced their two months' summer holiday.

For hundreds of high school students however, the summer holiday period started two or three weeks ago, depending on the date when they completed examinations.

Students in the matriculation classes completed their exam inations this week.

Although classes for primary school pupils end today, here and there this has been a slight tapering off from normal school routine.

At many schools various classes have been taken outside the school with visits arranged with the view of broadening the kiddies' education.

In some instances classes have gone to the country to learn about conservation measures, and rural students have come to the city to visit places of interest.

This week several hundred high school children had what for them was their first trip in an aeroplane. They went by special charter to Toronto and visited Upper Canada Village along the St. Lawrence River.

First Canadian Skating Champ Turns Pro

TORONTO (CP)—Don Jackson, three-time world figure-skating champion from Ottawa, Ont., was set today to a professional contract with Ice Follies.

The signing would end months of speculation about the future of the world's top - ranking skater.

The five-foot-six-inch youth, 19, has been a specialty at creating the greatest free-style skater the sport has known, reached the top in Prague last March and when he beat out Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia to become the first Canadian to win the men's title.

Trailing after the compulsory school figures, Jackson dazzled the judges and a crowd of about 3500 with an unprecedented series of triple jumps, the first in the history of the annual championship.

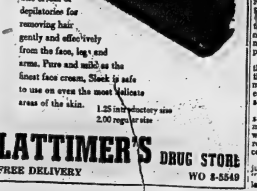
Veteran skating officials said they had never seen anything like it and officials of professional ice shows started knocking on his door. In the first flush of victory he dodged questions concerning his amateur status, saying he would like to continue as an amateur and take the 1964 Olympic Games in Austria.

A couple of months later, while in England, he indicated he would join the ice ranks but nothing was official until today.

STANTS WITH SYMMETRY

It was a long haul for the black-haired Jackson who discovered skating while stumbling on ice during a school carnival. He was later, in 1958, to be on the Canadian junior title to Toronto and the youngster was on his way.

The following year he was second in the Canadian senior singles and in 1959—in his first tests of international competition—he placed seventh in the world tournament. From that point on he gradually inched his way to world prominence.



He finished fourth in the 1958 world championships, was the Canadian and North American titles in 1960 and was third in the 1960 Winter Olympic Games at Squaw Valley behind David Jenkins of the U.S. and the Olympic champion, Alain Calmat of France.

He was second in the world championships in 1960, won the North American and Canadian titles that year and successfully defended his crowns in 1961 and 1962. The 1961 world championships were cancelled when the American team was wiped out in a plane crash.

Letters Sent Criticized by Liberal Member

TORONTO (CP) — Vernon Singer, member of the Ontario legislature for East Centre, criticized Municipal Affairs Minister Cass for sending letters to municipal heads seeking their suggestions on municipal legislation.

Mr. Singer told the legislature's select committee on municipal law today:

"I think it is more than passing strange that while this committee is sitting the ground is being cut off from under our feet by the minister of municipal affairs.

"I don't know why the minister is asking for suggestions on legislation from these municipalities when this is supposed to be our job."

He said the letters advised that proposals be forwarded to the municipal affairs department not later than Aug. 31 to consider them for the 1963-63 session of the legislature.

Mr. Cass, asked to comment, said that when the committee makes its report and it is forwarded to his department, the recommendations will be received.

"In the meantime we can't just sit on our thumbs," he said. "We have got to keep the legislation up to date."

Britain Refuses To Take Part In Roll Call

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Despite rejection by Britain in advance, the United Nations General Assembly approved the Afro-Asian bloc's attack on Britain's Rhodesian federation policies Thursday.

The action refused to take part in the roll-call vote as the 106-nation assembly adopted the resolution 73 to 0, with 26 abstentions.

To underscore his country's protest, Sir Patrick Dean, head of the British delegation, strode from the assembly hall.

Portugal also refused to participate in the vote.

The entire Soviet bloc joined the British in piling up the big yes vote. The lone no vote came from South Africa. The abstentions included the United States, Canada and other Western powers, along with some Latin American countries.

In a final statement to the assembly Dean said the resolution as beyond UN authority, unconstitutional and impracticable.

ATTACKS RESOLUTION

Dean asserted that the resolution failed to take into account "the political conditions necessary to accomplish by itself changes in the constitutional position in Southern Rhodesia."

"It says us to do things such as the scrapping of another constitutional conference, which we have just done," he said. "It asks all parties to participate fully in such a conference and yet specifies conditions which make agreement at a conference impossible.

"I ignore the fact that the new constitution drawn up last year represents a considerable political advance for the Africans. It calls for the release of political prisoners, whereas, contrary to the statements made by several delegations, there are none."

Two Charged Elect Trial by Judge and Jury

Two local men appeared in city court here this morning and elected trial by a judge and jury when they were charged before the magistrate charged with breaking, entering and theft at Booth Radio and Parts.

Charged with the offence are Robert Bennett and Archibald R. V. Orr, 21, Trenton.

Bennett was represented by Mr. Marsakas and pleaded guilty to the charges.

They were further remanded until this morning for sentence but were told by the magistrate that, in passing sentence, he would take into consideration all time that had been spent in custody up to that time.

Charges Made By Jewish Youth Termed False

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The chief of federal police here called as false Thursday night charges by a Jewish youth that police officers carved swastikas on his forehead and cheeks.

Capt. Enrique Green said the swastikas were so symmetrical and the wounds so shallow that "we cannot believe they were made on an assaulted person."

Ricardo Gerado Clement Jordo, 18, made the charges, claiming police had mutilated him.

The reported attack came as the capital's Jewish business community closed in protest against a series of anti-Semitic outbursts, apparently triggered by the execution in Israel of Adolf Eichmann. Eichmann was kidnapped in Argentina by Israeli agents in 1960, tried and sentenced to death for his part in the slaughter of 6,000,000 Jews by Hitler's regime.

Police armed with tear gas guns and clubs dispersed the day patrolled Jewish business areas where stores displayed signs saying "closed as a protest against the Nazi aggression in Argentina."

Disc Jockey Awarded $3,500,000 For Being Falsely Called a Red

NEW YORK (AP) — Former disc jockey John Henry Faulk was awarded $3,500,000 libel damages Thursday night on his charge that linking him to a Communist conspiracy destroyed his broadcasting career.

After deliberating four hours after an 11-week trial, the jury, by an 11-to-1 vote, found for Faulk against the publication Aware, Inc.; Vincent W. Hartnett, one of its directors; and the late Laurence A. Johnson, operator of a chain of supermarkets in Syracuse, N.Y.

Johnson, excused from attending the trial because of ill health, died Wednesday in a Bronx hotel.

The panel of eight men and four women awarded Faulk a total of $1,000,000 compensatory damages divided among all three defendants and punitive damages of $1,250,000 each from Aware and Hartnett. The judge had ruled that no punitive damages could be collected from Johnson's estate.

Faulk's lawyer had asked an award of $4,000,000.

The award was believed to be one of the largest libel verdicts in American history.

WILL APPEAL

Defence lawyers said they will appeal.

The verdict was handed down on the Faulks' 14th wedding anniversary, prompting Mrs. Faulk to say: "It's the nicest anniversary present we've got."

Faulk described the trial's outcome as "the most unbelievable thing. I feel very excited at what this may mean for the future."

During the trial, Faulk was described as one of the top disc jockeys in the New York area, who conducted programs on radio and television for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Aware was organized in April of 1963 with the avowed aim of "combatting the Communist conspiracy in entertainment and communications."

Faulk charged that a bulletin of Aware, published Feb. 10, 1956, falsely accused him of pro-Communist sympathies. He said Hartnett prepared the material and Johnson was instrumental in distributing it to broadcasting and advertising executives.

Faulk's lawyer, Louis Nizer, described the defendants as vigilantes and said: "Let the word go out that this kind of thing must be stopped."

Testifying for Faulk, many persons in the entertainment world detailed a pattern of blacklisting in the industry during the 1950s.

Ask Diefenbaker For Prompt, Remedial Action

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Importers and Traders Association has asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker for "prompt remedial action" on recently announced import surcharges.

In a telegram to the prime minister Wednesday, signed by association President A. T. Brodeur, the association said it appreciates "the need for action in our country's financial crisis" but "strongly protests" the imposition of the surcharges because:

1. They are unwarranted in view of Canada's favorable surplus of merchandise trade in the last year.

2. They put Canada out of step with the general movement toward freer international trade.

3. They seem bound to have a damaging effect on the Canadian trading relationship with many countries with whom this country has a favorable trade balance and may invite retaliation from those countries whose exports are affected by these taxes.

4. They discriminate against an important section of the business community.

5. They impose severe hardship and, in many instances, financial disaster on hundreds of fellow Canadians, especially those who have firm commitments and imported goods in transit.

4,000 Troops In Viet Nam Hunt Commandos

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Close to 4,000 Vietnamese troops were dropped or airlifted into a Communist controlled zone 60 miles north of here today in the latest clutching the Viet Cong guerrillas' top commander for the Saigon region.

The operation was described as the largest airborne combat mission ever carried out by the government against the Viet Cong. Two battalions of paratroopers were dropped into the area and other troops were lifted by U.S. and Vietnamese helicopters.

The landings were reported to have been made without an incident.

The mission apparently was begun after a tip that Saigon's top Communist leader maintained headquarters in the Communist-controlled zone north of here. Unusual police activity has been noted in Saigon for several days.

There were indications, meanwhile, that the United States is uneasy about recurrent reports of executions of captive Communist guerrillas by South Vietnamese troops.

U.S. officers attached to Vietnamese units as advisers told a reporter they had been directed to report any cases of summary executions they witnessed and to attempt to persuade the South Vietnamese to treat prisoners more humanely.

first senior trial counsel Gordon Ford had advised the attorney-general of any relevant material.

Mr. Justice Roach commented that he had wondered on Wednesday where the premier's reply was, and Mr. McKinnon said that the material based on that day had been all that was in the possession of Chief Inspector Harold Graham of the Ontario Provincial Police, who was on the witness stand when the subject came up.

(Inspector Graham had testified that when Attorney-General Roberts learned that Mr. Scott had Metropolitan Toronto police who was investigating department "corruption" the attorney-general promptly ordered a Scotland Yard investigation of the background of Welsh-born Mr. Scott. The lawyer was cleared.)

READS ANOTHER LETTER

In a July letter to Mr. Winternmeyer, also introduced today, Attorney - General Roberts expressed amazement that a junior lawyer such as Mr. Scott should have gone over the head of his senior trial lawyer in an attempt to reveal confidential information obtained during the course of the duties in the case.

The attorney-general added it was "unbelievable" that a junior solicitor should use confidential information to cast doubt on the integrity of experienced persons in the attorney-general's department, in whom Mr. Robarts had the utmost confidence.

The letter went on: Mr. Scott knew nothing that was not known to Mr. Ford and was not satisfied Mr. Ford had disclosed to him any information he should have.

Mr. Roberts suggested the most of the Scott information was "unsupported gossip" known to officials before they removed with the prosecution against gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley and former OPP constable Robert J. Wright.

The correspondence concluded with Mr. Winternmeyer describing the attorney-general's position as "extraordinary" and Mr. Roberts saying that his door is always open.

In explaining his own position, Liberal counsel MacKinnon said the whole matter would have been cleaned up quickly if he had followed original commission procedure which included the calling of Scott in the early stages of the inquiry.

Mr. Wilson knows — he has been getting instructions from the attorney-general," the Liberal lawyer said.

Mr. Wilson immediately bristled.

"I have not been getting instructions from the attorney-general," he replied angrily. "That is a highly improper statement."

Mr. MacKinnon retorted he had made renewed attempts in May to have Mr. Scott called.

Mr. Justice Roach smoothed the troubled waters by observing that Rome was not built in a day.

"In due course," he said: "Mr. Winternmeyer, the attorney-general and any other person having to do with this matter will be called, including Mr. Scott if he can contribute anything."

P.U.C. Refuses to Remit 50 PC Rebate to Developer

TRENTON — Mr. Wasil Sidor, developer of the Westmount Park sub-division, directly west of Trenton, may eventually succeed in getting a 50 per cent rebate on the cost of installing water mains in housing development . . . but it will be from the Trenton Public Utilities Commission.

When the mains were installed last year, at Mr. Sidor's expense, the PUC, thinking that annexation of the area was imminent, entered into an agreement with Mr. Sidor to the effect that if annexation took place before June 6 of this year, the commission would refund him 50 per cent of the cost. Well, annexation hasn't. And the PUC won't.

At least, that's what the commission members decided at yesterday's June meeting.

Mr. Sidor has written several letters to the commission, asking that the rebate date be extended. He has also written to town council, enlisting the aid of the mayor and councillors. Yesterday a letter from them was filed by Mr. Sidor's base, was considered by commissioners in reply to council, will be sent, with a copy forwarded to Mr. Sidor. "The commission will not extend the agreement. Furthermore, it is not considered necessary steps to recover 50% and $2.025 from the property owners on these streets through local improvement taxes."

The possibility of "checking the town's water system for leaks," was discussed. Mr. Page said that there was some very good equipment on the market today, but that it cost in the neighborhood of $15,000 and the commission, "didn't have the money." The town would be divided into sections; special meters would be put into the mains and day and night readings taken. If the night readings were higher than expected, workmen would look for a leak in the main. A "listening" system used now was disclosed. Mr. Page said that this was often unreliable, because all leaks couldn't be heard through this listening device, and also interfered with the readings. Mr. Baker suggested that an amplifier could be put on the device, along with partial excavation to check out traffic noises. No action was taken on this.

'Wing' President Wished 'Bon Voyage' at Party

TRENTON—Last night at RCAF Station, Trenton, William Menzies, president of Trenton Wing 413 of the RCAF Association and Howard Welch, Will Lewis and Bill Brown from Belleville Wing, 416, wished "Bon Voyage," to national association president Len Baldock from Windsor, a few minutes before he took off on a Europe-bound Yukon aircraft.

Mr. Baldock was accompanied on the flight by Jack Gray, secretary-manager of the Ottawa wing. The two executive members will visit wings in France and Germany and will spend quite some time in London, England, making final arrangements for the reunion of the association banner. The banner will hold the same position as "colors" to an army regiment. Each wing in Canada will receive a replica of the national banner, with the wing's number and home town or city incorporated into the design.

Mr. Welch, acting for Belleville wing president Tom Riley, presented Mr. Baldock with a gift. Prior to their departure, Mr. Baldock and Mr. Gray were entertained in the officers' mess by Trenton president Bill Menzies. Mr. Brown was present in his capacity as Quinte regional vice-president.

Aboard the Yukon with the association executive members were 118 service personnel and their families. Each family was presented with an RCAF association "Bon-Voyage Bag", which contains games for the children and adults, candy, gum and other goodies to keep the youngsters amused on the journey. The aircraft will land at Marville, France, where personnel will be sent to their postings.

LONDON (CP)—Betting odds on the American - owned Larkspur hardened today to 9 to 4 on the eve of the £97,000 Irish sweeps derby, the richest race in Europe.

In the absence of any official callover of prices, bookmakers in Ireland and England sometimes offered conflicting quotations, but Larkspur shortened from 3 to 1 to 9 to 4 in most cases.

Other prices advertised by Malachy Skelly, a turf accountant in Limerick, included Arctic Storm, 7 to 1, Arcor and Tambourine, the two French challengers, 10 to 1, Meadbeg, Larkspur's stablemate 10 to 1, Saint Denys 12 to 1, Cyrus, third hope of England, 25 to 1, Lighdon Gazette 20 to 1, Le Pirate 25 to 1, March Wind 25 to 1, Four Hour Guide 28 to 1, Trimatic and Abbess were offered at 1,000 to 1.

Must Revise UN Voting

By the end of this year, the Afro-Asian group of nations will have a majority in the UN, numbering, as they will, 55 out of a total of 104 members.

Nobody with any sense can regard this situation as satisfactory.

Obviously, the voting power of the Afro-Asian bloc will be out of line with their military and economic power.

That alone, might not be unacceptable, since the UN constitution makes a provision for the exercise of responsibility based on power through the Security Council.

But, though on the basis of population the Afro-Asian voting power will not be badly out of line, the actual distribution of these votes is ridiculous. China, the most heavily populated in the world, has no voice, unless we accept Chiang's absurd claim to speak for the country which ousted him. India, it is true, is represented and influential—but when the votes are counted its opinion will be worth half as much as that of Ruanda-Urundi, two chunks of real estate which are now combined as the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi but which will become two independent states July 1.

Changing the voting system in the UN is imperative if the decisions of that body are ever to be regarded as binding by the world community of nations. It would have been much preferable if the necessary changes had been made at a time when the white nations—or, more specifically, the so-called Western democracies—had the majority. Then enough votes could have been obtained, without too much pressure, now when the colored nations have a majority, that the revolution was being made primarily on a point of racial bias. But that day when the proper revision could have been attempted without any danger of a red herring of racial prejudice being flung into the controversy has passed. So it will have to be done the hard way.

A realistic voting system would be based primarily on population, but with some concessions to military strength, economic wealth and even territorial interests.

By the end of this year, though, the people with the greatest voice in the UN General Assembly will be precisely those with the least education, the least training in international affairs, the shortest national history, the least wealth and the least military power.

How can one side that powerful, old, wealthy, powerful nations of the world to bind themselves to abide by the decisions of such a body?

Outdoorsmen Unsafe Boaters?

A recent workshop held by the Tweed District of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests served to illustrate one point which was quite beyond either the scope or intention of the people conducting the project. This was that, although there may be many good sportsmen about when it comes to fish and wildlife conservation, too many of these people are, quite frankly, dangerous boaters.

From some of the demonstrations of ineptness in common sense regarding boating safety and common courtesy by some who attended this workshop one received the impression that some adults, once given a boat with anything over a 10-horsepower motor on it, are more irresponsible in their conduct that some adolescents when they get behind the wheel of a 200-horsepower automobile.

Unfortunately the problem case is more serious involving as it does individuals who are presumed to be mature and responsible. The lack of such maturity and responsibility amongst a number of our sportsmen in regard to water safety is not mere conjecture, however. It is supported by the fact that so many or more deaths occur from small boat accidents outside of the regular boating season as do during its heaviest peak during July and August.

These accidents occur, we are informed by the Ontario Safety League, to hunters and fishermen during the early part of the year as the fishing season gets underway and during the latter part of the year when the hunting season is in full swing. Many of these sportsmen rely upon small boats for transportation.

It is because of this secondary interest in boating, perhaps, that so many accidents occur amongst this group of people. They are not primarily interested in boating as a sport but as a means to enjoy another sport.

It would not be at all remiss, we feel, if fish and game clubs were to take a greater interest in promoting safe boating amongst their members. Such a campaign would undoubtedly save lives in the future as well as save them from embarrassing their hosts through their lack of boating safety manners at such pleasant and worthwhile events as the Lands and Forests' workshops held recently on Lake Masinaw.

More Than An Emergency

Montreal Gazette

The measures announced Sunday by Prime Minister Churchill will have their value in helping to surmount the emergency, but the situation in which Canada finds herself is far more than an emergency. It is a situation that is seriously different from the one which we had to be, and the old world is not coming back. The real problem and duty now is to see that measures are to make this truth clear—not to represent the change as an emergency, but to declare that the emergency is only a particularly acute symptom of the change.

Canada has been living beyond her means because she has believed, and been led to believe, that the prosperity after the war would last; or, if it would not, some kind of prosperity will have to be built for it. That is very different, and far more dependable, foundations.

In the years after the war many conditions combined to give Canada, for a time, unreal advantages over other nations. The one which crowded everyone from the war with her industries intact, and even strengthened. But many other nations had their industries demolished, or disorganized.

Under these circumstances Canada was in a position to encounter relatively little competition in the world and relatively great demand. Now, however, these other nations have more than recovered from the war. Today they are Canada's competitors, rather than her customers.

In the years after the war Canadian raw materials commanded almost unrivalled in the world's markets. But changes have come here, too. Other sources of raw materials have been developed, notably in Venezuela, notably in iron, so that for nearly all raw materials, except perhaps nickel, the world has an enlarged choice. Furthermore, technological advance has created many substitutes, and in many cases they have diminished the importance of some raw materials.

Again, Canada's industries are more than ever, and at a faster pace than ever, subject to automation and advanced invention and design. Canada has found herself investing comparatively little in industrial research, and national policy hardly likely to win a place in the new world where industrial battles may be won in the laboratories.

The new competitive industrial world has almost unlimited demands for capital. But Canada has not followed policies to attract the investment of Canadian capital. Heavy spending and taxation have restricted the formation of capital, whether by individuals or corporations. Even the rate to spend recklessly and still have capital, which is always an abnormal degree of dependence on Canada upon other nations' money, with the resulting obligation of paying the service charges on that money, borrowed money by sending Canadian money out of the country.

In all these respects a potential crisis lay, instead of rejoicing in the abnormal prosperity and ease of the postwar years—as artificial and temporary. Canada needed a permanent heavy spending structure upon it. Now Canada finds herself in a highly competent, and ruthlessly competitive world. It is a world which, while offering as many other lands have so far done, the short traditional success of immigration, is also troubled, and new areas of prosperity — such as the Canadian Common Market — offer powerful counter-attractions for investors interested in industrial growth.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Sunday there is no cause for gloom. And of course he is right. But the brightness of Canada's future will depend upon what Canadians understand of it, and the sort of leadership they are given.

Putting taxes on many foreign imports, borrowing huge sums of money from individual sources to hold up the pegged dollar, and raising the Bank of Canada's rate to draw more foreign investors, do not come to terms with Canada's real needs or opportunities. These measures may all be necessary and urgent, because of the condition into which the country has drifted. But no prosperity for Canada can rest upon such measures, and attention to them can only distract from the deeper or underlying conditions, would be an illusion.

If it is dangerous to lose the confidence of investors, so that they will withdraw their money with alarming speed, so are there dangers in an abnormal dependence upon foreign investors to bring in money merely to make up for our excessive spending, and our failures in self-discipline.

The only hopeful aim is to try to stand to a greater extent upon our own feet. There is no other firm foundation when the balance is struck. And the lesson should be all the more instructive because it has come with such dramatic force.

The lesson could be lost if emergency measures are regarded as solving any fundamental problems. The time has come for facing reality. Canadians surely, are capable of facing it, and of welcoming the test of leadership that the reality demands.

Strictly Personal
Intellectual Snobbery Is A Pretence

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is a deplorable and depressing fact that, for many people, the more they know, the more they pretend to know. Quite uneducated people are ranked about their ignorance; it is the semi-educated who parade their squalid little collection of half-knowledge — often with misbelievers or misunderstandings.

Part of this, of course, results from a fiercely competitive educational system, especially at the higher levels — in which any answer is considered better than no answer. For instance, when a professor at the University of Pennsylvania some years ago asked a class to define "psychotermativity" he got 43 of the students answered.

"Psychotermativity" happens to be a meaningless word which means exactly nothing. But 21 out of the 43 students ventured it in an examination paper. Only a handful was willing to confess ignorance of the word.

About the same time, two teachers at the University of Cincinnati tested 150 college and high school students, along with academic leaders, on 50 key members had never gone beyond grade school. The groups were asked to name characters using alleged quotations from Shakespeare, to designate the authors of unwritten books, and to define words coined for the occasion.

The amount of bluffing done by the students ranged up to 90 percent. Half the students bluffed half the time. One-fourth of them bluffed 80 percent or more, and only one-fourth of them bluffed less than one-third. The college freshmen bluffed most, and the graduate students highest academically averaged the lowest scores in bluffing.

In contrast, the non-school group consisted of lawyers, clergymen, chauffeurs, salesmen, laundrymen and such bluffed far less than the college students. The average bluffing score was only 5 percent, and, in proportion to this discrepancy, the examiners rewarded them expertly.

"It appears from this that our educational system trains to discourage the admission of ignorance, a false assumption of knowledge about concealment of ignorance, which is the opposite of what it is intended to do. For adjustive has its use in society, as much the defining of one's area of ignorance as the extending of one's area of knowledge."

All this took place nearly a generation ago, and the pressure is over, that the situation has not improved. The increasing economic pressures for college entrance, the added pressures of public taxes, the sheer enormous volume of information now required — all these contribute to promote decoit, gilbsers, and pretentious double-talk. It is not the reality but the appearance that counts — not the knowing, merely the seeming to know.

Fort Knox Is Bankrupt

Guelph Mercury

A U.S. newspaper says that Fort Knox is broke. Fort Knox is where the U.S. stores its gold and gold is used by the U.S. to back up its currency and deposits. Foreign claims against U.S. gold are said to now amount to 20.4 billion dollars. To back the dollar the U.S. must have 11.7 billion.

The gold on hand amounts to 16.5 billion and this leaves a potential shortage for all purposes of 15.6 billion.

Grave problems lie ahead of the U.S. economy in the settlement of this question. The official view is that barring some unexpected development the deficit can be made up before the end of next year, and some purchases by foreign governments will help.

In the meantime, moves to protect the dollar in the event of an emergency have been made. A foreign aid will be restricted and military spending will tighten up. A cut in the value of the U.S. dollar will be opposed and steps to increase the price of exports is to be accelerated.

Money is the main source of human economy and the leading bankers of the American Banking Association have the problem under study. The pressure on New York markets is reflecting this in a severe decline in prices.

The problem is a basic one, and President Kennedy and his economic advisers are now keeping a watchful eye on gold and the U.S. dollar.

The present dollar has shaken too, but from severe overvaluation. It is hoped broadly that now are besetting the U.S. dollars. Our dollar was $1.06 in 1950 and is now about 95 cents. Certain Canadian exporters will be certain to the U.S. will benefit from the dollar depreciation, being paid in U.S. funds, but almost every householder in Canada will pay more for his bread, meat, gasoline and in during the winter months from the Southern U.S., and such items as automobile coal, cottons, foodstuffs and clothing will be affected in the future from the difference between our dollar and that of the U.S.

Women Could Rule World

Hamilton Spectator

There are more women than men in almost every country in the world, and in the Soviet Union there are approximately 18,000,000 more. This fact poses problems, only one of which we shall discuss today.

Think, we sometimes say, if women ever learned to get along with each other, what they could do. They could nominate women for every conceivable post, and then go ahead and elect them by a huge majority of numbers.

They could make laws to suit themselves.

Not all of this makes us shudder. Some of it does.

But, women will never be anything but beautiful, charming and completely disorganized so we men have nothing to worry about. . . . except keeping them happy and out guard.

To Your Good Health
Recurrent Abscesses May Result From Staph Germ

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am overweight, and I break out with abscesses all the time. I am 37 and never had this trouble until after the birth of my child. These abscesses are always around the lower part of my body. What would cause them and what can be done? Also, what about fungus of the toenails? — Mrs. J. F.

There could be a change in your body's resistance to infection, a problem which is difficult to handle.

First, weight reduction is in order. But in dieting be sure you get ample protein (lean meat, eggs, dairy products, fish) since the "immune mechanism" of the body, the ability to attack infections, is dependent in part on it.

Next, the abscesses should be "cultured," that is, samples taken so the germ can be identified and tested to determine what drugs or medications are required.

Sometimes these recurrent abscesses are the result of a staphylococcus, or staph germ, requiring special treatment.

Whatever the germ, scrupulous cleanliness is vital to prevent its spreading from one part of the body to another. Antiseptic soaps are helpful.

As to the fungus infection of the nails, the best I can do is to urge that you have it positively identified. It may be a serious skin disorder isn't affecting the nails.

You ought to have urine and blood test for the presence of sugar, since diabetes can be a factor in recurring skin infections. It also can appear after pregnancy, and particularly in people who have put on too much weight.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a cyst? I had a cyst, about the size of a golf ball, on the back of my neck. It developed after I had a carbuncle. A bit of cotton batting can be inserted into the nostril, but if the pocket should be repeated, consult your doctor. Often a cauterization or simple office procedure is eliminates the bleeding point.

In the meantime, moves to protect the dollar in the event of an emergency have been made. A foreign aid will be restricted and military spending will tighten up. A cut in the value of the U.S. dollar will be opposed and steps to increase the price of exports is to be accelerated.

Money is the main source of human economy and the leading bankers of the American Banking Association have the problem under study. The pressure on New York markets is reflecting this in a severe decline in prices.

The problem is a basic one, and President Kennedy and his economic advisers are now keeping a watchful eye on gold and the U.S. dollar.

The present dollar has shaken too, but from severe overvaluation. It is hoped broadly that now are besetting the U.S. dollars. Our dollar was $1.06 in 1950 and is now about 95 cents. Certain Canadian exporters will be certain to the U.S. will benefit from the dollar depreciation, being paid in U.S. funds, but almost every householder in Canada will pay more for his bread, meat, gasoline and in during the winter months from the Southern U.S., and such items as automobile coal, cottons, foodstuffs and clothing will be affected in the future from the difference between our dollar and that of the U.S.

Douglas Gets Meighenized

Conservatives have certain bitter memories of the defeat of their leader, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, 20 years ago. He was fated badly. The NDP leader accepted the ballot and like the good sportsman he is, but there was the result partly on the fracas over the Meighen medical care plan and partly on what he called the "complete desertion of the Liberal candidate by the party's bigwigs".

This is where comparison with the Meighen defeat ceases. Mr. Meighen, former leader of the Conservatives and a former Prime Minister (twice, however by election), stepped down from the ranks in 1941 at the earnest request of his party, which asked its leader to contest a by-election. He did so, attempted to re-enter the House of Commons; by running in a by-election in Portage la Prairie on February 9, 1942.

The Liberals thereupon deliberately refrained from nominating a candidate, left the field to Mr. Meighen and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate, Arthur Moseworthy, and allegedly backed the latter, and then rejoiced in Mr. Meighen's disappointing defeat.

Now, if Mr. Douglas' assessment of his own case is correct, the Liberals have "done it again", only this time they did go through the motions of entering a candidate.

The Conservatives have not forgotten. The New Democrats may also have good memories. One of these days something of the sort may happen to the leading Liberal — and then won't there be some gleeful references to poetic justice!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The vast majority of the hundreds of thousands of Canadians who own cabins or cottages in the woods, lakes and rivers of the Dominion country have no interest whatever in hunting or game, in wild life, in botany or birds. For a aspect of their summer surroundings. It is true many of them go through the motions of doing a little desultory fishing but this is merely a pretty how to the conventions of summer.

They don't know the names of the trees that shade their cottages. They dig up their wild plants and sow lawn grass. They couldn't name three of the forty kinds of birds that frequent the woods around them.

Many of these cottages are built in which they abide for a couple and contentedly watch the beach, the water, the landscape, the sunsets, the cool. It is certainly not considered the thing to do to seek in having summer colleges, but only the relaxation to be had from the city; As fast as they can afford it, they convert their cottages into what they call in everything but location.

Amateur botanists, conservationists and sportsmen are mistaken when they think of all the multitude of Canadians as fellow lovers of the wilds.

Sergeants of Hasty Pees Honor "White Battalion" With Memorial Plaque

Members of the sergeants' mess of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment last night honored the memory of the "White Battalion," the men of the regiment who gave their all for civilization.

The sergeants in impressive ceremonies held a three-fold program.

They unveiled a handsome memorial plaque, presented Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, former commanding officer, with a life membership in the mess, and honored two members recently given commissions with the traditional pewter mugs.

The "White Battalion" memorial plaque, hung on the south wall of the mess, was unveiled in a fitting ceremony. Retiring R.S.M. L. V. A. Simpson conducted the unveiling before a large number of mess members and their wives.

Following the unveiling and brief review of the regiment's history by RSM Simpson, the plaque was dedicated by Major Canon A. E. McConnell, M.M., former chaplain of the regiment.

"This beautiful plaque will make its proud place in the mess a sacred corner," Major McConnell said. "We thank God for the lives of these men, their honor, courage and comradeship. We honor their deaths.

"Their memory as the days go by people are prone to forget. You men will never forget. You will always be reminded by this fine work of art," the former padre said.

DEDICATION

"In memory of the courage, valor and sacrifice of these men whose valiant fight made it possible to have this plaque placed here, I dedicate it in the Name of the Father, Amen."

The plaque, approximately three feet by three feet, is of light oak frame and sandblasted black bakelite. It bears a white angel hovering over a white cross with rifle and helmet leaning against it.

The battle honors of World War One and World War Two flank the memorial motif in columns. They are superimposed in black on gold ribboned backgrounds.

Said Col. Duffy, "This is a wonderful idea of the sergeants to erect this plaque. It will help us to remember. It is an inspiration and we should be proud because we can say our mess is the first to think of such a memorial."

Commanding officer Lieut.-Col. Joe Black said, "This has been a very moving, touching ceremony. It is a fine thing to do because it is so easy to forget. It is a thing of beauty and all of us are proud of it."

Mess president Sergeant George Bailey presented the pewter mugs to former sergeants L. Evans and H. S. Adams, recently commissioned second lieutenants.

DUFFY "DEMOTED"

He also presented the mess life membership to Lieut. Col. Duffy. Col. Duffy took his "demotion" (he was downgraded to an RSM) with pridefull good humor.

"This comes as a pleasant surprise — and puts me back almost where I started," Col. Duffy said. "Some say WO's are barrackroom people but under their tough exteriors beats a kindly good heart. It has also been said the sergeants are the backbone of the army. They will always be. Now we are to have an effective army, it is an honor and a pleasure to have been made a life member of the mess."

Many comments were heard on the beauty and simplicity of the memorial plaque. It was designed by Mr. Lloyd Brenenaugh from sketches drawn by Mrs. S. (Dolly) Simpson, husband Sergeant Scott originated the idea.

Contributory efforts were by A. B. Scully, Bill Lowen, and L. W. Kokesh.

Moira Authority Plans Close Co-operation With Ontario Water Commission

A policy of close co-operation with the Ontario Water Resources Commission with respect to pollution control in the Moira River has been decided by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

A motion calling for the co-operation was passed at last night's full meeting of Authority members held at the Canniffon township hall. Approximately 30 members of the Authority attended, including chairman Cecil D. Ketcheson.

Sampling of water along the Moira will be undertaken shortly with samples to be forwarded to the Water Resources Commission for testing.

APPROVE WEIR

Authority members approved of the installation of a water level recording gauge and weir in the Shoolesmatta River north of No. 7 Highway at Actinolite. The installation will have to be approved by the Department of Lands and Forests. Cost of the installation is not to exceed $1,-600.

The Authority also approved signing of a mining option agreement with Bruce Young of Havelock. The agreement will cover Authority property west of Actinolite.

Graham Bell, Water Control Advisory Board chairman, reviewed the work of his board and pointed out the need for the proposed recording gauge for the Shoolesmatta River.

ROWBOTHAM — LEWIS

Baskets of white and yellow Shasta 'mums adorned the sanctuary and white satin bows the guest pews in Christ Church, Tyendinaga Reserve, on Saturday, June 2nd, at 2.00 p.m. for the marriage of Mary Isabella Lewis of Shannonville, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lewis, to Victor Charles Rowbotham, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Victor Rowbotham of Belleville and the late Mr. Rowbotham. The Rev. Canon J. V. Temple officiated.

Mrs. Celia John, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the ten-year-old soloist, Master Jimmie Anderson, of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom, in his rendition of "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register. Other music included the hymns, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee;" "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden" and "The King of Love, My Shepherd Is."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace fashioned with fitted bodice having a high neckline with Mandarin collar, and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. The full flowing skirt was sprinkled with lace appliques, and accented with lace panel front, the back cascading into a chapel train. She wore a crown type headdress encrusted with seed pearls, aurora sequins and teardrop pearls at the points. Her elbow-length veil of illusion tulle was accented by seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a crescent bouquet of Talisman roses.

Her maid of honor, Miss Deanna Hill, of Deseronto, was attired in pastel yellow silk organza over taffeta of same shade, with bouffant skirt, fitted bodice with bateau neckline scalloped at the edge, and short sleeves. She wore a bowlike headdress of the same material as the gown, with fingertip veil, and carried a crescent bouquet of tinted green Shasta 'mums with white accessories.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Patricia Maracle and Lynne Lewis, sister of the bride, of Shannonville, were gowned similarly to the maid of honor, but in pastel green, with matching bow headdresses and carried bouquets in crescent style of pale yellow Shasta 'mums. Their accessories were in white. All wore cultured pearl necklaces and matching earrings, gifts of the bride.

The little flower girl, Miss Arlene Lewis, six-year-old sister of the bride, was in white nylon trimmed with lace. Her headdress was a bandeau of gathered white tulle sprinkled with seed pearls. Her accessories were white, and she carried a tiny basket of white and yellow Shasta 'mums with trailing yellow streamers.

Mr. Gary Rowbotham, of Oshawa, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Ralph Plaze, of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mr. James Jones also of Belleville ushered.

The ringbearer, Stephen Lewis, four-year-old brother of the bride, carried the white velvet pillow with the wedding rings.

The reception, was held at Guild Hall, at the Reserve, where the bride's table was appointed with white damask and the traditional wedding cake decorated with pink rosebuds, and topped with two doves holding rings beneath an arch of rose buds and lily-of-the-valley and misted about the base with white and pink rosebuds. The bridal bouquets and tall white candles in silver holders completed the nuptial setting.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a beige linen sheath with lace-trimmed bodice and matching jacket and green accessories, with corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in blue chiffon over taffeta with full skirt, rounded neckline and short sleeves. White accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses completed her ensemble.

For the wedding trip to Boston, Mass., the New England States, Lake Placid, and New York City, the bride chose a white featherweight wool fitted suit with portrait neckline, blouse of green and gold splash-ed silk, gold flower headpiece, gold-toned gloves, shoes and purse, and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests attended from Groveland; Perry and North Thorpe-wanda, New York; Pembroke, Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto, Oshawa, Belleville and Shannonville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by the Mississauga community at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Walbridge; at a linen shower at the home of Mrs. Gladys Maracle, with Patricia Maracle, Deanna Hill and Lynne Lewis as co-hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowbotham are residing at Foxboro, R.R. 1.

Less Time on Fairways, More in Beauty Parlors

NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with women's golf is that some of the girls spend too much time on the practice tee and not enough in the beauty parlor, says the newest of the female touring pros, Kay Cornelius.

"Were not just athletes—we must be entertainers and showpieces as well, added the attractive, 27 - year - old schoolmarm from Austin, Tex., who is giving up the chalk and eraser bit for a 2-iron and brassie shot at Mickey Wright, Betsy Rawls and company.

Miss Wilson, a five-foot-ll, 135 - pound brunette, was brought to New York Thursday by her new employers, a sporting goods company which is financing her fling at the ladies tour.

Patty took up the game seven years ago as the result of a dream the competition has been confined to a few local tournaments.

"I had a dream while I was in college, she recalled. "I was playing golf. There was a big gallery all around me. And I was very thrilled. I had never had a golf club in my hand. The next day I went out and bought every golf book I could find. Then I started taking lessons.

Her teacher is the well-known Harvey Penick of the Austin (Tex.) Country Club. Soon she was shooting in the 70s.

"There are some very attractive girls on the tour, she says. "It's their duty to primp up and look their best. If fans want to see great golf shots, they go to see Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus. When they take in the women's tour, they want something extra — good golf shots and glamor as well.

Sunday School Picnics

CHRIST CHURCH

The Christ Church Sunday School picnic proved a great success in every aspect this year. An overwhelming turnout seemed to be the main reason for the fun-filled afternoon. Combined with Christ Church were St. George's Sunday School also from Shelleyville, and St. John's Sunday School from Point Anne.

On arrival, parents relaxed and enjoyed the fine weather, with whilst they had been prepared for the occasion. At the same time, children were dashing everywhere, some to a bunny to get swimming, whilst others anxiously awaited the announcement of races. Then, of course, there were others who waited no time in lining up at the canteen to redeem their ice cream and soft drink tickets.

Finally, came the big moment for all and to get the races off to a good start boys and girls 5 years and under ran their way to the finish line. For their fine efforts each was given a present.

Getting down to more serious business were races for children 6 years to 14 years, and also various other races for young and old.

While some families combined to enjoy the picnic quietly relaxed within their own family circle, for everyone enjoying to see so many people enjoying themselves.

Following all everyone gathered together for evensong and devotions. The Rev. J. B. Creegan led the service and Mrs. Merl Cavill gave the lesson for the day.

Like all good things must come to an end, memory of a happy school picnic would long be remembered by all.

6. Unless the invitation is specifically for the girl, we assume anything. If children are not mentioned in the original note it's safer to assume the week end belongs to grown-ups.

7. If you're going to a party type who minds her teas a d-d-d-d, it would be permissible.

8. No. Spend the fee and save the peace.

9. If's done by some young couples. But unless you know a fact the bashful young man the baby — wouldn't mind, it isn't advisable.

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

When an invitation arrives many parents aren't sure if it includes the children or not. Here are some questions frequently asked by puzzled readers.

1. Are the kiddies automatically included in an invitation to an "Open House?"

2. When friends suggest that you drop in when in the neighborhood, do they mean when the youngsters are in the car or only when you're travelling without them?

3. Does a wedding invitation to note "bring the children, of course?"

4. May youngsters be trundled along to an afternoon cook-out without checking with the hostess first?

5. What about a christening? Doesn't such an invitation usually mean "bring the offspring?"

6. When friends invite you for the week end is it safe to assume they mean the kiddies, too?

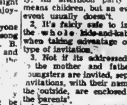
7. If mother is invited to a tea and can't go unless she brings her small Mary, would it be permissible to take her along?

8. Does an invitation to a bridal shower mean you can bring a pre-schooler along and save a sitter's fee?

9. Is it permissible to bring an infant who sleeps through the night to a dinner party at the home of new friends?

10. If you are invited to a private recital, would anyone look askance if you were accompanied by a couple of teenagers who also happen to be music lovers?

ANSWERS:



1. Children should never be taken any place "automatically." To be beyond a shadow of a doubt, the invitation should mention the children specifically. An afternoon party often means children, but an evening affair usually doesn't.

2. It's fairly safe to include the whole kit-and-kaboodle when taking advantage of this type of invitation.

3. Not if it is addressed only to the mother and father. If youngsters are invited, separate invitations, with their names on the outside, are enclosed with the invitation.

4. This type of entertainment is usually arranged with youngsters in mind, but if you have any d t it's always more considerate to check.

5. When it's a close relative, but usually not if the invitation

Angel Food Birthday Cake
(for Birthday Girl)

BARBECUED SPARERIBS (simplified — serves 12):

Using 10 lbs. meaty spareribs cut them into 2-rib serving pieces. Place 1 layer in bottom of large, roasting pan. Cover with a layer of thinly sliced onion. Pour over some of this Barbecue Sauce. One cup catsup, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon Tabasco sauce, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, 5 cup water, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Mix well together.

Repeat layers, of ribs and sauce until all are used. Cover. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 2 to 2½ hours or remove from oven half hour before roasting time is up and finish on barbecue rack over direct heat outdoors, basting with sauce left in pan. It will drip on fire but does no harm.

NOTE:

We recommend this roasting in oven and finishing on barbecue fire because ribs require long cooking time and even heat. They are easily burned by impatient or inexperienced outdoor chefs.

DELUXE CAULIFLOWER WALDORF SALAD (serves 12):

1½ cups shredded raw choice cauliflower, 1 small cooking onion, finely chopped, 2 raw dessert apples, unpared, cored and chopped, ½ cups diced junior celery, 1½ cups blanched almonds toasted until golden in 1½ tablespoons butter, about ¾ to 1 cup mayonnaise (or half and half mayonnaise and sour cream).

Mix together all ingredients just before serving. Don't substitute walnuts or other nuts for the toasted almonds. This salad is a new discovery in this family and we hope you try it.

NOTES:

1) Dips are very popular with young folks and help allay hunger pangs while meat is barbecuing. 2) If potatoes are roasted in foil buried in the coals, they should be turned and watched and tested by someone especially delegated to tend them equipped with foil, tongued foil and heavy fireproof gloves. You can buy aluminum nails on which to impale raw potatoes for baking which conducts heat to their centres and speeds up baking or roasting time.

Leaders, Teachers, Hold 1-Day Children's Work Consultation

MADOC JUNCTION — A one-day consultation meeting on children's work for the Leaders, Teachers of Messages, Explorers, Nursery and Kindergaten Department in the Belleville Presbytery was held at Holloway Street United Church in Belleville on June 19th.

The consultation, a piece of work carried forward by the children's work department of the Board of Christian Education, was formerly done by the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. Maurice Clancy was coordinator for the consultation.

Mrs. J. B. Carey was in charge of registration, with some 50 ladies registering.

The opening worship was conducted by Mrs. George Carlisle, chairlady of the Leadership Development of the United Church Women of Belleville Presbytery.

Miss Joyce McKee and Miss Barbara Copp, first year students from the United Church Training School were introduced by Mrs. Clarence Holmes.

The ladies were then divided into two groups, those interested in Nursery and Kindergarten met with Miss B. Copp, who led in discussion re integration of Baby Band work into the nursery, kindergarten and family life department in local congregations.

PRINCESS WEEPS

The purpose of the Nursery Roll is to establish and strengthen the relationship between the home and the church on behalf of the Christian education of pre-school children.

The leaders of the Messengers and Explorers met with Miss McKee who introduced materials for these groups. These groups provide satisfactory learning experiences of love, service and development with their core—Mission Study.

MISSIONARY PROGRAM

The new missionary program material for 1962-63 is as follows: "Sun Rise," for Messengers six, seven and eight years of age, also "Tiger Tail Village," for Explorers nine, ten and 11 year-old girls.

Assistance was given the leaders in making the transition, problems were discussed. Ideas were exchanged and helpful material shown.

At the lunch hour, Mrs. Bertrand and Mrs. C. Holmes of the UCW of Holloway Street Church, served coffee and they also served coffee and cookies in the afternoon.

During the afternoon session two questions were dealt with: Who should belong to a Christian Education Committee, and The work of the committee.

The answers proved helpful to those making plans to form local Christian Education Committees.

Miss B. Copp conducted the closing worship.

Mrs. Empey of Madoc gave the courtesies at the close of the consultation.

Do Stepchildren Inherit?

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:—I was a widow with a married family when I married Frank, a well-to-do widower with a family on their own. He is now in a wheelchair and I wait on him hand and foot. I am thankful I am able to do so and we get along real well together.

Only one thing bothers me. Frank is afraid that if I should outlive him, my children might eventually benefit. Can a man cut his wife off in his will? Is there a law against a man cutting his wife off with very little?—BOTHERED.

DEAR BOTHERED—Poor return for devotion if he did!

Above all he must provide for you. If you do not get an adequate amount from the estate, through his will, you may claim more, as his dependent.

In your case, the likely way he would be advised to arrange it is to provide a life interest for you in his estate, which upon your death would be divided among his own children.

At no point do your children, now adult, have a claim on him.

DEAR DORIS—My second daughter has caused my husband and myself no end of trouble by being deceitful and starting to steal anything she could put her hands on. This started three years ago. Along with three other girls she was caught stealing blouses from various stores, and had to appear in Juvenile Court. It is amazing the amount these girls did steal.

To cover up, she would invite one of the girls over to the house, and very innocently ask permission to wear either slacks or some wearing apparel belonging to this girl friend, and which in truth was a stolen article, and then if she had my permission, she would keep it saying this girl had given it to her.

Now I notice she is again getting things without buying them. She knows that the receiver of stolen goods is as guilty as the one who takes them. She is 17, taking her grade 9, but I have my doubts whether she will pass.

Where could I have failed my girl? That's the question I keep asking myself. Her attitude right now indicates that no matter how old she is, she will never be old enough to be independent or self-supporting. Yet she has the ability were she only to adjust herself.—WIT'S END.

DEAR WIT'S END—How baffling this must have been, and what a heartbreak!

From this distance, I can't diagnose, but I can suggest.

She steals for a reason. Perhaps because, as second daughter, she has taken second place in your thoughts and knows it. Perhaps having many pretty clothes meant an ego-build-up for her.

But I doubt that she has an average I.Q.—and if she is a little below normal, this may have added to her frustration. The battle to excel is not worth the effort.

If this is so, she must find self-expression in ways which are satisfying to her, perhaps very simple ways. A vocational counsellor could help you with this.

She does have some talent. Find it. Challenge her with something you know is within her reach, and meanwhile make her feel her importance to you without criticizing her.

* * *

(Talking it over helps. Doris is a professional social worker who has helped people with problems for many years.)

HISTORIC SCHOOL

RUGGED ERA

At the height of the witchcraft panic in Salem, Mass., 20 women were hanged as witches in 1692.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Julia C. — My husband has an incurable ailment and I don't want him to be told.

Rita Y. — He's my brother and if she won't tell him, I will. He's entitled to know.

Julia C. — In addition to the heartache from the awful news I carry within me, I must undergo the harassing of my sister-in-law. She's ready to go against the advice of the physician, as well as my own inclination, and inform my husband that he is not recovering from his present illness, and never will.

Thanks to the doctor, he is in no pain and is joyously forging ahead on a new project in his engineering plant. It's his own "baby" — a design for a new type faucet — and the firm has just won a contract from a hotel chain. We're also planning to move. Charles is in a happy frame of mind.

His sister, however, wants to break the floor from under him immediately.

Rita Y. — I can't bear to stand by while they all flimflam poor Charley. Here Julia lets him sail along and make plans for far into the future. Then suddenly he'll know the truth.

She's taking the easy way. If it's too hard for her to tell Charely that he's sicker than he thinks, I'll help her. And believe me it's just as hard for me, because Charely and I were always close pals. He's braver than anyone, and once he knows he'll do what's best to get things in order.

We're the people he trusts — Julia, the doctor and I. How can they be so unfair to him? When his condition grows worse he'll have to know, and then he'll be in no shape to handle things.

The Council: Well-meaning as this sister is, she should defer to the judgment of Charley's wife and their physician. To override their decision at this point and burst in upon Charley's well-ordered life with the "lowdown" might have disastrous results for all.

The usual excuse, "Tell him the truth so he can get his affairs in order and prepare," hardly applies here. It would not apply at all if Julia could routinely and matter-of-factly assist Charley with the family paperwork. Now that they're moving and everything must be "gone through," she can acquaint herself with important papers, valuable records and "due dates" for various commitments around the calender. She may be able to slip quietly into the role of joint business manager of the home.

In this spirit, Julia might propose that she and Charley both prepare a will, just as a common sense procedure. So long as all financial matters are approached jointly, rather than broached to Charley alone, no untoward suspicions should arise on his part.

Emotionally Charley's affairs are in order. He's swinging along. Spiritually, it's his wife and sister who must be sustained. In pressing her views upon her, sister-in-law and in threatening to supersede her wishes, Rita is not helping matters or buoying anyone's spirits. Quite the contrary. There's a large hunk of cruelty in her proposition. Instead, these two women ought to vie with each other to devise ways to bolster, cheer and encourage.

As matters stand, "telling" Charley will not improve his health. Honesty is not the perspicacious policy here. There's nothing to be gained and, perhaps, many joyous weeks to be lost. The people Charley trusts must trust each other, too.

firms, while against this there was income tax, purchase of three new cars and accumulation of a $180 trust fund for a son.

"Quite a saving person," Mr. MacDonald commented.

Cronin contended it was all honest money that went into the quart jars on the family farm and Scott, he said, had explained in detail how he made annual pilgrimages to a corner of the basement and kept the jars sealed with paraffin wax and replaced deteriorating bills with new currency until he was ready to put them $40,000 cash for a home and his half of a Kingston motel.

SEES A PATTERN

But New Democratic Party counsel Andrew Brewin, pulling together odds and ends of evidence heard since March 31, declared they showed a "very clear" pattern involving the 58-year-old Cronin.

Mr. Brewin noted these points in the evidence:

1. OPP Const. Larry Wood had testified that, after he and Cronin left the force, Cronin suggested he could get him back on the anti - gambling squad to act as a tipoff man.

2. Former Squad Cpl. W. J. Shrubb, new Peterborough police chief, said gambler Vincent Feeley told him Cronin was providing tipoffs.

3. Const. George Scott, who dealt with gamblers as an undercover man for the OPP in 1960, said Joseph McDermott, reputed co - chief of Ontario gambling with Feeley, told him the same thing.

4. Scott quoted former Const. Robert J. Wright, since convicted with McDermott and Feeley of obtaining police information, as saying Cronin and Wright had been partners in Upper Canada.

5. Wright testified Cronin told him, after the latter's retirement, that two men on the squad were still being paid money by Sammy (The Ball) Belson, a St. Catharines bookie and alleged wholesaler of policy, prosecution in the Niagara Peninsula.

DENIES INVOLVEMENT

Cronin, denied all references to himself; pointed out that Wright had no evidence beyond his denial the tipoff partnership allegation, and said McDermott and Feeley had not been called as a witness — had denied to him the quotation attributed to him.

Specifically, he said McDermott had denied trying to bribe that Cronin had been "in business for 12 years," was "supplying the off (tipoff) to many places" and had "the heart of a lion."

Scott also had quoted Wright as saying Cronin made at least $100,000 and Wright made $50,000. Denying the reference to himself, Cronin added:

"I don't know if Wright made 50 cents or anything, and I wouldn't think to look at him that he has."

Wright, only OPP man to be prosecution covering Scott's undercover work, recently told the commission he is broke and in debt after two trials and a long jobless period.

While denying any and all suggestions of crooked dealings with the gamblers, Cronin said Thursday he and McDermott, neighbors in nearby Port Credit, had visited at each other's homes once or twice since left the force, and he also was friendly with Feeley.

He and McDermott had not talked of the latter's gambling operations but had discussed such things as flowers, gardening, fishing and two unsuccessful business ventures they got into together after he left the OPP.

These were the promotion of preparations called Dewberry's Ointment and Charm-Ay Beauty Cream. The ointment brought some $30 sales at $2, while the beauty cream brought done.

Regarding Shrubb's evidence that Cronin once had approached him to provide protection called him "honest but confused" and said he was "suspicious of pretty nearly everyone."

His suspicions included "the whole of the attorney-general's department" and specifically a Mr. Bowman, but he could not say whether or not the latter was W. C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions in the department.

SOCRED LEADER

folio and Mr. Thompson, who worked in Europe and Asia for much of the last 20 years, the foreign affairs slot.

Party members indicated much of their energy will be devoted to preparing for the next election.

The party has set a target of 30,000 active members in Quebec and 39,000 in the Atlantic provinces. It also will try for two in each poll west of the Quebec border.

Mr. Caouette said Social Credit is in favor of Canadian union organization.

"But when a labor leader is interested in the establishment of a socialist dictatorship, Social Credit can not march with him," he said.

He had been asked about criticism of the Social Credit movement in Quebec by Jean Marchand, president of the 100,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions.

He said the labor leader did not know what he was talking about when he made a "stupid" statement about Social Credit after the election.

Social Credit was not anti-labor, he went on, Quite the contrary. It was to such groups Social Creditors owed their success.

New Secretary's Office Will Be Built by Fair Board

Yesterday evening's meeting of the Belleville Fair Board set the County building saw the introduction of the 1962 prize lists and a large number of new items and projects investigated, discussed and set underway.

Two major projects, both of which will be new to Belleville fairgoers were approved by the board. One was the contracting of the General Investigation Ltd., of Ottawa which will be providing 24-hour protection and patrolling the fair grounds. It is expected that this series will eliminate many of the problems which have occurred in the past such as damage to exhibition displays, illegal entry etcetera.

The other major project will be the construction of a new building to house the secretary's office. This building, which will be designed to commemorate the administration of the parimutuel betting system for the trotting races also, will be located to the west of the grandstand. Construction is to begin as soon as the plans are finalized. The cost of the new building will be approximately $1,500.

There will be a couple of additions or improvements for the youth events for this year also. The local Boy Scouts were given the approval of the board to set up a camp site on the grounds where a group of scouts will be living under canvas for the four days. They will be giving an exhibition of the various crafts for which scouting is famous.

The board also tacitly approved the use of the grandstand stage by Junior Farmers for their square dancing contest. It was pointed out by Junior director Hamilton Jackson that last year's event had been very well attended and was conducted in very cramped quarters. It is expected that, with the use of the stage, a greater number of contestants will be accommodated at one time and that a greater number of fairgoers will get a chance to see top square dancers in action.

An extended publicity budget was requested by committee chairman Phil Ziegler, who outlined the need for publicity as a means to build up the fair's gate attendance. A theme song for the fair, together with the slogan "Be at the Belleville Fair," was introduced together, with an outline of a comprehensive program of newspaper advertising in the area.

The board also approved the application for a licence with the Canadian Trotting Association by the secretary.

The next meeting of the board will be in two weeks time.

Jury Returns Open Verdict In Man's Death

GEORGETOWN, Ont. (CP)— A corner's jury has returned an open verdict in the death of Nicki Jakobsen, 28, who died May 19 when fire swept the basement apartment of a friend, Douglas Jennings, 26.

The jury ruled Thursday that the fire was accidentally or wilfully started.

Jakobsen's body was found two days after the fire, wedged between a barrel and a furnace oil tank. Jennings was charged with capital murder in the death but the charge was later drawn.

The jury Thursday heard testimony by Dr. Donald Stokes who described Jennings as pseudologia fantastica. Such people believe the lies they tell or be true and live within the situations they create for themselves, he said.

Jennings Wednesday admitted being a teller of tall tales.

Dr. Stokes said he could put no value in a confession Jennings made to police in which he said he hit Jakobsen on the head with a beer bottle and started the fire to cover the death.

Inspector Kenneth Grice of the provincial police also testified that he did not believe Jennings' confession. He said the confession was not consistent with the physical evidence found at the scene.

Social Credit Party Outlines, Reaffirms Policy

QUEBEC (CP)—Social Credit members of Parliament ended their first party caucus Thursday with a statement reaffirming principles laid down last summer at the party's leadership convention.

The preamble said:

"In view of the widespread interest in the recent federal election and also because of the critical attack there are several 'brands' of Social Credit thought, we, the newly-elected Social Credit members of Parliament hereby declare the following basic statements of principles and policies which underlie the movement."

The statement added the party believes in the importance of the individual and his rights. Because of this it was "inalienably opposed to communism, fascism and all forms of totalitarian government." Government had to serve the people.

The statement then went on to list the measures Social Credit would take to stimulate free enterprise, establish financial reform and encourage economic development of the country.

Pay-as-you-go government, Bank of Canada credit, a municipal development bank, and lower taxes were among the main points.

Social Credit would raise family income tax exemptions, progressively decrease corporation taxes, set up a two-price system for the agriculture, forestry and fisheries industries and authorize depreciation allowances on private homes.

Development would be made with friendly countries — the United States, Latin America and Commonwealth nations — was another point.

Other points included restriction of excess interest rates on credit buying and fair finance practices.

SIAMESE TWINS DIE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Siamese twin girls died in hospital Thursday after surgeons could not separate them. The twins—Ann Marie and Amy Michelle Defayette—were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Defayette. They were born April 4.

United Nations Appears To Be Turning Corner in Quest for Peace in Congo

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— After two years of costly and often frustrating efforts, the United Nations' appears to be turning the corner in its quest for peace and stability in The Congo.

UN diplomats generally concur in the view of Acting Secretary-General U Thant that substantial progress has been made toward political unity as the African nation nears the start of its third year of independence from Belgium.

They also say the task is far from completed, that it may be years before the Congolese can govern themselves without outside guidance.

However, this week's breakdown in the Congo reconciliation talks, aimed at ending Katanga province's secession from the rest of The Congo, is regarded by officials here as temporary. In all, The Congo problem has ceased to have the urgency at UN headquarters that marked the final months of 1960 and the entire year 1961.

Thant, in a recent appraisal, said he believed it would be generally conceded that the United Nations had played a significant role in preserving the unity and territorial integrity and unity of The Congo. He recalled that a year ago "practically two-thirds of the country was outside the control of the central government" and in fact we had no legitimate central government to deal with." Thant added:

Today we have a legally constituted central government under the leadership of Prime Minister Adoula, and we have only one province out of six still striving to maintain some form of separate identity."

The Congo situation was chaotic from the start. For many months it seemed that UN intervention might be more of an aggravation than a help. Often the world body was under attack by the central government, the leading opposition groups and by many of the 104 UN members.

The mammoth operation involving 17,632 troops, including Canada, has cost the world organization $10,000,000 a month and there was no way to force members to pay their share. The Soviet bloc, France and many other countries refused to contribute. Unique deficits began to pile up, threatening UN bankruptcy.

The greatday of the United Nations came to its lowest point after the bloody clashes last September and December between UN forces and the troops of Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

But the fighting ended, the opposition leaders met and political tension in The Congo eased. Now the UN position appears to have widespread support.

Thant's plan for a $200,000,000 bond issue has raised financial crisis temporarily, but the organization still has not found a way to pay for the cost of other similar peace-keeping operations, except through loans. The Congo operation has cost approximately $200,000,000.

New Parliament Sure to Be More Lively Than Last One

OTTAWA (CP) — The 25th Parliament opened June 18 is almost bound to be more lively than the 24th.

After the 1958 election the Progressive Conservatives had 208 members in the 265 - seat House. Now they have 116. The total opposition elected to the last Parliament was only 57, Now it totals 148.

A minority government is usually more on its toes than one with a huge majority of supporters. It must face more questions daily and thus must be able to give answers more quickly and faster.

The government supporters tend to be critical—or more critical—because they are more worried about the future of the party.

There will be an element of suspense. A combined opposition vote against the government on any one issue can topple it and bring another election.

Fireworks also can be expected in Commons committees, where membership of the parties is based on their respective strength in the House itself. This means the government will be outnumbered by the opposition in committees as well as in the Commons.

The Liberal Opposition still has a huge majority in the Senate, the seat of some of the biggest political scrapping in recent years.

There will be the dry wit of Speaker Roland Michener, defeated Liberal minister, St. Paul's, who smoothed troubled waters on many occasions during the 24th Parliament.

But if there were losses, there have been gains.

The election brought back to the Commons rule's expert Stanley Knowles, CCF, Winnipeg North Centre, and Real Caouette, MP for Villeneuve and Social Credit's deputy leader.

Conservatives back - benchers who never had a real chance to show their abilities now will have full scope. Certainly there will be plenty of opposition targets.

High-Altitude Nuclear Shot Highly Important to U.S.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Although the United States has failed in four attempts to fire a high-altitude nuclear shot over the mid-Pacific, an informant says this phase of U.S. nuclear testing is highly important and the U.S. won't give up. Another attempt, he said, will be announced soon.

Just why this particular type of shot is so important has never been made clear. It has been reported the main result of such an explosion would be to dent the Van Allen radiation belt girdling the globe.

This has raised special concern of whether the U.S. is attempting to interfere with a part of nature not yet fully understood by scientists.

But a more practical element is the critical need by the U.S. to find some way of developing an effective defence against intercontinental ballistics missiles.

One U.S. theory holds that the way to handle an oncoming missile is to explode a powerful thermonuclear bomb high above the ground, to penetrate and destroy the missile before it can reach its target.

MUST LOFT MISSILE

Before it can fully test this theory, the U.S. first must show ability to loft a fully - loaded missile hundreds of miles above the earth. It also must show ability to fire such a missile with fine precision in point of time to make sure of an effective rendezvous with the oncoming missile.

All this requires a great deal of operational refinement—and time. Each time the U.S. has normally be available to the research people for a few minutes' clear series. When President Kennedy first agreed to the tests, which began April 25, he spoke of ending them in two or three weeks.

Meanwhile, there has been some regional agitation against them following indications that fallout had been dumped on some eastern cities. Kennedy maintains there is no health hazard, although the public health services rushed some two dozen infants from Kansas City and St. Louis to New York for special protective tests.

On the basis of military needs, therefore, it would seem the atmospheric tests will be drawn out for as long as Kennedy considers feasible in terms of domestic and foreign agitation against them.

PROGRESS SLOW

BRUSSELS (CP - Reuters) — Edward Heath, Britain's chief negotiator for entry into the European Common Market, was reported Thursday to have made no notable progress in obtaining Common Market guarantees for Canadian, Australian and New Zealand farm exports. He conferred for 2½ hours with the ministers representing the Common Market.

NDP Promises All-Out Fight Against Policy

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party leadership promises an all-out fight against any monetary and fiscal "belttightening" measures by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

At the same time, it reluctantly decided to go along "on a temporary basis" with the prime minister's other austerity measures.

The decisions came Thursday at the end of a one-day gathering, the first meeting of the party's national executive since the June 18 federal election.

In a statement after the meeting, the executive said the government's decision to tighten up the money supply through higher interest rates and to reduce government spending "can only be viewed with alarm."

It said the decision will not fully prevent the government from launching a new program to promote employment and growth. "It will aggravate our present unemployment problem."

OTHER MOVES NECESSARY

Of such other measures as import surcharges, a freeze on Canadian tourist spending and the borrowing of money abroad, the executive said they are regrettable but probably necessary under the present circumstances."

The executive said that since there was no unanimous opinion on how the crisis should be met, Mr. Diefenbaker should "call Parliament into session at the earliest possible time to examine and discuss alternative proposals."

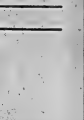
Earlier, national President Michael Oliver of Montreal told the party statement carrying the executive's unanimous decision to recommend that party Leader T. C. Douglas accept an offer to seek election in Burnaby-Coquitlam federal riding.

Mr. Douglas, who is at his summer home in Carlyle, Sask., and missed Thursday's session, has been offered the party's safest seat in a new riding. Erhart Regier, sitting member since 1953, offered to resign so a byelection could be called.

Jury Urges More Power Be Given Doctors

NEW WATERFORD, N.S. (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the June 22 death of a four-year-old girl recommended Thursday that doctors be empowered to give blood transfusions in cases where the parents object for religious reasons.

The jury ruled Emily Dale died of shock resulting from blood loss after a tonsillectomy here. She was hit by a stone thrown by a playmate.



The operation was performed at hospital here several hours before the girl died. Jurors had asked the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dale, to permit a blood transfusion. But they refused on religious grounds. They are Jehovah's Witnesses.

Dr. D. S. Nathanson of New Waterford said a blood substitutes administered during the operation had only a temporary effect and was not enough to satisfy her needs.

Teen-Age Canada

Teen-Age Talents At the Barbecue

By JACK HUTTON

An 18-year-old friend gave me a startling reason for being happy about the end of his final exams. "Now," he announced ingenuously, "I can get down to some serious cooking."

What, I asked, invade the kitchen? Not at all, he replied haughtily. He was just getting back to his hobby of cooking outdoors where so many teen-age males have discovered hidden talents with the campfire and barbecue fork.

A great idea, he said. Every teen-ager should plan some weekend night during the summer when the gang can explore the mysteries of cobs of corn and hamburg.

Does one have to be a real cook, I asked my friend. "Not really," he replied. "You can get as complicated as you like, but because everything tastes better outdoors you could just make toast and get raves."

"First, think of your fire," he went on. "At a beach is available, find where you can build a fire and where no one will mind a bit of singing. Practise building a fire from scratch first if you're not used to it."

"If you're at home, the backyard is great. A 24-inch barbecue grill which sells for about $8 is ideal but you can buy other models for even less than $2. There's a minimum of mess and the gang thinks you're a fantastic chef.

What, I asked the young master chef, should be a beginning cook's first menu? "Hot dogs and potatoes," he said promptly. "And don't laugh, because this bowls anyone over. Maybe you might add corn."

"Wait until a bed of coals has formed and bury washed potatoes in aluminum foil. If it's in the barbecue don't do a thing until your coals have turned white and are giving their best heat.

"Try experimenting the first night with hot dogs wrapped in aluminum foil thrown among the coals. Roughly 30 minutes will give you a wiener with a scotched coat but a tender interior.

Hot dogs and hamburgs, he added, can be cooked quickly on top of the fire and also taste great. "I like to use a barbecue holder for four hamburgs." In cost less than $3 and yob can get one for less than $1 for hot dogs."

How quickly does one advance, I asked meekly. "Always experiment," he answered shortly. "On the second cook-out wrap bacon around the wieners and slowly turn them. Also try corn in the aluminum foil."

An advanced teen-age cook, he went on, should attempt the spectacular sometime before the end of the summer. "Why not," he asked with a gleam in his eye, "a shish kebob which is easier than it looks."

"You can use a skewer or a spit of some kind, but after that you simply alternate two-inch cubes of lean lamb on the skewer with quarters of onion, whole mushrooms, quarters of potatoes and slices of green pepper in the same way you string beads.

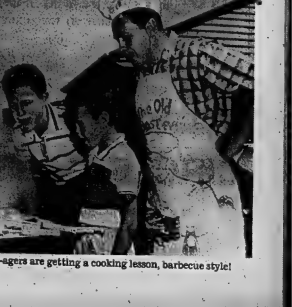
"Keep turning your shish kebab over the fire until it is all tender. This should take about 20 minutes. And make sure it's evenly cooked."

His final advice: "Get the girlfriend to cook if you can't."

PEACE CAMPAIGN

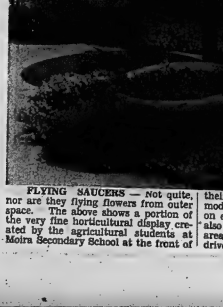
Two Montreal brothers who some time ago launched their own "crusade for peace" through pen pals and recorded tapes, are setting up a Canadian branch of the American "People to People" university program.

Glenn and Keith Martin decided some time ago that the only way to encourage peace was to increase the contact and understanding among young people around the world.



Several hundred young correspondents are now linked in a number of countries. Their movement even includes a branch of African students.

The two were recently approached by the American movement which has so far concentrated on making contact with foreign students attending American colleges. The movement now is interested in making more contacts overseas.



Said Glenn: "We expect to make large numbers of Canadian students overseas next summer." Air fares have been reduced through the intervention of the U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

FLYING SAUCERS — Not quite, nor are they flying flowers from outer space. The above shows a portion of the very fine horticultural display created by the agricultural students at Moira Secondary School at the front of their school. Besides the multi-level, modernistic flower pot arrangements on either side of the entrance there is also an attractive arrangement in the area encompassed by the semi-circular drive in front of the building.

TV Season Lacked New, Interesting Women Stars

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television now has come to the end of another season remarkable for its lack of new, interesting women stars.

There have been, of course, many women performers, even stars. But most of them played normal upper - middle - class housewives with commuter husbands and carefully assorted children.

Shirley Booth, the season's biggest feminine name, plays a maid. As series guest stars, the ladies largely have appeared as alcoholics, narcotic addicts, or victims of blackmail and murder threats.

Next year, things dont promise to be any better. Lucille Ball will be back—as a man-hunting widow—and Loretta Young will return as a widow with seven children.

Betty Furness, an actress who has done a lot of serious thinking about women's place in television, is inclined to believe that the cold state of feminine employment in the medium is due to its preoccupation with "average family life.

NEEDS GLAMOR

"I think television needs a great big infusion of glamor," said Betty.

"All the big woman stars in the movies golden days were glamorous and remote. I still turn around to stare, like a teen-age fan, if I see great Garbo walking down the street.

"But who turns around to look if the woman next door walks by—and that's what television women are. Why turn on the set if you can go to the nearest window and see them in their own backyards?

Tommy Kirk Would Change His Name to Thomas Kirk

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For such a funny guy on the screen, Tommy Kirk can be a serious young man.

He's very serious he wants to change his name to Thomas Kirk.

"I've outgrown Tommy and I hate it," reasons the 20 - year-old. "I hate Tom, too. . . He slides Tom Kirk is too curt. Tom H. Kirk might be better. No, I think it should be Thomas Kirk."

No amount of reasoning can dissuade him. "It's Robert Taylor, not Bob," says he.

But Bob Hope has done all right.

"Yeah, but he's a comedian. I'm talking about actors. They don't bill Laurence Olivier as Larry."

HAD MANY HITS

As Tom,—Sommy or Thomas, he looks assured of a sturdy career. He's had one already as Walt Disney's busiest actor.

He has been in most of the studio's recent hits, among them Old Yeller, The Shaggy Dog (he was the boy - turned-dog), Swiss Family Robinson, and The Absent - Minded Professor.

He has done nine pictures in six years, plus television segments.

"I'd like to be a leading man who doesn't look like a leading man. I'd like to be a comedian without a funny face."

Like Jack Lemmon?

"No, not Jack Lemmon. He has voice and body english. I use my face."

That's it. His wide - open, nice-looking face can express just everything — perplexity, consternation, tenderness. That is why he has been so asset to the Disney studio, man and boy.

AT THE BELLE — Tippi Tyrone, Rock Hudson and Doris Day are held much in common in "Lover Come Back", a champagne chaser from their recent "Pillow Talk". The new romantic color comedy co-stars Tony Randall, and is holding over tonight and Saturday at the Belle.

Hamilton Gets

Football Hall Of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian football is going to have its own showhouse to honor its immortals and to revere its past.

A special meeting of the Canadian Football League decided Thursday to incorporate a football hall of fame to be located near Civic Stadium, home of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the CFL's Eastern Conference.

A CFL spokesman said Thursday night it will be early next spring when the project "actually gets on the rails." But a committee to select the first nominees to the hall will be appointed "very quickly."

The meeting, which voted unanimously for the hall, set out the makeup of the selection committee and the qualifications for nominees to the hall. Both players and what the CFL called in a statement "builders of football will be eligible for a place in the hall.

In addition, a football museum will be built. It will include historical football items—perhaps in a uniform from the games past or a display from an historic Grey Cup game.

The selection committee, which will be chosen by a board of football executives, will consist of the CFL commissioner, at present G. Sydney Haller of Winnipeg, two members either of the hall of fame or persons occupying an official capacity in football, three past or present officers of the Canadian Rugby Union and four sports writers or sportscasters. They will be named for a three-year term and may be re-elected.

To be eligible for nomination to the hall, a player must be retired three years or more. Players will consist of roughly two-thirds of the halls membership.

The other third of the membership will go to the "builders of football, men, not necessarily retired, whose service to football other than as an active player was responsible for what the CFL statement refers to as "an exceptional and unques-tioned contribution to Canadian football in general.

In the original nomination list to the hall there will be 21 members. Nine will be added the second year and six in each of the two following years.

The hall and the museum will be housed in their own separate building, but it is not known whether an older building will be taken over or a new building built.

Wimbledon Tennis

Aussies Singles Threat

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A grim and deadly efficient clutch of Australian aces assured of wrapping up the men's singles title in the 1952 Wimbledon tennis championships.

There are eight top-seeded Australians still in the running against two virtually unknown Britons and a mixed bag of one American, a Frenchman, a German, an Italian, a Mexican and a Spaniard.

About the only thing standing in the way of an Australian sweep is an accident.

The Australian power was demonstrated in the third round Thursday.

Rod Laver, defending champion and top-seeded here, ousted Whitney Reed, top-ranked in the United States, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

Second-seeded Australian Ken Emerson put out fellow-Australian Fred Stolle, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0. And third - seeded Neale Fraser, topped Britain's Billy Knight 6-4, 10-12, 10-8. Bob Hewitt, seeded eighth, defeated Bobby Wilson of Britain 3-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Darlene Hard, favored to win the women's singles, shot out Eva de Jong of The Netherlands 6-0, 6-0 Thursday.

The game will be televised by NBC starting at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Owen Likes Saskys Chances

REINA (CP) — Coach Steve Owen is cautiously optimistic over his Saskatchewan Roughriders' chances in the Western Football Conference this year.

After two years in the league basement, the club moved up one place into fourth in Owen's first year last year. Owen looks for another improvement this year.

He said he noticed a vast difference on the first night of the training camp this week, because of the large number of holdovers who "know the ropes."

About 40 players turned out Wednesday night for the start of training camp.

Owen has some expert help for his young quarterbacks this year. Charlie Conerly, for 14 years quarterback of New York Giants of the National League, is in Regina to coach the quarterbacks.

Yankee Sheriff Beats Twins To Draw

Shoots 'Em Down To 4th

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When it comes to cutting the bad guys off at the pass, New York Yankees call on Tom Sheriff.

Marshall (The Sheriff) Bridges, one of the fastest guns in the American League, halted another uprising Thursday as the Yankees beat Minnesota Twins 4-3 and leapfrogged into second place. The left-handed fireballer came in with the bases filled and two runs across in the eighth inning, fanned Don Mincher for the third out, then held the Twins in the ninth.

It was the 22nd appearance of the season for Bridges, a short-stint specialist who has been a valuable replacement for the injured southpaw relief star, Luis Arroyo. The 31-year-old Mississippian was obtained during the winter from Cincinnati Reds after compiling a 13-6 record in three seasons with the Reds and St. Louis Cardinals. His latest performance saved a victory for Bill Stafford, who was supported by homer blasts by Mickey Mantle combination, Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle.

By winning, the Yankees took over the runner-up spot in a virtual deadlock with Minnesota and Los Angeles Angels. The latter two gained on Cleveland Indians, New York has a three-percentage-point edge on the Angels, who in turn are three points ahead of the Twins.

ANGELS ON SPREE

The Angels moved into Boston Red Sox 19-7, Baltimore Orioles completed a three-game sweep of Chicago White Sox on Steve Barber's shutout pitching, 6-0, and Kansas City Athletics outscored Washington Senators 10-7 in other AL action. Cleveland and Detroit Tigers had the day off.

Maris and Mantle homered in the fourth and the Yankees made it 3-2 against loser Jack Kralick in the seventh when Elston Howard doubled and eventually scored on an error. Staff Bird choked off the Twins on three hits until the eighth, when pinch-batter George Banks's single by Harmon Killebrew batted two runs in.

After walking Bob Allison, Stafford was replaced by Tex Clevenger, and a walk to Earl Battey filled the bases. Bridges came on, ran up a 3-2 count on Mincher, then struck out the Twins' hefty first baseman swinging.

Bridges has totalled 24 strikeouts in his 22 2-3 outings in 29 relief jobs, and has an earned run average to be proud of — 1.17.

RED SOX SLAUGHTERED

The Angels amassed the largest set of hits in their season-and-a-half history, spraying 18 hits and collecting 13 walks against five Red Sox pitchers. The rout took shape in the second inning when Ted Angels batted and seven of them scored, with Bob Rodgers contributing a single and a three-run double. Los Angeles later had a total of five-run seasons in the fourth and seventh.

Jim Piersall raised his league-leading homer total to 21 and also had two singles. Even pitcher Ike Grba was a terror at the plate, with two hits and two runs batted in.

Barber gave up eight hits and seven walks in Baltimore's shutout over the White Sox, but struck out seven and was aided by four double plays. Brooks Robinson sent the Orioles ahead with a first-inning homer.

Manny Jimenez, the A's top batter, teamed with the recently-acquired Billy Consolo to pace the Athletics with a double and two singles, while Consolo had three hits.

Famous Tiger Leader
'Mick' Was Truly A Great

DETROIT (AP) — Hall of Famer Mickey Cochrane, competitor of the Ty Cobb mold and perhaps the greatest catcher in baseball history, died Thursday after a long illness.

The backstop-on Connie Mack's great Philadelphia Athletics teams of 1928-30-31 and later on his own 1934-35 Detroit Tigers' pennant winners succumbed in a Lake Forest, Ill., hospital. He was 58 and his last job was as a scout in the Chicago area for the Tigers.

Cochrane won pennants in Detroit in his first two years as manager. In 1934 after he was traded by Mack, he took over a team that hadn't been in the world series since 1909 when Cobb was the star. Cochrane caught Schoolboy Rowe through a record equalling 16 straight victories and batted .320 as the Tigers won their first pennant in 25 years. Cochrane was elected as the American League's most valuable player.

Detroit lost the world series to Dizzy Dean and the St. Louis Cardinals' Gashouse Gang. But the next year, Cochrane again guided the Tigers to a pennant. This time they beat the Chicago Cubs for the world championship.

PLAYS 13 SEASONS

Black Mike, as Gordon Stanley Cochrane was often called, played 13 seasons in the majors with the Athletics and Tigers. He had a .320 lifetime batting average and it was said he had no equal as a mechanical catcher.

His playing career—and almost his life—ended suddenly in Washington on May 25, 1937. Cochrane stepped to the plate in the fifth inning of a tied game. Two innings before he had cracked a home run and now the New York pitcher, Bump Hadley, worked a 3-2 count on him. The next pitch was a fast ball and it slammed against the side of the Detroit manager's skull.

For many days, Cochrane was close to death. But he recovered and guided the Tigers as a non - playing manager through 1938 and into August 1996. The Tigers then fired him and named Del Baker manager.

No-Hitter Was Worth Over $6,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bo Belinsky's May 5 no-hitter was worth $6,000 to the fun-loving rookie southpaw of the Los Angeles Angels, a columnist reports.

Bud Furillo of the Los Angeles Herald - Examiner, general manager Fred Haney drew up Belinsky's $7,000 contract and gave him a new one for $10,000. A car agency owner put 50 payments on Belinsky's convertible, amounting to $1,000, in exchange for the last ball pitched. Furillo added, and Angels owner Gene Autry paid off the balance, an additional $2,600.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The pickerel hunters and the trout seekers have had, or are having, their fling. Now comes the time for those who thrill to the battles with the fighting black bass and the Floyd Patterson of the piscatorial ring, the muskellunge.

Tonight at midnight the official green light flashes and the bass-munkie safaris get under way. Already there has been a large exodus to the northern haunts, while in the immediate district the Wallbeu will be out after the crack o'dawn has planted the eastern horizon.

While there is nothing official, fallacitous are that the bass backwoon should find the opening day activities to their liking. I have talked with several pickerel fishermen who have covered the bay and inland waters hereabouts and the consensus is that bass appeared to be plentiful. Of course all calcbes of this scrappy finny were thrown back.

This department's vice-president-in-charge of bass fishing says that neither in the season the bass bound most of the daylight hours on the bottom except just after daylight and before dark. Generally bass lie on the bottom unless there are lily pads or such on the surface where the fish may be just under them. Largemouths, he says, will be found in water from two to eight feet, usually among fairly heavy weeds.

Smallmouths will be at the same depths but in open water or among scattered weeds. He says a surface lure, much of the most fun to us, will generally work well at such times, especially mornings and evenings.

"Kid Muskie"—the Floyd Patterson or Sonny Liston, whichever you favor, of the piscatorial prize ring, because of its weariness, size and fighting qualities, is one of the most highly-prized game fish.

A large 20 to 30-pound munkie is a tough fighter exhibiting almost a bull-like ferocity when hooked, making furious dashes for liberty and if not stopped will take to the weeds. It has great powers of endurance in its efforts to escape.

Incidentally, the largest muskie recorded was caught October 30, 1945, in Chippewa Flowage, Wisconsin. It weighed 69 pounds 11 ounces with a girth of 31¼ inches.

The largest recorded in Ontario was caught in 1946 in Eagle Lake, Kenora district. Its weight was 61 pounds nine ounces, 33 inches long with a girth of 31 inches.

You will find this scaled heavyweight lying concealed among aquatic plants at the sides of channels or off shelving rocks in medium-rated lakes. After spawning they withdraw to deep water to feed.

By July they go to deeper water near rocky ledges and shoals out from the shallow bays where they spawned. The office munky expert says its midsummer habits are something of a mystery, at this time it is rarely caught on a full stomach, probably because at this time it feeds only at certain times.

In August trolling in deep water out from weedy shore, or off rocky shelves is more fruitful. This because Madame Muskie decides it is time for a change of address and she drags the old man out on a homehunting tour. They usually swim around in pairs. So if you hook one don't rush away. The spouse is around somewhere.

During the latter part of September when the leaves are turning the muskies frequent shallow water one or two feet deep, alongside logs or stumps and among lily pads and rushes.

Muscoie Bay and the Moira River, Sioco Lake and if you want to travel that far, the St. Lawrence River, are some of the best munkie-producing grounds in this district. Last year an American man and wife caught two munkies weighing 44 and 41 pounds, respectively, in the deep waters of the St. Lawrence off Alexandria Bay.

Twenty and thirty-pounders are not too uncommon in this immediate area. Some years ago a party of five city muskie-seekers hauled 187 pounds of the big fellas from Muscoie Bay in a single afternoon. That was in August when Madame Muskie and the other half were apartment hunting.

So there you have it. The season opens tonight at midnight for both bass and muskie through October 15. The bass season opened in the St. Lawrence on June 16th. You can take a daily haul of six bass and two muskies (not less than 24 inches in length) and the possession limit shall not exceed one day's catch.

Defeat Bobcats 5-1

Joyces Get Ninth Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Joyce Real Estate used extra-base hits and walks to chalk up their ninth victory in ten starts at the Fairgrounds last night, a 5-1 win over the Bobcats.

Bobby Green gave up five hits on the Bobcat mound, four for extra bases. These, coupled with nine free tickets, told the story.

Joyces zegged twice in the first. Ballachey opened with a triple and came home on Elliott's fly ball. An error put Faulkner on and Muldrew's ably doubled plated him. Walks and wild pitches upped the score to 3-0 in the second.

Bobcat manager Bill Old, forced to play catcher he was a man short at game time, accounted for the lopers' loss run in the third. He drew a walk, stole second and third and came home on Ab Wright's ground ball. Two other walks gave the Cats a good chance to tie the score but a double play killed the rally.

Flaws tripled to serve Butterfield, on with a walk, for Joyces' fourth run in the fourth and Faulkner slammed a solid home run to left to close the scoring in the seventh.

The Real Estate nine used a revised lineup with Faulkner at first base and Wannamaker catching and also used three pitchers.

Bob Butterfield hurled the first five innings to get the win, giving up the Bobcats' only three hits, fanning three and passing six. Pat Maracle and Doug Ellis each threw two innings of no-hit relief ball. Maracle only fanned four batters but gave a pair while Ellis faced just six batters.

Loser Green nipped seven on third strikes but the walks kept him in hot water. His errors made two errors while the winners played errorless ball.

Bert Faulkner had two run, triples by Ted Batchelor and Ralph Plane, a double by Stu Muldread and a single by Ken Davis accounted for the Joyce hits.

Floyd Crawford picked up a pair of singles for the Bobcats while Bart Clapp had the other one.

Bobcats: Crawford 2b, Wright ss, F. Murray c, Green p, Clapp 1b, Murray lb, St. Louis lf, Hughes 3b, Old rf, Lucas rf.

Rollins Construction Juniors will host the RCAF Flyers in B. and D. softball league action at the Fairgrounds Monday night at 8.00 p.m. In the Commercial loop, Point Anne and the Pepsi's mix it at the CNRA Park at 6.30.

No minor softball or baseball games were scheduled for the holiday, but all loops swing back into action on Tuesday.

And the Shannonville Parkland Speedway will be open for Co-Karters both Sunday and Monday. For families who to stay off the cluttered highways this is an ideal spot for a picnic and the thrill of riding and driving the go-karts.

So pack the picnic basket and let those who will take to the highways and byways. The Speedway provides plenty of quiet spots and lots of fun with the miniature racing cars.

Phils Wallop Giants

Dodgers Nip Mets, Take Over Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 3,000-mile trip from Los Angeles to Philadelphia has put Don Demeter on the road to success. And, at the moment, the Dodgers couldn't be happier over the long ride that changed the grounding outfielder from an expendable to an untouchable.

The 27-year-old right-handed swinger gave his former Dodger mates an early Thursday, powering two homers as the Phillies whipped San Francisco Giants 7-2 and gave Los Angeles Angeles an opportunity to regain the first place in the National League.

It took the Dodgers 13 innings and four hours and nine minutes to grab the chance, finally subduing the stubborn New York Mets 5-4 when Frank Howard doubled Jim Gilliam home with the winning run. That gave the Dodgers a ball-game edge over the Giants, who lost.

Demeter, who came up to the Dodgers with a cast's mates label, never fulfilled his potential and was dispatched to Philadelphia last year for pitcher Dick Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe and, when he met with the Dodgers, Demeter, meanwhile, has become the Phils top power producer.

He got the Phils started against the Giants with a pair of cod-laning homer, then hit a two-run shot in the seventh that snapped a 2-2 tie and ended San Francisco five-game victory string. Demeter now has 13 homers, 31 runs batted in and a .306 batting average.

Besides the games involving the leaders, Chicago Cubs knocked off the fourth - place St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 in the only other game scheduled.

Bob Wine and Clay Dalrymple also homered for the Phils, who scored all but one run on the homers. Jim Owens started for the Phillies, but left in the second when a double by Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou's bunt single, a walk, Jim Davenport's ground out and Jose Pagan's infield single scored the Giants runs. Rookie Billy Smith (1-1) took over and allowed only six hits the rest of the way. Juan Marichal (13-8) was the loser.

The winner came across for the Dodgers when Gilliam opened with a walk off Ken MacKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., (2-3) moved to second as Willie Davis grounded out and raced home on Howards hit. That gave the victory to Ed Roebuck (5-0) who allowed the Mets only two hits for 5 2-3 innings.

Cal Koonce (5-2) a 21-year-old rookie, fattened 10 hits and buried the first complete game for the Cubs in 24 contests. Ron Santo homered for the Cubs while Ken Boyer hit one for the Cards.

LIGHTFOOTS 8
POINT ANNE 7

Tom Lynch hit a bases-empty home run in the top of the ninth inning last night to give Lightfoot Construction an 8-7 overtime win over the Point Anne Canesmen.

Point Anne had sent the game into extra inning by scoring five runs in the bottom of the seventh on half a dozen hits, tying the tilt 7-7. The same club had a chance to win it in the eighth when Ron Hull tripled with two out but died on third base.

Lightfoots had built a 7-2 lead in the first six frames in the free hitting contest that saw the winners collect 17 hits and the losers 14. Percy Long pitched the win, striking out 11 and walking three while Denny Hull fanned one and walked but two in taking the loss.

Tom Lynch hit a homer and triple for Lightfoots while Percy Long also had a homer and single. Don Wood and Don Smith with a double and two singles each and Rusty Garvin with three singles also shined at the plate. Chuck Rowbotham hit two one-baggers, Doug Moreau and Cam McKenzie one each.

Jim Horwood paced the losers with a homer and two singles. Ron Hull tripled and singled, Graham Horwood, Bert Whalen and Gord Green had two hits each. Denny Hull a double, Mike Cook and Maher a single apiece.

Lightfoots	113 301 001 -	8 17 0
Point Anne	010 100 500 -	7 14 2

Batteries: Long and Rowbotham; D. Hull and Sheridan, Whalen (6), R. Hull (6).

CHANNEL PORT

Gravelines, the French channel port near Calais, has remains of fortifications built in the 16th century.

PEPSI'S 16 — REIDE'S 13

The Pepsi's exploded for three runs in the eighth inning to take a 16-13 overtime victory over Reide's Excavating at the CNRA Park last night.

Pepsi's had held a commanding 6-0 lead earlier in the game but Reide's scored nine times in the fifth and the winners were forced to rally in the free-scoring late inning to force the extra frame.

A sound relief job by pitcher Ted Young helped the winners to the win, taking over from Harvey in the fifth. They gave up 13 hits in all, fanning four and walking four, all by Harvey.

Embury and Paul gave up 15 hits on the losers' mound while striking out two and passing seven.

Frank Farrell paced the Pepsi's at the plate with a double and two singles while Steve Parumba had three singles, Bob Moon and Basil Turcott two each. Al Devers had a double and single, Harvey a double, Al Wagar and Rich Young a single apiece.

Lewis and Paul poked a double and single each for the Excavators with Wood, Lee and Fearce collecting a singles apiece. Patterson, Davis and Smith also hit safely.

Pepsi's	110 403 23	16-15-3
Reide's	000 091 11	13-13-4

Batteries: Harvey, Young (5) and Moon; Embury, Paul (4) and Wood.

Mets Sign $75,000 Bonus Baby

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Mets have signed for a "substantial bonus—in the $75,000 and up range—a husky 17-year-old first baseman who broke Hank Greenberg's long-standing high school home run record.

Ed Kranepool was signed to a Syracuse contract Thursday. All 20 major league clubs had made contract offers to the left-handed hitter and thrower, who smashed nine home runs for James Monroe High School in the Bronx last season. Greenberg set the Monroe record with seven.

Kranepool, who will be 18 in November, will work out with the Mets before reporting to the International League Syracuse club.

WAS IN GLEAGUES

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Harry Cy Morgan, 84, a 29-game winner for Philadelphia Athletics in 1910, died Thursday. He pitched in the American League for 13½ seasons with St. Louis Browns, Boston Red Sox and the Athletics. His best year was 1910 when he compiled a 29-6 record.

T. Arthurs and L. Scott led the Foxboro hitters with three safeties each. T. Abrams, K. Abrams and H. Pascoe had two hits each for Melrose.

R Sullivan, Moore and Skinner allowed eight hits while pitching for the winners. T. Abrams and H. Pascoe gave up nine hits on the Melrose hill-top.

Pro Leads Women's Tourney

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) Ruth Jessen, who majored in journalism at Seattle University, made a bit of news herself as she carried a record-equalling first-round lead into today's second round of the 10th U.S. Golf Association women's open tournament.

The trim blonde from Seattle, Wash., a professional for six years despite her youthful 25, was the only player in the field of 68 to match par 72.

That gave her a three-stroke lead over Mickey Wright, the defending champion and three-time winner in te last four years. Mickey's 75 tied her for runner-up honors with Joann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala.

Shooting fourth place at 76 were professionals Jackie Pung, Barbara Romack and Mrs. Marlene Bauer Hagge.

The low 40 scorers and ties will survive for Saturday's 36-hole windup in this $8,000 tournament.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Hugh McLean of Port Elgin tonight drove four-year-old Lee Hanover Salle to victory in the second race at Western Fair Raceway, his first win since returning to the track after losing his right hand in an accident last winter.

McLean, gained a provisional license by the Canadian Trotting Association recently, holds the reins with an artificial hand.

Wee La Salle, sold by McLean to Otto and Larry Marr of London several weeks ago, paced the mile in 2:02.8 and paid $15.80. The win increased the total double of $209.40 after five-year-old Pat Riskell beat the field to pay $12.80 for a $2 mutuel.

Minor Has 3 No-Hitters .345 Average

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) — Jimmy Sparks isn't sure he'll ever be good enough to pitch in the majors "but I'd settle for a spot in the Pacific Coast League," he says modestly.

His credentials are impressive: Three successive no-hit, no-run games and a .345 batting average. But big league scouts aren't beating a path to his door yet.

Jimmy is 22 years old. His 84 pounds are distributed over a five-foot-eight frame.

The wiry blonde pitcher-batter professional experience has been brief.

"I throw fast balls and curves mostly, but sometimes I use a let-up or change of ball."

In his last three little league no-hitters, he's fanned 39 batters and struck out in just 18 innings. In one game, all 18 outs were strikeouts.

At bat, however, he's in the throes of an 0-for-3 slump. It sent his average skidding from .417.

"Guess I'm using too heavy a bat," he shrugs.

Jimmy plays first base or catches when he's not on the mound.

Rumors say the word going around 1-h-r is Sparks and League is that Jimmy may be in a batting slump because he's violating curfew and getting up late to listen to the night games of San Francisco Giants—his favorite club.

READ AT GUNPOINT

SAIGON (AP)—A U.S. Army clerk freed by Communist guerrillas after six months of captivity said Thursday he did required reading of Communist propaganda at gunpoint. George Calif., said his captors gave him several propaganda documents printed in English and forced him to read them aloud several times a day.

Leafs Jump Into Second Spot

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Toronto Maple Leafs, getting their second straight shutout, have vaulted into second place in the International League, moving past the slumping Buffalo Bisons.

Righthander Orlando Pena tossed a snappy four-hit, 5-0 blanking of the Atlanta Crackers while leading Jacksonville marked up its eighth straight victory, 8-5 in 12 innings at Buffalo Thursday night. Syracuse beat Richmond 3-2 and Columbus stopped Rochester 4-2 in the others.

Pena (6-6) recorded his third shutout of the season in pitching the Leafs into second place. Bob Sadowski, Atlanta's starter also allowed only four hits in the seven innings he worked, but was betrayed by some lack of support. Three errors let in two unerned runs.

Jacksonville, which now has won eight straight, jumped on rookie Joel Gibson and Max Surkont for five runs in the 12th innings to extend their season record to 37-6. A two-run triple by Larry Brown was the big blow. It was a bases-loaded pinch-hit single by Jim Barrett that proved the game-winning blow.

Tony Asaro had a one - run homer and Ron Brand a three-run blast for all the runs Columbus needed against Rochester.

Rookie Larry Bearnarth spaced seven hits through 8 1-3 innings, but needed relief help in the ninth from Dewey Sisler to record his second victory in three decisions for Syracuse.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Admiral Armbro scored his first victory of the season when he won the Pace race at Woodbine Thursday.

Ridden by Don Hale, Admiral Armbro, defended Saltreon by more than two lengths. Jerome Street finished third.

Despite the fact that he hadn't won since Nov. 21, the crowd of 6,404 backed Admiral Armbro with some confidence and he paid $6 to win and combined with Saltreon for a quinella of $20.

Jimmy Fitzsimmons, Canada's leading jockey this season, added two more victories when he won the third race on Hasty Fox and the seventh on Milton Man. Fitzsimmons, who was top rider at the Fort Erie and Old Woodbine meetings, now has won 21 races in the first 22 days of competition at Woodbine.

REGIN TRIALS

TORONTO (CP)—Davis Cup playing - captain Don Fontana outlasted Harry Fauquier 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3 Thursday to win the Canadian Davis Cup trial matches opener. In the first match of the three-day round-robin trials, Mike Carpenter 2S, defeated his brother Heather Keith, 26, in slack-lurire encagement, 1-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4.

Leafs Put Three on All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffalo Bisons and Toronto Maple Leafs landed three posts each on the International Baseball League all-star team picked by the managers to face Baltimore Orioles at Rochester, N.Y., July 11.

League president Tommy Richardson announced Thursday that Jacksonville Suns leader Jim Pisoni, got two berths and Atlanta Crackers and Columbus also had three on the 30-man squad, which included a left- and right-handed pitcher.

Here is the league team:

Columbus manager Larry Shepard earlier named all-star pitcher, will select 10 or more additional players to round out the squad.

Mounties Reject Twins' Aid

VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Minnesota Twins of the American League have offered $20,000 to financially-ill Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League, but the Mounties have had to reject the aid, The Sun says.

The paper said the Twins promised an immediate cash loan if the Mounties agreed to repay it out of a $20,000 payment to Vancouver this fall from the major leagues player development fund.

However, The Sun said, the Mounties already are reported to have promised the $20,000 to local backs toward current overdrafts of $41,000.

Vancouver, a locally - supported club in the Twins farm circuit, has been in money trouble all season, the newspaper said, and club officials have warned the team may fold before the year is over.

Some Hundred U.S. Firms No Longer Fire Alcoholics But Treat Them As Sick

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW-YORK (AP) — There'll never be a monument to the Alila-Chalmers machine operator who retires next year at 70. Drunks seldom rate public honors.

But this man has a different sort of memorial—one that will continue salvaging lives for many years to come. It is the revolution he caused in a big firm's attitude toward alcoholic employees.

The machine operator was the first alcoholic the company set out to help, and because his own and the company's — made him the forerunner of many others.

Today, there are between 80 and 100 other U.S. companies that have similar policies. They range from du Pont to the New York Times.

To these firms, the alcoholic no longer is an unstable or No longer is he summarily sacked.

Now he is seen as a sick person, deserving the same consideration as a worker suffering from diabetes or other diseases.

This change results from a dollar-and-cents reality as well as humanitarian motives.

AFFECTS EFFICIENCY

The most efficient machine in the world can't be efficient if the man running it operates at only half his capability.

When alcoholism hits a plant, it shows up in absenteeism, reduced efficiency, errors, accidents, loss of customers, loss of training investment and lower productivity.

An oil refinery worker came on the job with a hangover and turned the wrong valve—adding oil well drown the drain.

The total cost of alcoholism to industry has been conservatively estimated at $1,000,000,000 a year.

For Alila - Chalmers, a new awareness of the problem and positive action came during the Second World War.

"We needed every man on the job and operating at 100 per cent," recalls Henry Maxfield, manager of employee relations at company headquarters in Milwaukee. When a number of men absent because of drinking, or working inefficiently, you can't meet that objective. It was decided there must be some way of handling the problem other than firing the worker."

DISREGARDED WARNINGS

The machine operator then had 20 years with the company. He had been given 11 disciplinary warnings about drinking. He didn't show, so he was fired. Even in a company with 42,000 workers, there was some gossip about this one man. He was a good worker.

Management executive worked with Milelcarek decided to do something. They got him to join Alcoholics Anonymous. In six months, he straightened out and came back on the payroll. The union went along, getting his seniority restored.

Today Alila - Chalmers has three AA groups meeting on company property.

"Our absenteeism rate has been cut from eight to 2.2 per cent and our firing for failing to cooperate has been cut from 95 to 8 per cent," reports Milcarek.

The steps were not easy.

"Few subjects have been surrounded by so much hostility, ignorance, confusion and prejudice," explains Dr. Clyde C. Greene Jr., medical director of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph. "Excessive drinking has been a problem ever since man accidentally discovered how to make alcohol."

"Industry is in a strategic position in this field," says Dr. Karl J. Thomson, medical director of Metropolitan Life, "a fellow gets so he won't pay attention to anyone, not his doctor, not his boss, not his wife, or his priest. But when he is encouraged by his company—which is to him an objective, non-individualistic entity — he will have respect at last of proportion to his respect for individuals."

Fire Dept. Completes Jamboree Plan

DESERONTO — The local fire department reports that plans have been completed for their jamboree this weekend. On Friday night they are sponsoring a street dance for the youngsters in the Deseronto vicinity. For this event the local orchestra the Quintones who have made an impression on a good many in this area are employing the music.

The highlight of the weekend will take place on Saturday at 6.30 p.m. when the parade is scheduled. They report that over hands will be in attendance as well as numerous pipe bands from throughout the surrounding area. Also attending are several groups of majorettes.

One group who will be present will be the Kingston Sea Cadets who will have a color party, a trumpet band and a guard totalling fifty one cadets.

BANDS

There will also be the Air Force Cadet Band from Kingston with a group of majorettes. Another Sea Cadet Band present will be the Trenton group which was recently formed made their first public appearance during the last few weeks. Also in the trumpet bands will be the well known Hastings and Prince Edward Band from Belleville, with their famous uniforms of an early vintage. One of the most anticipated bands will be the high school band from Tweed, a brass band which is fast making a name for the Tweed school.

Among the pipe bands which will be seen are the Rob Roy band from Kingston who have won many honors in their field and the Havelock Pipe Band which needs no very distinct impression during the parade last year.

PARADE ROUTE

The parade will form at the High School grounds and proceed down Bridge St. to Main St. thence along Main past the reviewing stand at the town hall. They will proceed up Fourth St. to Thomas and along Thomas to St. George and then back to the park where it is hoped a grand band performance will be held.

There is considerable expenses involved in securing so many bands the Fire Department are holding games both evenings to help raise funds to help with the costs and it is hoped that the public will patronize these amusements.

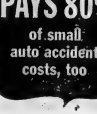
The Mother's Promise was repeated in unison followed by the Lord's Prayer.

After the usual business, Mrs. Rainbird gave a report on the "Family Service" held on Father's Day. In her report on the meeting of the group committee, the president announced that the same slate of officers will serve for the year of '62-63. Scouter Ingraham had given his report on the activities at camp which he attended with the Scouts.



Mrs. D. Grant and Mrs. O. Gray were named as the nominating committee for the new slate of officers for the Auxiliary.

The following announcements were made: October 1 to be held on September 15. September 16 will be the opening meeting for the District Committee of Ladies' Auxiliaries to be held in College Hall, Bridge Church; September 20 to be the first fall meeting of 2nd Auxiliary. After wishing everyone a happy vacation, Mrs. Rainbird closed the meeting.

The most enjoyable surprise was in store for the "Ladies" when the executive of the "Group Committee" with the Scouter served a most delectable lunch and coffee. Mrs. D. McBride very ably thanked the "Auxiliary" for the co-operation they had received in the past year. Mrs. M. Niles thanked the gentlemen for the "Treat".

Sunday School Lesson

First Hebrew Scriptures

By ROY A. SMITH

If we were to accept the testimony of the Bible itself, the first Hebrew writings to be accepted by the nation as scripture consisted of a collection of law which came to be known as "The Book of the Law." Scholars of today believe it contained that portion of Deuteronomy to be found in chapters 5 through 34 and chapter 32.

The book itself had gone through a rather remarkable history. For more than 80 years, under two evil kings, the little Kingdom of Judah had gone entirely secular. In the belief that all the troubles of the land were due to the fact that several of the kings had been unduly influenced by Isaiah, the people, the government made every effort to stamp out all traces of the prophetic movement. The result was that it was driven underground.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 1: "Judah's Reform," 2 Kings 22 and 23.

In the year 641 Josiah came to the throne at the age of eight years, and after reigning for 18 years, (much of the time through a regent) he decided to bring about a reformation, his first step being an order that the temple, which had become badly in need of repair, should be thoroughly cleaned.

In the process of cleaning, the temple carpenters came upon the manuscript of a book, and not knowing what it was, they submitted it to a prophetess, who seems to have been a member of the prophetic underground, and she pronounced it the book of the law which was containing the Law.

It is more than a little interesting to discover that it was a woman who identified the book as scripture.

We have little in the scripture to identify the author, beyond the fact that she was the wife of one of the highly placed officers of the government, but modern scholars are strongly of the opinion that she was a member of the underground prophetic group.

It is believed that these underground prophets a ticklishating the day when they would sling the day when they would be able to approach the king, and hand him the book over as the rubbish, confident that it would be found, and counting on the friendly attitude of the king they hoped he would accept it as the official law of the land.

The entire scheme the prophetess played a prominent

The Golden Years

Retired Man's Busy, Busy Day Apparently Just in Own Mind

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I have so many things to do long the meal until 9:45 and take another 15 minutes for the dishes. Then they sit down in the sunroom to decide what has to be done today.

The lawn needs mowing. Trash has to be cleaned out of the basement, the screen in the back bedroom has rusted out, Mrs. Jones needs some groceries, the light bulb in the back hall is burned out, clothes must be written to the children, a box of aspirin should be picked up at the drugstore.

Well, that lawn is the most urgent. Mr. Jones will do that. He goes to the bedroom to dress (he is shaving only every other day now) and after carefully picking the particular pants and shirts he needs for the chosen job he emerges from the back yard shortly after 11. He goes to the garage and realizes up the lawn mower. It needs oiling. He takes care of that. He spins the blades. They aren't touching the base-plate properly, but goes back in the house for a screwdriver and comes back and takes care of that. The blades aren't sharp enough. Maybe he should file them. He doesn't always file. Maybe he should buy one. A cheap one. It would make the job easier.

He goes back in the house to rest and sit over with Mrs. Jones. Yes, they can afford a file. Maybe he'll get it. Maybe Mrs. Jones goes to the grocery. Shall they go before lunch or after? Lunch would be early. Jones will read something until lunch. Perhaps he'll nap.

At 1:15 they set off for the grocery. At 2 P.M. they arrive at the hardware store for the file. But this is Wednesday and the hardware store is closed. Well, the file will wait. They return home. It's nap-time.

At 4 P.M. they are up and about. The afternoon paper arrives. Mr. Jones reads it

Five Men Take on Job Of Sorting Out Millions of Words in Papers on Election

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Five glue-sneezed researchers have begun on the task of sorting out the millions of words published by Ontario daily newspapers concerning the June 18, 1962, federal election campaign.

And it's all in the name of science.

The University of Waterloo team is headed by T. H. Qualter and A. MacKirdy. They and their three researcher helpers are partially financed by the Canada Council research grant.

They are compiling clippings from 39 Ontario daily newspapers and hope that their labors —with the help of a computing machine—will give them answers to such questions as intentional and unintentional bias.

Still in the scissors-and-paste stage, they have found that during the first eight days of the campaign the 39 newspapers published a total of approximately 250 items a day. As the election drew closer, the number of items increased to 600 or 700 a day.

The size of the job is indicated by the fact that they are studying 52 days.

Their findings will be published in the Canadian Journal of Economic and Political Science and will be available to the 29 co-operating newspapers.

The most important category they're studying, the researchers say, is the slant of the news stories—whether highly favorable, favorable, neutral, unfavorable, highly unfavorable, mixed or unclassifiable.

The data compiled will be placed on punch cards which will be fed into an electronic computer to answer such questions as:

In day-by-day coverage, did an individual paper give more weight to one party than another?

Did parties advertise more heavily in borderline ridings than in safe ridings?

Did the issues vary from one region to another?

Did the slant of coverage vary from news stories to editorials?

How does individual newspaper coverage compare to overall coverage?

The team will take 20 weeks to complete the work, the machine will take about two hours to process it.

Dr. Qualter is a specialist on propaganda and in political issue and Dr. MacKirdy an authority on the problems faced by Commonwealth nations emerging into nationhood.

Dr. Qualter, of New Zealand, earned his doctor of philosophy degree from the London School of Economics. He joined the Waterloo staff in July, 1960, after teaching at United College in Winnipeg and the University of Saskatchewan.

He has a book, Propaganda and Psychological Warfare, coming out this fall.

Dr. MacKirdy, graduate of the University of British Columbia, received his PhD from the University of Toronto.

Grade 13 Pupil Was Accepted As Enumerator

TORONTO (CP) — A 19-year-old high school student told an inquiry into alleged election irregularities in Toronto Trinity riding that she was accepted without question as an enumerator.

Barbara MacFarlane, a Grade 13 student, told the hearing she was far too young to vote but didn't know she was too young to be an enumerator.

She said she "had some thoughts about her age but when she was asked at the returning officer's headquarters that she could act as enumerator after high school classes, "they said it was okay."

Special commissioner E. J. R. Wright is presiding at the hearing.

Terry Jeyolsky, another Trinity enumerator, told the inquiry he didn't set out to be wasn't qualified after he boasted to his friends that he was. He thought he would have two days off work but he did in municipal elections, because of the property in Trinity riding and lives in North Toronto.

MOTHER JOINED HIM

Jeyolsky, Mrs. Mrs. Freda Jeyolsky, she knew she couldn't vote in Trinity but thought she could enumerate because most of the family-owned property.

Don E. Newell said he gave the address of a friend a month who lives in Trinity riding because he was going to vote and become an enumerator there if he lived in the riding.

Ald. Harold Menzies was accused Friday of telling an unqualified Trinity enumerator to use two different signatures on election documents so he could enumerate two polling divisions.

The enumerator, Kenneth Lloyd Carson, 23, described himself as "a conscientious political organization." Mr. Wright told him not to identify the party.

Visiting Municipal Officials To View Street Repairs Here

"Cement stabilization" is a new term in road and street construction but it is a term which in the future will mean municipalities considerable money in providing a more or less permanent roadway at relatively low cost.

Belleville city public works department tried it last year with considerable success and again this year will "experiment" with a roadway in the east end of the city.

In fact the cement stabilization operation, scheduled for July 16-17 is to attract attention from municipal officials in Eastern Ontario with up to 12 men to be on hand to watch the work being done.

Acting City Engineer Richard Kraft, told the Ontario Municipal Engineer that municipal officials from Ottawa and Brantwood, as well as the Kingston city engineer, would come to Belleville to see how the work is done.

According to Mr. Kraft "Cement stabilization" is an operation whereby an existing street (possibly well-dilled with pot holes) is ripped up, the materials mixed with cement and then rolled back into place.

"It's a job which can last up to 15 years," stated Mr. Kraft.

The street section to be the observation piece for visiting municipal officials is 800 feet of Bayley Ave., from Victoria Ave. north to Edgehill Road.

Good Weather Greets Buyers On Local Mart

Today's outdoor market was a busy and colorful affair as the good weather brought over two dozen vendors from the surrounding area and a large number of buyers, to fair hall and rural.

The usual wide assortment of transplanting flowers was offered for the home gardener and various kinds of cut flowers selling for about 50c a dozen contributed a bit of color to the market square.

The market was probably down a little as she was accepted on commercial point of view. A great many people could be seen stopping to chat with each other as well as inquire some of the many available examples of local produce.

In the fresh vegetable department, leaf lettuce was selling for 10c a bunch and three bunches for 25c, large green onions sold at 10c a bunch, cucumbers sold at two for 25c, radishes in large bunches sold at 10c a bunch or three bunches at 25c. Unshelled peas were 25c a quart and $1.00 a six-quart basket.

Shelling beans were offered for the first time this season, selling at 25c a quart berry box and $1 a six-quart basket. Beets were offered at 15c a bunch and carrots at 10c a bunch. Rhubarb was offered at 10c a bunch or 3 for 25c.

New season potatoes sold for 25 cents a quart and $1.25 a six-quart basket.

Cherries and b i u e b e r r i e s were featured on the market this morning. This was also the first time of the season they have been offered. Cherries sold for $1.45 a six-quart basket and blueberries were slightly more expensive, selling at $3 per six quart basket but are a steady price at 40 cents a box or two for 75 cents.

Hazy skies didn't appear to be worrying vendors or purchasers.

Former Local Boy Ordained To Ministry

Mr. Paul Delaney, son of Mrs. L. Delaney, of Ajax, Ontario, and the late Mr. Delaney, was ordained as minister of Soper Park Baptist Church in an impressive service in Hespeler Baptist Church on June 21st.

Paul, who was a former resident of this city, and one time employee of the T. Eaton Company in the men's department, has been preaching and studying at the same time, has attained the goal for which he strove.

At a council comprising 17 pastors and 25 delegates from area churches, legal recognition was given to Soper Baptist Church as an Evangelical Baptist Church, and a candidate statement was heard from the candidate concerning his conversion, and his faith.

Acceptance of Mr. Delaney's statement was unanimous. The ordination and 25 days at 7.30 p.m. and the ordination prayer was offered by the Reverend James Boyd of Guelph. A charge to the candidate was made by the Reverend Allin of Oshawa, followed by a charge to the church by the Reverend Hisey, of Fergus, Ontario. Fight Stubborn Blaze In Field Near Plant

TRENTON — Trenton firemen fought a stubborn blaze in a large field north of the Skill-Trol plant on Sidney St. for more than two hours yesterday afternoon. The fire was reported at 3.25 p.m. and one truck and men were despatched to the scene. When it was thought that the fire was under control, the truck returned to the hall, only to be sent back within a few minutes when area residents reported that the fire had started again in tree stumps, near Leonard Street.

Six Members Editorial Staff Resign Posts

TORONTO (CP) — Six members of the editorial staff of Saturday Night magazine have resigned in protest over merger of the 75-year-old fortnightly with a new publication, the Canadian.

Those who resigned Friday were Arnold Edinborough, editor and publisher; R. M. Baldwin, executive editor; John Gellner, associate editor; Ray Magiadry, assistant editor; and Kenneth McNaught and John A. Irving, contributing editors.

"We don't agree with the editorial policies of the Canadian," said Mr. Edinborough. "It's right-wing. Social Credit stuff and we're suspicious of the magazine's backing."

Mr. Baldwin said the proposed magazine, to be called Canadian Saturday Night, will be a "Social Credit rag."

Associate editor Kildare Dobbs said he has not yet resigned, but he has no interest in the new publication.

Owner Percy Bishop declined comment on the future of the magazine. He said the firm, Fengate Publishing, will have a statement today.

Mr. Bishop said earlier this month that Saturday Night had been looking for some time and a merger would make it a stronger publication.

The Canadian claims a circulation of 50,000 and Saturday Night 30,000.

Nursing Faces Grave Crisis Says President

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nursing everywhere faces a crisis as great as any in its history, the newly-elected president of the Canadian Nurses Association warns.

Miss E. A. Electa Maclennan of Halifax Friday told the closing convention session of the 60,000-member nurses organization in a message: "Nursing is being compelled to face challenges to its fundamental belief that it is one of the great humanitarian professions."

Demands for service were so great, others had been brought into the field of nursing. New designs in service must incorporate the activities of these new groups.

outside the act. As to any concern about the loss of their professional rights, an independent commission could see that practitioners maintained.

DON'T LIKE PLAN

The doctors have refused to work under an act which they say gives the government a virtual monopoly of medical services and the medical profession.

The government refused to delay the July 1 starting date but earlier this week made changes in regulations to permit private practice outside the comprehensive plan and extended to make other alterations to the act at the present session of the legislature in February.

The doctors said they could not agree that the changes made in the regulations gave them freedom to practice outside the act. They said regulations could be changed as easily as they were made and could open a special session of the legislature to make changes in the act itself.

MLA's Need a Lecture

The Ontario royal commission on crime has heard enough evidence for somebody to give members of the Legislature a stiff lecture. We suggest that this task should be undertaken by the leaders of all three political parties, each admonishing his own flock. It is true that, to date, all the members whose indiscretions have been revealed have been Progressive Conservatives, but this may be no more than an accident of the ballot box. There are more Progressive Conservatives to be indiscreet and, by the law of averages, the chances of that party including a number of foolish men is higher. It happens that only one of the three whose indiscretions have been revealed is now a member of the Legislature, but there is no guarantee that their equals in folly do not hold seats, under one party banner on another.

Two members are said to have written letters of recommendation for persons whose reputations were something less than the standard set by others in these letters. One does not recall writing such a letter. We are willing to believe that these were just routine letters, the sort that any harassed MLA might dash off in support of any voter seeking some position or privilege, full of fine words and cliches, sounding well but meaning little. Still, MLA's ought not to do that kind of thing.

More serious was the indiscretion of the third ex-MLA, former Minister of Mines James A. Maloney, now dead. Mr. Maloney, according to the head of the OPP detachment for Renfrew, the Minister's home county, called policemen "a bunch of eager beavers" because they seized pinball machines. It is true that Mr. Maloney may have had no greater interest in the pin-ball operators than their votes, since he wanted the pin-ball machines returned at least until election day. But when a minister of the Crown would make such a suggestion to police, and when he would request that police refrain from traffic prosecutions until after election day, his appreciation of the responsibilities and privileges of office left quite a bit to be desired.

A New Carroll

If U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara ever writes a book, we shall certainly want to read it. He seems to have all the qualifications needed to outdo Lewis Carroll. We will even suggest a title. "Malice in Blunderland" would fit perfectly.

Mr. McNamara has come up with the theory, that, if only there were no second-rate nuclear powers scattering up their contributions to the landscape, the U.S. and Russia could arrange to fight any nuclear war in a relatively civilized manner.

It is in keeping with the Blunderland atmosphere of this brain wave that the first results of the presentation of the theory should have been the provocation of a chuckle of contempt as to whether Mr. McNamara was considering Britain and France minor nuclear powers. At present the conclusion, by dint of a Conservative majority in the British House of Commons and the natural courtesy one ally pays another, seems to be that nothing of this sort was meant as far as Britain is concerned and that there is a fledged independent nuclear power with policies aligned in such a manner to American policies that she does not count, while France is not a full-fledged nuclear power and is independent as all get-out but does not count for much.

This leaves everything clear for Mr. McNamara to dream his dream or look in his mirror or do whatever else is necessary to produce his special kind of a trance.

In this trance he sees Russia and the U.S. finding it impossible to keep the peace, deciding that it is also impossible to have a non-nuclear war but agreeing that it will be a nuclear war in which targets are limited. Nobody will drop any nuclear bombs on cities. Therefore all bombs will be dropped in the countryside. Since there are no nuclear bombs on barnyards in a little expensive, what with the present price of beef, the climbing world demand for wheat, butter subsidies and the rest, bombs will only be dropped on the countryside when the countryside is occupied by military targets. Thus everything will be kept neat and clean, only soldiers will be killed promptly and all civilians will be spared until such a time as they die of radioactivity.

Presumably, in such a war, the victor would be the first one which demobilized all its soldiers and left the enemy no military targets, while it continued to play fission and fusion with the opposing soldiers, sailors and marines.

If this does not beat Alice, we are the jack of white pawns in spades!

Ottawa Offbeat

Parliament Hill Hookey May Be Thing of Past

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It is an ill wind . . . even in such an indecisive election as has produced this strange razor's edge balance of political power . . . that blows nobody good.

Although, probably, right now, just about the only people in these Parliamentary parts who might look at it that way would be those Social Credit mavericks from the deep Jackpine country and far moose pastures of crackerbarrel Quebec.

But think about it for a moment, as a voter and taxpayer.

This will be the first time since . . . since, well, nobody on Parliament Hill can quite remember when . . . that the representatives you send to speak for you in the House of Commons will have precious little choice but to stick to the job as if their very lives depended on it.

And depend on it, their lives . . . their political lives . . . most certainly will, just as surely as a snap vote and a trip to the polls followed in the next Parliament could send them all back to the hustings again.

And since nobody loves being better, . . . save possibly those screwball Social Crecitistes, in this kind of an unstable political situation, no one MP or even political party could count itself safe in another election.

STICK LIKE GLUE

So all party hands on all four sides of the political-battle-ahanced Commons will be holding onto their hats as the wild political wind sweeps across Parliament Hill, and sticking to their seats like they were part of the woodwork.

There will be no more long "coffee breaks."

These were "lost" in the senate that so many — but by no means all — MPs from Quebec and Ontario, within a few hours motoring or flying, by a quick air flip away from the Capital, used to vanish along about midweek, and not reappear until well into Tuesday.

These were members of the late and unlamented "Tuesday-to-Thursday Club," the couldn't-care-less kind of MP who figured that if he gave a scant three days a week to his Parliamentary responsibilities, that was really more than the taxpayer had coming to him.

Trouble was that they did not always . . . in fact, did not often . . . devote as much as three days a week to their Commons duties.

Nobody has really kept an honest count of attendance in the Commons, but it is said the MPs are penalized financially for deduction from their annual $10,000 for chronic absenteeism. It was all done on the honor system.

So, by the record of reported, or admitted absences, they always turn in a far better attendance performance than was an actual case.

SLOPPY SYSTEM

It used to be thus when an MP would, for example, speak in the Commons, he would make a deal with a Member of his political opposition to also speak any vote that might come up in the House.

This handy-dandy system of "saving off" was called "pairing" . . . with a Liberal and a Conservative, or a Conservative and a Liberal — depending on who made the approach, conveniently cancelling each other out.

It was a cozy arrangement that left the hard-working backbencher MP a play hookey without conscience. Each of his colleagues-to-vote being the one to defeat his party.

Any number of indifferent MPs could play at this "pairing" game, and it was not at all as many of them were not ducking out of the Commons might appear less than the reality in its dulles.

In recent years, with majorities so lopsided . . . first the Liberals, and since the Conservatives . . . even the party system of "pairing" fell into disrepair.

For almost no number of absentees could become so large as to threaten the government's power in a snap vote. The Opposition was simply too weak to be a real threat.

So what, further "pairing", . . . who cared, anyway . . . when it did not make any real difference in a vote in the Commons whether one or a dozen MPs was off on one of those long "lost" Thursday to Tuesday weekends.

NERVOUS HOUSE

All that now is changed.

With the Government and the Opposition so dulles close — the 99 Liberals and 19 New Democrats together outnumber the 116 Conservatives, with the balance of power in the uncertain hands of the 30 Socreds — every MP will have to remain on deck.

To survive in any vote in the Commons, the Government must have the support of at least one of the three Opposition parties.

All three combining would bring down the Government in defeat.

With politics' new charts empty and the leaders and candidates all but exhausted, some of the four parties likely would welcome another election just at least a year.

The head count in the Commons then is going to be particularly close, and will be made even more uncertain by the unavoidable absence of MPs that are certain to occur. Illness, injuries, deaths in the family, will take their toll of MP attendance.

To keep Parliament in business through the emergency Session already here, will require some extremely careful counting-in-advance and some very fancy, last-minute manoeuvring before the votes are called or the House is counted out.

The heat will be on in all four parties.

No MP will be able to afford the damage to his political prospects of being caught only by a vote as "The Little Man Who Wasn't There" when they count heads, and fling, as they could in this touch-and-go situation, that the chance in this delicate power balance were tipped one way or the other by an absence.

This time, every MP will earn his taxpayers' keep . . . or else.

Eight Degrees Of Charity

By Malmonedes, Jewish rabbi, physician and philosopher, 1135 - 1204 AD.

There are eight degrees or steps in the duty of charity:

The first and lowest degree is to give, but with reluctance or regret. This is the gift of the hand, but not of the heart.

The second is, to give cheerfully, and not proportionately, to the distress of the sufferer.

The third, to give both cheerfully, and proportionately, but not until asked.

The fourth is, to give cheerfully, proportionately, and even unsolicited, but to put it into the poor man's hand, thereby exciting in him the painful emotion of shame.

The fifth is, to give charity in such a way that the distressed may receive the bounty, and know their benefactor without making himself known to him. Such was the conduct of some of our ancestors, who used to tie up money in the corners of their cloaks, so that the poor might take it without shame.

The sixth, which rises still higher, is to know the objects of our bounty, but remain unknown to them. Such was the conduct of the chief of the family who used to convey their charitable gifts into poor people's dwellings, leaving them to take their own persons and names should circumstances require.

The seventh is still more meritorious, namely, to bestow charity in such a way that the benefactor may not know the relieved persons, nor they the names of their benefactors. Such was done by our charitable forefathers during the existence of the temple. For there was in that holy building a place called the Chamber of the Silent, wherein the good deposited charity which the poor received as their necessities required, and from which the poor were maintained with equal secrecy.

Lastly, the eighth, and the most meritorious of all, is to anticipate charity by preventing poverty; namely, to assist the reduced fellowman, either by a considerable gift, or a sum of money, or by teaching him a trade, or by putting him in the way of business, so that he may earn an honest livelihood, and not be forced to the dreadful alternative of holding out his hand for charity. This is the highest step and summit of charity's golden ladder.

Bird's Hotfoot

Cape Breton Post

Firemen in Sudbury, Ont., have blamed a sparrow's nest for a brush fire which threatened a power house east of that city recently. Volunteers of a suburban township brigade beat the flames away from the station. They said a seagull apparently picked up smouldering garbage from a dump nearby and dropped it when it got hot. Even the dulls may be useful in fire prevention which, in any case, is something that should begin at home.

Monday night's hail storm in the Rednersville district did considerably more damage than at first was anticipated, it was reported today by market vendors, following closer inspection of their crops. In particular, tomatoes felt the effects of the pounding received from the hailstones; the result will be that the tomato crop will be delayed, as the plants will be considerably retarded.

Fresh huckleberries were offered on the local market today, fully three weeks earlier than in any previous year according to the one vendor offering the berries. Of exceptionally good quality the berries were quoted at 30 cents the quart.

While walking with her mother yesterday, Genevieve Tracey, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracey who live on Bridge street, found a four-leaf clover with 22 stalks of four-leafed clover.

On a flower-decked stage, the pupils of King George School presented their annual Music Festival yesterday afternoon before a splendid representation of parents and friends who were delighted with the interesting program so well given by the young singers. The fine singing of the children from the smallest grades up, their supervisor, Miss Phyllis May, and the teachers of the schools is to be commended.

Jobs for All Mean Curbs

(Niagara Falls Review)

An easy phrase that fell from the lips of politicians seeking re-election was a "guarantee of jobs for all." This would be ideal, if it could be accomplished with everyone working at the job he liked, in the town, city, or place he liked, for the large, fat, pay-envelope he liked. Something that the average person may vaguely dream about, when thinking of guaranteed jobs. However, when it takes on another aspect when brought out into the light of reality.

If any government could bring about "guaranteed jobs for all," it would have to be some kind of legislation that would enforce the moving of people to where jobs are available. This would mean that the individual would have no other choice but to move where the government sent him, and for the rate of pay set by the government. It would mean, ultimately the regimentation of men and industry where people become apart of the economic machinery of the state, with the state as head in the individuals.

Only decay any cause of unemployment. We hope that there will be, as there should be, a solution to the economy so that there will be more jobs for more people on a present trends point to. But we would still hold for a man to have the right to choose where he should work, and for what and whom.

Civilization Hits Toronto

Montreal Star

"Ontario is the most backward part of Canada, and Toronto, of course, is the most backward part of Ontario."

This is from a historian, Dr. Frank H. Underhill. It may seem odd for a Montrealer's paper to be saying so, but he has a point there.

Certainly there was a time when the first prize in a contest was a week in Toronto and the second prize was two weeks in Toronto. Those days are gone. People have been learning to stay there recently and enjoy it. Even the average income.

The fact is that Toronto is getting more like Montreal every day. It is no longer a resolutely English community which, before breaking its teeth in the morning, first bows three times in the direction of Rue Street. The poodle-cut food of European immigrants has begun to affect it. Even a decent meal there you no longer have to kick to stein. A few Torontonians recently have even been caught discussing ideas.

There is a new kind of excitement, however, which we cannot but describe; a profusion of stereotyped curtains and architecture is beginning to make Montreal more like Toronto.

JFK and Business

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Although we did not agree with everything Mr. Kennedy did in the steel case, we heartily concur in his belief that "it is the business of the president to concern himself with the general welfare and the public interest." We also believe it is anti-FDR nonsense to try to build balling up an anti-JFK neurosis in the proportions of his anti-FDR neurosis of old and to join in co-operation for the public interest.

To Your Good Health

Don't Worry Needlessly Over Heart Trouble

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had an electrocardiogram and my doctor showed up. I have slight pains around my heart, and told my doctor about them, but he said there is nothing wrong with it. Could he be in error? — Mrs. V.C.

After an ECG and an examination at which you told your doctor about your pains, the chances of his overlooking heart disease are small.

Still, lots of people, for whatever reason, hesitate about turning themselves with fears, without any basis, that a chest pain is a "heart pain." It is worth going to some trouble to convince them that they are wasting their nervous energy in such worry.

Heart pain is usually a sense of pressure or constriction in the chest, and usually associated with pallor and sweating. The sort of pain called intercostal neuralgia, as a rule is closely related to effort, to large meals, and the patient doesn't waste much time in finding out what it is wrong. Other forms of heart disease can cause shortness of breath and swelling, sometimes, but all can be readily spotted by the doctor.

A lot of other chest pains have nothing to do with the heart. Most of the pain between the nerves between the ribs, is one cause. Severe pain in the side of the chest, for example, often is the harbinger of an attack of shingles, which has nothing to do with the heart.

Muscle strain, perhaps triggered by coughing, or other exercise, is a very common cause of chest pain, and I've known people to scare themselves half to death before they finally accepted it as such.

Arthritic changes in the spine can cause pressure on nerve trunks, producing chest pain. A bubble of gas (or air) in the stomach can cause heart-like aching pains in the left side of the chest.

Gall bladder troubles, a psychiatric stomach and digestive disorder, hiatal hernia, a defect in the diaphragm) are some more common possibilities.

Real heart disease is important that I don't want to let anyone become careless. Pain more constant, more under the lower breast bone too often is passed off as a "indigestion" when it should be recognized as heart trouble and be promptly treated.

But when you've been carefully examined by a doctor and electrocardiogram, and he's given a clean bill of health, stop worrying.

Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause my temperature to go down to 97 degrees? I am usually well; blood pressure and other tests O.K. I awake in the morning with headache and low temperature, I am 63. — Mrs. W.H.

A low temperature isn't cause of concern, it happens to some degree in most of the people in the morning, because the body processes have slowed while we sleep. If you are investigating your thyroid gland may be in order. Low thyroid activity can be a factor in morning headache as well as low temperature.

Dear Dr. Molner: A neighbor said her doctor told her that cats cause ringworm. What do you think? I suppose they could carry the fungus from one person to another, but I wonder. — Mrs. E.C.

I suppose a cat could, under ideal circumstances, carry fungus from one person to another, but it would be a most extraordinary occurrence. The ringworm fungus, after all, burrows into the skin. Youngsters, wrestling around, can scrape a bit of infected skin from one to another. But a cat isn't likely to, because the fungus by its nature doesn't infect cats. For all practical purposes, you can safely forget about cats as a source of ringworm. It spreads from person to person, not from person-to-thing-to-person, not person-to-animal-to-person.

Eye-Agers Show Courage

Financial Post

Some eating of words may be in order for the aging Jeremiahs of ages past who said the kids are the undereducated captives of television and most certainly not equipped for the stuff of the younger generation of their day.

Here are two recent incidents when the youngsters did with ease what most adults wouldn't or couldn't attempt.

Two victorious eighth graders recently emerged as the winners of a national spelling bee after two days and 19 rounds. They knocked off words that would stump an adult with a string of degrees after his name — xylophagous, hippophagy, mammee-apples, saltatorious. They were jointly awarded a scholarship paid by equamulcose, which the company says means smooth-skinned."

Elsewhere, a courageous 11-year-old high school valedictorian threw away her prepared speech and delivered a forthright critique of teaching standards. She said her school was static, that the students couldn't even speak English properly, that "the capable, devoted and stimulating teacher is the exception rather than the rule."

Her original topic, incidentally, was bravery.

It's much for the armchair critics.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A robin has a particular note that it sings when it is feeding its nestlings in the nest, and usually only when the young are preparing to leave. It is a low mellow chirp with a cautiously warning quality in it. The nest was a robin's nest, and of three or four seconds. Those familiar with the sound know that if they take a look around they will usually see a cat somewhere in the immediate vicinity.

It is customary then for the interested observer to chase the cat home. On hearing the oddly melancholy note of feeding on last evening, I took the usual look for the cat, and could see it nowhere. But a robin was observed in the tree, intoning its warning note; and with a movement of my eyes above the robin. It was a crow, moving noiselessly and stealthily for a bird that normally moves with a flap, flap and a cock of umbrella blown inside out in the wind.

Before I could clap my hands to scare the crow away, it had made its last nest robbery; and when it flew raggedly out of the tree, it had a robin fledgling in its beak.

In the embarressing justice of nature, baby crows have to eat too.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

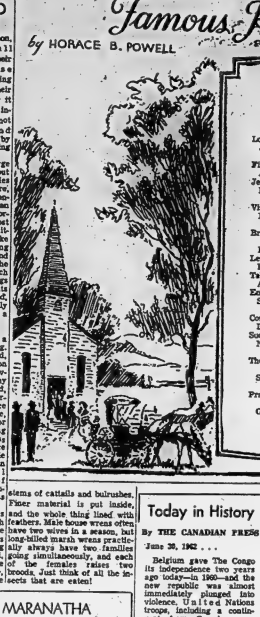
BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WRENS IN GENERAL

Particularly in least season, we should think kindly of all wrens and try to forget their shortcomings. We know house wrens to be pugilistic, chasing other birds and puncturing their eggs; but they make up for it by the enormous quantity of insects they destroy, not to mention the pleasure and amusement they give us by their constant, cheery singing and their winning ways.

Wrens belong to a very large family distributed throughout the world. About 30 varieties occur in the eastern hemisphere, and six breed regularly in Canada — four of these to quite an extent. All are wholly insectivorous and are among our most prolific songbirds. Both inquisitive and industrious, they poke their long, slender, downcurving bills into cracks in buildings and between leaves, carrying off the spoil to their young. As a clutch seldom has fewer than six eggs and some have 11, the parents have many mouths to feed. And, believe it or not, they usually raise at least two broods in a summer.



Nests for Nesting

Most kinds of wrens use a hole of some sort for nesting. House wrens are well named, because their favorite location is as near as possible to a private dwelling. If no little cranny in the building itself can be had, the wrens look for another nearby spot — a hole in a fence post, a cavity in an old tree, or even an old pot, hat, or pocket of a coat left hanging in a shed. They love our gardens for foraging and do us a service by catching every available crawling or creeping insect on our plants and shrubs. All Canadians have a chance of knowing a house wren "personally, for they nest right across Canada from coast to coast.

A different type of nest is built by the long-billed marsh wren, another member of the family that favors all Canadians — that is, any Canadian living near shallow water where tall, coarse vegetation grows. The round nest is made of coarse, long leaves attached to the stems of cattails and bulrushes. Finer material is put inside, and the whole thing lined with feathers. Male house wrens often have two wives in a season, but long-billed marsh wrens practically always have two families going simultaneously, and each of the females raises broods. Just think of all the insects that are eaten!

Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

LOVE DIVINE, ALL LOVES EXCELLING

Love divine, all loves excelling,
Joy of Heaven, to earth come down;
Fix in us Thy humble dwelling,
All Thy faithful mercies crown.
Jesus, Thou art all compassion,
Pure, unbounded love Thou art;
Visit us with Thy salvation,
Enter every trembling heart.

Breathe, O breathe Thy loving Spirit
Into every troubled breast!
Let us all in Thee inherit,
Let us find that second rest;
Take away our bent to sinning;
Alpha and Omega be;
End of faith, as its beginning,
Set our hearts at liberty.

Come, Almighty, to deliver,
Let us all Thy grace receive;
Suddenly return, and never,
Never more Thy temples leave;
Thee we would be always blessing,
Serve Thee as Thy hosts above,
Pray, and praise Thee without ceasing,
Glory in Thy perfect love.

Writing, for the most part, under inspiration and to give expression to the music that was ever in his soul, Charles Wesley gave the world more hymns than any other poet of the church. He composed more than 6,500 religious poems and though many of these have long been lost or forgotten, a goodly number have survived through the years and are still counted among the brightest hymn gems of Christendom.

Some of Mr. Wesley's hymn poems were written on horseback as he rode about England on his religious errands. Others came to him as he travelled by train or stage-coach. Still others were written from his bed. It is said that he dictated his final poem to his wife as he lay ill, shortly before his death.

The love of God was the theme for some of his grandest hymns. It inspired his "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," "O Love Divine, How Sweet Thou Art," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Loving Jesus, Gentle Lamb" and a host of others.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul" is generally conceded to be the prize hymn in the Wesley list and because of it many students of hymnology are agreed that Wesley must ever share the pinnacle of hymn-writing fame with Dr. Isaac Watts, whose hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," is often called "the finest in the English language." But "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling," a popular example of the devotional poetry for which Wesley was so widely known, is just as precious to most lovers of religious song.

It was written in 1747 and first appeared that same year in a collection of "Hymns for Those That Seek and Those That Have Redemption in the Blood of Jesus Christ" published by the author's brother, John. Other Wesley favorites are the hymns "Soldiers of Christ, Arise," "A Charge To Keep I Have," "And For A Thousand Tongues To Sing," and his popular Easter Day poem:

"Christ, the Lord, is risen today.
Sons of men and angels say:
Raise your joys and triumphs high,
Sing, ye heavens, and earth reply."

MISS KATHLEEN LEANEY: PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

In conclusion, Miss Leaney, English public health nurse, now in Belleville, tells of her nursing career abroad, and says:

"The duties of women in the Sultan's harem are always interesting. All wear gold ornaments, the more the better; a reserve for less dressy, that might befall them. Since each man is entitled to four wives, the fourth wife, for example, finds her position a most precarious one. She should her husband decide to reject her for a new wife, all he need do is state three times before witnesses: "I divorce you."

"At present there are seven Sultans in Malaya, each well educated and wealthy, though their living standards are not too high. They usually dress in tunic consisting of a shirt and a long, colorful skirt of silk wrapped around them. The dancing girls maintained for their pleasure, they often dance but the dance forbids any contact whatsoever with a dancing partner.

Veteran Principal to Retire

Samuel McMullen, Formerly Of Rawdon Twp., 42 Years As Teacher in St. Catharines

Samuel McMullen, native of Rawdon township, who retires from teaching at the end of this term, was honored recently at a large gathering at Queen Mary School, St. Catharines, arranged by the Home and School Association for all former pupils and friends. They presented him with an initialled wallet, with appropriate wedding gift, from left, are Robert Welch, chairman of the Board of Education, who made the presentation; Mr. McMullen, and Mrs. Bernard Riehl, Home and School president.

Anyone who learned English grammar under Principal Samuel McMullen of Queen Mary School learned it well.

Mr. McMullen who is retiring after 42 years in the teaching profession, 41 as principal in St. Catharines, is a grammarian of the old school.

He loves English grammar, he loves mathematics, too, for both are reasoning subjects which require the student to think.

His former students remembered him as a grammar teacher particularly. While he may not have imparted his love of grammar to many students—most of them remember the endless drill as dull and boring—he did get grammar into their heads.

As a grammarian, he deplores the lack of emphasis on formal grammar in school today.

"There's not as much emphasis on formal grammar as there used to be 25 years ago," he says.

"I don't think we should teach grammar merely for the sake of teaching it, but I do think that formal grammar has a definite place in education.

"It should be real, living and useful. It should help the child and express his ideas clearly and well. I don't think we should allow English to deteriorate. It's bad enough to say "it sounds better" or 'everybody is using it.' We should know what is correct and use good English."

In addition to his fame as a grammarian, Mr. McMullen has had the distinction of being the first principal of the first senior public school in St. Catharines. He was principal of Central School since 1rn down, when it was converted into a senior school [illegible] 16 years ago. When Queen Mary School was built in 1954, it became principal of that.

Mr. McMullen was picked for this job because of his interest in the senior public school system. He and Education Director M. F. Purnell visited other cities to study senior public schools and junior high schools. Mr. McMullen also did independent research into the subject.

He's firmly convinced of the value of separating the adolescent, pre-high school student from younger children.

"The grade 7 and 8 student is at a critical stage of development," he said, "He is easily upset emotionally. He wants to venture out and think for himself, but he needs to be taught to do so. He wants to be independent, but needs guidance and control.

"I think we have gone too far in letting students choose what they want to do. They need to be helped in making the right choice. Children are sensible if given the chance. We should respect their ideas."

The senior public school with its semi-rotary system — students at Queen Mary school spend half the day in their room studying basic subjects like English and arithmetic, half the day on rotary visiting specialist teachers in science, history, art and music—helps students adjust to high school better.

In retirement, Mr. McMullen is looking forward to an opportunity to pursue his hobbies, which include coin collecting and politics, and possibly time to write a textbook on mathematics.

"The mathematics texts, particularly in the senior grades, could stand improvement," he said. "They need more problems which help develop reasoning ability."

EDITORS NOTE: — Samuel McMullen was born at Sine in Rawdon township, before the turn of the 19th century. He attended public school at S.S. No. 6, Rawdon and high school at Stirling before going to Peterborough Normal School. He taught at 9th line Rawdon and at Wellman's Corners before going to Glencoe, where he was principal for two years and then went to St. Catharines.

A brother, T. A. McMullen, and several nieces, nephews and cousins live in the Quinte area.

Dawson City Gold Rush Festival Expected to Draw 20,000 in Eight Weeks

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — If you're interested in panning for gold, buying one of the latest creations of a world - famous fashion designer, seeing the premiere of a new musical or dancing with sourdoughs who took part in the world's biggest gold rush — this is the place to come.

These are among the attractions at the eight - week Dawson City gold rush festival which opens at this one - time gold capital of the world July 1.

More than 20,000 persons are expected to take in the festival and get a first-hand glimpse of pans in the bank of the Klondike, made famous by such persons as Klondike Kate, Arizona Charley and Canadian poet Robert Service.

Modern transportation does not eliminate all the rigors of the trip into The Yukon, though it's nothing compared to the hardships experienced by the 40,000 who successfully packed food and supplies over the trail or 'Sk from Skagway, Alaska, to Dawson City during the height of the gold rush.

The bar or on a street corner you can hear first-hand stories of the past from one-time sourdoughs such as Black Mike Winage, 92, who witnessed fortunes passing hands at the card table and paid $18 a dozen for eggs and $18 a hundred for beans.

A trip to the Bonanza Creek mine of Harry Leamon, another of the pioneers, will give the tenderfoot the opportunity to pan for gold.

And Harry, who made several fortunes and spent them just as quickly, will demonstrate the passing technique.

SHOW SPRING FASHIONS

Throughout the festival the spring fashion collection of Norman Hartnell, the queen's designer, will be on exhibit. If you fancy something for the Mrs. it's yours if you have the price.

Local residents of Dawson City will model the creations being shown for the first time in North America as a complete collection.

The musical for the festival is Fuzz, an adaptation of Ben Jonson's play. Volpone, written by Ian Hunter and Ring Lardner Jr.

Bert Lahr of New York, one of the most versatile theatre personalities stars, heads a cast of 29. The lyrics and music were written by Robert Dennis and Ian and Johnny Mercer, both famed in their fields.

No matter where you go in this centre of 700, you can see buildings used during the gold rush when more than 35,000 persons lived here.

Several have been restored, including the 500 - seat Palace Grand theatre, the setting for the musical.

Also restored is Madame Tremblay's, which in 1900 sold the first creations from Paris, London and New York. It is here the Hartnell collection will be shown.

Historic documents, newspapers, photographs used by sourdoughs, pictures of Dawson City of some of its famous residents and some of its famous residents will be on view in a new museum, built after fire destroyed the original museum building several years ago.

Within shouting distance of the city centre is the bank where Robert Service once worked as a clerk and seven blocks away his cabin can be found.

FAMILIAR TO MANY

Ramshackle homes and buildings, tilted and turned in peculiar shape by the bubbling action of the permafrost, rolling board sidewalks, familiar to Prairie pioneers, and the friendly greetings of residents add to the romance and atmosphere.

If you want an honorary sourdough's certificate, spend a night in a tent along the banks of the Yukon River.

It takes little imagination and less effort to visualize the past.

But if there's anything that requires some adjustment it's the 24 hours of light. While the sun sets, newspapers can be read on the street at midnight under a moonless sky.

Darkness is found in only dimly lit bars or in rooms where the blinds and drapes have been drawn.

Bomb Lands Near Hotel In N. Y. State

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A large bomb fell from a military aircraft today about 100 yards from a hotel near North Syracuse, state police reported.

Troopers said they had not determined whether the bomb was live.

Griffiss Air Force Base at Rome, N.Y., was asked to send a team of demolition experts, to be sure.

Oakley Clement, owner of the New Bear Road hotel, said he was watching television when he thud about 2 a.m. He did not investigate then and did not awaken his guests.

Clement said he began an investigation when about 7:30 a.m. he found the bomb embedded in earth.

State police said they did not know the type of plane from which the bomb fell.

His call for help was answered quickly by the 15-year-old scout and between them, the scout master and Shannon were able to bring the scout to shore.

Among the honored for long and distinguished service to scouting were William Noel Stokes, Fort Erie, Ont., and Miss Jeannine Lauzon, Ottawa.

Two Prescott, Ont., brothers were among the four boys receiving certificates of meritorious conduct.

U.S. Immigration Watching For Canadian 'B' Girls

U.S. immigration service has mapped out a double-barrelled campaign to halt the illegal traffic in young Canadian girls lured into shady U.S. night clubs as a first step toward legitimate dancing careers.

Immigration officials said the plan to be sent to Senator John L. McClellan shortly, will include a stepped - up campaign to warn girls applying for visas to work in U.S. night clubs of the possible scrutiny of the club in which they propose to perform.

Any suspicion that the girl will be turned into another so-called exotic dancer for immoral purposes will mean refusal of the visa application, he said.

McClellan, chairman of the Senate rackets investigation committee, has demanded a tightening of immigration regulations.

BROUGHT TO U.S.

Immigration officers testified during the hearings concluded a week ago that Canadian girls—Some 15 years old — were brought to the United States with promises of night club careers but forced into prostitution by crime syndicates.

One officer cited the specific cases of two Canadian girls, whose identification was kept hidden, recruited by a Montreal booking agency through Canadian newspaper advertisements offering night club jobs. The girls usually found themselves herded into Chicago or neighboring cities and forced into immoral acts under threat of physical harm.

Ten days ago, the U.S. immigration service told McClellan of four Canadian exotic dancers at a Cleveland night club were granted voluntary deportation when they were found soliciting drinks in violation of their contracts.

Aside from the cross-border traffic, McClellan wants careful watch over the American Guild of Variety Artists (AFL-CIO), which has been accused of collecting dues from the girls dancers but "providing them with no protection against the blandishments of the crime syndicates.

McClellan sent the entire transcript of the committee hearings to Attorney - General Robert Kennedy Friday with a request that he conduct ile detector tests of certain of the union executive directors, and look into charges of possible perjury, bribery, tax evasion and other breaches of law.

Bullish Possibilities In Market in Last Six Months

By GREG MacDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The bullish possibilities seen by investors on Canadian stock markets this year as a continuation of the 1961's phenomenal rise have died. The shadow of a growing bear—symbol of a declining market—has risen instead.

In the first six months of this year practically all gains registered by stocks in 1961 have been wiped out.

Market movements lived up to expectations for the first three months as the Toronto industrial index — compiled from 30 representative stocks — moved to new highs almost every week. The advance came to a head March 23 when the index reached its highest point, ever—629.06.

But from there came a swift decline climaxed May 28 when it was unable single-handedly to pull the scout from the river Montreal, took their worst pounding since the great collapse of 1929.

RUSH TO UNLOAD

Billions of dollars were wiped from the quoted value of stocks on the two markets May 28 as small investors scrambled to unload their securities in the face of declining values.

The battering started on Wall Street and as usual Toronto and Montreal followed the action at New York.

A total of $19,560,000 was wiped off the value of stocks on May 28 as an avalanche of sell orders drove the market into the lose that day. The appearance the following day of the bigger buyers—mutual and pension funds, insurance companies and the like—recovered the

New Junior Sailing Boats Brought Here by Trailers

Some of the community's wet sailors had a new experience yesterday when they got in a dry run aboard the three new Norberg class sailboats which the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club has purchased for its junior sailing summer school program.

The dry run was clear sailing along Highway 401 from Whitby where the boats were loaded aboard trailers at the manufacturer's plant. Chairman of the junior sailing committee, Addison Lloyd, Vice Commodore Ted Yealland and Paul Sinclair were the helmsmen for the occasion.

The new boats have fibreglass hulls and are expected to last for a considerable length of time and considerably ease the maintenance problems of the past. The Norbergs are replacing three of the elderly Snipe class boats which the club originally purchased for the junior sailing program several years ago.

The new boats have all the modern appurtenances such as aluminum masts, stainless steel rigging and dacron sails. Their hulls are 14 feet five inches in length and have built-in flota-tion tanks to rendey them virtually unsinkable.

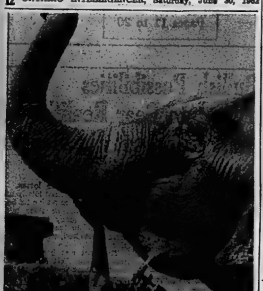
The boats will be used mostly by boys and girls between the ages of ten and 18 who are in the junior sailing courses, which the club club sponsors for the community youth each summer.

The courses which start next week are conducted by competent instructors and stress safe and sane sailing, as well giving young people an opportunity of learning an exciting and exacting sport.

ASKS COMMITTEE



OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Nuclear Association wants the federal government to establish a special committee on Canada's future needs for trained nuclear personnel. The association, an organization representing government and private agencies interested in the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, says the committee should recommend a program to ensure that adequate personnel will be available over the next 10 years.

SERVICE PINS PRESENTATION — Friday night was long service pins' presentation night for local members of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America. President of Local 617, Mr. Black, is seen presenting pins to T. Rees, 20 years; R. Winstanley, 30 years, and R. Duval and J. Randle, both with 25 years' service. Pins were presented at B.R.C. of A. dance at Club Canara.

NEW FLEET IN—Above may be seen the three new Norberg sailing boats which the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club just received yesterday for the junior sailing program this summer. The boats were brought in from Whitby by trailers, by club members.

ELEPHANT BARBER SHOP

Teddy, Wallace Bros. Circus elephant immortal artist, is giving three-ton Mona a shave, sans a razor.

This is the day of beauticians, creams, lipstick, mascara, dyes, oils and hair waves for both men and women. Advertisers tell them how well-groomed they should look. What keeps the circus stock in their well-groomed appearances? It's the circus beauty parlors and barber shops for animals. It isn't a new fad or craze—it's as old as the circus itself. "

Daily all ring horses are carefully bathed, curried, their tails braided and combed out to give them a wavy look. Often horses are clipped to remove long or dead hair. That restores the glossy coats show horses are noted for. All hoofs are trimmed and polished when necessary.

Like the horses, the elephants are bathed and their hoofs trimmed. Each Spring, before going on tour, all elephants are oiled to soften and make more pliable their thick skins. Shaving an elephant takes know-how and experience. A razor or clipper would have no effect on the tough britties. They are not cut, off—they are singed with no ill effect to the animal.

Wallace Bros. 3-ring Circus is coming to Belleville on Thursday, July 5th, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club. There will be no disappointment or delay. The big show is coming in all its massive entirety.

The Circus Is Coming to Town

Contrary to all rumors, past, present and future, at the break of dawn on Thursday, July 5th, the huge motorized caravan carrying the personnel, equipment and animals of the all new Cristiani-Wallace Bros. three ring circus will positively roll into Belleville to give two full and complete performances, 2:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m., at Zwicky's Island, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club.

Heading the array of great circus stars assembled to entertain under the new big top this year, is the nation's space sensation, Miss X-1 catapulted from huge rocket launching pad, entire length of big top distance of over 300 feet, direct from International Show Time; billed as the world's foremost aerialista - - - the Flying Padillo's - - - in an all new bag of tricks for 1962 - - - dogs, ponies, monkeys, and teddy bears will show off their almost human intelligence. Eddie Frisco and his funny old bell rock, the kings and queens of the equestrian world, the renowned Cristiani troupe will present their feature bareback riding.

In the old time tradition of the three ring circus, jugglers, tumblers, leapers and variety acts of all kinds entertain simultaneously in all three rings while a multitude of funny old clowns bring laughs to the hearts of all. Cristiani-Wallace aerial-lovelies present breath taking displays high in the air and - wondrous wire walkers perform equilibristic feats beyond compare.

Cristiani-Wallace Brothers all new circus presents 40 feature acts in three rings, under brand new big top, introducing many new innovations in circus equipment such as, all airplane cable construction — replacing the old fashioned rope, mechanical seating for approximately 4,000 people, aisles and added exits, all this to add to the comfort and safety of over 90 minutes of good old fashioned circus entertainment in genuine circus style.

Cristiani-Wallace circus carries no games of chance, no dancing girl side shows, or any other objectional features - - -

Tickets are now on sale for the one day stand, and the Kiwanis Club urges you to buy tickets now and save at the low advance prices.

George Maharis Back On Route 66 After Illness

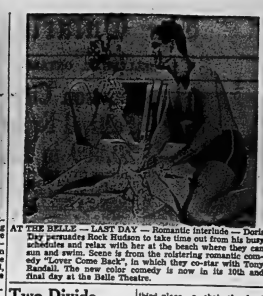
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—George Maharis is back on Route 66 after an eight-week detour due to hepatitis.

Maharis was again on the road with buddy Martin Milner, though they got no further than Calabassas, a dusty crossroads in the San Fernando Valley. The youngsters were doing a sequence with a trio of ace scene-stealers, Joe E. Brown, Buster Keaton and Edgar Bochanan.

Maharis managed to find an air-conditioned real estate office to cool off after a fight sequence in the 90-plus heat.

"Just what the doctor ordered," he said wryly. "When I asked him if I could come back to work, he said okay, if I took it easy—four or five hours a day."



WORKS LONG HOURS

"The first day I worked 12 hours, the second 15, the third 16. This is known as a recuperation."

But George is a sturdy Greek and has bounced back from the bed with many complications. With his schedule, he's got to have a sturdy constitution.

"I'm supposed to get 10 weeks of vacation each year," he remarked. "It hasn't worked out that way. But this year I'm afraid I'll have to be a little tougher and demand the time off.

"Yes, I know I might be accused of biting the hand that has fed me very nicely. I'm grateful to Route 66 but I've also got to look out for my future. After Route 66 is finished as a series, I've still got to make my way as an actor. I want to be sure there will be something left for me to do."

AT THE BELLE — LAST DAY — Romantic interlude — Doris Day persuades Rock Hudson to take time out from his busy schedules and relax with her at the beach where they can sun and swim. Scene is from the rollstering romantic comedy "Lover Come Back", in which they co-star with Tony Randall. The new color comedy is now in its 10th and final day at the Belle Theatre.

"LONELY ARE THE BRAVE" Rozred Film Location Proves Perfi to Crew

Cameraman Phil Lathrop, who photographed Kirk Douglas' "Lonely Are The Brave," filmed on location in the rugged two-mile-high Sandia mountains near Albuquerque, says that for the first time in his life he would rather be an actor in front of the camera than a technician behind it.

"Every time a horse or an actor moved," says Lathrop, "we got a small avalanche that made bowling pins out of us."

Lathrop and his crew worked on the face of a mountain where all equipment was broken down to its smallest component parts and carried in piece by piece on the backs of crew members across narrow escarpments that drop as much as 800 feet straight down and into slopes at 45 and 50 degree angles on shale slides that run as much as a quarter mile of shale, sharp-pointed rock and giant boulders.

The 40-man technical and film crew, all of which oxygen constantly from ambulance attendants standing by all day with 150-litre tanks, 27 suffered minor injuries from the almost continuous landslides caused by human and animal actors in front of the camera. Director David Miller was the most seriously hurt when a 20-pound boulder hit his knee before he could scramble out of the way.

"Lonely Are The Brave," a Universal release, opens Monday at the air-conditioned Park Drive-In for its first showing. Kirk Douglas heads the cast in the Joel Production, with Gena Rowlands and Walter Matthau co-starring.

On the same program the added thriller "You Have to Run Fast," stars Craig Hill, Elaine Edwards and Grant Richards. Monday evening the complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

Fifty Years Ago Today
Regina Rocked by Worst Storm in Canada's History

REGINA (CP) — About 4 p.m. on June 30, 1912, the barometer began dropping in Regina.

Thunderheads gathered in the southwest and southeast until they covered the sky.

Lightning flashed between the approaching black clouds.

At 4:50 the clouds met with a roar and a pillar of swirling, writhing blackness hit the city at Lorne and Smith streets, four blocks from the centre of the downtown area.

It sucked a column of water from Wascana Lake near the Legislature buildings, then began a three-block slash through the city.

In three minutes the cyclone had killed 21 persons, left 2,500 of Regina's 10,000 population homeless, injured 200 to 300, caused damage estimated at $4,000,000 to $10,000,000 and destroyed or damaged 500 buildings.

46 YEARS TO PAY

Although all this happened just 50 years ago, it wasn't until December, 1958, that the account was settled. The city had borrowed $500,000 to help with the construction, mortgaging $2,000,000 of city property as security. Interest on the loan during the 46 years was more than $1,000,000.

The 31 killed is the official count. Figures at the provincial archives place the toll at 28 to 65. The survivors of the cyclone still living in the city all agree the official figure is low.

Many weird things happened during the three minutes it took for the cyclone to sweep through the Prairie city.

First large buildings to go were the Baptist and Methodist churches. The cupola of the Baptist church was torn off and whirled three blocks before settling gently in the middle of a street without even a dent. The Methodist church was torn into a heap of twisted steel and jagged concrete.

The nearby Anglican church was not touched. It was full at the time; a visiting bishop from England was speaking.

FELL TWO FLOORS

At the telephone office nine girls and two men were working. The building shuddered as the wind hit it, the roof ripped loose and the south wall crashed in. A heavy switchboard with three girls operators crashed from the second floor to the basement. None of the 11 was killed.

At the Canadian Pacific Railway yards freight cars loaded with farm machinery were scattered.

The cyclone, or tornado, plucked 50 horses from Mulligan's livery stable and set them all down unharmed among the nearby twisted railway tracks.

A bookkeeper at Advance Thresher Company was working overtime in the firm's building on that Sunday afternoon. He went into the steel vault. When he came out he found himself in the middle of the bald prairie.

A 75,000-bushel grain elevator was whirled into the sky and then smashed.

At the newly-built legislature building eight railway carloads of cement were churned into the air.

Examination papers for all Saskatchewan school grades, piled on tables in the department of education rooms at the legislature, were sucked into the storm and scattered for miles. There were no exams that term.

'END OF THE WORLD'

Tearing 11 miles north of the city before it died, the tornado destroyed farm houses all the way. At one farm, it completely stripped a newly - married woman who was milking a cow.

After the three-minute horror, rescuers went to work in dazed silence.

George Hodgeson, now retired, was 17 at the time and had just come from England. He was lying on the cool grass at the city hall with friend Bill Goldthorpe.

"I could see it coming and I yelled 'for God's sake, Bill, look.' The lightning was running along the ground like red snakes. It was like a description of Judgment Day.

"If I hadn't pulled through it I would have died believing the end of the world had come."

Mrs. Dolly Ryder, then a 34-year-old wife with a three - month - old baby, says their home only "rocked a little."

She recounts one of her husband's experiences during the rescue operation:

"He found a newly - wed couple, the wife on her husband's lap in a rocking chair in a basement. They were both dead. Apparently they had been dropped there by the screaming wind. Alongside the chair, the family survivor, a small dog, sat whining."

BATHTUB IN STREET

Tales of the happenings that day border on the unbelievable.

One woman ended up in her bathtub, stark naked, in the middle of the street. Another woman taking a bath had the entire house lifted off from the foundations, leaving her and the tub intact.

A Regina man claims to have sailed his canoe through the air from Wascana Lake to downtown Victoria Park, about one mile. He says he landed and suffered only a broken wrist.

Mr. Hodgeson tells of the horse and buggy found in a basement. He says the only explanation is that the house must have tilled off its foundation for a moment and the horse and buggy were blown in.

"They knocked a hole in the wall to get them out again," he says.

George F. Dawson, who lived at the edge of town and related the tornado, tells this tale of the aftermath:

"I was most astonished to see a rooster perched on a fire hydrant at the corner of Market square. It was naked except for a couple of tail feathers and

BUILDINGS DESTROYED — Buildings were uprooted and smashed into pieces at Regina when a cyclone struck the city June 30, 1912. The three-minute storm wiped out three complete blocks killing at least 31 persons and causing up to $10,000,000 damage.—(CP Photo)

This Bailey Not Asked 'Come Home'

Rides There On Clouts

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oh, that Ed Bailey!

The 31-year-old catcher, who found himself dislodged from Cincinnati's starting nod—bound express last year, powered San Francisco Giants back into first place in the National League Friday night by hitting his third clutch home run in four days for a 4-3 victory over Philadelphia Phillies.

Bailey's shot leading off the 12th inning was No. 12 for the Giants' receiver and pushed the San Franciscans a half-game up on Los Angeles. The Dodgers, again trading places with the Giants in their two-team struggle, were beaten by New York Mets 4-3.

Hitless in 17 previous trips to the plate, Bailey got started on his hot streak Tuesday when he hit a grand slam homer as a pinch-hitter, then drove in four for the Giants and enabling them to go on and beat the Reds. Wednesday he tagged a two-run shot in the seventh inning that snapped a 2-2 tie and whipped the former teammates.

He took the day off Thursday and the Giants lost. Now he's put them back on top. But it took a strange combination to get the job done, the Mets winning their first game over Dodgers with 18 walks and only four hits.

PITCHERS POWERFUL

Elsewhere, the pitchers were overpowering. Curt Simmons' seven-hit job gave St. Louis Cardinals a 5-0 victory over Pittsburgh and a tie for third place with the Pirates. Jim O'Toole's four - hitter for Cincinnati beat Houston 6-0 and Chicago Cubs blanked Milwaukee 4-0 behind the combined four-hit hurling of Bob Buhl and Don Elston.

Bailey featured in the trade that sent second baseman Don Blasingame, catcher Bob Schmidt and pitcher Sherman Jones to the Reds, won it for the Giants with a blow off reliever Jack Baldschun (3-5) and ended a stalemate that had existed since the fifth inning. At that point, the Giants had tied it was a walk by Pully Jartzell Dennis Bennett to Bob Nieman had forced in a run. Billy O'Dell (5-6) went the distance for the victory, allowing eight hits and striking out 12.

Joe Moeller (5-5) started for the Dodgers and walked four of the five men he faced, forcing in a run home. Ron Perranoski took over, walked three of the next four and the New Yorkers had a 4-0 lead and were on the way to their first triumph over either the Dodgers or Giants—the clubs who last represented New York in the NL. Ritchie Ashburn's three-run single following the seven walks made it a big inning. Galen Cisco limited Jay Hook (6-8) to coast to the victory. The 16 bases on balls fell shy of the league record.

POETS THIRD SHUTOUT

Simmons (8-4) gave the Cards only two hits in the first seven innings as he posted his third shutout, striking out five and walking only one.

O'Toole (6-6) snapped the Reds' three-game losing streak with a strong performance in which he fanned seven and walked none.

Frank Robinson gave O'Toole only two runs with his 17th first inning run-producing single.

Buhl (5-5) checked his former Braves' teammates on three hits before he ran into a wild spell in the eighth inning that led to the lifter. Elston came on to complete the shutout, the first by Chicago pitchers this season. Billy Williams and Andre Rodgers paced the Cubs' attack, each stroking two hits and driving in a pair of runs to tag Tony Cloninger (5-2) with the loss.

Clair Tells Schrieder, Stewart; 'Whole Season--Or Not At All'

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Head coach Clair Francis of Ottawa Rough Riders says Canadian halfbacks Ron Stewart and Gary Schrieder have been handed an ultimatum: Play the full season, or consider commuting, or don't play at all.

Stewart and Schrieder had planned to commute between Ottawa and their Toronto law school or play only th eFirst half of the season before school reopens. Stewart holds the all-Canadian one - game rushing record, Schrieder is Riders' defensive captain.

Clair told a press conference Friday that the Riders tried strenuously to trade the two halfbacks to other football clubs in Canada. Trades had, in fact, been worked out but the players on the other teams had refused to report to Ottawa.

General manager George Terlep said the players wouldn't come to Ottawa without the guarantee of a year-long civilian job. He declined to name them.

Clair added that other clubs complained that Ottawa players were too much money. Stewart attended only one practice a week last year while commuting to Toronto and reported to have drawn full salary. The Riders paid a part-time player was said to be $8,000.

The Riders open their training camp late this month. Stewart and Schreiber haven't signed contracts but can still report for training.

From what Clair and Terlep said, it is plain the Riders aren't counting on Stewart and Schrieder for the season.

Terlep also said the Riders have four American guard Fred Robinson, to Hamilton Tiger-Cats for Canadian end Pete Howard but that Howard's so far has said he won't report to Ottawa. He wants to be with wife as well as himself and a baby.

The manager announced one new signing: Canadian halfback Tom Newton of Windsor, Ont.

Batting—Lu Clinton, Red Sox, playing with Carrol Hardy ill, and batting only .067, hit grand slam homer in sixth inning and two-run homer in eighth, powering Boston to 9-3 triumph over Kansas City.

Pitching—Hank Aguirre, Tigers, yielded four hits and two singles, striking out 11 and didn't allow a runner past second base in 1-0 Detroit victory.

Leafs Cut Veteran Rocky Nelson

TORONTO (CP)—Rocky Nelson, 37-year-old first baseman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, was given his unconditional release Friday night.

The club gave no reason for the move, but Nelson lately had seen more time on the bench than usual and was batting only .217.

Nelson has been in the game for about 20 years and was picked up this season from Pittsburgh Pirates. He was with the Pirates when they took the world series in 1960.

Nelson has three times been named most valuable player with the International League.

Suns Bow To Leafs In Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's going to be a long, uphill climb for Toronto Maple Leafs, but if they can sweep the current series with Jacksonville Suns, they'll be back in the International League race.

The Leafs defeated the Suns 7-3 Friday night in the first of a six-game set. But they still have big games with front-running Suns. A sweep of the series would leave them 1½ games back.

The teams play a single game today, a doubleheader Sunday and a Monday Dey doubleheader Monday.

In Friday night's other two games, Syracuse Chiefs edged Columbus Jets 3-2 and Richmond Virginians turned back Rochester Red Wings 12-2.

The Leafs opened their runs with two out in the seventh inning to clinch the victory over Jacksonville. Righthander Carl Greene helped his own cause by igniting the rally with a base-loaded single. Bill Lajoie hit a homer for the Leafs. The Suns got to Greene in the eighth when they scored three runs, but Greene then put out the fire.

Ed Bouchee's triple and a double by John Glenn accounted for the tie-breaking run in Syracuse's victory over Columbus. The defeat ended the Jets' four-game winning streak.

The Virginians went on their biggest scoring rampage at home since opening day. Ben Matesky drove in four runs with a homer and two sacrifice flies while Jim Bouslad spaced eight Rochester hits.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

According to that hassle-packed, slightly-wacky last three innings of the Kingston-Kenmore senior baseball game the other night it seems the old diamond rivalry between Belleville and Kingston is due for resurrection.

As is usually the case, coaches frustrated through the fortunes of baseball war, took to the old baseball steamletting by training their verbal artillery on the arbiters.

The fans took up the cue, too, and the stands echoed to the derisive shouts of the faithful of both teams aimed at the broad insult-shaking back of one, Al Kelleher.

It is a coach's prerogative to go out there and battle for his club, whether he thinks the umps is right or wrong. A mentor sitting on a bench quietly meditating and chawing on "Philadelphia Scrabble," a straw or a cud of gum, does not come up to fan expectations, nor does he add any color to the game.

On the Kingston bench and the third base line, like a ghost out of the old Central Ontario Baseball League past was Mickey Compeau, a household name when Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa and Peterborough formed one of the best senior baseball loops in Ontario.

Mickey may have a greying thatch, if any, but his vocal chords have been respected by old Father Time. He can still pull a foreman trigger, let the blast fall where it may.

But Mylen Compeau should have known better when he tried to replace one of his starting line-up before the first inning was over. It seems Arbiter Kelleher, an intense student of rules and regulations, can smoke verbalism practically every classe in the OBA "bible."

Kelleher, who is a stickler for the book, had, as any efficient umpire should, the starting lineup in his pocket. He promptly squelched the Kingston bid for an illegal replacement.

And the same goes for Coach Sid Forster of the Kenmore. He stood the 300-plus fans on their feet when he pulled in left-fielder Duffy Fallwell to a spot a few scant feet away from home plate and the batter.

He had the fans amazed at his strategy and those who are acquainted with the rules amazed at his audacity. He made quite a vocal bid to back up his move, but he, too, did not reckon with the Kelleher knowledge of the "book."

Later OBA president Jack Carson, who was an eyewitness to the affair decided the official. "The third baseman can come in—but not an outfielder," he said.

And that sent Fallwell out? that almost broke out when Umpire Austin Wahlin pulled his "double" play on Tommy Fetilit and pitcher Jack McIvor. Wahlin called Fetilit out—and rightly so—for interference with second baseman Gary Goyer, and also thumbed out McIlroy who was tossed out by Goyer's throw to the bag.

I asked Jack Carson for the ruling on the play. Said Jack: "the play was not dead when the runner jogged into the fielder. He was completed when Goyer threw out McIlroy at the bag."

I talked with Tony Fetilit, who was renewing old acquaintances with Mr. Carson and the attractive Mrs. Carson after the game. Tony was a catching member of the 1951 Belleville Bulls, champions of the Central Ontario Senior League under the management of Mr. Carson.

They were ribbing Tony about the dropped third strike that ultimately led to the Kenmore' seventh-inning, five-run outburst and swung the victory pendulum to the Belleville club.

"Me, of all people," laughed Tony, "to drop a third strike after all that fine Carson training I got. I'm the past all right. You guys have a good club, a good crowd and lousy umpires. I never saw anything like it."

Tony was half-joking in his later remarks. He argued the Kelleher plate calls more than once. The fans got in their ten-cents worth, too. But that is baseball. There is always open season on umpires.

But as far as Al Kelleher goes, he is not perfect, or near perfect. And with all his showmanship that undeniably adds color to the game, you show me a better umpire hereabouts.

Musial Misses All-Stars

By JOE RIECHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich Rollins, Minnesota Twins' rookie third baseman, and Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco Giants' slugging first baseman, were the top vote-getters on the American and National League all-star teams announced today following a poll conducted among the major league baseball players, coaches and managers.

The 33rd edition of all - star games this summer will be played in Washington's new District of Columbia Stadium July 10. The second game will be played July 30, at Wrigley Field in Chicago.

The American leads in the all-time series 19-14 with one tie. Proceeds go to the players pension fund.

Rollins, who played only 12 big league games prior to this season, batted .314 of a possible 280 votes. He was joined on the American League infield by Jim Gentile of Baltimore Orioles at first base, Billy Moran of Los Angeles Angels at second and Luis Aparicio of Chicago White Sox at shortstop.

Cepeda, who was selected on the 1961 all-star team as a left fielder, ran away from his competitors at first base. He received 229 votes of the 280 cast. The rest of the National League all-star infield consisted of Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh Pirates at second, Ken Boyer of St. Louis Cardinals at third and Dick Groat of Pittsburgh at shortstop.

The only repeaters in the American League were New York Yankees' Mickey Mantle in centre field and Roger Maris in right. Leon Wagner of Los Angeles Angels won the left field spot. Earl Battey of the Twins was named the loop's top catcher.

The National League also had just two repeaters—Willie Mays of San Francisco, and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh. Mays was the second most popular choice, drawing 213 votes for centre field. Clemente won the right field post from Felipe Alou of the Giants in the closest balloting for a position, 74 to 71 votes. Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles edged out Stan Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' all-time star, for left field, 150 votes to 95.

Del Crandall of Milwaukee Braves, who sat out virtually all of last year with an injury ailment, earned the No. 1 catcher-

'Haystack' Thought Otherwise

Sly Punch Wins For Tolos

By GEO. H. CARVER

A surreptitious poke in the official rightly at the moment taken identity and a swinging "mule shoe" climaxed the Tolos Brothers - Watson, "Haystack Kleen" wrestling duel here last night.

For the second week in a row the Watson-Kleen duo had the whiplash of fists and the whirling tizzy, beaten, but unbowed.

The "Whip" had John, or was it Chris, Tolos doing an unreasonable facsimile of Bert Lahr of the main bout when Referee Tiger Tasker jumped in.

Watson pushed him away once, twice and—the Tiger finger pointed his objection. But he didn't reckon with the crafty Chris, or was it John?

They tangled again and again the Tiger got in the act. Poor Tiger! One of the welter of swinging arms and bodies a fist shot out and caught the Tiger square on his shirt-covered chest. The same fist was attached to a Tolos bod.

But the furious Tiger didn't see it that way. He reached down and pulled up the form of a prone grumpy Greek in the signal of victory.

Up to this point in the fall La Kleen and the Whip had been playing po-po with the brothers from the Aegean. Then the mysterious Greek from nowhere and the fireworks began to fly.

The foursome went at it with the Whip and Kleen venting their spleen on the victors.

Enter Haystack Holden, the 485-pound Arkansas Irisher. Haystack was the object of the Greek attack but he quickly subdued them. He swung a mighty blow from mule-shoe and tacked to a heavy chain in the general direction of Kleen and Watson, and the brothers suddenly remembered a date they had elsewhere.

The brothers took the first Tiger by the elbows from the top rope on the prostrate form of Kleen." Watson and Kleen combined in a Greek-wrestling ceremony to take the second.

Then Mario Marello and 230-pound Bob Stasiw were called in 45-minute time-limit draw. Marello, a Greek, was no match for the Irishman in the preliminary. It would be hard to convince Los Kansas City go because Lo Clinton isn't the toughest .125 hitter in baseball.

Clinton, a Boston benchwarmer, has managed only eight base hits in 64 times at bat this season, but it's safe to say he's getting the maximum mileage out of them.

Clinton, an outfielder, plays for the Red Sox' Triple-A farm club Raymond Hardy — a former sub for Ted Williams — hit Hardy early in Friday night so Clinton was his .097 batting average were inserted in the line-up against the As.

He hit two home runs, including his second grand slam of the season, drove in six runs and led the struggling Red Sox to a 9-3 victory, 71 pulled the Red Sox within two percentage points of the Athletics and cut the gap between the first and third-place Americans in league teams to only eight games.

New York's Yankees clipped Los Angeles Angels 6-3 and moved within a half-game of the league-leading Cleveland Indians, 3-2 losers at Chicago. Hank Aguirre and Frank Lary shut out Baltimore Orioles 1-0 on Detroit's hits and Washington Senators beat Minnesota Twins 4-2 in 10 innings on Chuck Hinton's home run.

Clinton hit his first homer of the season with Jim Piersall on base in the seventh inning. The Twins attempted to stop the left fielder's wall in the sixth after Frank Malzone tripled and Russ Nixon walked and Jim Pagliaroni drew intentional passes to load the bases, but broke up a 2-1 game. He homered again in the eighth, with Runnels on base, giving Boston its final runs batted in on his eight hits this season.

The lusty belting made it easy for Billy Monbouquette (7-7) to pitch to the minimum for a five-hitter.

Rookie southpaw left - hander Whitey Ford found his tender shoulder well-healed and threw a solid four-hitter against the Angels, Ford's first complete game of the season. It kept him blemished the New York record of having never lost to the Angels in Yankee Stadium and pushed the Yanks one game ahead of the idle surprising Angels.

A Leon Wagner single, Bob Rodgers triple and a throwing error by Ford allowed the Angels to tie it 3-3 in the seventh, but the Yanks went ahead to stay in the next half inning and put it out of reach with two in the eighth.

Chicago scored all its runs on five doubles and three were out in the first inning. Joe Cunningham and Floyd Robinson singled and both scored on Chuck Cary Maxwell's double. Al Smith then hit an infield single to before Maxwell scored on a single by Jim Landis. Woody Held accounted for all the Cleveland runs off Ray Herbert (7-4) with his 11th home run in the seventh.

Detroit's Aguirre (5-2) struck out 11 in his three-hit fastpiece against Baltimore, didn't permit a runner past second and retired 16 men in a row over one stretch. The loss went to Chuck Estrada (4-4) who allowed only five hits.

Hinton's two-out 10th inning homer was the difference for the Senators against Minnesota. Hinton also was credited with driving in the tying run when he drew a bases-loaded walk in the eighth. Then, in the 10th, Harry Bright doubled with two out, and Bob Schmidt walked before Hinton hit his 11th homer.

Western Open Golf

Harney, Cupit Share Lead

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Harney, a veteran seeking his first victory since the 1952 Pennsylvania Open, and Jacky Cupit, voted Rookie of the Year on the 1961 PGA tour, share the 36-hole lead of the $50,000 Western Open with three-under-par 139s.

The 32-year-old Cupit, 1961 Canadian Open winner, fashioned a record-round 70 Friday as did Harney.

Only one stroke behind came hungry Fred Hawkins, the first-round leader with a 68 who carded a 72 Friday.

At 141 was Gary Player who had a two-under-par 68.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver pulled off the day's greatest round — an ace on the 306-yard No. 8 hole. Leonard used a three iron from the tee. He then hit a wedge shot and a half-way total of 145.

Jack Nicklaus pulled up in fifth place with 73 for 143 while Arnold Palmer struggled for a 74 and 147.

Al Balding of Toronto shot a 73 Friday to remain in contention with a 149 total. But George Knudson of Toronto and Al Johnston of Montreal failed to qualify for the third round. Knudson had a 74-81—337 and Johnston an 83-81—163.

Jackson To Return Favors

'One Good Turn Deserves'

TORONTO (CP) — "Now I can be of some help to people who have helped me," said Jackson, world champion figure skater, said after signing a three-year professional contract with the Ice Follies show.

No figures were disclosed, but some reports said the 21-year-old native of Oshawa would receive $75,000.

"I'm not at liberty to say what I'm getting," Jackson said in an interview on the day's signing ceremonies with Eddie Shipstad, co-owner of Ice Follies. "But I can tell you it is the best and I've received offers from two shows for more and three in North America.

The signing thinned out Canada's ranks of possible gold medal winners in the 1964 Winter Olympics in Austria. About a month ago the pair were champion pairs team of Otto and Maria Jelinek of Oakville, Ont., announced they have given up competitive skating.

Shipstad said his scouts had been looking over Jackson for two or three years.

MOTHER BIG HELP

Jackson, who discovered skating while stumbling on ice during a school carnival in Oshawa at the age of 14 years ago, was helped along by a mother who went to work to help pay his training expenses.

"Now I'll be able to help out my family and I hope to put something back into amateur figure skating because a lot of people helped me," Jackson said.

His skating ended months of speculation—since the night of March 15 when he dazzled the figure-skating world with some fancy footwork at Prague that Canada its first world title in the sport.

Plans call for Jackson to go to San Francisco July 10 and he will be a headliner when the 1962 edition of the Ice Follies has its world premiere in Los Angeles next Sept. 6.

Armstrong Meets Rodriguez

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight Joe Armstrong hasn't picked a soft touch for his first fight in 16 months.

The one-time high - ranking contender from Elizabeth, N.J., takes on Luis Rodriguez, No. 2 welterweight challenger from Cuba and Miami, in the 10 - round fight at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Rodriguez, winner of six straight and one of the shiftiest and busiest fighters in the ring today is the 8-to-5 favorite over the ring-rusty Armstrong.

Armstrong has lost only three fights in building up his 103-1 won-loss-draw record and all of the defeats were inflicted by Dick Tiger. The last one 16 months ago ended in a ninth-round technical knockout and sidelined Ace for a broken rib and numerous cuts and bruises.

Rodriguez, hopeful of meeting the winner of the July 13 Emile Griffith - Rubyn Dupas welter title fight, has a 42-2 record.

Leonard Has Hole-in-One

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver scored the 236-yard eighth hole and finished his second round play at the $50,000 Western golf open with 34-Western golf open with 34-35—70.

Leonard reached the halfway mark Friday with 145 after taking a 76 Thursday. Par for the wooded 7,110-yard Medinah course is 36-35—71.

Leonard used a No. 3 iron for his hole-in-one. He won an automobile for the shot on the par-three hole.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Rococo Rogue, a lengthy four-year-old in all of his starts this year, rebounded spectacularly Friday and captured the featured Prince Purse in the sixth race at Woodbine.

Rococo Rogue came from a distant fourth in the five-horse field to defeat Mysteer and Chopavane. Rococo Rogue paid $8.40 straight and combined with Mysteer for a $23.30 quinella.

Jim Fitzsimmons, Canada's leading rider this year, continued his mastery by winning three races. He leads all jockeys with 24 victories.

started West defenders and rumbled for six points. A Gabriel-to-Davis pass for two more points failed.

Defeat West 13-8

East Wins Bowl Game

BUFFALO (AP) — A timely halfback change in the East's pass defence played a major role in the club's 13-8 victory over the West on Friday night's second annual All - American football Bowl, according to the East coach Woody Hayes.

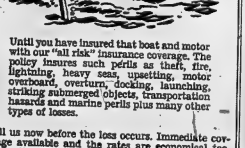
"We gave them (the West) the long gain and over-looked against the short, flare - type passes" to the flats, the head coach at Ohio State said following the game.

The East broke the scoring ice in the opening stages of the second half after Art Perkins, the West's fullback from North Texas State fumbled and Nick Buoniconti of Notre Dame recovered on the West 42.

In eight plays, under the able direction of Romain Gabriel of North Carolina State, the East went in to score. Bob Ferguson of Ohio State picked up 13 yards in the drive on three carries and Gabriel picked up 16 in four carries.

GOES TO THE THREE

Along the way, Gabriel completed a 16-yard-pass to halfback Ernie Davis of Syracuse, putting the ball on the West three.



But the breaks reversed themselves before the period was over. On the way for what looked like another scoring drive, the East suddenly found itself trailing after Minnesota end Tom Hall picked off a Gabriel pass on his own end and raced through a host of eastern tacklers, including one to score.

Sandy Stephens, another Gopher product, put the West ahead 8-7 on an option sweep with just a fraction over a minute remaining in the period. Sleeping Giant for Montreal Alouettes this season.

The next time the East got possession, it started an 80-yard scoring thrust, Gabriel hit Miami's glue-fingered Bill Miller with a 43-yard pass to put the ball on the West 38.

Then Jim Gunning Ferguson blasted off the left side, reversed his field before some points failed.

Astrological Forecast

For July 3rd

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Dynamic approach today brings success. If you start something, go all the way. Otherwise, lack of enthusiasm proves obvious. "Hunch" tonight could payoffs in big way.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Today your determination should go only so far. If you become downright stubborn you will be "unhappy." Instead, be gracious, generous, considerate. In return you receive love!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Friends should be consulted in connection with parties, celebrations, journeys planned for tomorrow. Attend to details early today, so you can enjoy holiday type of day tomorrow.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): A serious discussion with one close to you should not be evaded. Face facts, reveal problems. Listen to complaints others may voice. Maturity brings emotional and material gain.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): As day progresses, cycle favoring you gains in strength. Avoid irritating persons working with you. Be diplomatic and considerate. If you must play jokes play them on yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): If "touchy" situation comes to fore, be willing to give ground. Otherwise, problems arise which are not worth the "psychic drain." Don't insist on conditions which irritate close friends.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Maintain positive attitude. If you complain, others could easily misinterpret motives. Better to remain silent than to confide in wrong person. Cheerful attitude wins.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Some opposition, but if regarded as challenge could prove stimulating. Don't give up. So much in your favor if you take to broad view. Answer to minor problem apparent soon.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Favorable lunar aspect today means you must take the initiative where your future is concerned. If you remain in "rut" you make mistake. Correct path is one of adventure.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Like Aries, take direct, dynamic approach. Through show of confidence, those with "power" swing their weight to your side. Otherwise, you risk your own defeat notice.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Cycle has been higher in past—means today you must exercise care. Being stubborn can "cost." Be willing to change course of action. Don't get involved in foolish controversy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Key word is detail. If you attempt to skip over obvious necessities you lose. But if you are patient, keep eyes and ears open, gain is indicated. Be on the alert!

Hull Doctor Charged in Baby's Death

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. J. Gerard Simard, 49 - year - old Hull, Que., doctor, was released on $10,000 bail Friday following his arrest on a coroner's warrant in connection with the Feb. 26 death of a three-day-old baby.

The bearded doctor was arrested at the conclusion of an inquest here Thursday night. After a coroner's jury found him "guilty of criminal negligence" in the death of Jean Bussiere, son of an unwed Ottawa mother. The coroner's jury recommended that his Quebec medical licence be revoked.

No charge was read to Dr. Simard during his brief court appearance before Magistrate L. A. Sherwood. He was remanded to July 4 when the court is expected to decide what future hearings will be held. The baby died hours after birth in a clinic at nearby Aylmer, Que., and died in an Ottawa hospital.

Dr. Simard was arrested on a warrant issued by coroner Roger Rouleau which said the baby "physically damaged" to have committed manslaughter."

BLAMES PRESSURE

The coroner's jury said death was caused by "excessive pressure" applied when the infant was delivered and by lack of operational care by coroner Dr. Simard during birth. It said the baby died of cerebral hemorrhage followed by pneumonia.

During the inquest, the doctor's wife, Mrs. Gerarda Bussiere, said she had paid Dr. Simard $200 before the birth and was to get a total bill for another $300.

Dr. Jean-Noyes, assistant professor of obstetrics at Ottawa University, told the jury that the total attendance more than three times the usual payment by a specialist for delivery and for care before and after birth.

Ask Henry

Henry welcomes letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter he receives. This week Mrs. Gordon G. Reis of Toronto, who receives a copy of The Adventure of Light, by Frank Jupo, published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry—Have you any ideas on how to earn some money during the summer holidays?—INDUSTRIOUS.

Dear Industrious — Try the local gas stations and shops. Become a summer paper boy, you should have plenty of time.

My teacher told us how he used to earn a living taking care of neighbors' lawns while they are on holiday. I think the work hard enough you may have the privileges of paying income tax.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—We are two 13-year-old school girls requiring your advice. Everywhere these boys go we trail them, but they don't pay any attention to us. We also try to impress them but seem to fail. Would you give your opinion on this problem.—TWO IMPRESSERS.

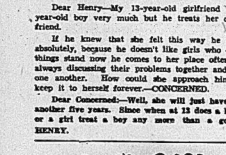
Dear Impressers—You are doing all the work; just rest for a second, throw it your him and let them hike.

But if they just don't happen to have an appetite and don't bite it means they have got their line in for something else.

Look around. In all your haste you may not have noticed someone fishing for you.—HENRY.

Dear Friend—I would like to know what to do when my mother gets up in a crabby mood and starts picking on just anyone.

I would like to know what to do about it. So if you can answer this, please do, as not only I would appreciate it but thousands of other kids would too.



Thank you.—BRIAN.

Dear Brian—When your mom gets in the crabby mood, get out of her sight. Run out of the house, dig a hole and stick your head in it.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My 13-year-old girlfriend likes this 14-year-old boy very much but he treats her only as a good friend.

If he knew that she felt this way he may drop her absolutely, because he doesn't like girls who chase him. As things stand now he comes to her place often and they are always discussing their problems and ask advice of one another. How could she approach him? She can't keep it to herself forever.—CONCERNED.

Dear Concerned—Well, she will just have to hold it for another 5 years. Blow him a kiss when you treat a girl or a girl treat a boy any more than a good friend. —HENRY.

Fay R.—He thinks money is to collect and look at.

Adrian R. — She thinks money is like milk, spoils if kept too long.

Fay R. — Adrian's salary, for a man of 35 with a wife and one child, would be considered "average." I believe we're called "middle income" citizens. But we still live in the apartment we moved in as newlyweds six years ago at a 360-a-month rental, despite the fact that I'm sure we can afford to pay twice that and have a more comfortable home.

What troubles me is Adrian's tightness with money. He doles out a fixed amount for my house money. Anything extra that I want by myself or for our son requires a petition, as elaborate as if I were asking Congress for a battleship! The comfort me he shows me how our head instance is growing!

I'd like a little less balance and a little more on my side of the deal. Otherewise it's almost as bad as nonsupport—maybe I'd better get myself a job that pays.

Adrian R. — Fay is one of those shortsighted and blind wives for whom security doesn't rate. They want show. They'd rather eat, drink, dress up and be merry, even if it takes their husbands' last cent. As to having money in reserve to pay taxes, doctor bills or to help out a relative in trouble, they call this "tightness." I'm sorry. I call it common sense!

That bank account she makes fun of came in mighty handy when her mother needed $500 in a hurry for an operation. If I left things up to Fay it wouldn't have been on hand. She'd go through twice my salary each week with her big eyes and big ideas!

I feel I'm a good provider, but Fay wants me to double expenditures each month. That it would be risky and I'm not rich enough for risks.

The fact is: We can't let slip Fay's threat to get herself a "job that pays." We hope she realizes she already has one, even though it pays in different currency than the coin of the realm! Her job as Adrian's sidekick might well be envied by women who know the pains of the inselvent, the dread knock on the door that means eviction or repossession of furnishings. But Fay is doing more "kicking" than "siding" and we'll try to show her, as well as Adrian, ways to turn her into a proper sidekick.

This couple's difficulty springs from disagreement about goals. If they agreed on where they were headed Fay would accept without argument the allocation of each dollar to the various destinations. Without them arrive there. Obviously knowing where they're going makes money management. Fay attributes Adrian's conservatism to stinginess. He certain that women have no head for financial explanations, makes one-sided decisions and hands them down to Fay, as the Supreme Court would do.

Adrian's first-aid move is Fay's pay's packet. Each week he him would be to take her into his confidence on plans for their future, contest through Fay-Speed and X-dreams, how split up Y-dreams each month? Listen to her ideas. With the tabs laid on the table, will she still feel they are headed for the right port? If so, her recommendation will be more knowledgable and may well be combined with her own scheme for cutting down some-thing. Expenditures would then be discussed intelligently, not decided by Adrian's arbitrary fiat.

Next he might patiently try to expand Fay's grasp of all matters of household finance — including taxes, insurance and legal documents. The more a wife knows of the hard facts about money, the closer — not "tighter"! — she and her husband can be. The relationship tends to be shoulder-to-shoulder rather than Big Daddy-Weak Mommy.

Finally, this couple might try to spread the lifetime stages of earning as defined by a modern psychiatrist: first, for survival; second, for a few luxuries added; third, for a modicum of freedom (such as a chance to quit a job or change a vocation); and, finally, for a power (unusable for good or, alas, nefarious causes). Adrian seems to be nearing the second plateau. While he likes most of all may never reach the others, Fay should rejoice, for he also may never have to return to the first one.

WORK LONG HOURS — Men of the hydrographic ship Baffin, which charts northern Canadian waters, often work as many as 18 hours each day of the week and often remain away from home for five to six months. Russell C. Melanson (right) of Ottawa is hydrographic officer in charge of the Baffin while Capt. W. N. Kettle of Port aux Basque, Nfld., operates the ship. (CP Photo).

CHARTS IN-SHORE AREAS — A surveying launch from the hydrographic ship Baffin returns to the ship after a charting expedition of in-shore waters. Lure of North Finds Way Into Blood of Surveyors, Seamen Who Chart Waters

By IRA DRYSDALE

HALIFAX (CP) — The lure of the North must have found its way into the blood of surveyors and seamen who chart the waters of the Canadian Arctic.

This could be one explanation of what draws men to a job that separates them from civilization for half the year.

The hydrographic ship Baffin, pride of Canada's seven - ship charting fleet, has gone north every summer since her launching.

Members of her 102-man crew are quick to tell of the drawbacks — goodbye to the wife and kids, television, liquor and girls for five or six months.

The hours are long under the midnight sun. The work day is about 17 hours, seven days a week.

Russel C. Melanson of Ottawa, is hydrographic officer in charge of the Baffin, and H. Ian Macdonald, senior research assistant, say, however, this work load is one thing that helps separate them aboard the ship in the north.

Another is the sea while the Baffin charted waters off Nova Scotia's eastern shore prior to her departure in July, the senior officers tried to explain why they chose this sort of life.

DOESN'T MISS TV

Mr. Melanson, 40, a native of Liverpool, N.S., says he wouldn't be content working a five-day office week. The tall, dark - haired pipe - smoking hydrographer is happy away from television, radio and newspaper reports of the world's troubles.

Mr. Macdonald, 27, of Kensington, P.E.I., likes working in on a land "where no man has surveyed . . . coming up with information no man has come up with before."

Hydrographic ships, operating under the mines and technical surveys department, sometimes survey areas at the request of interests contemplating industrial projects, perhaps the tapping of oil or ore deposits. Others are for defence establishments.

Much charting is to update maps of coastal areas for fishing and shipping industries. A lot of the work in the Arctic is simply to give Canada information on water routes never before charted and which some day may be used.

Last summer the Baffin worked in Barrow Strait and Lancaster Sound, about 1,000 miles north of the northern Manitoba border. She returns to the area this summer.

Recreation aboard is largely self-made. During the 2,000 mile haul from Halifax the men play cards, throw darts, read and watch movies. The crew prints a newspaper called the Baffin Baffler and operates a radio with broadcasts two days a week.

Clean sheets each week for 102 bunks and the everyday wash for men take a lot of water. The Baffin doesn't carry enough but D. F. Duggan of Halifax, 31 - year - old laundryman, uses salt water mixed with chemicals and detergents to produce a wash he claims is cleaner than most done with fresh water ashore. The salt is blown out in the drying.

The Baffin must carry all her food since only Eskimos make northern animals.

"Sometimes we drop nets over the side and catch fresh fish but you can't depend on that," says Chief Steward Tom Boyd of Dartmouth, N.S., a seaman for 45 years.

The stores he's responsible for aboard include 6,000 pounds of steak and 4,000 loaves of bread.

His ambition is to "put weight on every man aboard" but he never has succeeded yet.

Capt. W. N. Kettle, a 43-year-old native of Port aux Basques, Nfld., who carries 156 pounds on his lean five-foot-nine frame, says Kettle operates the ship under instructions from the hydrographic men.

M. H. Himmelman, 52, from Lunenburg, N.S., member of a schooner fishing family, is the chief engineer.

The officers say it will be tough to get young hydrographers to carry on the work. But there won't be any worries about getting a crew for a while. About a dozen were interviewed and not one hinted he might be quitting for a full-time job ashore.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Is There a Babysitter in Your Life?

According to me, baby sitting is one of the ills of institutions of our modern age.

Parents need a break. Among the calls for help that daily reach my desk, none is more desperate than that of the young mother who is tied hand and foot to her own small children 24 hours a day.

There are times when Pop makes the complaint. He says Wifely is so wrapped up in the three little ones that she pays no attention to him any more; that BORIS CLARK though he loves the children, they get on his nerves.

Married life has become workaday and drab. Mr. and Mrs. have forgotten that they are people.

Once they have started taking regular time off, this same young couple begins to live again. In a play atmosphere they flirt with each other again and when they come home, together they go in and look at their sleeping offspring with renewed affection. Gratefully Hobby drives baby sitter home.

"ORCHIDS TO THE BABY-SITTER"

Any wonder that they look upon this slip of a girl as their key to freedom?

If you as a young parent do not yet number among your blessings a responsible, mature teen-ager who will give her a hit for you at the drop of a bat, get one. As marriage aids they are priceless.

What to loo kfor? First of all, good physical health. A doctor's report for this is not too much to ask. She must have a warm personality—that certain something that makes her intuitive about just how to handle little ones. She'll sit on the floor and roll the ball to Johnny. She'll kiss Mary's cut finger and coax her to laugh while she applies a bandage. She's a wee mechanical and fix a toy train. She's a past master at changing diapers and knows how to spoon in formula in a way which pleases Baby that he is in the hands of one who knows her business.

She needs to know how to be firm; to be alert to safety factors, to the potential danger of an electric plug or a bathtub of water.

Having found this paragon of virtue, the mistress of a brood takes care to give her substitute a build-up before taking off.

The best arrangement is to have someone in the neighborhood doing this yeoman service; someone who can drop in and make the acquaintance of friend toddler and play with him a little. Then when the time comes to baby sit, she is more easily accepted. Children old enough to understand are told that Daddy and Mommy are going out, and when they Marion will be around to play with them, and that they are to help her to take care of them. They are to do as she suggests, as to playtime, reading time, eating time, sleeping time, and so on.

There is no excuse whatever for engaging a sitter for $ p.m. and tossing off a few words of instructions on the way out the door.

What's more, some of the instructions should be written down. There should be a telephone number where you can be reached in case of emergency. There should be indications of where food is, diapers, expected bedtime. The routines of bathing, where to find night clothes; what about a story and the prayers. Bedtime (With such written evidence, a sitter will never be put off by an older child who insists that "Mother never makes us do that.")

Since baby sitters are people too, you'll keep your girl longer if you show appreciation for her. Her own bills are tucked in, a comfortable chair, reading material, the use of radio or TV will be appreciated. Tell her where she can find a tasty snack.

"COUNTING THE COST"

Married folks who are young enough to have young children are also young enough to have pennies as they pay off the mortgage, instalment plan furniture, washing machine and doctor bills. Does this mean baby sitters are denied a place in the budget?

For my money it's poor economy if they are. What good is a loaded bank account to two bedraggled disillusioned parents who don't know how to play?

So if the pace of child rearing are getting you down, take my advice and set aside a monthly stipend for the baby sitter. This way you buy freedom from the feeling of being tied, and practical help toward a balanced happy home life. —DORIS.
